GOOSE BAY, Labrador (CP)—Three RCAF flyers and one transport department employee were rescued Sunday less than 24 hours after their plane was damaged in landing on a small lake in central Laborador.

Rescued were Flt. Lt. Bill Smalluk of Ottawa; Fo. Ted Gooderich of Winnipeg; LAC. V. A. Terry of Yarmouth, N. S., and Hugh Leckie of Pembroke, Ont., a transport department employee.

The men, flying in a small Otter aircraft, put down Saturday on an unnamed Labrador lake. By luck a distress signal from the aircraft was picked up by a transport department radio operator here.

A short time later a USAF plane set out from here and dropped food and survival supplies. An RCAF Dakota put down on the lake Sunday and flew the men back here.

They were in good shape despite a night in the bitter cold.

Aboard the rescue aircraft crew were FO. Dave Hache of Ottawa, and Cpl. Lou Wyse of Guelph.

Seal Coal Mines To Halt Fire

GLANCE BAY, N. S. (CP)—Two of Cape Breton's submarine coal mines were sealed Sunday in a last-ditch effort to choke a fire raging in a tunnel under the Atlantic where two miners died.

The Dominion Coal Company's No. 26 colliery, its newest and most promising mine, will be closed for three or four weeks and the adjoining No. 1-B for at least a week. About 1,200 men were affected.

Donald MacLennan, 52, and Malcie O'Handley, 39, whom company manager Harold Gordon described as "two damned good men," went into the pits wearing steel helmets to help fight the fire—and died.

MacLennan, awarded a medal for heroism two years ago for leading trapped miners out of the nearby No. 20 colliery, was off duty but went down with the first crew of draegermen, expert rescue workers.

The heat was so searing that one of the men, Murdock Johnston, clapped his hands—the signal to go back. But O'Handley had surged ahead to appraise the situation, and when found he was groping, bewildered.

O'Handley, father of seven children, died of gas poisoning before he could be brought to the surface.

It is believed MacLennan died of a heart attack.

French Braced For New Attack

HANOI, Indo-China (AP) — French Union troops braced themselves anew today for a still expected new mass assault against their Dien Bien Phu fortress by the Communist-led Vietminh.

Tank and infantry reinforcements bolstered the besieged defenders in northwest Indo-China.

From the skies poured a new stream of fresh troops, war equipment, ammunition and provisions, parachuted from French transports and American Flying Boxcars piloted by American civilians of the Hong Kong-based Civil Air Transport Service.

French, Viet Namese, Senegalese, Moroccan and Algerian troops and the hardfighting German soldiers who dominate the French Foreign Legion were dug deep into trenches and bunkers behind mazes of barbed wire. The ar more and more took on the appearance of a First World War battlefield, with the Vietminh also inhastily constructed trenches, some only 200 to 400 yards from the French Union line.

The French at Dien Bien Phu still anticipated a sudden Vietminh rush in an attempt to overwhelm the fortress.

They would count on driving into the French entrenchments after loosening up the protective network of barbed wire with nitroglycerine or dynamite and hope to avoid losing another 3,000 killed and 9,000 wounded as they did last week.

Drawing Begins On Irish Sweeps

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP)—Drawing started on Irish sweepstakes prizes this morning, with a 20-year record melon of $4,872,000 to be distributed to holders of lucky tickets around the world.

The kitty provides for 14 top prizes of $140,000 each. The payoff comes on winners of the Grand National horse race at Aintree, England, next Saturday.

The sweepstakes is supervised by the Irish government, with the profits—about 25 per cent of the total take—going to Irish hospitals.

Approximately 5,000 lucky ticket holders stand to win anywhere from $28 to the big $140,000 plums.

Favorites in this year's Grand National are Coneyburrow, Irish Lizard and Royal Tan.

Begin Hearing In Bell Case At Belleville

BELLEVILLE (CP) — The preliminary hearing of Mrs. Percy Bell, 48, on a charge of murder in connection with the death Jan. [illegible] of her 57-year-old husband began today. Officials said it may last three or four days.

During the investigation led by Insp. Frank Kelley of the provincial police, the body of Bell, a stationary engineer, was exhumed from a grave at Napanee and the stomach contents were analyzed. The exhumation was ordered by the attorney-general's department.

About 45 witnesses have been called in the case. They include reporters representing newspapers in Toronto, Belleville and elsewhere.

Alex Hall of Oshawa is acting as special crown prosecutor at the hearing in the county courthouse. Ronald Cass and John Lennox, both of Belleville, are representing Mrs. Bell.

The courtroom was filled to capacity an hour before the hearing was due to start.

SCRIBES TO TESTIFY

Mrs. Bell, a prim, teacup-reading widow, walked quietly into the courtroom and listened intently as magistrate T. Y. Wills read the charge. She wore a plain brown ensemble and neat black hat.

Crown counsel Hall said six or seven witnesses are newspaper men who have asked that they be allowed to pursue their duties. He said he expects to call the reporters about halfway through the hearing.

"I do not want to put a newspaper man in a position where he cannot talk with his fellows."

Mr. Cass said he felt it important that any witness who held conversation with the accused woman should be excluded from the court until his turn came to testify.

Highway Racket Cost $17,000,000

TORONTO — (CP) A Toronto paper today quotes Albert Wren (Lib-Lab—Kenora) as saying irregularities in the Ontario department of highways has cost the provincial taxpayers as much as $17,000,000.

"They laughed when the amount was raised from $1,000,000 to $7,000,000, but we know now that such an estimate was even conservative," Mr. Wren is quoted as saying in an interview with the paper.

Highways Minister Doucett described Mr. Wren's statement as "ridiculous." He himself declined to estimate the amount involved as the investigation still was going on.

"If I made some guess and the actual evidence showed it was wrong, that would be pretty silly, wouldn't it?"

The books of nine construction firms involved in highway construction in the Fort William division have been seized and C. H. Nelson, chief highways engineer, has been suspended as a result of investigations of highway work.

U.S. Paper Predicts Canada Considering Recognizing Red China; Pearson Denies It

NEW YORK (CP) — The New York Times says today that Canada is seriously considering recognizing Communist China and supporting the regime of Mao Tze-tung for membership in the United Nations.

In a dispatch from Ottawa by Raymond Daniell, the Times says "It may be assumed that during his recent trip around the world (prime minister) St. Laurent discussed the question of recognizing Communist China with leaders of other Commonwealth countries."

"The shift of Canada's attitude toward the issue, one on which there is a wide divergence of opinion here and in the United States, is believed to stem from Mr. St Laurent's talks with Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India."

BELIEVED NEHRU POINT

"It is the belief in diplomatic and some governmental circles here that Mr. Nehru urged recognition of Communist China by the West on that ground that it was the only realistic course and an essential step toward better international relations in the Far East.

The Times adds that Canada's final decision on recognition of Communist China is expected to be determined by the outcome of the forthcoming Geneva conference on Far Eastern problems.

"A conciliatory attitude on the part of the Chinese almost certainly would lead to recognition."

NO CHANGE YET

WINDSOR (CP) — Hon Lester B. Pearson said in a brief telephone interview this morning that, as far as he knows, there has been no significant change in Canada's policy toward Communist China.

Mr. Pearson said he doubts that there are any plans at present for "immediate recognition."

Canada's external affairs minister came to Windsor today to address a joint noon luncheon meeting of the Windsor Rotary Club, the United Nations Association and 14 other Windsor and Michigan service clubs.

The minister said he has been away from Ottawa since Friday and therefore has no first-hand knowledge of any policy questions being considered in the national capital.

The external affairs minister said during an interview later that statements by Canadian officials on the possible recognition of Red China must not be misconstrued.

"Realistic doesn't mean that we will recognize Red China tomorrow, or refuse to recognize her a year from tomorrow," he said, commenting on a suggestion that recognition of the Peiping regime would be Canada's only "realistic" course of action.

U.S. Economy In Good Shape—Weeks Plan New Tax Revision If Trouble Develops

TORONTO (CP)—Sinclair Weeks, U.S. secretary of commerce, said today the United States economy is "in excellent shape."

But if conditions should require, he said, "we shall not hesitate to use new monetary policy, new tax revisions, new incentives to business expansion and employment, large scale public works and whatever further public spending and legislation are needed to cope with an emergency."

Weeks did not specify what tax revisions are contemplated if any economic emergecy should arise. U.S. treasury officials also have avoided saying what tax cuts they would recommend to stimulate business if it should decline to the point where they think such action is needed.

However, in an address prepared for delivery before the Canadian Club here, Weeks indicated he is optimistic. He recited the following "plus factors" in the American economic outlook:

"The annual rate of national output has gone down, but the decline so far has been moderate. Even so, we are operating at a current rate a bit below $360,000,000,000. The total for the year 1952 was $348,000,000,000. So we are much better off than two short years ago. (United States total production in 1943 was recorded by the commerce department at $367,250,000,000, the highest ever.)

"Business plans capital expenditures almost as high as in peak 1953—the sum of $27,250,000,000, only four per cent less than last year.

"Construction activity in February on a seasonally adjusted basis was up both from January, and from February, 1953.

SALES EXPECTATIONS

"Business sales expectations in general should approximate those of 1953. Durable goods producers expect an 8 per cent dip; utilities expect a 10 per cent jump.

"Total consumer spending thus far in the first quarter (of 1954) has kept pace with the fourth quarter (of 1953) rate. The declined in durable goods purchases has been offset by a rise in (spending for) services.

"Personal income in January was at the annual rate of $282,500,000,000—less than two per cent below peak July, and $2,000,000,000 (annual rate) above January, 1950."

Want McCarthy To Step Off Sub-Committee

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sentiment appeared to be building up among Senate Republican leaders today that Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep.-Wis.) should step all the way off his investigations sub-committee while it looks into his roaring quarrel with the army.

From McCarthy came an-nouncement of a tentative decision not to do so and a suggestion that the committee employ lie detectors to get at the truth of his controversy with Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens.

The sub-committee plans to meet Tuesday to discuss procedure for its hearings, no date for which has been fixed.

McCarthy, voicing "complete confidence in this scientific instrument when it is operated properly," said he will suggest the use of lie detectors if all the witnesses agree. He plans to testify himself.

Senator William Knowland of California, the Republican floor leader, said in an interview he doesn't want to interfere in the committee's functions, but he thinks McCarthy should volunteer not to question witnesses or to vote on issues before the group.

PLANS NOT TO VOTE

McCarthy has said he plans not to vote "on any final decisions or conclusions" of the sub-committee.

Knowland said in an interview: "Since the senator has agreed to be sworn and to testify as a witness, I would think the procedure would be for him to voluntarily step aside and not attempt to participate in the questioning of other witnesses."

Protests Move To Set Rates In Fuel Act

TORONTO (CP) — Inclusion of provision in the new Ontario Fuel Board Act empowering the board to set rates for the storage or transmission of natural gas would take away the right of free negotiation from the private companies, Col. T. Weir, vice-president and general manager of the Union Gas Company, said today.

Col. Weir asked the Ontario legislature's sub-committee on natural gas to delete the section. However, on the suggestion of Attorney-General Porter, the section was set aside for further study.

Col. Weir said a proposal by Mr. Porter that the board have power to act as an arbitrator if the negotiations between companies over price-setting became stalemated "would be less objectionable" but asked for time to study it.

WOULD HINDER FINANCING

The gas company executive said the proposed legislation gives the board "complete power" to set prices to the ultimate consumer.

"I think the companies are perfectly able to look after purchasing matters. If we can't sell gas at a price favorable to the consumer then we'd be out of business."

Col. Weir said the legislation would also delay construction of a proposed pipe line to Hamilton from the company's storage area in southwestern Ontario because the banks from which the firm would do its financing, might not agree to the loan if the company was not able to guarantee what return it expected from the sale of gas.

Y's Men's Club 27th Anniversary

The Rev. I. G. Pollock addressed members of the Peterborough Y's Men's Club, Saturday, at the club's 27th birthday party held at Kawartha Golf and Country Club. He advised the members that, although still a young organization, they were mature enough to carry out a program of significance.

He also cautioned them against sitting back and criticizing the enthusiasm of other groups, particularly Communists, rather than doing something to make their own work vitally important.

"Our ministerial success has far outreached mental and spiritual activities," said Mr. Pollock. "We need more work in this field."

Bill McFarlane, program chairman, presented flower bouquets to Mrs. Joseph Watson, president of Y's Menettes, Mrs. H. Harwood, wife of the retiring Y's Men's president, and Mrs. Pollock. Ted Callon, district governor, brought greetings from Y's Men's International. Joe Watson, president-elect, was chairman for the evening.

Kissing Girl Man Slugged

TORONTO (CP) —Francis Barbara, a recent arrival in Canada, claimed today that while kissing one girl he was slugged over the head with a revolver by another in downtown Toronto.

Two girls, Anne Hill, 21, and Muriel Gardiner, 23, whom police described as "swell lookers," were charged with assault with intent to rob. Miss Gardiner is also charged with possessing a revolver.

Barbara, a native of Malta, told police he had visited some friends but got lost, ending up on Jarvis street. He began talking with a "good looking brunette who nodded to me," and her blonde friend.

The three went for coffee then for a stroll. In a dark laneway the brunette began kissing Barbara, he said. The scene was interrupted when he was slugged over the head and someone tried to grab his wallet.

His shouts brought nearby police to the rescue.

Two People Drown When Fall Through Ice

HONEY HARBOR, Ont. (CP)—The body of 72-year-old Theophite LaForge, was recovered from beneath the ice of Crooked lake channel five miles from here today and provincial police began a search for the body of his 45-year-old wife.

Police said the couple apparently drowned when they fell through the ice while crossing the channel on the southeast edge of Georgian bay.

The body of LaForge was recovered after Clarence Cousineau found a sled and two hats near a hole in the ice of the channel and called police.

The body of the woman was seen beneath the ice at one time, but immediate efforts to recover it failed.

The couple lived in a isolated area about six miles from this settlement and travelled across the channel by boat in summer and by sled over the ice in winter.

Honey Habor is 30 miles northwest of Orillia.

Accused Driver Soloes In Court After Mixup

A slightly bewildered client and a very puzzled lawyer finally got together in court today after having spent considerable time looking for each other.

John Stewart, of 6 Bruce St., thought he had arranged for W. J. Arthur Fair, QC, to defend him in a charge of drunk driving. Mr. Fair knew he was slated to defend Stewart.

So while Mr. Fair was outside vainly searching, Stewart was inside attempting to conduct his own defence. After the evidence had been heard, Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, asked Stewart if he wanted to reply to the charge.

Said Stewart: "I don't knew . . . I had Mr. Fair to . . ."

Magistrate Philp: "It's pretty late in the day to get a solicitor in on the case. Why didn't you have him here from the beginning?"

"Mr. Fair knew he had some case here this morning," commented Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw.

The court orderly called for Mr. Fair, who duly appeared.

Commenting that the evidence had been heard, the magistrate said, "Mr. Fair, you are in the position of being able to sum up the evidence for your client."

Mr. Fair turned to Stewart and informed him that he was supposed to have seen him (Mr. Fair) earlier in the morning. Stewart replied that that was correct and that he had arranged to see him here.

Mr. Fair, to the court: "Would it be possible to adjourn the case until I have had time to go over the eveidence?"

"I think I'll finish it now," said Stewart.

And he did.

The magistrate imposed a seven-day prison sentence and ordered Stewart's car to be impounded for three months.

Evidence of Stewart's intoxication while in charge of a motor vehicle was given by Constables W. G. Scott and B. Howden.

Toss Bed Springs Out Window, Glass Panes Too

Elmer Jacobs, 25-year-old Wellington St. resident, who took the springs out of his police cell cot and threw them through the window, made one bad mistake. He forgot to make sure whether the window was open. It was not and in court Monday he was ordered to pay for a new window.

Jacobs, who was being held in custody on a drunk charge, allegedly spent considerable time Sunday working on his cot and throwing the springs through the bars and out the window.

Before Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, he pleaded guilty both to being intoxicated and to causing wilful damage at the city hall. The window cost him $10. The fine for breaking it $10 and $2.50 costs, and he was fined a further $10 and $2.50 costs for drunkenness.

Failure to pay the fines will oblige him to spend 30 days in the county jail.

Two Armed Thugs Rob Jewish Centre

HAMILTON (CP) — Two armed thugs, one wearing a black mask, tied up the 68-year-old watchman at the Jewish community centre on Delaware street early today and smashed open the safe taking some $250.

The watchman, Norman French, struggled for almost an hour before freeing the ropes around his ankles. He yanked the receiver off the telephone with his teeth and with hands still bound, managed to dial a number with his tongue.

A woman who answered passed on his call for aid to police. They found him with hands still tightly tied.

Magistrate Wills said that if reporters had certain information, they would not be called until the hearing reached certain points. He suggested the reporters be called one after another.

Mr. Cass mentioned that a Toronto newspaper said in early reports of the investigation that strychnine poisoning was suspected. He said the statement was merely a conclusion.

Magistrate Wills ordered the newspaper witnesses, doctors and others in direct association with the case to leave the court until called.

Provincial constable Reg Rackman showed photographs and sketches of the Bell home and described its layout. He said that in his investigations he saw no sign of rats.

"Did you look for any," he was asked.

"I did."

Had Liquor Illegally

For having liquor in a place other than his residence, 62-year-old Jack Jenkins, 719 Bethune St., was fined $10, costs $2.50, when he appeared today before Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC. A further charge of being intoxicated also cost him $10, costs $2.50.

Fire Damages Bridge In Doukhobor Area

NELSON, B. C. (CP)—A highway bridge at Bear Creek, in the radical Sons of Freedom Doukhobor area near here, was damaged by fire Sunday night and the RCMP said two containers of gasoline were found beneath it.

The bridge is still safe for traffic.

RCMP said the gasoline bombs were set with timing devices similar to others used in the past by the freedomites.

U.S. Dollar At Discount

MONTREAL (CP) — The U. S. dollar was at a discount of 2 25-32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds at noon today. Friday's noon rate was 97 5-32 cents. Pound sterling $2.73 11-16, against $2.73½.

U.K. Gold Market Reopens In Very Sedate Fashion

By ADRIAN BALL

LONDON (Reuters)—The London gold market reopened today as sedately as if it had only been closed for a weekend instead of since 1939.

The reopening marked another step in Britain's bid to regain her pre-war eminence as a world trading and financial centre.

Closed at the outbreak of the Second World War, the market now will buy gold from any part of the world, but will only be able to sell for sterling.

Bullion dealers, bankers and refiners in striped trousers and black jackets this morning gathered in the market's traditional home, a richly-panelled board room in the Lombard street premises of the 150-year-old private banking company of N. M. Rothschild and Sons.

At the meeting, representatives of Rothschild's, the London refining firm of Johnson and Matthew, and four leading bullion brokers "fixed" the price of gold at £12, eight shillings and sixpence ($35) an ounce.

HIGHER PRICE

This price is six pence (seven cents) higher than the price fixed at the time of the devaluation of sterling in September, 1949, and which has remained in effect ever since.

In the first hour after the market reopened, heavy dealing in gold was reported. The price range was one halfpenny on either side of the newly-fixed price.

Britain expects to gain substantial trading profits from the reopened market, and to attract a fresh flow of sterling from overseas. The country also hopes to benefit by commissions, insurance and carriage for gold dealings.

The unit fo trading is a 400-ounce bar of gold worth roughly £5,000 at present quotations.

STERLING BASIS

Dealings in the market are to be on a sterling basis. Anyone inside or outside the sterling area will be allowed to sell gold.

But only nations and individuals outside the sterling area will be able to buy it, paying with sterling which has been bought with dollars or gold.

The London price will be free to move—but as long as the United States government is prepared to buy any amount at the fixed prices of $35 there will be a permanent "floor" to the market.

Selling of gold on the world's markets has brought the price down to about this level.

OBITUARIES

JAMES E. MANLEY

After a long illness James Edward Manley, 74, of 337 Euclid Ave., died Sunday at his home.

He was born in Otonabee township, son of the late Joseph Manley and Marguerite McIlmoyle. His widow is the former Kathaleen Facey.

Mr. Manley has lived in Peterborough for five years after coming from Otonabee.

He leaves three sons: Gordon of Rockcroft, Cecil of Aldershot, and Derwin of Otonabee; three daughters, Mrs. Fred Morse [illegible] of Howell (Hazel) of Toronto, Mrs. Fred Howson (Mabel) of Otonabee; six brothers: Ernest of Saskatchewan and Everett of Winnipeg, Thomas of Rochester, Harry of Otonabee, and John and Norman Manley of Peterborough; and a sister, Mrs. Thomas Hatherley of Winnipeg.

Mr. Manley was a retired farmer, a member of Zion United church and the Canadian Order of Foresters.

The funeral will be Wednesday at 3:30 p.m., the Rev. R. B. Hetherington officiating. Burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. HAROLD CRANLEY

Mrs. Harold Cranley, of R.R. 1, Douro township, died today in hospital following a prolonged illness.

She was born in Otonabee township, Mary Bridget, daughter of the late Robert Heffernan and Selina Powers, and has lived in Douro for many years.

Besides her husband, she leaves two daughters, Mrs. Joseph Barry (Mary), of Otonabee, and Mrs. Joseph Salo, of this city. There are five sons: John, James and Francis, all of Peterborough, Vincent of Toronto, and Reginald of Orillia. Two sisters, Mrs. Hazel Cranely and Mrs. Frank O'Brien (Irene), live in the city and in Otonabee respectively, and there are two brothers, Robert and Frank Heffernan in Douro township and a third, Thomas, in Lakefield. There are also 17 grandchildren.

Mrs. Cranley was a member of St. Joseph's Church and of its Catholic Women's League.

Funeral will be held from the home of her son, John Cranley, of 152 Dufferin St., to St. Joseph's Church where requiem mass will be said on Wednesday at 9 a.m. The Rev. J. J. McCarthy will officiate and burial will be at St. Joseph's cemetery.

JAMES J. STEWART

A former resident of Peterborough, James Gillespie Stewart died in the Kingston General Hospital Saturday. His wife, who predeceased him several years ago was the former Jean Anderson of Peterborough.

Mr. Stewart is survived by two daughters and four sons. These are Mrs. W. S. Gray (Beverly) of Toronto, Mrs. H. Schnare (Barbara) of Nova Scotia, Joseph J. Stewart of Kingston, B. G. (Skip) Stewart of Picton, Donald Stewart (Ted) and Robert S. Stewart, both of Belleville.

Two sisters also survive, Mrs. H. E. White of Peterborough and Mrs. D. E. Hardy of Toronto.

The funeral service will be held from the Comstock funeral home Wednesday afternoon. Service will be performed by the Rev. F. M. Ongley at 2 p.m. and burial will be in Little Lake cemetery. Until Tuesday the body will rest at the James funeral home in Kingston.

Hear New Plea For Road In Mine Area

TORONTO (CP) — Another plea for an access road to the new Manitouwadge base metal discovery in northwestern Ontario was made today before the Ontario legislature's mining committee.

R. N. P. Hamilton, vice-president of Sceo mines, said construction of a road and an early government decision on the setting up of a municipality in the area were the most important steps to be taken at the present time.

"If we have one quick access road we can save one year in starting production," said Mr. Hamilton.

BEGIN STUDY SOON

Mines Minister Kelly said the government is sending in two geological parties into Manitouwadge to study a road route. An engineering party will study the area as soon as the snow disappears.

"We plan to go into Manitouwadge as early as possible," said Mr. Kelly.

G. C. Wardrope (PC—Port Arthur) said the government should "bend over backwards" to construct a road immediately.

"If we are hesitant it will mean a tremendous loss in income and a prolonged delay in production."

Two weeks ago a delegation from Hornepayne approached the committee on road construction in the area.

Impaired Driver Guilty, Fined $50

LINDSAY (ENS)—Donald Patterson, of Bobcaygeon, was fined $50 and costs of $5.50 when he appeared in magistrate's court today and pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while his ability was impaired. The charge was laid by Lindsay police after Campbell, backing out of a driveway on Lindsay St. north, collided with a car driven by Mervyn Rogers, of Lindsay. Defence counsel H. E. Richardson, in arguing that only the smell of alcohol on Campbell's breath indicated he had been drinking, claimed that the "impaired" driving section of the Highway Traffic Act had turned police officers in a "witch" hunt whenever drivers involved in accidents smelled of alcohol whether it came from the radiator of the car or from their clothing. Magistrate Moore, in agreeing that the section of the act was weak, pointed out, however, that two police officers testified to Patterson's condition at the scene of the collision.

Stanley Carley, 20, of Lindsay, was fined $10 and $2.50 costs on two charges of obtaining liquor under the age of 21. Another Lindsay man, Claude Junkin, 23, was fined $25 and $2.50 costs for supplying a small bottle of whiskey to Carley. The charges arose out of an accident on March 6 when a Lindsay hotel manager notified police Carley had been served beer in his establishment by a new waiter who did not know the youth. Police, tracking Carley from the first hotel to a second and third beverage room, located him in an hotel drinking beer. The two separate charges were laid from the first and third hotels. When questioned and searched, Carley gave up a small bottle of whiskey. He indicated Junkin had bought it for him.

Junkin pleaded guilty to the charge of supplying liquor to a minor.

Class In Woods To Study Wildlife

TORONTO (CP) — Pickering College is moving a classroom into the woods this week to study conservation and wildlife outdoors.

Twenty students from the Newmarket school are taking part in the unusual project. Boys from grades seven and eight are spending a week at Limberlost Lodge, near Huntsville, 100 miles north of Toronto.

They will receive lectures from the lands and forests department, take field trips and study weather, trapping, logging, wildlife and conservation.

British Papers Praise U.S. Efforts

LONDON (Reuters) — Two of Britain's most influential newspapers today turned sharply on critics of America and gave praise to the United States for wise leadership that has preserved the Western world's freedom.

Both the London Times and the Manchester Guardian have often indulged in frank criticism of U. S. policy in the past. Today they joined in pointing out that, despite faults, the United States had more than adequately filled its tremendous role in postwar history.

Speaking in the more general terms, The Times said: "It is worth saying once again that no nation has ever come into the possession of such powers for good or ill, for freedom or tyranny, for friendship or enmity among the people of the world, and that no nation in history has used those powers, by and large, with greater vision, restraint, responsibility and courage."

ASKS CLOSE LIAISON

The Liberal Guardian, rebutting leftist criticism of American strategic policy, praised its fundamental soundness and added "for that we should be thankful, since our safety depends on it." It urged only that the United States maintain close liaison with her allies in taking future strategic decisions.

The Independent Conservative Times pegged its remarks on European confusion over "McCarthyism" and American domestic strife, and acknowledged that the role of world leader was difficult.

"Even the kindliest and most well-intentioned of giants causes a certain amount of nervousness among its friends. That is hard on the giant," said The Times, which added that many vexations may well make the U. S. impatient.

The Guardian's editorial attack on American strategic policy voiced last week by the leftist London weekly, The New Statesman and Nation. It stressed the "urgent need to be sure that our criticism of American strategy is sympathetic, fair and accurate, as The New Statesman's is not."

"The foremost point for criticism," the editorial said "is that we do not do enough together."

The Guardian called for some assurance that channels be provided for continuous international consultation in future not only on military but also on high political and diplomatic.

Mining, Oil Issues Dominate Market

TORONTO (CP) — Mining and western oil issues dominated moderate early afternoon stock market activity today.

Volume was 1,486,000 shares as industrials slipped a little in light trading, uraniums and Bathurst-area base meals were steady and base metals, western oils and golds were ahead and active.

East Malartic was strong with a 19-cent gain to lead junior golds upward after a three-week quiet spell. Senior were quiet and lightly traded and holding companies were strong and active.

Papers, utilities, foods and steels were off a little in mixed trading as industrials slipped a little. Refining oils and manufactures, although higher, showed several weak issues, and textiles, liquors, financial institutions and retail stores were steady.

Uraniums and Bathurst - area base metals were steady in light, mixed, narrow-range trading.

World-Bank Office Closes In Turkey

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — The World Bank branch office in Turkey was "closed for business" today and a secretary packed away the institution's files.

Pieter Lieftinck, the bank's Turkish representatives, left Ankara Sunday by automobile for Damascus, Syria, after his departure was requested by the Turkish government. Prime Minister Adnan Menderes protested the bank interfered in Turkish economic affairs throughlieftinck.

Lieftinck's office said he would return from Syria at the end of April but only to wind up his private affairs.

4 Constituencies Holding Election Today

OTTAWA (CP)—Voters in four constituencies in the central provinces today elect new representatives to the House of Commons.

The by-elections—in Verdun and Gatineau in Quebec; Peel and Elgin in Ontario—are the first tests of political strength since the general election last Aug. 10, won by the Liberals in a landslide victory.

Campaigning has been uneventful in the four ridings, which were divided evenly between the two main parties last year. The Liberal party then held the two Quebec constituencies with substantial majorities; the Progressive Conservatives held the Ontario ridings, but with smaller majorities.

The Liberals hope for a repetition of last summer's results, which gave them a commanding Commons majority. Standing in the 265-seat House: Liberal 171; Progressive Conservatives 49; CCF 23; Social Credit 15; Independent 3; Vacant 4.

Polls are open between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Except for local questions, the campaign issues have been similar to those of the last election, in which Liberals ran on their government record and Progressive Conservatives offered lower taxes.

Largest slate of candidates—seven—is in the Montreal island constituency of Verdun, which has elected Liberals since 1940. The Liberal party did not hold a nominating convention and four candidates seek party support. They are Yves Leduc, who has official Liberal backing; Roland Gadbois, running as a Liberal; Herve Ferland, Liberal-Labor, and J. M. Hayes, Independent Liberal. The other candidates: Armand Dupuis, Progressive Conservative; William Dodge, CCF, and Ken Perry, Labor Progressive.

Preston Reaches Cup Semi-Finals

SHEFFIELD, England (Reuters) Preston North End team today reached the Football Association cup semi-finals by beating Leicester City 3-1 in the sixth round second replay on Sheffield Wednesday's ground.

Preston now will meet Sheffield Wednesday next Saturday on Manchester City's ground. Third division Port Vale will play West Bromwich Albion on Aston Villa's ground in the other semi-final. Because of this, Port Vale's rearranged league match with Bradford City was postponed today.

McCarthy Works On Report Of Red Aims

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Senator Joseph McCarthy said Saturday night he has been working for months on a report "on the aims of the Communist party to infiltrate and control every media of information, such as radio, newspapers and television."

He said in a political speech that the report he has been "painstakingly preparing" would go into "the extent to which they have succeeded and hope some politicians are in mortal fear of and therefore to some extent guided by them."

McCarthy said the report was an "individual project" and not a project of the Senate investigations subcommittee which he heads.

MAKE MISTAKE

"Some chameleon politicians of both parties make the grave mistake of thinking that the left wing elements of radio, television and press along the Potomac represent America," he said, adding:

He said in a political speech "Clever Communists would attempt to use the fellow travellers, deluded egg-head liberals, and fair weather or weather-vane politicians to cut down the power of committees to dig out Communists."

Suicide Squad

HONG KONG (Reuters) — More than a hundred former Chinese Communist soldiers, Korean prisoners of war who chose to join the Chinese Nationalists, have formed a suicide squad on Formosa to attack the Communist - controlled mainland, according to reports reaching here from Formosa.

Mrs. W. L. Armitage Dies In Toronto

TORONTO — Marianne Beatrice Reynar Armitage, 76, widow of Dean W. Armitage, formerly of St. John's Cathedral, Saskatoon, died Sunday from a heart attack at her home, St. Joseph's St. Born in Cobourg, she was the daughter of the late Prof. A. H. Reynar.

Graduating in arts from Victoria University in 1899, Mrs. Armitage taught on the staff of Picton High School prior to her marriage in 1906. Her husband at that time was rector of the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, Picton. Subsequently, he became rector All Saints' Peterborough, of St. Mark's Church, Parkdale, Toronto; St. James Church, London, Ont., and St. John's Cathedral, Saskatoon. Following the retirement of Dean Armitage in 1940, Mrs. Armitage came to Toronto. She was a member of the Church of the Redeemer. Always an active church worker, she had been especially interested in the Girls' Auxiliary.

Her husband predeceased her in 1952. She leaves three daughters, Mrs. W. Sprague, Helen and Katharine, Toronto; and four sisters, Helen, Mary, Josephine and Christine Reynar, all of Cobourg. Burial will take place in Cobourg.

2 Cars Collide During Storm; Four In Hospital

LINDSAY (ENS)—Four persons are in the Ross Memorial Hospital, one in serious condition, and three others have been released after treatment, following a two car head-on collision. The crash, happened on Highway No. 7 near the intersection of Highway 46, west of Lindsay, on Saturday night. According to Provincial Police, a car driven by William Bowers of Toronto, was proceeding toward Lindsay when it was in collision with another vehicle, headed for Toronto. The driver of the second car has not been determined as yet.

In hospital with a broken pelvis, arm and leg and with facial injuries is Morris Brot, 38, of 237 Lauder Ave., Toronto, the most seriously hurt. Brot was in the second car. In the same car Leo Blumenfield, 24, of 339A Queen St. West, Toronto, suffered a fractured jaw. Two other passengers, Mrs. John Brian, 32, of Weston and her nine-year-old daughter Lynn, were released from hospital on Sunday after treatment.

Bowers, driver of the Lindsay bound car and one of his passengers Gerald Dawson, 21, of Maple Lake both suffered fractured legs in the collision. Dawson's sister Shirley, 17, was also released from hospital after treatment on Sunday.

Dr. G. C. R. Hall, of Little Britain, treated the injured at scene, before they were taken to hospital, where Dr. M. E. Gorman took charge of their care. Provincial police from Lindsay detachment, who investigated have been unable to determine the driver of the car in which Brot and the others were passengers, but they said the accident occurred during a snow storm, and [illegible] might have been on the wrong side of the highway at the time of the collision.

Both vehicles were badly damaged.

The vaccine will be that developed by Dr. Jonas E. Salk.

Grocery Store's Shelves Looted

COBOURG ENS) — Only recently purhased by John Bazay of Whitemouth, Manitoba, a grocery store formerly owned by Tomy Perry was broken into over the weekend and about $500 worth of groceries stolen. The store is located just east of the town on Highway No. 2 and the thieves broke into what had been regarded as a thief-proof rear door, smashing the door and forcing back the iron bars which had secured it on the inside. Damage to the door and wall is around $100, Mr. Bazay said. The robbers stole 75 pounds of coffee, 75 pounds of butter and 60 pounds of teas as well as a case of salmon, case of soap and 20 cartons of cigarettes. Two Trucks Collide On Sharp Curve Of Hill

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — Two half-ton trucks were in head-on collision on a curved hill on the Cordova road, six miles north of Havelock Sunday evening. Total damage to the two vehicles is estimated at $250.

Graham R. Rowat, 22, RR 1, Havelock, was in head-on collision with a youthful driver at the wheel of another truck. This was John M. Thompson, 15, RR 1, Norwood.

Thompson told police that he was almost stopped to let the other car pass on the sharp curved hill, and that the other car plowed into him.

It is not yet known whether any charges will be laid against either driver. OPP Constable Archie Eady investigated the accident.

Ask Canadians To Help In TV Fraud

QUEBEC (CP)—Goar Mestre of Havana, president of a radio and television network in Cuba, asked Canadian broadcasters today to pitch in with their experience to help in the progress and defence of radio and television in Latin American countries.

In an address prepared for delivery to the Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters, Mr. Mestre outlined radio and television systems in Cuba, where the industries are privately controlled, and in other South American countries where almost all stations are "in theory owned by private capital and supposed to work within a framework of absolute freedom."

He said in Cuba there was no more government interference and supervision than in other industries.

FREE SPEECH PROBLEM

"But, please don't get the idea that we are lying on a bed of roses," Mr. Mestre said. There were problems arising from politics and freedom of speech. Opposition political parties like to exercise free speech "freely and abundantly." Parties in power "somehow or another think that too much freedom is bad for the people."

"Where radio has been sufficiently well organized, with proper leadership and with sufficient courage, radio has survived."

Dictatorship moved in first on radio, then on newspapers and finally into every human activity, Mr. Mestre said. Direct attacks on freedoms were falling into disuse. Attacks now were directed at finances of radio and newspapers. There should be alertness to detect and denounced these new tactics.

"Your leadership is bound to be a factor of decisive importance" he told the Canadians.

New Uranium Deposit Found

OTTAWA (CP) — The Journal said Saturday in a front-page story [illegible] active deposits at the Eldorado mine near Great Bear lake has been discovered and is under investigation near Maniwaki."

Maniwaki, Que., is 90 miles north of Ottawa.

The newspaper says eight 70-foot holes have been drilled a half-mile from the town following "intensive" surface surveys. Uranium content of the rock was "still constant" at the 70-foot level and arrangements have been made for diamond drilling 1,000 feet down.

The Journal quotes Dr. Rodolphe Leduc, Liberal candidate in the Gatineau federal by-election today, as telling a public meeting at Low, Que., that prospects for production of uranium—the basic fuel of atomic energy—are "engaging the attention of some of the biggest mining concerns in the country."

Mau Mau Parley Planned In Few Days

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters) — A peace parley with Mau Mau terrorist leaders, postponed at the last moment on Saturday, is likely to take place later this week in the forest near Nyeri, a source close to the government said today.

It may be the first of a series of meetings to arrange the exact timing and details of the surrender of anti-white Mau Mau forces in the Mount Kenya region.

A government spokesman has denied that there has been any breakdown in the surrender talks.

Negotiations have been going on between the captured Mau Mau leader "General China," now acting for the government, and terrorist leaders.

Lakevale Ladies Aid

FOWLER'S CORNERS (ENS)—The Lakevale Ladie's Aid met at the home of Mrs. Melville Moncrieff Wednesday evening with a good attendance.

Mrs. Scott opened the meeting with a thought for the day. Scripture reading was given by Mrs. Harold Archer.

Mrs. Eva Deyell gave a humorous reading which was much enjoyed.

After the devotional period, a short business discussion took place. Plans were discussed for holding a bake sale early in May. Plans for patching a quilt were left in charge of the quilt committee.

A play "The Path Across the Hill" will be presented in the church the latter part of April.

A social half hour was then enjoyed with lunch being served by the hostess and the lunch committee.

Treasures Sale

CAIRO (Reuters) — Egypt next year will stage an international sale of art treasures which will "dwarf" the present auction of ex-king Farouk's collection, Maj. A. Gaafar, Egyptian government representative at the sale, announced today. This new sale will clear confiscated art treasures of the former royal Mohammed Aly family, Gaafar said.

The first ship arrival last year was on March 17.

Editor Hero Of 'Front Page' Dies In Boston At 72

BOSTON (AP) — Walter Crawford Howey, long-time Hearst newspaper executive and the real-life prototype of colorful editor Walter Burns in the play "Front Page," died Sunday in his sleep at his Back Bay apartment. He was 72.

Death came to the veteran and almost legendary newspaper man only two months after his wife, Gloria, died Jan. 24 of pneumonia while Howey lay in critical condition at a hospital of injuries suffered in an automobile accident.

Howey's long newspaper career began as a reporter on the Fort Dodge (Iowa) Messenger in 1902. He was editor-in-chief of the Record-American - Sunday Advertiser, the Hearst newspapers in Boston, at the time of his death.

Between those times, he became a living legend as reporter, city editor and managing editor of four Chicago newspapers during a period when Windy City journalism was marked by hectic newspaper competition.

STUMBLED ON STORY

One of Howey's first newspaper assignments after he joined the staff of the old Chicago American came with astounding suddenness and in an incredible, accidental manner.

Dec. 30, 1903, he was walking along a quiet Chicago street when suddenly a man-hole popped open and a stream of wild-eyed, panic-stricken people stumbled out.

Howey had stumbled on first word of the Iroquois theatre fire in which 602 persons were killed. Hundreds escaped the flames through the sewer opening which led from the theatre cellar.

Howey later became one of the youngest city editors in the country when he assumed charge of the Chicago inter-ocean desk at 24. He worked for the Chicago Tribune before beginning a 37-year association with the Hearst newspapers in 1917.

While managing editor of the Chicago Herald Examiner he hired reporter Charles MacArthur who later, collaborating with Ben Hecht, added fictional fame to Howey's legendary real-life exploits in their play "The Front Page."

The play centred about the efforts of editor Walter Burns and one of his reporters to hide from other newspaper men—and the police—an escaped criminal so they could obtain an exclusive story. Burns was generally believed to be patterned after Howey and neither the authors nor Howey ever denied it.

Cobourg Co. Holds Party In Coldsprings

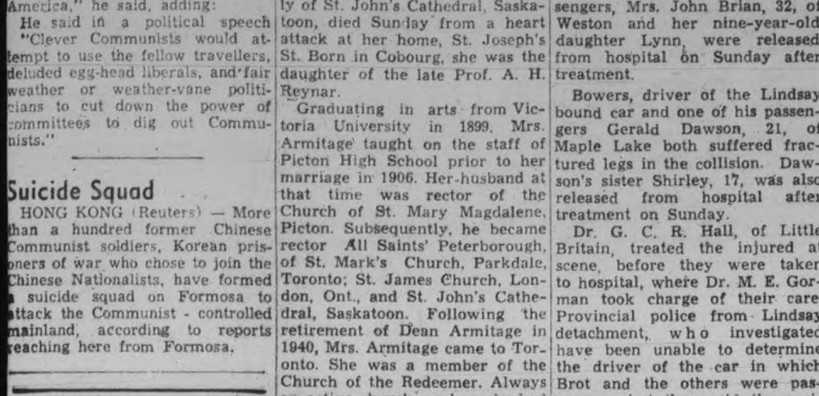
COLDSPRINGS —(ENS)—The employes of the General Foods, Cobourg, held their annual party Friday night in the Coldsprings hall. About 120 were in attendance.

The first part of the evening was spent playing bingo, followed with dancing.

Pat Inglis' orchestra of Vernonville supplied the music, and the Chatterson sisters entertained with tap dances. Members of the Coldsprings Women's Institute catered for the lunch.

Old Vic Plans 3-Month Tour In U.S.-Canada

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's famed Old Vic theatre company will take their Shakespeare specially to the United States and Canada for a three-month tour this fall.



Sol Hurok, American impresario, made the announcement Saturday after completing arrangements for the company to tour North America with a production of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

The production of the play, starring ballet stars Moira Shearer and Robert Helpmann, will be the most spectacular since a 1929 extravaganza by Max Reinhardt in the United States, Hurok said.

The ballet sequence of the play will be given with the full score composed by Mendelssohn, with the stars dancing the parts of Titania and Oberon, king and queen of the fairies. More than 60 other dancers, singers and actors will make up the company.

The tour will start with a three-week run at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York about Sept. 21. Also on its itinerary are Toronto, Montreal, Philadelphia, Bloomington, Ind., Minneapolis, San Francisco, Sacramento, Los Angeles, Chicago, Michigan State University at East Lansing, and Detroit.

HEALTH INSURANCE

... how millions of Canadians are voluntarily protecting themselves and their families against the cost of illness and accidents

While giant strides have been made by medical science in the past half-century, the cost of serious illness remained a very real problem for many Canadian families until quite recently.

The most generally satisfactory method of meeting this problem — health insurance — has been in existence for many years. But few people had this protection until 1940. Since then, their numbers have increased at a truly amazing rate.

Today, 5½ million Canadians have voluntary insurance against the burden of hospital costs. Nearly 4 million enjoy protection against surgical expense. And about 3 million have the newest form of protection: medical expense insurance. And most of these people have acquired this protection in the last ten years!

Where did all these people obtain this much-needed help?

Mostly from insurance companies, Blue Cross plans, and medical care plans which are sponsored by the medical profession. Others acquired protection from insurance co-operatives, fraternal benefit societies, and employee benefit associations.

Keen competition among the various insuring agencies has brought a steady broadening of benefits and greater protection for an ever-increasing number of Canadians. Thus today most of the hazards of illness and accidental injury may be covered through the voluntary insurance plans offered by one or more of these agencies.

This striking record of achievement proves two facts: It proves that Canadians have foresight and initiative in helping themselves to meet the unpredictable costs of accidents and illness. And it demonstrates the ability of insuring agencies to provide service that meets the greatest needs of the greatest number of citizens.

The Life Insurance Companies in Canada are proud that they have been able to provide a large share of this vital service!

New Help For Housing

The new legislation authorizing banks to lend money for house building came into effect today. By this legislation, the Government hopes to give families of limited means the opportunity to have a home of their own. The details have appeared in this newspaper, and banks and lending companies can amplify them, when their head offices and the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation have compiled the facts and analysed the intentions.

* * *

Briefly, the new housing legislation makes it possible for a couple to build a $10,000 house with a down payment of $1,400 and repayment of the remaining mortgage by instalments spread over 20 or 25 years. The instalments (covering taxes, interest on the mortgage at 5½ per cent. and capital repayments) are adjusted to suit the income of the family buying the house. The maximum loans permitted, which a commercial builder cannot obtain unless he agrees to sell the house at a price determined by the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, are $12,800 for a single dwelling, $23,500 for duplexes.

It is likely that commercial builders themselves, rather than private persons with their own private building plan, will initiate most of the new housing provided for by the legislation which came into effect this morning. Private persons may, however, find out what use they can make of the new plan, from their own banks. Prospective borrowers of money for new houses under this scheme make their first approach to a lending institution, rather than to the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

* * *

It is too soon to say what the effect of the provisions will be; whether they will be of sufficient encouragement to builders, and sufficient help to persons who want and need houses of their own. Not everybody, even in this land of milk and honey, can put his hand on a down payment of $1,000 or $1,400. Further, the interest rate—5½ per cent.—is not low. Veterans building or buying under the Veterans' Land Act have been able to get mortgages (as part of their rehabilitation privileges) at an interest rate of 3½ per cent.

Fifth Amendment Furore

A subject widely discussed in the United States in recent months is the Fifth Amendment to the Constitution. It has been criticized and condemned as a loophole for Communists, gangsters, and other persons before the law. Some of the more extreme critics seem to think that the amendment was somehow inserted in the Constitution by the Communists or other subversives, judging from their criticism. These persons have gone so far as to suggest that the Fifth Amendment should be repealed, in order to close the gap through which a person may avoid giving testimony.

Since Canada has something like the Fifth Amendment, it is interesting and timely to examine this constitutional privilege, to see what it provides, when it was enacted in the U.S., and from whence it was derived. In layman's language, its provisions may be summed up as follows:

1—No person may be held to answer for a capital or otherwise infamous crime, unless on presentment or indictment by a grand jury.

2—No person may be tried twice for the same crime.

3—No person shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, nor be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law.

4—Private property may not be taken for public use without just compensation.

The amendment containing these provisions was enacted in the United States in 1791, when it was still an infant country. It was borrowed from English common law, in which it had been incorporated as late as 1647. In that year a man named John Lilburne had been accused of a crime. He refused to testify, was whipped and pilloried, and still would not confess. Somehow, he managed to have his case brought before Parliament. It might be noted here that Lilburne apparently was the kind of person who would exasperate, if not infuriate, others, especially those in authority. He was so contentious, violent and bitter that Harry Marten, the regicide, once said that "if the world was emptied of all but John Lilburne, Lilburne would quarrel with John, and John with Lilburne." Yet Parliament, often the object of this man's vituperation, sustained him, ruling that "It is contrary to the laws of God, Nature and the Kingdom that a man be made to give information which would help convict him."

That was the honorable origin of the Fifth Amendment, as well as of the similar guarantees that exist in this country. They are essential guarantees in a free society. It is regrettable that the provision which says that no person shall be compelled to be a witness against himself can be abused, but it is not the only instance of abuse of a good and desirable law in a free country. If the United States Government heeded the clamour of those who would repeal the amendment, it would be a shattering blow to the freedom of the individual in that country.

Cigars For Women

A whole new branch of industry—and a field day for advertising copywriters—is opening if there is any truth in the rumour that fashion sanctions the smoking of cigars by women. The sanction is said to emanate from Royalty; Princess Margaret is reported to enjoy an occasional cheroot. (The report has been denied.)

We see nothing wrong with Princess Margaret's smoking a cigar. She would come by it naturally, having Danish relatives. Fashionable Danish ladies smoke as many cheroots as cigarettes, although formerly they abstained in public, when visiting outside their own country. One used to see Danish ladies happily boarding a home-bound train at Euston Station (London), yank down the blind on the compartment window and the public gaze, and greedily light up a cigar—the first really happy breath they had drawn in since they left Copenhagen on their English holiday. Incidentally, it was British royalty that helped make cigarettes, socially acceptable among women.

Why should cigar smoking be denied women, who delight in fragrance as much as men? Further, a cigar is neither more nor less moral than a cigarette. Therefore, it is only fashion which dictates what women will smoke; some women of advanced views here in Canada as elsewhere who either do not give a fig for fashion, or are its arbiters by their very disregard of it, indulge in both pipes and cigars. If it was right and proper for their great-grandmothers to smoke pipes, why should they not smoke cigars?

Custom has little to do with the matter. Women smoke almost as many cigarettes as men, but only a generation ago in these parts it was not customary for women to smoke.

So let women smoke cigars if they wish, provided, of course, they air the drapes next day. Not, please, a stogie; a stogie in the mouth of a pretty woman would lose some of its attractiveness. Let them stick to cheroots, or the cigarillo which Danish women smoke. But let them not be half-hearted in their cigar-smoking; the little cigar the size and shape of a cigarette is a cheat. Either stand or fall, ladies, by an honest cigar. Ad-men, you have done a good job in selling cosmetics to men; turn your talents now to selling cigars to women. It should make interesting copy, and there is a moral satisfaction to be got out of doing it well; the more women take to cigars the more men are likely to abandon cigars. This would be healthy for the men. As for the women? Well, some people say kissing is unhealthy. Cigar-smoking women would be saved from the menace of osculation, for who wants to kiss lips that have just been wound around a cigar? Cigars have aroma. They also have odour.

Interment And Cremation

Two headings on the same page of this newspaper the other day, whose stories were in no way related to each other, nevertheless posed a matter of relativity. One heading was "Must Use Soil Efficiently, Committee Told". The other heading was about cemeteries and the care of plots therein. Canada is not hungry for land as crowded other countries are, yet some of the very best land, thousands of acres of it, is now in cemeteries. Is this an efficient use of land? One might even ask if it is a good use? Some persons might go further and ask if burying bodies in the ground is not somehow less civilized and Christian than disposing gently of their ashes after cremation?

Sign Your Letters, Please

Almost every day we receive letters intended for the correspondence columns, but which we cannot print because they do not bear the name and address of the writers; only a pen-name. Some of these letters are on interesting topics, some on argumentative ones. While we do not undertake to print every letter we receive, we carefully consider each, and publish what we can. We shall not, however, publish an unsigned letter. If circumstance make it necessary or desirable, we do print letters under a pen-name, and withhold the real name of the writer, if he has so asked. But, we repeat, we must have, for our private authentication of the letter, the writer's credentials—that is, his name and address. "O Canada, mon pays, mes amours" please take note.

DARE FRANCE?

Abandon Indo-China

By NORA BELOFF

"MUST Indo-China be abandoned?" To an increasing number of Frenchmen inside and outside Parliament, the answer is manifestly: "Yes." But to a conservative Member of Parliament, M. Andre Francois Mercier, who has chosen this rhetorical question as the title of a book; and to Marshal Alphonse Juin, who has written its preface, the answer can only be "No."

M. Mercier was a member of a parliamentary commission which recently toured Indo-China. The commission's official report to the Government was never publicly released for fear of demoralising opinion. M. Mercier now publishes only his personal conclusions. What the investigators seem in effect to have discovered was that the Vietnamese nationalists were only luke-warm in the anti-Communist cause, and that the "struggle for independence," as the Vietnamese saw it, was less concerned with fighting the Communists than with getting rid of the French. This idea undercuts the whole French policy of the last three years, which has been to build up nationalist military and political forces, to permit the gradual transfer of the burden of the war to native shoulders and the repatriation of the French Expeditionary Corps.

M. MERCIER shows that the Vietnamese are torn and divided into factions, religious sects and have little coherent leadership, and that the Emperor Bao Dai who was installed by the French, avoids publicly engaging himself in the fight and shows his remarkable personal courage only in private big-game hunting in the jungle. The author quotes with approval the words of a French army general, that "victory can be won only when the (nationalist) Vietnamese fight with the same vigour as the (Communist) Vietminh."

In his preface Marshal Juin congratulates the author for "wisely showing that it would be unwise to precipitate the exit of our troops by Vietnamese forces until the major risks have been eliminated." In fact, M. Mercier goes even further, urging: "For heaven's sake let us put off until later forming a self-sufficient Vietnamese army on the European model. A heavy army, on divisional lines, modelled on the Korean type and intended rapidly to relieve the Expeditionary Corps, is an impossibility."

INSTEAD, M. Mercier suggests that the Vietnamese should be organised into little guerrilla forces. He insists that their leaders must be given political independence, as the only means of getting them to fight, but that the war must be run by the French; and that for security reasons the operational zones—which cover most of the country—must remain, for both administrative and military purposes, French responsibility.

Neither M. Mercier nor Marshal Juin feels that the French can withdraw within the foreseeable future, but they console themselves with the thought that the fighting provides a good training for French forces: giving "a hundred thousand men" in the Marshal's words, "the soul of a leader and a chief."

IN THEIR view the effort is justifiable principally to maintain France's international status. M. Mercier calls on young Frenchmen to go out as planters, teachers, missionaries, administrators and counsellors: "if not," he said, "I feel we must simply decide to pull out, letting the country fall into anarchy under the Communist whip and abandoning our own claims to be a great Power." The same conviction—that the final purpose of the war is to preserve the French Empire—was this week translated by the Right-wing fringe of Parliament into an amendment of a resolution favouring continuing the war effort while preparing for peace negotiations. The amendment adopted said that France would feel committed to fighting in Indo-China only as long as the Associated States of Indo-China remained loyal members of the French Union.

Nevertheless, this little fringe excepted, few Frenchmen have now much use for the old imperial values, and there is no doubt that both public and Parliament would have insisted on pulling out of Indo-China some time ago had they not been repeatedly assured that nationalist anti-Communist forces, friendly to France, were being built up to relieve them of an effort which France can no longer afford. That is why M. Mercier's book and Marshal Juin's preface—by exposing the illusion—will have weakened rather than strengthened the cast for continuing the fight.

IN NOTING the immense superiority of arms and the monopoly of air power on the French side, M. Mercier affirms that according to best estimates the Communist losses are ten times as heavy as the French. In this context it is curious to recall a comment made by the Communist leader, Ho-chi-minh to the French High Commissioner in Tonkin, M. Jean Sainteny, when earlier negotiations for Vietnamese independence were on the point of breaking down. According to M. Sainteny's recently published memoirs, "History of a Lost Peace," Ho said: "If we must fight we will. You will kill ten of our men. We will kill one of yours. And it is you who will get weary."

THE WEAKNESS of M. Mercier's book is that he does not really explain why the Vietminh fight so frantically and so uncrushably, despite the heavy odds against them. He even concedes that while the French are receiving hundreds of millions of dollars worth of free armaments, the Chinese Communists make the Vietminh pay for their weapons cash down. He describes how the rich Vietnamese, instead of paying heavy taxes to help finance the anti-Communist war, pay secret ransom money to the Communists as re-insurance against a future Communist victory. He concentrates wholly on the military and economic issues, and says nothing about the social and economic factors which affect the everyday lives of the Vietnamese peasant peoples.

A document published in the Communist monthly Democratie Nouvelle appearing the same week as his book, may help to redress the balance: it contains the full text of a recent statement by Ho-chi-minh and of a resolution adopted by the Vietnamese Communist-front "Labour Party," which drops all the Marxist vocabulary and provides for "the redistribution of the land to those who cultivate the soil" in terms which would have been comprehensible to revolutionary France in 1789.

HO's SPEECH starts by saying that until now the central task has been resistance against aggression, but that for the coming year—1954—there must be equal attention paid to agrarian reform: in practice this means giving the land to the peasants—whether small, medium-sized, or rich—at the expense of absentee landlords, and cancelling all peasant indebtedness. The resolution provides for "disciplinary action" to be taken against local revolutionary groups which initiate "indiscriminate spoliations an confiscation," but affirms that ninety per cent of the Vietnamese population lives on the land, and has a right to share in the ownership of that land.

THE most curious of the twenty-three articles of the reform programme declares: "Soldiers of peasant origin who are now fighting in the phantom armies (that is, with the nationalists), and who own little or no land, also have a right to share in the redistribution. If they are not yet back in the patriotic ranks their parts must be managed provisionally by local peasant associations or military administrative commissions."

Little wonder if this sounds more interesting than the legalistic arguments going on now in Paris, between the nationalists and the French, on the type of "free association between equal and sovereign States within the framework of the French Union."

An American Opinion: DOUBLE BOGEY

Where Land Reform Means Less Food

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

PROBABLY the greatest contradiction in Communist history is that the system has succeeded at all only in heavily-industrialized states. It is being most zealously pursued in two countries, Russia and China, that are primarily agricultural. It was only by brutal controls and a civil war that wiped out millions of small farmers that Russia was able to fight this contradiction. And the battle after 20 years, is still not won. Russian agriculture has never recovered from the destruction of that civil war.

Communist China is now in a position similar to that of Russia in the early Thirties. To pay Russia's price for the machinery she wants, to feed the workers in her growing industrial centres, she must squeeze the peasants to the end of their endurance. Taxes in kind are reported to be as high as 50 per cent of a farm's produce. In many areas, the farmer is forced to turn over almost everything he produces, then buy back what he needs from the Government at the Government's price.

Added to these "official" taxes are the never-ending "party contributions" that the farmer is forced to make. The result is also similar to the Russian experience. The farmer takes less and less interest in keeping production up, when he gets so little out of it.

Redistribution of land with a better deal for the landless, was their first pledge.

Communist 'land reform" has meant, so far, less food, not more for the [illegible] Chinese peasant. Suspecting that his role is secondary to that of the factory worker he feeds, he is more inclined to go to the city himself than continue to work his fields.

Peiping is seeking to counteract this trend by propaganda, by picturing the factory-worker's life as much harder than the farmeds. It is doubtful if this measure will succeed. The only alternative is one which the farmer already knows very well: more police, more controls, more supervision.

"The dictatorship of the proletariat" is no better than any other form of dictatorship. Generally, it is much worse.

Not Whether But How

(Brantford Expositor)

Arthur Greenwood, a prominent Socialist member of the British House of Commons, is a well-intentioned man, but sometimes his vision seems to become shortened.

The other day, for instance, disagreeing with his leader, Mr. Attlee, on the rearmament of Germany, he said, "I am getting tired of being told that we cannot have a vacuum in Europe. I would sooner have a vacuum than an arsenal bristling with guns."

Mr. Greenwood's premise becomes quite untenable when it is realized that it is impossible to maintain a power vacuum in Germany.

The Christian Science Monitor of Boston, pointing this out, says: "The trouble is that what Mr. Greenwood, Aneurin Bevan and the British pacifists soon would have is not a vacuum in West Germany but an arsenal bristling with guns of the kind that comes from Kharkov, Leningrad and the captured Skoda works—pointed at France and England."

Mr. Greenwood and his friends may reply that a truly neutralized Germany would pose no such problem. That may be true, but how and by whom is Germany to be truly neutralized? In the light of the Russian attitude and the last Berlin conference of foreign ministers, it is a silly question, as silly as Mr. Greenwood's basis of argument in this case.

The Foreign Secretary, Mr. Eden takes the rational view. The real consideration, he told the Commons, is not whether Germany will rearm but how it will rearm.

A Green Flag

(London Free Press)

Forty-seven thousand Canadians who spent £10,000,000, sailed away to Britain last year, and British authorities expect this will be raised to 50,000 this year. One of the results has been that the Cunard Line has ordered three smart luxury liners for the tourist trade and veteran shipbuilders on the Clyde have a nice contract.

Canadians with bulky bank accounts, and some with smaller folds, are going places these days and their money is appreciated. We may not have an official flag but our dollar is gratefully accepted in any port.

Bible Message

(From The Authorized Version)

Bless the Lord, O my soul. O Lord my God, thou art very great; thou art clothed with honour and majesty. Who coverest thyself with light as with a garment: who stretchest out the heavens like a curtain . . . Who laid the foundations of the earth, that it should not be removed for ever.

He causeth the grass to grow for the cattle, and herbs for the service of man: that he may bring forth fruit out of the earth . . . O Lord, how manifold are thy works! in wisdom hast thou made them all: the earth is full of thy riches . . . The glory of the Lord shall endure for ever: the Lord shall rejoice in his works. (Ps. 104:1, 2, 5, 14, 24, 31.)

✧ ✧ ✧

I know that, whatsoever God doeth, it shall be for ever: nothing can be put to it, nor anything taken from it, that men should fear before him. (Eccl. 3:14.)

Letter To The Editor

SCRIPTURE DOES NOT CONDEMN BLOOD TRANSFUSION

Sir: Having read the letter signed "David's Little Brother", in your paper of recent date, I would like to call everyone's attention to a few sacred truths, so let's go back to the Bible, laying aside personal opinions and man's tradition, which transgress the commandments of God.

Satan did quote scripture, and furthermore he quoted correctly, and had he quoted any scripture on the subject of blood, would he have called animal blood, human, or vice versa? I think not, because Satan knew he was dealing with an intelligent mind, in the person of Jesus Christ.

I am a Bible student, and a converted Jehovah Witness, so I know something of the doctrine taught in that organization.

I have carefully and prayerfully searched the scriptures, and truthfully state that I can find no scripture condemning blood transfusions, whatsoever.

True, there are many scriptures which condemn the eating or drinking of animal blood, but can these learned teachers who condemn blood transfusions, not distinguish between animal blood and human blood? If they cannot, I would suggest that they, "anoint their eyes with eye-salve. Rev. 3: 18," before they undertake to teach further.

We have in Gen. 9: 4, a commandment from God against eating of blood, as also in Exod. 23: 18, Lev. 3: 17, Lev. 7: 26, Duet 12: 16, 23, 24, 25, Duet 15: 23, Lev. 19: 26, Acts 15:20 and read the most of Lev. 17th chapter. All of these references condemn the eating or drinking of blood, but no one can deny that the reference is made to animal blood.

I can find no portion of God's word which forbids the use of human blood, to sustain a suffering or dying man, woman or child. If anyone who claims that it is violating God's law to transfuse blood from one human to another, and can prove their claim by the Scripture, and only by the Scripture, I would appreciate hearing from them.

I believe that the issue of blood transfusions should be a matter for each of us to decide for ourselves, but that we have no right to discourage or intimidate others against this practice, since scripture does not forbid it. Nor should we refuse this life-giving fluid to helpless little children, when they are too young or too weak to speak on their own behalf.

Will "David's Little Brother" please write to me, as I believe we have much in common, namely: "A lifelong transfusion from the Son of God". My name and address will be at the Examiner office, and I feel sure they will forward any mail to me.

Yours very truly,
SCRIPTURE, PLEASE SCRIPTURE

New York Central Prize $2 Billion Railway Battle

By DOUGLAS LARSEN

NEW YORK (NEA) — Wall Street is burning with curiosity and apprehension over exactly what Robert R. Young has up his sleeve in his titanic struggle for control of the $2 billion New York Central Railroad property. The showdown is May 26 at Central's annual stockholders' meeting — if no deal is made before then.

Practically every New York tycoon can imagine himself affected one way or another by a change in Central's management, depending on Young's motives and plans, because:

The Central includes tremendously valuable real estate holdings in Manhattan and elsewhere which will probably be manipulated to reorganize the road's complex financial structure.

Young is backed by powerful Texas and Midwest financial interests which is a challenging wedge to the long dominance of the New York business community by the J. P. Morgan, Vanderbilt and Rockefeller fortunes.

Not least, the Central's 10,735-mile road is a vital factor in tying together the nation's great industries of the east and midwest. It's second only in size to the Pennsylvania Railroad.

It adds up to a struggle reminiscent of earlier U.S. railroad battles waged by the Vanderbilts, Jay Gould, James Fiske, Daniel Drew and the Van Sweringens.

The public stake in the fight is Young's promise to transform the Central into a model of streamlined, comfortable travel, integrated for passenger convenience into a transcontinental system.

Even if Young loses, his action has already needled the present Central management into speeding up delayed modernization of its passenger facilities.

FANATICAL FEUD

Young's most publicized motive is his long and almost fanatical feud with Eastern bankers. The Central's present board of directors is the perfect foe for him.

It includes Harold S. Vanderbilt; George Whitney, director of J. P. Morgan & Co.; Percy J. Ebbott, president of the Rockefellers' Chase National ank, and other officers of the First National Bank of New York and the Mellon National Bank and Trust Co.

The somewhat incongruous front-man for the board is career-railroader William White, Central's president. He's finding the TV, radio and public relations aspect of the fight "a helluva way to run a railroad."

Central's board owns in the neighborhood of 15,000 shares. Young's group now owns more than 1,000,000 shares, or about 17 per cent of the 6,447,410 total shares. His impressive team includes the two fabulous Texas oil millionaires, Clinton W. Murchison and Sidney W. Richardson, Allan P. (Woolworth fortune) Kirby and Cleveland financier Cyrus S. Eaton.

ENOUGH TO WIN

To comply with Interstate Commerce Commission rulings Young sold his controlling interest in the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad to friend Eaton. At the same time Murchison and Richardson put up $10 million each for 800,000 shares of Central's stock owned by C. & O., but which could not be voted until sold.

Young claims to own 100,200 shares. Smith has 100,000 shares.

White says of Young's block:

"We're not disclosing all of our strength now but we control enough to win, you can be sure of that."

White has also petitioned the ICC to investigate Young's stock operations in this fight. To this Young says:

"It's typical of the Central crowd to go crying to the Commission when they find themselves in trouble."

More than 40,000 "Aunt Jane" stockholders, as Young calls them, own Central's shares. White has hired a proxy-gathering outfit to collect the votes of these absentee stockholders. He has also hired the public relations firm of Robinson-Hannagan to help him in the fight.

Young has countered with a suit to halt the use of these firms on the grounds that it's a needless, unauthorized waste of the Central's money.

Young admits that one of his first actions if he wins will be to dump such non-operating properties as the Waldorf-Astoria, Park Lane and Biltmore hotel buildings. "The Central ought to stick to railroading," Young contends.

Washington railroad experts suggest that this ties Young to the current fight of another railroad magnet, Patrick B. McGinnis, to get control of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad. The New Haven participates in the earnings of most of the Central's New York hotel properties in a complicated arrangement stemming back to the days when the roads were first organized.

DENIES CONNECTION

Young denies any connection with McGinnis. But a Central spokesman and some Washington experts concede that by working together Young and McGinnis would have a much easier time of reorganizing the finances of both roads.

Everyone on Wall Street agrees that cash alone is not Young's prime motive in this fight.

But critics insist Young is strictly a stock manipulator and only a dilettante at railroading, and that his highly-publicized schemes for no-tipping, movies on trains and creidt cards for passengers all died a quiet death.

Young's answer is to compare the record of his C. and O. to that of the Central last year. Out of C. and O.'s $334 million gross enue, the Central ended with a railroad operating income of $60 million or a seven per cent rate of return on net investment.

On $825 million of gross revenue, the Central ended wiht a net revenue of $63 million, or a 3.14 per cent return.

White's answer to these figures is that the C. & O. and Central are basically different types of roads with different types of traffic, and that the Central has a higher percentage of passenger business which loses money.

Supporting his claim that NYC's management is not on the ball, Young points out that the road went into the red more than $2 million during January.

White's answer is that it's not unusual for profits to go during certain months, that revenues were off 14 per cent that month and that he had kept all crews working full time to catch up on overdue maintenance and repair projects.

Signs British Honduras Heading for Gov't Eruptions

By J. HALCRO FERGUSON

LONDON (OFNS)—British Honduras, Britain's Central American colony, looks as if it is in danger of running into the same kind of trouble which cause the suspension of British Guiana's constitution at the end of last year.

As happened in Guiana, an election is to be held for the first time on a basis of universal adult suffrage, and the only effectively organized party to put up candidates (in this instance, the People's United Party) is accused of extremist tendencies and foreign affilia-

[illegible] is indicative of a common Guatemalan attitude.

But here the similarity ends. The Guianese People's Progressive Party is charged with subservience to Moscow, which is a long way away, while the PUP's evil genius is supposed to be in Guatemala City, the capital of the neighboring country. Guatemala, furthermore, lays claim to Belice (as the Guatemaltecos call British Honduras) which is not the case with Guiana's Latin American neighbors, Brazil and Venezuela, though the latter country supports Guianese independence on general "anti-colonial" grounds.

Finally, the Guianese PPP and the Honduranean PUP are in one way very different kinds of parties. The PPP is led by highly educated people with a firm background of Marxist training and a definite—indeed uncompromising — policy. The PUP leaders, on the other hand, rather live up to their nickname of "the PUPS": they are ambitious political innocents who do not really seem to know what they want.

But Guatemalan leaders are not by any means political innocents and they are right next door. Their radio broadcasts daily to British Honduras in Spanish and English, using a disgruntled Honduranean citizen who worked as a radio technician in the British Legation in Guatemala City during the war.

Guatemala, of course, is not a Communist country in the sense that, say, Poland or Czechoslovakia is. The Roman Catholic church is exceedingly strong; and well-to-do members of aristocratic Ladino (white or mixed-blood) families still have their Cadillac cars and country houses; the Amerindian peasants, despite land reforms, are still poor and ignorant.

But land reform is being undertaken, large North American companies are in danger of expropriation, and Guatemala's line in international affairs (as expounded by her spokesman at the current inter-American conference at Caracas) is a cautious echo of the Kremlin's. This line, including, as it does a condemnation of "colonialism," fits in conveniently with the Guatemalan nationalists' century-old demand for the incorporation of "Belice."

If the PUP is in fact willing to go along with Guatemala on this question, it will be doing its country no service. Guatemala is in no financial position to shoulder the burden of British Honduras, which cannot pay its way; and it is unlikely to be a desirable administrator of a colony which is 60 per cent negro, for Communist or no, Guatemala is anti-negro. The editor of an influential Guatemalan daily newspapers which makes almost daily claims for "Belice" told me: "When we move in we'll send the niggers back to Africa." He was not entirely sober and his scheme is quite impractical; but [illegible] have seen what was going on.

If the PUP can persuade the electorate (who are not entirely ignorant of this attitude) that Guatemala is a liberator, it will be a triumph of propaganda over common sense. But the danger of the PUP winning an election should not be over-estimated: under the Honduranean Constitution there is no responsible ministerial system, and members nominated by the British Governor still sit in the one-chamber legislature. Unlike the PPP in Guiana, the majority party cannot have it all its own way.

Flying Food To Eskimos

FORT SMITH, N.W.T. (CP)—Arrangements have been made with a Yellowknife aviation company to fly essential foodstuffs to an Arctic colony of 35 Eskimos reported dangerously low on food, a northern affairs department official reported here Saturday.

The official said Wardair Aviation of Yellowknife would dispatch an Otter plane to pick up buffalo meat cached at Cambridge bay and then fly it about 150 miles southeast to the Eskimos.

The Eskimos live on Flagstaff island in Queen Maud gulf, six miles from the shore settlement of Perry River and about 100 miles inside the Arctic circle.

Telethon Nets $200,000

MONTREAL (CP) — A 19-hour television program to raise funds for victims of cerebral palsy netted some $200,000. A spokesman for the Kinsmen's Club, sponsors of the first Canadian "telethon," said the drive was "an overwhelming success."

May Cancel Holiday

TORONTO (CP)—Remembrance Day, Nov. 11, will become a normal school-day instead of a school holiday in Ontario provided the Canadian Legion approves of the change. Ontario Education Minister W. J. Dunlop informed Ontario trustees council Saturday that the Legion has been sent a recommendation urging that school classes be held that day.

Ex-Scout Commissioner

TORONTO (CP) — Charles Mitchell, 78, a former Ontario commissioner of the Boy Scouts, died Sunday. He had worked in the wholesale paper business for more than 50 years.

KINGSTON (CP) — Gertrude Haffner, 65-year-old spinster died Sunday of burns received three weeks ago when an unexplained explosion ripped through her home. Force of the blast almost demolished the two-storey frame residence.

Calendar Reform Fight Brewing In UN

By A. I. GOLDBERG

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—A new fight between the United States and India, this one over world calendar reform, is brewing in the United Nations.

The Indian calendar proposal would provide one world holiday—"Worldsday"—each year and two in leap years.

The fight promises to come to a head next month when India will ask the United Nations economic and social council to make calendar reform a major item of business for its session in Geneva this summer.

The U.S. has opposed taking up the question on the ground that the council has more important things to do.

If the Indians get their 364-day year calendar adopted by the 18-country economic and social council and the general assembly, they hope to have it go into effect Jan. 1, 1956.

Calendar fights are not new. The old League of Nations considered about 500 proposed reforms. About 100 have come before the UN since 1945.

SEE MANY ADVANTAGES

But the Indians say their calendar would be "more regular, scientific and advantageous from every point of view" than the present Gregorian calendar adopted in the 16th century.

The Indians say the only feasible time for putting a new calendar into effect is when both the old and the proposed new calendars coincide, on Sunday Jan. 1, 1956.

The Indians contend the reform would:

1. Provide a 364-day year.

2. Give each three-month quarter 91 days. The first month of each quarter would start Sunday and have 31 days; the second month of each quarter would start Wednesday and have 30 days; and the third month of each quarter would start Friday and have 30 days.

3. Make the 365th day of each year, following Dec. 30, a world holiday called Worldsday. Although it would follow Saturday it would not be Sunday—that would be the day afterward, Jan. 1.

4. Provide an additional Worldsday every fourth year, which would be leap year as now. Instead of being Feb. 29, the extra leap-year day would fit in as another world holiday between Saturday, June 30, last day of the second quarter, and Sunday, July 1, first day of the third quarter.

Food Production Under Red Fire

LONDON (Reuters) — Soviet ministers responsible for Russia's food production drive were blasted by Nikita S. Khrushchev, Communist party chief, in a report published in the party paper Pravda.

Khrushchev, who has personally supervised the campaign to boost food output since launching it last September, blamed bureaucracy and red tape for a "sorry state of affairs" in Soviet agriculture.

Though Khrushchev has consistently ridden herd on officials responsible for carrying through the food drive, this was the strongest public denunciation he has yet made of agricultural leaders.

Both Ivan Benediktov, agriculture minister, and Aleksei Kazlov, minister of state farms, came under attack. Benediktov was chided for his "incorrect behavior" in not spotting inefficiency in his underlings. Kazlov was also reminded he [illegible]

CNSS Successful

TORONTO (CP) — Loyal M. Kelly, general manager of the Canadian National Sportsmen's Show, said Saturday as the eight-day show concluded here that it was the most successful in its history. Attendance, he said, though not yet counted, was up "considerably" over last year. North Jory of Toronto won the trophy for the all-round championship in fly and bait casting.

U.S. Postal Chief Eyes Canada Enviously

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postmaster-General Arthur Summerfield Sunday cast an envious eye toward Canada, noting that it "will continue to operate its postal service on a pay-as-you-go basis with the actual users of the mails paying the cost."

Summerfield, who has been trying for the last year to get congress to approve an increase in U.S. postal rates, issued a statement comparing the financial situation of the services in the two countries. He described it as a "startling contrast."

In the U.S., Summerfield said, the postal service has incurred a deficit of more than $4,000,000,000 since the Second World War.

Novelist Dies

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP)—Samuel Shellabarger, 65, author of a number of swashbuckling historical novels which became best-sellers, died Sunday. His best-known works include "Captain from Castile," "The Prince of Foxes" and "The King's Cavalier." His latest book, "Lord Vanity," is near the top of bestseller lists.

As expected, the private bill to permit erection of the Memorial Community Centre in Morrow Park passed its second reading in the Legislature last Friday and the third and final reading will automatically follow. The way, therefore, is cleared for the next step to be taken in this civic project here, and that is to select the exact site for the auditorium in Morrow Park. Ted Outram heads the site committee which will get busy right away and confer with the Exhibition Board on this point. The site, building and publicity committee members were named at a Saturday meeting, leaving only the finance committee to be selected. This will be done when the chairman, Ford Warren, returns to Peterborough. He has been away for a couple of weeks.

Down in Kingston on Saturday aft, the Peterborough Shamrocks beat Kingston All-Stars 4-2 to take their OMHA midget "A" semi-final round by 15-4. They had won the first game here 11-2, and now await the winner of Toronto Marlboros and Sarnia to step into provincial finals. Pat Doherty's local police-sponsored squad played a defensive brand of hockey on the big ice surface in the Limestone City to protect their hefty first-game lead. The K's played it hard and kicked as much at the Belleville refs as they had here against two Lindsay arbiters. Drew five misconduct penalties. Shamrocks all played well and are hoping to bring an Ontario title here this spring.

Truckies In High Gear

Oshawa Truckmen finished strongly on local ice Saturday eve to yank out a 3-2 win o'er the TPT Petes. As the first of their OHA best-of-seven senior "B" group finals ended in a tie, the Truckies tote a one-game lead into the series as it resumes tonight in Kingston. Some 2,000 fans saw a fast, clean and tight tilt here, Petes taking a 2-0 lead in the middle heat but seeing it overcome in the third by the smooth Oshawans. Just two minor penalties to a side and none of 'em cost a goal. Fine goaltending on both sides kept the score down as play was wide-open and kept at a hot clip throughout. They're two well-matched teams, no doubt about it.

* * * * * *

Jed Wilson, who played for Eagles here a couple of seasons back, had a goal and an assist for the Truckmen. Wally Samanski and Ernie Dickens scored for them, with Fred Etcher and [illegible] getting an assist. Petes' goals were by Toodie Greenlaw and Keith Montgomery, as Eddie Redmond and Doc Prentice each helped on one. The refereeing was good, though they took a lot of time aiming in their faceoffs. A dandy duel, and a tough one for the Jopling-Redmond men to drop. But they lost at home in the last series to Pontiacs and returned to Orillia to take a convincing win — then going on to capture the series. They can do the same now, provided they keep digging. You can't loiter or pull many lapses when facing the fast-stepping Truckmen. Next game at Civic will be Thursday night.

Tex And The Big Hombre

Tex McKenzie will team up with huge Hombre Montana against the rough pair of Fred Atkins and Ike Eakins in the main pro mat bout at the Brock Arena this Wednesday night. This comes about from a mixup last week when Eakins jumped to the aid of Atkins when the latter was losing to the towering Texan. So, McKenzie grabs onto Montana for a partner and offers to take on the other pair, who are quite willing for the melee. Atkins was disqualified in this bout with Tex last clash by Referee Jack Dempsey. The semi-final of the card puts Mike Paidousis (former All-American gridder) in against colorful Jack Bence. Prelim has Jan Gotch mixing it with Alan Garfield.

Local cage Regents romped to a 90-53 win over Orillia at the YM here Saturday p.m. to sweep their round 157-110 and move into OABA intermediate "B" semi-finals. They'll probably be meeting Osgoode Hall hoopsters next. Leading scorers for the club coached by Doug MacPherson and managed by Gord McIntyre were Don Ash with 14 points, Joe Stewart 12, Ed Nicholls and Dan Griffin 11 each, Bob Smith 10 and Bill Edgar with nine. A good showing by the classy Regents. In bantam play, Kenner goes to Oshawa tonight to open their semi-final set, return one being here Thursday. YW intermediate loop finals start this Friday night.

WHERE'S JOHN, DOC???? — Petes' winger, Doc Prentice, kneels in the Petes' net (top photo) as players scramble for the puck which is well away from the goal. The play was just as close about the Oshawa net where Les Colvin keeps an eye on Keith Montgomery (near net, centre photo), as Truckman and Petes' Chum Fryia and Toodie Greenlaw twist for the puck. Montgomery (lower photo) whirls about the Petes' goal as the starry defenceman starts one of his numerous rushes. Oshawa won the game 3-2 to take a 3-1 points lead in the series.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Oshawa Victors 3-2 Over The Petes To Lead In Playoffs

By CEC. PERDUE

Firing in three goals without a return in the third period here Saturday night, Oshawa Truckmen waltzed off the ice with a 3-2 victory over the Petes before some 2,000 hockey fans. The win gave them a 1-0 margin in their best-of-seven OHA senior "B" group finals, after the teams had battled to a 5-all overtime draw in Kingston last Wednesday. Third game of the playoffs goes tonight in Kingston.

After a scoreless first stanza, the Petes counted twice in the middle stanza for a 2-0 lead. But Oshawa drove hard in the third to pull up on even terms and then sink what proved the winner shortly before the midway mark of the period. But four minor penalties, two a side, were meted out in the fast, close and clean tussle. None of the penalties proved costly.

AS MANY CHANCES

There was very little to choose between the teams. In the periods one team proved high scorer on the totem pole, the other squad had as many or more chances to blink the light. Play swept up and down at a hot clip in every frame, piling up on the rival goalies' doorstep, and both netguardians were good and also lucky in keeping the count down to a 3-2 finish.

As in previous meetings of these two top teams in the best senior "B" circuit in the province, plenty of smart puck tactics were shown. The fore-checking was exceptionally good as first Petes and then Oshawa would hem the other crew in their own end of the rink and keep them there by spoiling try after try to bring the rubber out. The fast passing plays clicked well, too, and the frequent in-close stabs by rival goal creases were pure poison. Apart from a few stiff checks and words once between Ed Redmond and Frank Hooper, the teams stuck strictly to hockey and left the fighting for the pugs.

GOAL SCORERS

Playing coach Ernie Dickens, Wally Samanski and Jed Wilson did the sniping for Oshawa in the last chapter, with Wilson also having an assist, as did Fred Etcher and Frank Hooper. The Petes' scorers were Toodie Greenlaw and Keith Montgomery, as playing coach Ed Redmond and Doc Prentice each earned an assist.

The teams looked quite even the first part of the game as they hustled up and down their lanes. A Peterson-Belisle thurst early made Colvin step, and then Thaler tested Donlevy. Crowley and Hill built up a neat play, with Fryia later coming close. Etcher again had a fine try and Samanski almost scored from a faceoff in Petes' area. The Leonard line went good in its turn, and then Sinden drew a tripping penalty. However, Oshawa checked closely and no damage resulted during his absence, the frame ending with neither side scoring.

Greenlaw put Petes up 1-0 early in the second from Redmond, the corner passout going in off Colvin after Redmond had fired to the corner. The Holden line pressed, and Redmond and Hooper threatened to mix it but the refs got in fast to break it up. Crowley was gated for high-sticking and Donlevy robbed Thaler. Crowley had just returned when Munro got the finger for interference but some fine checking by Hill and Crowley kept the Truckmen off the sheet till Munro returned. The Petes poured it on for a space and finally made the count 2-0 at 13.25 when Montgomery took Prentice's pass-back and blasted a blue-line shot that was partly screened and partly stopped by Colvin before it went in. Play was fast and even as the period concluded.

BANGED IN THREE

Breaking fast from the barrier in the third heat, Samanski scored for Oshawa from Etcher, driving in a rebound with Donlevy sprawling after making one in-close save. Hill and Collins came close and then Dickens tied the count on Wilson's passout, the shot being screened enough so Donlevy didn't see it in time as the hot shot caught one side of the net. Petes roared back and Prentice, Peterson and Belisle were thefted Scott also got in a good try at the other rink end. At 8.47, Wilson sank the winner from Hooper with a rising angle shot from 15 feet out to the far hide of the cage, after a bit of poor clearing by the Petes in their corner. Hooper went off a little later for tripping but again Oshawa checked fiercely to stave off Petes' drives till he was back. The Petes kept tearing in to dominate play, a Hill-Munro stab and a drive by Greenlaw making Colvin rise to he ghts to block. McMaster went off after being accidentally hit in the mouth by a stick in a scramble by the [illegible] their goalie with 19 seconds to play and kept checking in enemy territory but were unable to tie it up before the final gong. Teams:

Marmora Gets First One Over Waterford

MARMORA (ENS)—After a tame start and facing a 2-1 deficit at the end of the first, Marmora hockey team improved in the second period in the first of the intermediate "C" finals with Waterford here on Saturday evening to win a hard-fought game by 8-4. At the end of the second period, the attendance was around 500 but as the game closed, it was swelled to the approximate 700 mark. Lavender was top scorer for Marmora with three goals. K. Trimble still suffering from an injury was on the ice for only a short period but had one goal and two assists to his credit. Shewchuk Gowing, Mullin and Broadley stood out for the losers. Both goalies turned in good games. Killian who was injured the previous night at Havelock, made some striking saves as opposing players penetrated the defence. Pedro shaped well in the Waterford nets but was somewhat affected by an injury early in the third. There were 14 penalties of which Marmora acquired six. Marmora has its next game in this best-of-seven series on Wednesday in Simcoe.

Marmora: goal, Killian; defence, Gray and Leonard; centre, Maynes; wings, Lavender and K. Trumble alts.: Jones, Mantle, Brooks, Brown Darrah, Paranuik.

Mayor Wins $15,000 Tourney

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Dick Mayor sank an 18-foot putt on the first hole of a "sudden death" playoff Sunday to win the $15,000 international four-ball golf tournament for himself and his partner, Tommy Bolt.

Mayer, St. Petersburg, Fla., pro and Bolt, from Houston, finished the last 18-hole round in a first-place tie with Julius Boros of Mid Pines, N.C., and E. J. (Dutch) Harrison of Ardmore, Okla.

Boros and Harrison had climbed out of third place into a tie for the lead with a last-round score of 63, nine under par for the Normandy Shores Course. Mayer and Bolt took 65 and the two teams each posted a best ball score of 258 for the 72 holes, 30 under par.

Rudy Horvath of Windsor, Ont., and Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener shot a 66-67-70-67—272 to wind up out of the money.

Greenshirts Dump Marlies 5-3 In Own Backyard

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener - Waterloo Greenshirts are still in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A playoffs—which may be a credit to Ken Reardon's oratory.

Reardon, who made good in the National Hockey League with Montreal Canadiens for 10 years, now is coach of the Greenshirts—the third one they have had this season. His team, which finished the season fifth, are in the midst of a best-of-five quarter-final with Toronto Marlboros, second-placers.

Marlboros took the first two games of the series by 4-2 and 6-1 scores. There was talk that the series would end with the third game in Toronto Saturday but there's where Reardon's speech-making came in. The Kitchener coach made no secret of what he thought of his team. He told them he was "ashamed" of them and said that only the fact that he was a poor man prevented him from giving the cash customers a refund.

Kitchener manager Curly Davis also threw in a couple of barbs. "They couldn't check their way out of a hotel," he said. "The only thing those guys are interested in" he added, "is their pay cheques. I may have interesting news for them Saturday when they drop around for their pay."

CAUGHT HINT

It is doubtful the Greenshirts received the "interesting news" because they went out Saturday, outchecked, outplayed and outbumped the Marlboros for a 5-3 victory—and right in the Dukes' back yard.

St. Catharines players also must have heard from their coach Rudy Pilous after the favored TeePees lost the first game of their best-of-seven series to St. Michael's in St. Catharines. The TeePees returned to beat the Collegians 6-4 on Toronto ice to square the series.

The only other week-end game saw Hamilton Cubs defeat Guelph Biltmores 4-3 in Hamilton Saturday to win the best-of-five quarter final 3-0.

Reardon changed his tune after the game in Toronto. "We'll be back here Friday for the fifth game," he said. Marlboro officials admitted they were worried by the resurgent Greenshirts.

Grieg Hicks paced the Greenshirts with two goals, Bud Horne, Doug Vaughan and Del Toppal notching the others. Gerry James, Mike Elik and Mike Nykoluk were the Toronto snipers.

CLOSE CALL

St. Michael's nearly took their second game of the series against St. Catharines Sunday but fell apart when the TeePees scored three times in one minute and 20 seconds early in the third period.

Brian Cullen, Hugh Barlow, Pete Koval, Barry Cullen, Wimpy Roberts and Ches Warchol each scored a goal for the TeePees, Ken Gribbons counted twice for St. Michael's, others going to Paul Knox and Jack Caffery.

Hamilton Cubs took their 20th victory in their last 24 contests when they eliminated the Biltmores in Hamilton. Their victory sent them into the semi-finals against the winner of the Kitchener-Marlboro set.

Joey Zorica scored twice for the Cubs. Marlin McAlendin and Bill Stewart were the other Hamilton marksmen. Bill Graham, John Muckler and Hillary Menard were the Guelph scorers.

Marlboros are at Kitchener and St. Michael's play at St. Catharines in Tuesday games.

Mt. Pleasant Takes Fray From 4th Line

MILLBROOK (ENS) — When the Fourth Liners brought Mt. Pleasant to a screeching halt in the first game of the East Durham finals, most of the railbirds wrote off the chances of the Mountaineers. After Friday's contest when the Northerners earned a 5-4 verdict in the second game, opinion is wavering. Once again soft ice didn't appreciably brake the play but it did make for moments of helter skelter hockey.

Blodgett, back to the hockey wars, after being out for several weeks with broken ankle, blinked the first light for Mt. Pleasant with Armstrong assisting. Thompson and Friar, a hard working young combination, tied it up at the eight-minute mark. There was no further scoring in the period although both teams threatened. Once the Liners piled up a four-man block in the mouth of their net to hold out a Mountaineers' thrust and McDowell shaved Evans goal post on a dynamited shot.

In the second, Walling's solo sortie at the two-minute mark clicked. Moments later Hubbeard saved an almost certain counter when he came out halfway to the blue line to beat Armstrong to a loose puck. Allan Hutchison and McDowell put the Liners two goals up at the 10-minute mark. This lead was washed out by Parker, from Carr, and Alex Ruth from Armstrong, late in the second period, to make a new game of it. There was a theory that if a team didn't have a substantial lead going into the third against the Liners it might as well pack up the gear and get an extra 20 minutes' sleep. But even this time-honored idea went by the boards in this dope-upsetting game.

In the final canto, Walling and Allan Hutchison put the Liners into a brief lead but the Ruth brothers got it right back. Play sizzled in end-to-end rushes until the 15:00 minute mark when Parker and Carr put the northern fans into a frenzy by notching the big one. The Walling-McDowell-Hutchison line did double duty in a desperate attempt to tie it up but the Mountaineers checked desperately for the balance of the game. Play was generally clean.

Wings Whip Leafs In 6-1 Fray; Lumley Gets Cup

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The National Hockey League's regular schedule ended Sunday night in a hectic flourish and Harry Lumley's battle to win the Vezina trophy topped about as crazy a wind-up as could be dreamed up. Montreal Canadiens finished in second place by three points over Toronto Maple Leafs and set the line-up for the Stanley Cup playoffs opening Tuesday night.

The first-place Detroit Red Wings will tangle with the Leafs in a best-of-seven series opening Tuesday in Detroit and the Canadiens will take on the fourth-place Boston Bruins in a similar series opening the same night in Montreal.

But the way Lumley nearly blew the Vezina trophy and the $1,000 bonus that goes with it overshadowed everything else on the final night. The Leafs' goalie went into the final week-end with a five-goal margin over the Wings' Terry Sawchuk. He had a six-goal lead after Saturday night's games when New York Rangers beat the Leafs 5-2 in Toronto and the Canadiens trounced Detroit 6-1 in Montreal.

Sunday night the Wings whipped the Toronto club 6-1 and Lumley won the goaltenders' award by a single goal, the first time he has captured it in 11 years in the NHL.

The Canadiens, in third place a single point behind the Leafs before the final two games, cinched the runner-up spot by beating the Rangers 3-1 in New York. Boston and Chicago closed out their schedule with the Bruins beating the Black Hawks 9-5 at Boston.

Lumley edged Sawchuk 132 goals to 131 and the single goal differ- that the Leafs could score against the Detroit goalie Sunday night. It came from the stick of Jim Thomson and was a blooping 80-foot shot which squirted through Sawchuk's legs.

The Leafs trailed the Red Wings 3-1 going into the third period. The Wings then scored three times to pull Sawchuk within one goal of Lumley with seven minutes to play. The Wings missed several great chances of scoring again, Lumley rising to the occasion to make several clutch stops.

Virtually lost in the wild finish were the 22 penalties handed out by Red Storey, plus the fact that Gordie Howe scored once and assisted in two other goals to win the scoring crown for the fourth straight year. He finished with 33 goals and 49 assists for 82 points.

The other Detroit scorers were Ted Lindsay with two and Johnny Wilson, Bill Dineen and Tony Leswick.

The Red Wings hardly seemed like the same team which played the Canadiens the previous night. Marty Pavelich got their only goal. For Montreal Floyd Curry counted twice and Lorne Davis, Bernie Geoffrion and Ken Mosdell once each.

Paul Masnick, Paul Meger and Maurice Richard scored the Montreal goals that beat the Rangers Sunday night. Richard's goal was his 37th of the season, the tops for that department. The Rangers' lone counter was racked up by Mickoski.

Against the Rangers Saturday night the Leafs were as powerless as they were against the Red Wings the following night.

Four goals were scored by defencemen, with Jack Evans getting two and Ivan Irwin and Leo Reise scoring the others. The Rangers' first period goal was counted by Miekoski, George Armstrong matched that for the Leafs and Sid Smith counted their other goal in the second period.

Gus Bodnar and Cal Gardner led the Boston attack with two goals each in the Bruins' win over Chicago. The other Boston marksmen were Ed Sandford, Fleming Mackell, Dave Creighton, Doug Mohns and Frank Martin. Pete Conacher fired two goals for Chicago. Lou Jankowski, Jack McIntyre and Al Dewsbury scored one each.

JAPANESE ENVOY—Koto Matsudaira, 51, new Japanese ambassador to Canada, is expected to arrive in Ottawa March 25 to assume his new duties He succeeds Sada Iguchi, Japan's first post-war ambassador to Canada. A career diplomat, Mr. Matsudaira was appointed first secretary of the Japanese embassy in Washington in 1941 and in 1944 became first secretary of the embassy in Moscow, two years later was promoted to counsellor. He was appointed special assistant to Japan's Foreign Minister Katsuo Okazaki in 1952, a post he retained until the appointment to Canada.—(CP Photo).

Bad Weather Curbs Exercise

NORTH BAY (CP)—Bad weather curtailed sharply the week-end exercise designed to test the air defences of eastern Canada. Participating were RCAF squadrons, radar units and the ground observer corps civilian volunteers.

Nearly 400 observer posts throughout northern Ontario had been placed on the alert but the thousands of observers strained eyes and ears in vain for sight or sound of planes until the weather cleared, nearly 24 hours after the exercise was to begin.

Sunday's activities were designed primarily for the south of the province, so fewer calls than anticipated were received at the North Bay filter centre. Altogether between 350 and 400 calls came in and about one-third of these were passed on to the radar units. Eight calls came from the far north, Hudson Bay Company posts on James bay.

Recognition Of Red China Hinges On Geneva Talks

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian recognition of the Chinese Communist government may hinge on outcome of the Geneva conference starting April 26, informed sources said Saturday.

Britain, the United States, France, Russia and Communist China will meet at Geneva to try to thrash out agreements on Korea and Indo-China. Nations which participated in the Korean war will be represented and External Affairs Minister Pearson probably will be Canada's senior delegate.

If the conference makes progress—the Ottawa view is not optimistic—Canada then would be prepared to give serious thought to recognition of the Red Chinese government, informants said.

In any case, the issue will be broached again in the Commons. It has caused a minor stir recently. In the foreign policy debate in the House in January, Opposition Leader Drew said: "We want no bargain with the devil."

RECENT INDICATIONS

There have been at least three recent indications that the government may be ready to consider recognition, though not immediately.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, who returned last week from his world tour, said in the Far East that Canada is sooner or later bound to recognize the Chinese Communist government, as Britain did in 1949, simply because the Communists control the Chinese government.

He added that if there was to be any solution to problems in which China was directly involved and which couldn't be settled without co-operation of the government in control of China, it seemed clear Canada would have to deal with that government, even if Canada didn't like its political complexion.

Informants here said there was nothing new in this Canadian government view but it was significant that Mr. St. Laurent had expressed it in the Philippines, Korea and Japan, three of the most anti-Communist nations. The prime minister had taken "the bit in his teeth."

On his return to Ottawa, the the prime minister told reporters that "when" the matter does come up for consideration, it will be given careful study by the government. He did not use the word "if."

PEARSON MENTIONS

At Chicago Friday, Mr. Pearson touched on the subject of recognition of the Red Chinese government. He said:

"There is a strong attitude against recognition of that regime in the United States. But we in Canada are a little more cautious. We feel that if there are no new aggressions in the near future we should take another look at that problem—a more realistic, less emotional look."

In the Ottawa view, there has been some indication of a softening of the American policy of non-recognition. Though John Foster Dulles, U. S. state secretary, has repeatedly denied that the Eisenhower administration plans to recognize the Chinese Reds, the fact remains that he will sit down at the same table with them at Geneva.

TO BE DISCUSSED

Canadian policy on recognition will be discussed when the estimates for the external affairs department come before the Commons, if not before. That department's estimates are expected to come up soon.

The recent stil in the House was caused by Mr. St. Laurent's reported statements in Manila and Seoul that the Chinese have the government they want. Mr. Drew said this was a "travesty of the facts."

The prime minister admitted on his return home he had used an "unfortunate" phrase. What he had meant was that the Communists controlled China. Canada could not necessarily deal with the kind of government C a n a d a wants. It would have to deal with the kind of government in power.

Plant Acepts Board Report

TORONTO (CP) — Members of the International Association of Machinists (AFL-TLC) at the huge jet aircraft plant of A. V. Roe of Canada at nearby Malton voted Sunday to accept a unanimous conciliation board report.

Crawford Gordon, Avro president said following the vote that management had also accepted the board's r e c o m m endations and would sign a contract immediately.

A union membership meeting voted 1,414 to 1,307 in favor of accepting the conciliation report. There were 84 spoiled ballots. The union has a membership of 9,654 at the plant and of this number 2,805 voted.

The conciliation board recommended a reduction in the work week from 42½ hours to 40, effective April 15, inclusion of three cents of the five-cent cost-of-living bonus in the base rate with the remaining two cents being retained as a cost-of-living bonus and a retroactive eight-cents-an-hour wage increase.

The agreement will remain in effect until April 15, 1955.

Car Smashes Truck, Airmen Killed

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two airmen killed when their [illegible] near Summerside, P. E. I. were among persons who died violently in eastern Canada during the week-end. The airmen's names were withheld pending notification of next-of-kin.

A Canadian Press survey showed five persons died in Ontario, three in Quebec, and the two in Prince Edward Island.

At Montreal, a 16-year-old girl was shot to death in her home and police are holding a man they say was a suitor to her or to one of her sisters. Four other persons in the house were wounded in the shooting which killed Giselle Brunette.

DIE IN FIRE

In Ontario, two men died of suffocation when fire broke out in their homes at Toronto and North Bay. Dead are Alex G. Dick, 77, of North Bay and Walter Wright, of Toronto.

Two men, G. Chester Storey and Carman G. Fletcher, were killed when their truck hit a culvert near Drayton. At Pembroke Ellard Moriarity, 20, died after his taxi collided with a freight train.

J. Harold Van Meer, 56, of Trenton was killed today in a level-crossing accident 22 miles west of Belleville.

Shouldn't Try Change Children

HAMILTON (CP) — Nursery school teachers should accept children as they are and not wish they were different, Martha Chandler, director of student teaching at the Nursery Training School of Boston, said Saturday.

Miss Chandler, in an address to the closing dinner meeting of the Nursery Education Association of Ontario, said supervisors should become "more knodledgeable" about environmental and racial differences in children.

Joyce Cornish - Bowden was elected president. Directors include: Constance Ross, Kingston, and Mrs. Harry Shardlow, St. Catharines, Beth Currey, St. Catharines, Mrs. W. Swanson, Brantford.

Directors representing branches: Mrs. W. J. Thompson, Lakehead; Mrs. Marcia Findlay, Brantford; Mrs. Gladys Petty, St. Catharines.

Rescue Oshawa Youth From Lake Ontario

OSHAWA (CP)—Michael Lovisek 16, was rescued Sunday after spending more than an hour in a patched-up rowboat in the waters of icy and choppy Lake Ontario about two miles offshore between here and Whitby.

He was admitted to hospital here for treatment for exposure and frozen feet.

His friend, Ted Armitage, 14, who was in one of the rescue boats, was also admitted to the hospital for treatment for exposure.

Main Street Topics

FRACTURED ARM

Mrs. Mary Harvey, 62, of 291 Donegal St. suffered a fractured arm when she slipped and fell on some ice on Sunday. She was allowed to return home after treatment at the Civic Hospital.

ATTENDS FIRE SCHOOL

Inspector Victor Barry of the Peterborough fire department is attending a course at the fire marshal's office, Toronto, on fire inspection. The course will run till Friday.

ORA CONFERENCE

More than 130 people have already booked accommodation to attend the 9th Ontario Recreation Association conference to be held in Peterborough April 30, May 1 and 2. Some 350 in all are expected to attend.

CHIMNEY FIRE

The city fire department answered one alarm during the weekend to a chimney fire at the home of G. Clifton Carruthers, 212 Brock St. The alarm was received at 3.50 p.m. Sunday and the outbreak was extinguished with the use of one handpump.

VISITS GUELPH PRECEPTORY

Frederic G. Mann, of Peterborough, grand master of Sovereign Great Priory of Canada, was in Guelph on Friday where he was guest of honor at a gathering in the Masonic Temple of Victoria preceptory. Guests were [illegible] St. Catharines, Brantford, Dunnville, Niagara Falls, Galt and Kitchener.

HEAR COUNTY BUDGET

The 1954 budget for Peterborough county will be brought down at the session beginning 10 a.m. Tuesday at the county building. There will also likely be reports on the proposed Pigeon lake causeway, the Gannon's Narrows causeway and overhead bridge, now underway, and the proposed new bridge across the Burnt river at Kinmount.

RIVER BANKS UNSAFE

Fire Chief William Sorrie is asking parents to make sure their children stay away from the Otonabee river and Jackson creek banks. This time of year with a gradual thaw going on the banks are treacherous for people walking along them. The east side of the river at the London St. dam is especially hazardous.

SMELL SEWER GAS

Sewer gas seeping into basements was the cause of two calls to the fire department for assistance late Saturday night and early Sunday morning. Homes affected were those of John R. Condon, 104 Aylmer St. N. and J. F. Allen, 465 Bolivar St. Leaking sewer gas is a common complaint this time of year when there is a heavy rush of water through city sewers.

COCOA BEANS INCREASED

Coffee beans aren't the only beans soaring in price. Chocolate manufacturers report cocoa beans, the basic ingredient of chocolate, have jumped in cost from 32 to 54 cents a pound within the last year. As a result the price of boxed chocolates has been raised by some manufacturers. The increased value of the cocoa bean is due to a world-wide shortage and an increasing demand from European countries.

PROVINCIAL LEADER OF THE CCF Party, Donald C. MacDonald (centre), was guest speaker at the 7th regional conference banquet held in the city on Saturday evening. Delegates from Peterborough and seven neighboring counties were in attendance. CCF Leader Blasts PC Gov't For Smug, Self-Satisfaction

The "smug self-satisfaction" of the Frost government in the face of recessions and increasing centralization of industry is the basic problem before the people of Ontario, Donald C. MacDonald, provincial leader of the CCF told a meeting at the Empress hotel Saturday night.

Instead of taking steps to decentralize from the 100-mile radius "charmed circle" around Toronto, one-third of the entire Canadian [illegible] and giving all residents the benefit of "an industrial giant that can't stop growing," the Frost government, Mr. MacDonald charged, is developing into a "mutual admiration society, basking in fulsome self-praise." He attributed this to the government's "quiet, self-satisfied acceptance" of its heavy majority in the Ontario legislature.

Concentration of industry around Toronto, said Mr. MacDonald, makes centres further away, particularly in northern Ontario, develop their economies around one staple product. Such concentration makes these communities more vulnerable to recessions and depressions.

"It's a recession when your neighbor is out of work, but it's a depression when you're out of work yourself," said the speaker. He accused the government of promoting policies which not only fail to alleviate present recessions but which would lead to depressions.

CONTRADICTION

Mr. MacDonald cited a statement by planning minister Warrender, saying that the aim of the Ontario government is to "tone up local economies and decentralize industries." This, the speaker claimed, is belied not only by the facts "but by contradictory policies of the government which do just the opposite."

As a case in point, Mr. MacDonald mentioned the natural gas industry which, he said should be a public utility like Hydro, and had been so planned until a few months ago.

By adopting a private enterprise scheme for natural gas distribution, the Frost government is "more Tory than the Tories of 40 years ago," who organized Ontario Hydro. The government has "thrown the principle of natural gas at cost out the window."

Not only will this cost more, for both industrial and domestic consumers, said Mr. MacDonald, but it will also lead the pipelines into the most heavily industrialized areas where the best and quickest profits can be made. There will be less [illegible] industry to move outside the To[illegible] and Mr. MacDonald felt that other communities might suffer seriously.

Ontario is not only more wealthy than ever before, but it had a higher provincial income than the total of all the Canadian provinces in 1945. But this wealth, said Mr. MacDonald, is not equitably distributed.

RISE IN COSTS

Farm income has risen 34 per cent since the war, but farm costs have risen 85 per cent. In the past two years costs have remained relatively stable but income has dropped 23 per cent. These statistics made Mr. MacDonald wonder what Premier Frost meant in his budget speech when he said that difficulties in agriculture were but "a mere ripple on the broad surface of Ontario's prosperity."

Mr. MacDonald felt that this "cavalier, unsympathetic and insensitive attitude" has made Ontario farmers restive. He pointed out that the Farmers' Union membership has doubled in the past few months. He predicted that more and more locals would spring up, "some right in Premier Frost's own backyard."

"How would you feel if you were caught in this cost-plus squeeze?" Mr. MacDonald asked. He said that as farmers suffer, so do farm implement workers. He quoted federal Trade and Commerce Minister C. D. Howe as telling unemployed farm implement workers to look for jobs elsewhere, and Premier Frost saying that the trouble was only slackness in the industry.

The slackness, said Mr. MacDonald, is "in the wrinkles of more and more half-filled stomachs." He drew an analogy between present attitudes of the Ontario government and the view of R. B. Bennett in the 1930's that the depression was a psychological problem. Mr. Howe and Mr. Frost "should get out among

Eight Reservists To Graduate At Armouries

One of the many instructional courses now being conducted at the armouries for the 50th HAA Regiment and the 28th Technical Squadron will end tonight with [illegible]

For the past two weeks a junior NCO course has been held for the 28th Squadron under Sgt. Lloyd Edwards. L/Cpl. W. C. Smith and H. Hallick, Craftsmen P. Coombe, G. Dack, G. Frederick, R. D. Green, J. E. Haslett and G. K. Wallace will graduate tonight at a special parade, beginning at 9 p.m.

The graduating class will be inspected by Major R. Cross, GSO 3 Eastern Ontario area, Capt. T. E. Duffield, officer commanding the 28th, and 2/Lt. E. H. Martin, I and A cadre, Kingston.

The public are invited to see the ceremonies and the reserve force unit in action before and after the parade.

START COURSE

At the same time in Lindsay other members of the squadron will begin instruction of a driver-mechanics course for the 45th field Battery. Officer Cadet Doug Manzer will be in charge of the course assisted by WO2 Vic Thraves, Sgt. Bert Adams and Sgt. Chris Lashmar.

Meanwhile at the armouries 12 members of the 50th Regiment are engaged in a predictor course. Lt. Martin and WO2 L. F. Binkley of the Royal Canadian School of Artillery, Picton, are giving the instruction.

Personnel enrolled in this course are: Lt. A. D. McLeod, WO2 J. K. Brown, D. T. Jones and J. M. Watson, Bdrs W. J. Weaver, J. H Boate, Brd T. H. Littlefair, M. W. Connell, R. A. Corp, Gunners R. J. Cooper, D. W. Kennedy and J. B. O'Connell.

Concurrent with the predictor course is another on radar by the same instructors. Taking this course are: Lt. J. D. Rowlandson, WO2 E. A. Killingbeck, Sgt. J. Bolderson, Brds. F. J. Frape, P. E. Robb, V. E. Nelson, D. R. Sisson, L/bdr A. L. Rowlandson, Gunners, R. P. Francis, R. G. Pettinger and C. R. Spearin.

Both these courses held schemes Saturday and Sunday on Armour Hill, tracking aircraft from Trenton

Loblaw Store To Be Rebuilt On Fire Site

Store Will Be Larger, Contain Just Supermarket

A new and larger supermarket will replace the burned-out Loblaw store.

Arnold Wyttenbach, in charge of the drafting department at Loblaw's head office, today told the Examiner that the larger store, employing more staff, should be open for business within the next four or five months.

The contract for building the new store has been awarded to the Eastwood Construction Company, a local firm. Details of architectural plans were not released, but Mr. Wyttenbach did say that the store will be a complete unit in itself.

BURNED IN FEBRUARY

The old store, which was razed February 11, was part of the Loblaw block. Other stores renting space in the premises were Western Tire and Auto and Superior Propane. Both these stores have been reopened on other locations, and the new Loblaw unit will be a complete entity in itself.

"We're going right ahead with it," said Mr. Wyttenbach, and it is expected that rebuilding work will start immediately. Eastwood's will handle all the subcontracts, holding the basic building contract themselves.

A manager for the new store will not be appointed until two weeks before the new store opens. Then a new staff will be lined up, larger than the former staff of 65.

Safety Men To Attend Conference In Toronto

Approximately 70 employees of Peterborough industries will attend the annual convention of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association of Ontario April 5 and 6 at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto. Total attendance will be about 4,000.

This assembly in the cause of safety in industrial operations is considered second only to the National Safety Convention that is held annually in Chicago. Most of the local employees on accident prevention work attend the Royal York meetings for one of the two days and with pay allowance by the companies. CGE sends a total of 39, Western Clock ten.

Hat Trick

A red Hampshire hen, property of Mrs. Clarence Ivey, is mighty tired. Three times is an many weeks the hen has come through with outsize eggs. One laid Saturday measured nine inches in circumference around the long end, and eight inches around the middle. Mrs. Ivey, who lives on a farm on Highway 30 five miles south of Campbellford has identified the energetic hen. She has no idea, however, why she should be concentrating on the large, economy-size type of egg. The hen was unavailable for comment today.

SETS AHL RECORD—The Ashburnham Redhead, George Sullivan, set a new scoring record in the American Hockey League Sunday night. When Hershey defeated the [illegible] Buffalo Bisons 3-2 Sullivan earned an assist to boost his season's total point record to 119, one better than the record set by Carl Liscombe of Providence in 1948-49. Mr. Sullivan (above) his wife, Marion, and son, Danny (above) appear quite happy over the achievement —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Roy Cole Hurt Car Ditched

Icy roads caused two accidents on Saturday north of Port Hope on Highway 28. Ronald Sargent of 524 Charlotte St., Peterborough, was proceeding south on No. 28 near Bailieboro and skidded into the east ditch. Roy Cole, age 19, a passenger, 223 McGill St., was taken to Civic Hospital with back injuries where his condition is described as satisfactory today. Also in the car, but unhurt, was James Elliot of 7 McClennon Ave.

Near Bewdley, a car driven by Milford Simmerson of Port Hope was proceeding north and was struck in a sideswipe collision by a truck driven by Percy Crane of RR 11, Peterborough, which skidded on a curve. Passenger in the truck was George Brown of RR 11, Petebrorough. Passengers in the car, who were treated for minor injuries at Port Hope were Charles and Willis Douglas of Port Hope. Provincial Constable Bill Warner of Cobourg investigated.

Community Centre Names Committees

Members of three committees of the Memorial Committy Centre were named at a meeting Saturday afternoon at the City Hall. Ford Warren, chairman of the finance committee, was out of town and his committee is the only one not listed yet.

Members of E. A. Outram's site committee are John Kitney, Ald. Gordon Powell, Ald. Stan McBride, Harold Dormer, Miss Margaret White, Mrs. James McClenaghan and Hurrell Dodds.

Chairman Lionel Browne submitted for the building committee these members: Thomas Ephgrave, Frank Buckland, Dr. Roger Chenoweth, Ald. Robert Knox, Alfred Barber and Don Bark.

On the publicity committee, under chairman Bud LaBranche, are: Don Lawrie, Cec. Perdue, Doug Anderson, Mrs. W. E. Fanning, Mrs. Pansy Forbes, Myer Cherney, George Ludgate, Ray Tanner and Jim Foskett.

The next order of business for the committee concerned will be the selection of the exact site for the Memorial Centre in Morrow Park.

WARBLE FLY CAMPAIGN

Municipal representatives of six Peterborough townships have been notified of a meeting at the Department of Agriculture office Friday, Mar. 26 at 2 p.m. to arrange for continuing the Warble Fly campaign this spring. Those who are expected to attend are reeves, councillors, clerks and inspectors.

Red Sullivan Sets Record In Last Game Of Schedule

In capturing the 1953-54 scoring championship of the American Hockey League on Sunday with an assist in Hershey's 3-2 victory over the Bisons in Buffalo, George (Red) Sullivan of Peterborough set a new AHL scoring record.

The Hershey centre ace, property of Boston Bruins of the NHL, boosted his points total to 119, one better than the record set by Carl Liscombe of Providence in the 1948-49 campaign.

Hershey Bears finished in the league standing runners-up to Buffalo as the schedule finished, playoffs for the Calder Trophy commencing this week. Sullivan has led league scorers almost continuously this season.

Son of Mrs. John D. Sullivan of 437 Rogers St. in Ashburnham, the hustling 24-year-old redhead has been rated easily good enough for National Hockey League company with the Bruins this year. He draws NHL pay but was kept with the Boston No. 1 farm club since the season opened last autumn.

George broke into school and minor city hockey right here after the Second World War. He made his OHA junior "B" debut with Lakefield, along with several other Peterborough boys in 1946 and returned to play the next season with the local Oddfellows in junior "B" competition. With ambitions to become a professional puckist, Red hitched a ride with Jim Ellis the next season to try out with St. Catharines Teepees of OHA junior "A" company, then a farm team for Boston. He didn't catch on at first, but later made the grade and starred in junior "A" ranks before Boston moved him several seasons ago to Hershey of the AHL.

Sullivan was brought up toward the end of last season by the Bruins and turned in fine hockey in playoffs with the parent club. It was expected when he reported last September to Boston that he would secure a regular berth with Bruins but that the team had too many promising forwards and sent him again to Hershey. He was an AHL star all through the long season in the second best professional hockey league there is.

George, married now and the father of a boy, returns to Peterborough each summer where he is an outstanding softball player, managing and playing for winning teams the past several seasons. He gave up baseball, where he starred in junior ranks, two years ago to stick to softball.

CCF Decisions At Conference

Would Make Sweeping Changes In Ontario

The regional conference of the CCF Assocation, meeting from early Saturday morning to Sunday afternoon, adopted a sweeping program of reform to be made by the CCF if elected the government of Ontario.

Commenting on the program Fred Young provincial organizer of the CCF in Ontario said it summed up his party's views on planning, private enterprise, municipal taxation, mineral wealth, lands and forests, agriculture, labor, education, housing, health, accident insurance, social welfare, penal reform, citizens rights, recreation and the arts.

The manifesto bases itself on the premise that the Frost government "floats like a chip on the crest of Ontario's great wave of expansion." It goes on to say that government "complacency" has created acute dislocations in the economy, which the government "has made no serious effort to solve." This makes the CCF wonder "what will happen if conditions become less prosperous."

The CCF's look into the future can be summarized under the following heads, as adopted by 60-odd delegates to the convention at union headquarters over the weekend.

Planning: A CCF government would make planning a continuous process, directly supervised by the cabinet. Special attention would be given to regional planning, with particular stress on the development of northern Ontario. This will mitigate the worst effects of depression "even in the absence of active leadership at the federal level."

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

Public and Private Enterprise: Extension of public ownership, with gas distribution a public utility, like Hydro. Transportation and telephone industries under public ownership, as well as brewers' retail stores. The government will enter the insurance industry through the hospitals. A CCF provincial government will authorize municipalities to operate more city services and will encourage co-operative enterprise in agriculture and housing.

Municipal Taxation: A "systematic and thorough" investigation designed to get rid of "the hodgepodge of subsidies and grants-in-aid." A re-allocation of responsibilities with immediate relief through a per capita grant.

Mineral Wealth: Reorganization of mining policies so that benefits will "not accure to a few companies and individuals many of whom do not even live in Canada." Provincial revenue from mining raised by heavier taxes on private companies operating in the province.

Lands and Forests: Publicly-owned companies to control all wood cutting in the 12 principal forest areas in Ontario. Forest communities "with all the amenities of city life" for bush workers. A 25-year plan for reforestation of the Precambrian Shield.

A Crown company to provide a market for products of farm woodlots.

SECURITY FOR FARMERS

Agriculture: A "reasonable and secure" income accrue to farmers. Pressure on the federal government to reverse "disastrous trade policies," and set up national farm marketing agencies. Expansion of co-ops in meat, fruit, dairying and vegetable packing industries. Public grain elevators east of the Lakehead.

Labor: A sickness and accident benefit plan amplifying and broadening the aims of Workmen's Compensation. This plan will be financed by equal contributions from employer and worker, with self-employed persons able to benefit with payment of premiums. Legislation designed to encourage trade unionism and collective bargaining, together with a simplification of certification procedures and provision for the voluntary revocable checkoff. Basic standards as follows: Eight statutory holidays with pay, two weeks annual vacation with pay, and a 40-hour week for all. A Women's Bureau in the Department of Labor and legislation to ensure equal pay for equal work.

Education: Revision of provincial grants to equalize costs throughout the province. Higher salaries for teachers and more responsibility for them in choosing texts, curricula, etc. More university scholarships and bursaries. The board of governors of the University of Toronto will "be made representatives of all important groups in the province, instead of business interests only."

Housing: A public housing program to provide "housing for all regardless of their means." A capital fund, which, with federal contributions, will add up to $400,000,000. Houses to be either entirely subsidized or money loaned at low interest rates. Municipalities to be encouraged to take over housing projects within their boundaries. Advances up to 95 per cent for co-operative

Canadian Troops Like Inchon Recuperation Centre

By JACK BRAYLEY

IN KOREA (CP)—A quiet Englishman is playing host to 350 Commonwealth Division troops every five days or so. His Canadian guests at the rest and recuperation centre near the battered port of Inchon call it a "swell" place to stay.

When Maj. George Bray of the famous 1st King's Own was suddenly plucked out of the Commonwealth Division officer pool to run the "R and R" centre he accepted his lot with a soldierly philosophy.

"After all, you do about everything else in the army these days—why not run a hotel. So now I'm the division's Billy Butlin"—a reference to a British resort camp operator.

EASY TO HANDLE

He was a little worried at first about the consequences of handling a new 350-man batch every five or six days because they are a mixed lot with divergent ideas about such basic things as food and recreation. The centre is used by Britons, Australians, New Zealanders and Canadians.

"But I needn't have worried because they all got along fine and in fact any arguments we've had have been between troops of the same country and they haven't been very serious."

A posh Japanese spa before the war, the centre, is on Korea's southwest coast between pine-clad hills. It has a nine-hole golf course, swimming and boating facilities.

In the central square a sign post points 14,500 to Ottawa, and gives the distances to other Commonwealth capitals. The golf course is called the Royal Ancient and Modern Golf Course of Inchon.

PLAY MANY SPORTS

Other facilities include tennis courts, ball diamond, cricket pitch, football field, shooting range, billiard room and bowling alley.

The shaggy soldier arrives from his field post after a long ride in a battalion lorry and finds a world of inexhaustible hot water for baths, clean sheets and pillow and four meals a day—including a British tea hour. There's also a canteen, a gift shop, movies every night, a good library and a writing room.

The centre is not an alternative to the popular leave centres in Japan but rather a change for men in the lines who need regular rest periods. It's also used by men recuperating after hospital treatment. These stay for three weeks. The staff includes a chaplain and a medical officer.

"This is my second time back so I must like it," said Craftsman Frank MacIsaac of Kamsack, Sask.

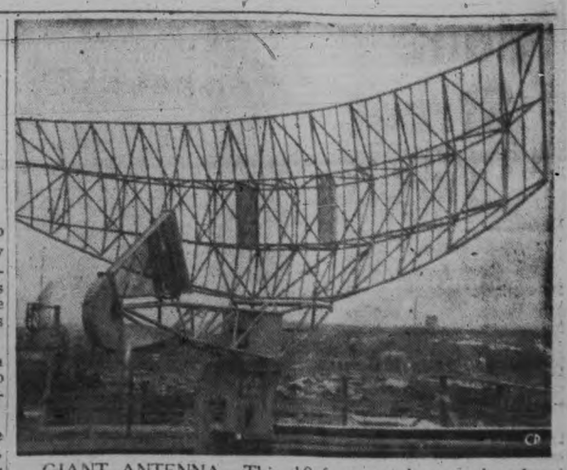
"No sergeant-majors, no parades, it's swell," chipped in Pte. Cecil Atkinson of Clarke's Harbor, N.S.

"It's No. 1," said Spr. Theodore Antaya of Belle River, Ont.

POPE MAKES PUBLIC APPEARANCE — Pope Pius XII waves from the window of his Vatican City apartment to some 50,000 Italian Alpine veterans gathered in St. Peter's Square. This was his first appearance since he became ill two months ago.

School Council Meets Frost About Grants

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario School Trustees Council Saturday decided to leave a clause in secondary school teachers' contracts provided it gets assurance the clause will not be used as a mass resignation threat.



The council decided to send a letter to this effect to the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation.

The clause provides that notice of resignation be made Nov. 30, to be effective Dec. 31. The council was told that the clause was discussed at a meeting of the two groups Feb. 27. The council wanted it deleted, and the federation wanted it left in.

FEARED USE

Council said it objected to the clause because it could be used "as a tactic in salary negotiations."

While the council's decision is not binding on local boards, which are autonomous, it was thought local boards would probably be guided by the council's recommendation because a number of provincial trustee groups are represented on council.

GIANT ANTENNA—This 19-foot stainless steel radar antenna which can detect a plane 100 miles away is specially erected on the roof of a towering Montreal building. The antenna is part of the new air-search radar set being built for the Canadian Navy by RCA Victor Company Limited. The antenna, on top of the Victor company plant, is being used in tests and picks up the image for the new radar unit.—(CP Photo).

Young Private Sentenced To 10 Years Hard Labor

CALGARY (CP) — Walter Cierpisz, 17-year-old army private, said to have a mental age of 10, was convicted of manslaughter Saturday and sentenced to 10 years' hard labor.

Cierpisz, from Windsor, Ont., was tried for murder in the rifle slaying last Jan. 5 of Pte. Robert Bilow of Winchester, Ont., in a washroom at Currie barracks, Calgary. A jury deliberated one hour and 44 minutes before returning a verdict of not guilty of murder but guilty of manslaughter.

Mr. Justice Boyd McBride told [illegible] four verdicts: Guilty of murder as charged; not guilty; guilty of manslaughter or acquittal because of insanity at the time of the crime. He said evidence that Cierpisz had unlawfully killed Bilow was overwhelming.

In testimony earlier, a psychiatrist said Cierpisz was a mental defective with a mental age of 10. He said it was "quite possible" Cierpisz was insane at the time of the shooting.

TEASED AND PESTERED

Several soldiers testified during the trial that Cierpisz [illegible] the victim of teasing; his bed and uniforms had been trampled on and water thrown at him.

The court heard that Cierpisz confessed both before and after the shooting.

A note left in his barracks box said: "This day, Jan 4, I Walter Cierpisz, being in my right mind, killed this person who would not let me live."

After the shooting Jan. 5 Cierpisz told an NCO: "I shot Bilow and I am not sorry."

A number of soldiers testified as eye-witnesses of the incident.

Bilow was quoted as saying in the washroom: "I will put Cierpisz in hospital for six months."

FIRED TWO SHOTS

Immediately afterwards, Cierpisz fired two shots into Bilow with his service rifle.

All the soldiers were members of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

Mr. Justice McBride said: "I think I am justified in taking into account your obvious immaturity and the lack of opportunities accorded most other young men. I suggest to you that you are quite mature enough to understand you have received an opportunity from this jury to become a good citizen.

"The jury has been merciful to you."

Olympic Contestant Dies

TORONTO (CP) — R. Grant Gordon, 53, Toronto lawyer and a member of the Canadian Olympic hockey team at St. Moritz, Switzerland in 1928, died Saturday.

Shipping Season Opens

DETROIT (AP) — The tanker Taurus, owned by the Cleveland Tankers Corporation, Saturday became the first loaded ship to make an upbound passage this spring from Lake Erie into the Detroit river.

Decide To Leave Clause In Contracts

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario School Trustees Council plans to meet Premier Frost in an attempt to get a reduction in municipal education taxes and an increase in provincial education grants.

The council, in a meeting Saturday, named a subcommittee to prepare arguments for presentation to the premier.

[illegible] so-called "frills"—[illegible] nasia and home economics rooms—was urged in a brief presented by H. E. Dickinson of St. Marys. Education Minister Dunlop said last year no more grants would be made for these things because all available money was needed for classrooms.

Mr. Dickinson's brief also recommended that provincial assistance toward the cost of new schools be approved on the basis of total cost, including sites and all accommodation, not just classrooms. He also urged a revised grant structure for reassessed municipalities and increased grants for rehabilitation of old schools.

Extract Potash From The Sea

LONDON (OFNS) — A new method of extracting potash from the sea has been developed by a Norwegian chemical firm, in collaboration with a Dutch company they have set up an experimental plant near Amsterdam which should be capable of extracting about one thousand five hundred tons of potassium salts from the sea annually. There are only about 450 grams of potash in a cubic metre of sea-water; 2,000 to 3,000 cubic metres must be treated for each ton of potash obtained.

If the plant works satisfactorily the two firms plan to build factories on the coasts of Norway and Holland for the extraction of potash on a large scale.

Potash is one of the most important fertilizer materials. Last year's world consumption was almost 5,000,000 tons; at present Norway imports 45,000 tons a year, Holland, 160,000 tons. Up to now, most potash has been mined from natural salt deposits, chiefly in Germany, the United States and Israel. In Britain, deposits are known to exist in north-east Yorkshire, but it is not yet known if they can be economically mined.

Fenella News

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Sherwin visited Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Bert Mortlock, Peterborough.

Pilot Training Keyed to Plane Developments.

Trenton, Ont—Finishing touches are being put to the RCAF's pilot training programme, which over the last several years has been undergoing a gradual change. This has been necessitated by today's operational air force requirements, and by the general need of the expanding RCAF for more pilots.

The changes, in addition to [illegible] training schools, have involved introduction of new training aircraft and a reorganization of the pattern of the schools themselves.

Today's aircrew training programme sees the embryo flyer reporting first to the Officers' School at London, Ontario, where he is selected for training as a radio officer, navigator or pilot. Following preliminary ground training at London he then goes to a Flying Training School where he learns to fly on Harvards. Then comes an Advanced Flying School, where he flies T-33 Silver Star jets or twin-engine Mitchells, depending on the type of squadron for which he is destined. Next—for those eventually going to a fighter squadron—comes Air Weapons School. The final stage for all pilots, before reaching an actual squadron, is an Operational Training Unit, where the pilot for the first time flies the type of aircraft flown by the squadron for which he is destined.

After OTU comes a squadron posting, and the beginning of the pilot's operational career. Training never ends, though, for most of the pilot's peacetime work is centered about readying himself for combat duties.

Pilot training in the RCAF is a demanding task, calling for the best. The man who wears the pilot wings of the RCAF, though, or those of the radio-officer or navigator, is stamped as one who is ready to defend our way of life.

Today's aircrew trainees learn more than their aircrew duties. Among other things they learn much about those from other lands, for they mingle with similar student aircrew from nine other NATO nations, all taking their flying training in Canada.

JOHN NIAGARA Talks about:

AUTO LOANS—

A Fast way to get money

Have you ever thought of the amount of money that you have tied up in a car? Perhaps you have, but do you know that your car represents savings, some people call it capital, which can be used by you for credit? Well, we believe that's true, and it is the reason we make auto loans so very quickly. It sometimes takes only twenty minutes to complete a car loan—a very simple, straightforward way of getting money. Let's see you car and license card. You gain a real advantage when you borrow at Niagara, for loans to $1500 are life-insured at no extra cost to you; and if you compare rates, you will find Niagara's are frequently lower. Of course one of our other loan plans can help you if the auto loan doesn't fit your case. So, if you need money, and if you need it quickly, just drop in.

British Papers Praise N.J. Turnpike

LONDON (AP)—The New Jersey turnpike has been the topic of articles in two major London newspapers.

The Times published two large photographs of "this noble way" which it termed "one of the great thoroughfares of the world." The Times' article on its editorial page referred to the 118 miles of uninterrupted highway as a "symbol of American technical efficiency and all that goes with it."

The Evening News echoed this praise by carrying in its lead editorial a statement that "the example for Britain is obvious."

The News commented that the New Jersey turnpike is "not only efficient; it cost a great deal to build. So would similar roads here, we admit. What about making them—as is the New Jersey turnpike—toll roads?"

The Evening News urged a road loan of £500,000,000.

The Times article told how "on this magnificent road (the Jersey turnpike) cars can drive at 60 miles an hour for 118 miles never once slowing down unless their drivers have to refuel or stop for a hamburger."

CCF Leader

the jobless workers and ponder the poignant truth."

But the major difficulty, Mr. MacDonald felt, was not so much a difference in policies between the various parties or in variants on solutions to problems but in the "lethargy and indifference" which he thought was the characteristic mien of Queen's Park.

"Any government is just as good as its opposition." Mr. Macdonald claimed that the Conservative majority not only tends "to dull the faculties of intelligent self-criticism, but makes the opposition weak and impotent."

The Liberals cannot provide an opposition, said the speaker, because "they have lost all sense of their own desinty." This brought Mr .MacDonald to the view that the "logical alternative" would be the CCF.

FAILING PROMISES

The CCF, said Mr. MacDonald, would institute a provincial health plan and would provide better services in the field of education. He accused the present government of failing to fulfill its promises on health, and being niggardly in educational grants.

A province-wide health plan was one of George Drew's 22 election pledges in the 1943 election but "what has been done — nothing." There has been a steady increase in the number of citizens served through Blue Cross and other agencies but this, said the speaker, was not the point.

Recently health minister Dr. MacKinnon Phillips gave a speech saying that a health plan was "under consideration", and would be developed within five years. But, said Mr. MacDonald, he must have been told he was talking like a CCFer," for shortly afterwards Dr. Phillips addressed the Victorian Order of Nurses in Belleville saying that he was "opposed to all types of state medicine."

The hospitalization question is a vicious circle, said Mr. MacDonald, because the government has taken a stand that state medicine cannot be considered until hospitals are on a paying basis. Mr. MacDonald acknowledged that there have been significant increases in grants to hospitals, but that hospitals will still operate on at least a one-third deficit.

Most people, "have no idea of the magnitude of the education problem," said Mr. MacDonald, a former teacher. The birthrate is up to 130,000 in 1953 as opposed to 64,000 in 1939 and for the first time Ontario's birth rate is higher than Quebec's. Mr. MacDonald estimated that 4,000 new children were entering Canadian schools each month, with 2,400 of these coming to Ontario.

Since the school population will double in the period between 1945 and 1960 Mr. Macdonald saw a need for 17,000 more school teachers within the next few years. But he did not feel that a very auspicious start was made to this goal when 1,700 teachers entered the profession last year and 1,600 left it ,a net gain of 100.

HIGHER SALARIES

The basic issue is education, said Mr. MacDonald, is salaries, which might be raised if "the Tories fulfilled their election promises on educationa and did what they promised to do— pay 50 per cent of the overall costs of education."

The average of education grants through the province is 34 per cent, according to Mr. MacDonald, with urban areas receiving less proportionately. In Toronto, provincial grants amount to 12 per cent overall costs, while in Ottawa grants of $195,000 will be made this year for $1,106,000 expected costs.

Summing up, Mr. MacDonald said that "the present challenge is more stirring than depression or war." The challenge is "to use our great wealth for the basic needs of the people, and for all those blighted by needless unemployment." Mr. MacDonald's solution was a vote for the CCF.

Presiding at Saturday's dinner, attended by about 75 members of the Peterborough CCF Association was W. C. Grant, reeve of Lakefield and onetime CCF candidate in this riding. Among those at the head table were Irwin Yeo, president of the CCF Association and Mrs. Peggy Stewart. Mrs. Stewart introduced Mr. MacDonald, elected to the CCF leadership last November as a man of "breadth of vision and great imagination, and one willing to take advice. You won't find that in any other political party."

Five Sons Of George Haggis Prosper In Own Restaurants

The brothers Haggis, small boys in Peterborough 40 years ago, have fared well in catering for the public one way and another since they grew up and moved off in quest of opportunity.

One of them came back later and opened the Ritz restaurant at the corner of Hunter and George streets, and is now in the same business at Hunter near Aylmer street.

The father and head of the family, George Haggis, emigrated from Greece in 1913, and opened a confectionery shop on the east side of George St., about the present premises of Davidson's cake shop, opposite Woolworth's.

Mr. Haggis knew enough of the English language to reduce somewhat the handicap of strange words on strange tongues, combined with little knowledge of the ways of the people in Central Ontario. Incidentally, his brother is a restaurant proprietor in Perth.

The sons of George Haggis are: Louis George Haggis, owner of the Green Rooster restaurant in Guelph; Paul, proprietor of two hotels in Belleville; Peter owns a bowling academy in Port Hope; Tony opened his restaurant in Chicago, and is still there; Andrew is the Peterborough son of that family.

Apparently the Haggis men can show a high average of success. The sons were youngsters here when their father was trying to get established in a line of business and in opposition to home confectioners of solid reputations.

His boys were learning to be Canadians at the Central school. One of them, Louis George, went from Peterborough to Toronto and got a job at the fountain in Diana Sweets. He set up in the restaurant business for himself in Brampton, switched next to St. Catharines as pastry cook with Diana Sweets, and finally became a partner in the Ritz restaurant in Guelph, continuing in that association until he broadened out as sole owner of the Green Rooster.

Louis George Haggis is a prominent member of the Oddfellows Order in Guelph. He introduced among the membership a plan of providing special hospital beds for those who needed them. Largely through his efforts, and with the generosity of other Guelph business men the IOOF have sixteen beds. For his special services to the order he was awarded the grand decoration of chivalry in 1953.

Mr. Haggis arrived in Guelph in 1928 with only $85 to his name, after the round of Toronto, Brampton, St. Catharines. He was married in Guelph in 1932, and his daughter Helen, 18, is a student at Havergal College, Toronto. His mother-in-law's family name is Athens. She is in her nineties, living at the home of her son. Her husband, George Haggis of Peterborough, 40 years ago was fatally injured in an accident on a return to trip to Greece after his retirement from active work in Ontario. His son in Guelph is a director of the Niagara Peninsula branch of the Canadian Restaurant Association for the last three years.

OBITUARIES

JOHN ALEXANDER BOWMAN

COLDSPRINGS (ENS) — Funeral services for a widely-known, life-long resident of this community, John Alexander Bowman, were held Saturday in St. Paul's United church, Coldsprings, with the Rev. V. M. Gilbert officiating.

Mr. Bowman in his 89th year, died early Thursday morning at Cobourg General hospital, having suffered a stroke a week before, from which he never rallied.

He was born in Hamilton township, a son of the late John Bowman and Mary Smart. In 1892 he marrried Frances Cecelia McIntosh, who predeceased him in 1935.

Mr. Bowman had been in failing health for some time but had continued to take a keen interest in his family, church and community.

He received his education at Coldsprings' school. At one time he served for several terms on the Hamilton township council. He was a member of St. Paul's United church, and was ordained as an elder in 1919 at the Coldsprings' Presbyterian church, and later re-elected for life at the time of church union in 1930.

Surviving are two daughters and two sons: Mrs. Lewis Buttars (May), and Mrs. Alec Buttars (Dorothy) of Plainville. Ernest, on the Bowman homestead, Coldsprings, and Leslie, Camborne. There are seven grandchildren and nine great grandchildren. One sister, Mrs. W. J. Dines, Coldsprings, and one brother, Archibald, Baltimore, also survive. Three sisters and one brother predeceased him: Mrs. George Gillespie, (Agnes), Mrs. Silas Brisbin (Isabelle); Mrs. John Noble, (Annie) and Harry Bowman.

Pallbearers were grandsons, Percival Bowman, Allan Bowman, Morris, Jack and Ronald Buttars, and a grandson-in-law, Willard Jibb.

Flower bearers were Melville Dines, Carl Bowman, Jackson Bowman, Harry Brisbin, Bruce McIntosh and Ross Timlin.

Burial was in St. Paul's United church cemetery.

Relatives and friends were present from Weston, Toronto, Quebec, Oshawa, Peterborough, Port Hope, Bewdley, Hamilton, Baltimore, Precious Corners, Camborne, Plainville, Gore's Landing, Harwood and the surrounding community.

ALBERT EDWARD SEDGWICK

A retired Otonabee township farmer, Albert Edward Sedgwick of Maniece Ave., died at his home today following a short illness.

He was born in Duoro township 83 years ago, son of the late Joseph Sedgwick and Maria Flynn, and lived in the immediate district a lifetime. His wife, the former Isabella Maniece, and a daughter, Mrs. Wesley Seabrook (May), predeceased him.

He leaves three sons, Victor, Roy (Red) and William Robert Sedgwick and three grandchildren, Allan and Gerald Sedgwick and Mrs. Harold Payne (Dorothy), all of Peterborough.

Mr. Sedgwick was a life-long member of St. Luke's Anglican Church. Prior to the First World War he attended the Royal Canadian Dragoons riding school at Stanley Barracks, Toronto, for several seasons.

The body is resting at his home and funeral service will be held on Wednesday at 2:30 p.m. at St. Luke's Church. Archdeacon W. P. Robertson will officiate and burial will be at Little Lake cemetery.

Climber Honored

NEW DELHI (CP)—Native guide Tensing Norkay, who with Sir Edmund Hillary reached the top of Mount Everest, received the Hubbard Medal at a function at Darjeeling. The Sherpa guide also received a token purse of about $100 from George V. Allen, American ambassador to India. The Hubbard Medal, highest award of the U.S. Geographic Society, had previously been given to Hillary and expedition leader Sir John Hunt.

Dewey Bill Voted Down By State Senate

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—The Republican New York state Senate Saturday night defeated a compulsory automobile liability insurance measure for which Republican governor Thomas E. Dewey had waged a last-ditch fight.

The bill was the only major administration measure killed at the 1954 session, which ended Saturday night, but the defeat was viewed as a severe blow to Dewey's leadership of the Republican party in a state election year.

Passage of the bill would have required car owners either to have liability insurance that would pay up to $5,000 for any property damage, $10,000 for injury to one person and $20,000 for injury to more than one person, or to establish proof of financial responsibility, such as a bond, in order to obtain car registration.

The insurance measure had been passed by the Republican-Dominated state assembly earlier last week—but only with the help of Democratic votes. The bill had drawn heavy fire from insurance companies.

Meeting Place

VANCOUVER (CP) — An old army hut, remodelled, has been set up on the campus of the University of British Columbia as the first "international house" in Canada. It will be a meeting place for Canadian and foreign students to talk and work together.

Would Make

housing scemes. Establishment of a Rental Mediation Board.

HOSPITAL INSURANCE

Health: A hospital insurance plan covering all residents. Free treatment for long-term diseases like cancer, tuberculosis and mental illness. Division of Ontario into seven hospital regions for planning, building and administering of hospital accommodation.

Accident Insurance: Development of principles along the lines of Workmen's Compensation. This will replace the Unsatisfied Judgment Fund "which is unjust because it requires motorists who have automobile insurance to cover the liabilities of those without it. Every accident victim will collect from a fund contributed to by every driver. All motorists required to carry supplementary coverages like fire and theft.

Social Welfare: Supplementary allowances for old-age pensions up to $20 a month without requiring matching municipal grants. Provision for the employable unemployed, because unemployment insurance benefits cease after prolonged unemployment. Increase of allowances to mothers, extended to include unmarried mothers and those whose husbands are in jail.

Penal Reform: Segregation of different types of prisoners at all stages. Higher salaries to attract a higher class of guards and wardens. Government training for many more probation officers. Complete case histories before all magistrates before they can pass sentence.

Human Rights: A Royal Commission to deal with discrimination and intolerance in all fields, supplementing the Fair Employment Practices Act. The Commission will have authority to prosecute.

RECREATION, ARTS

Recreation and the Arts: A chain of low-cost hostels and tourist camping centres through the province. Assistance to municipalities for playgrounds and community centres. Establishment of a non-political Ontario Arts Council to support cultural activities through guarantees and grants-in-aid.

On the question of where the money comes from to pay for all these services, Mr. Young pointed out that some proposals, like the automobile accident plan, would be self-financing. The same would be true to a lesser degree of hospital insurance.

Public housing would be a capital outlay, and "housing units would be assets which would pay for themselves over a period of time." Other programs will require a large outlay "but the Ontario government already has many more millions of dollars than it needs for any program it is now undertaking." The CCF would delve more deeply into surplus revenues.

The most lucrative revenue fields would be taxed heavily. Mr. Young had mining and liquor particularly in mind. The essence of the CCF program, as endorsed by weekend delegates in Peterborough will be to convert a "reasonable proportion of Ontario's enormous resources into provincial revenues to finance programs benefiting all people."

The convention, described by membership secretary Mrs. Irwin Yeo as "very successful," spent all day Saturday in group discussions on the proposed CCF platform. After the banquet Saturday night at which provincial leader Donald C. MacDonald was theme speaker, there was an informal gathering at Union headquarters on Hunter St.

Sunday morning the groups continued their discussions, adopting the foregoing policy resolutions Sunday afternoon. In charge of arrangements for the conference were Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Yeo, Art Burritt, Viola Triggs, Herman Killingbeck and William Triggs.

MISSING—Los Angeles police are searching for Judy Howard (above), 13-year-old daughter of Judith Barrett, the former wife of wealthy turfman Lindsay C. Howard. Police said they learned that Judy and her 14-year-old girl friend, Judy Geller, phoned a friend to say they had "run away just for the fun of it."

Hand Severed

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — "Why don't I faint? Oh, how I wish I could faint," sobbed a 16-year-old girl whose left hand had been cut off at the wrist by an airplane propeller. Sylvia Norman of Waco had taken a ride here Sunday with her uncle in his light plane. "As she climbed from the plane she lost balance and fell into the spinning propeller. The girl did not lose consciousness as a witness fashioned a tourniquet. She was described in satisfactory condition at a hospital.

Suspend Trial Of Journalist In Rome Scandal

ROME (AP)—A Rome tribunal today suspended the trial of journalist Silvano Muto pending a new investigation of the death of party girl Wilma Montesi.

Developments which followed her death on an Ostia beach nearly a year ago have mushroomed into a scandal which has threatened the life of the new government of Premier Mario Scelba.

The abrupt suspension of the trial was at the request of the public prosecutor. He asked it, he said, because "of the specific accusation of murder by Anna Maria Moneta Caglio."

SAYS PICCIONI ASSASSIN

Miss aglio, in a letter read to the court Saturday, called Piero Piccioni, son of Italy's foreign minister, the assassin for a dope ring headed by Marquis Ugo Montagna, at whose home Wilma Montesi was reported to have spent her last hours.

Muto is being tried on charges of printing "false and alarmistic" reports of her death—that she did not die naturally as police said, but was afflicted by an overdose of narcotics at a wild high society party and left to die on the beach.

President Domenico Surdo said: "The court agrees on the absolute need of suspending the trial and of sending documents pertinent to the death of Wilma Montesi back to the prosecutor's office."

He did not set a date for resumption of Muto's trial.

Trustees Council To Ask For Increase In Grants

TORONTO — The Ontario School Trustees Council plans to ask Premier Frost to increase provincial education grants.

Meeting Saturday, the council appointed a subcommittee to present data to the premier.

A brief prepared by H. E. Dickinson, St. Marys, said that increased education demands are reflected in an unfavorable proportion in municipal taxes on real estate.

"Sources of municipal taxation are limited, and the continuance of present trends will result in real hardships to municipal taxpayers, which could create embarrassment in the financial standing of municipalities," the brief said.

The brief recommended:

1. Greater assistance to municipalities in education from new provincial sources of revenue, or by a larger share for education in the distribution of provincial expenditures.

2. Provincial assistance toward the cost of new schools be approved on a percentage basis of total cost, including sites and all necessary accommodation, not just classrooms.

3. Re-establishment of provincial grants on frills — gymnasiums, home economic rooms, etc.—which "are essential to the present needs of education in accordance with curriculum."

4. Establishment of a revised grant structure for reassessed municipalities, so that they will not suffer losses in provincial grants.

5. Increased grants for rehabilitation of old schools to a percentage of total cost equal to that for new schools, when rehabilitation is for increased accommodation.

See Japanese Better Than Red Chinese

MONTREAL (CP)—The Rev Alphonse Caouette of the Foreign Missions Society, returning here after 17 years Roman Catholic Missionary work in China, said Saturday many Chinese would prefer even the foreign yoke of Japan to the present Communist "slave state."

"There are many who go so far as looking to the atom bomb as the only remedy for all the present ills, even if it should mean their deaths," Father Caouette said in an interview.

"These people are profoundly conservative and justly proud of their past. Those who believe that one may snatch from a people its beliefs, its philosophy, its habits of thousands of years to give them a Utopia are making a big mistake.

"Suicide has become an everyday affair. Pillows and political lies have the biggest roles in China today."

Scientific Problem

MONTREAL (CP)—The tobacco industry is trying to perfect a cigaret which, will go out as soon as it is discarded, but nothing suitable has yet been found, an industry spokesman said here. Such a cigaret has been sought as a fire safety measure for a long time.

Metals Puts Cobalt Back On Map

By BOB JOHNSTONE

COBALT (CP)—Atom-age need for a hard, white metal once thought useless is putting Cobalt back on the map.

Cobalt, the town, is depending upon cobalt, the metal, to pull it out of its present status—that of the next thing to a ghost town. The little communiy of scattered, frame buildings in the heart of the Timiskaming district has hope once more.

More than 40 years ago, 5,000 miners dug, blasted and scraped away at the richest silver find in the Commonwealth. They threw away thousands of tons of ore bearing "that useless stuff."

Cobalt, the town, got along well without cobalt, the metal. It had five theatres with the prettiest girls in the north. Pay-days were so busy bankers opened their windows and cashed cheques for those in the street who couldn't elbow their way to the counter inside.

DEPRESSION SETS IN

Then the silver ran out. Bullion prices fell. By 1922, the 20-year boom was over. In the 1930s the depression settled on what was left of the richest town in northern Ontario. The population last year wasn't much over 2,000.

Now cobalt, the metal, is one of the world's strategic commodities. Atom bombs, jet engines and electrical equipment cannot resist modern speeds' heat and friction without it.

The annual consumption, mostly military, in the United States is more than 10,750,000 pounds; production in North America is less than 4,000,000 pounds.

Saturday, Mines Minister Kelly officially opened the $2,500,000 Cobalt Chemical Company's electric cobalt-silver refinery, second of its kind in Canada. The other is at Deloro. The cobalt plant will produce 3,000,000 ounces of silver and 1,200,000 pounds of cobalt annually, along with various by-products, from the area's 16 mines and six mills.

WHOOPED IT UP

Cobalt was no ghost town Saturday night. All its citizens met the visitors "from the south" and danced, talked and sang the "Cobalt Song," which tells the story of the town "where all the silver comes from."

A special train—first to roll into Cobalt since boom times—brought 24 members of the legislature and dozens of financiers, miners and investors from Toronto, Montreal and New York. Municipal officials tendered the visitors a reception and dinner. A corps of newspaper men from almost every major centre in North America covered the doings.

Businessmen To Be Target For Life Insurance Salesmen

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

What a place to be—2,000 life insurance salesmen and one prospect: Me!

However, fortunately, they were not interested in the odd lone possible client. They were thinking of the thousands of potential clients who, about Canada, and were getting themselves pepped up to do a bigger and better selling job.

The occasion was the annual one-day Ontario Sales Congress sponsored by the Life Underwriters' Association of Toronto, held in Toronto Friday and attended by life representatives from most parts of Ontario.

If one may judge by the addresses, especially those of David A. Donaldson, of Toronto, and C. Milton Sherman of Cleveland, more business men are likely to be canvassed for "business insurance", the protection of a business against the death of a partner, or of any executive whose death would mean financial problems.

If, however, business insurance got more than usual emphasis, the protection of families against loss of the breadwinner, and provision for the individual's later years, was still held out as the biggest job for the insurance salesman.

MARKET ASSURED

Kenneth Anderson of New York, said the market will never become saturated so long as babies are born and grow up.

While most sales congress speakers are veteran salesmen or high-placed executives, one is usually chosen from "the ranks" because of some special accomplishment.

This year he was Joseph L. LoBosco, of Welland, Ont., only four years in selling, who insured nearly 400 lives in his first year and won membership among those who write $1,000,000 worth of insurance protection a year.

Mr. LoBosco said he got his first lesson in the need for life insurance when his father died, leaving his mother with six young children.

Lakefield Play Has Full House

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—A capacity audience greeted both presentations of "Ma's New Husband," a three-act farce-comedy given by members of the young adult society of the United Church in Memorial Hall.

The story concerned the panic caused when Mrs. Lottie Dinsmore, a widow with two pretty daughters, returns from a vacation in the mountains and announces that she is engaged to be married to Hercules Hawser, a waiter whom she met while away.

The girls decide to break up the romance and enlist the aid of their cousin who has just returned from South America, their boy friends and two night club entertainers.

When Hercules arrives, he is so meek and mild that the girls feel sorry for him, but the plot has been laid and they cannot turn back.

A series of events follow that keeps the audience in gales of laughter. However, like good stories should, all ends well for everyone.

The play was well cast and all players turned in an excellent performance.

Written by Charles George, the play was directed by Mrs. R. Jackman with Misses Helen Kelly and Connie Orr as prompters and Dave Spence as stage manager.

Members of the cast were: Bette Millage, Jean Puffer, Eileen McCracken, Lois Keller, Archie Stewart, Ralph Millage, Verle Bronson, Leslie Poole, Ann Samis, Pat Tanner and Dave Spence.

The play is being presented for the third time in Memorial Hall on Wednesday evening, March 24.

Now Vaccinating Babies After Birth

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

CLEVELAND (AP) — Vaccinating babies minutes after they're born is safe, effective insurance against dangerous whooping cough and diphtheria, a family doctor finds.

The shots-in-the-arm against these diseases usually aren't started until babies are three to six months old or more.

But Dr. Herbert D. Chamberlain, McArthur, Ohio, told today of good results from giving them as immediate birthday shots as part of the routine treatment of newborn babies.

Of 717 babies treated this way since 1948, not one has had whooping cough or diphtheria, even when other children in the family contracted these diseases, he says in an exhibit for the American Academy of General Practice.

Between 1943 and 1948 in his rural practice in Vinton county, Ohio, there had been 40 cases of whooping cough and 10 deaths among babies less than a year old, he said.

Since 1948, there has not been a single case of whooping cough, except in one baby not inoculated at birth, he said.

BIGGEST KILLER

Dr. Chamberlain cited U.S. Government statistics which show whooping cough kills more babies from one to 12 months old than all other disease combined.

He gives the babies a standard vaccine combining protection against whooping cough, diphtheria and tetanus, a main cause of blood poisoning.

A full treatment consists of three shots. The second is given when the baby is six weeks old when the mother receives a checkup for recovery from childbirth. The third is given when the baby is three months old. Three-fourths of all the babies have had the full series, he said.

Dr. Chamberlain said the instant birthday shots are especially useful in rural areas, where mothers often fail to bring in their babies for routine check-ups. Often the doctor is not called unless the baby is ill, and routine inoculations cannot be given then.

Obituary

MRS. WESLEY PACEY

ROSENEATH (ENS)—A lifelong resident of the Roseneath district, Mrs. Wesley Pacey, 71, died Saturday night in Cobourg Hospital after a long illness.

Mrs. Pacey was the former Mary Jane Brown, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Brown. She was born on the Brown family homestead in Alnwick township and lived there until she was married 54 years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Pacey farmed near Roseneath.

She leaves four sons: Clarke of New Liskeard, Allan and Gordon of Toronto, and John of Cobourg; two daughters: Mrs. Earl Thackeray (Inez) of Roseneath, Mrs. Marcus Radley (Olive) of Campbellford; a sister, Mrs. J. A. Dorian of Toronto; 16 grandchildren, and one great grandchild.

Her husband, Wesley Pacey, was the former reeve of Alnwick township. He died four years ago.

Mrs. Pacey was an outstanding exhibitor of domestic work at Roseneath fair. She specialized in making and decorating wedding cakes.

She was a life member of the Roseneath Women's Institute, a member of Roseneath United church and the WMS of that church. Throughout her lifetime she was active in community affairs.

The funeral will be 2 p.m. Tuesday at the McMillan funeral home, Roseneath, the Rev. J. R. Wheeler officiating. Burial will be in Centenary cemetery.

U.S. Deans Attack McCarthyism From Pulpits In Sermons

NEW YORK (AP) — Episcopal deans of New York and Washington exchanged pulpits Sunday and attacked McCarthyism. One also sharply criticized what he called the silence of the Roman Catholic hierarchy on the subject.

The Very Rev. Francis Sayre, Jr. dean of the Washington Episcopal cathedral, delivered his sermon at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine here.

The Very Rev. Dr. James A. Pike, dean of St. John the Divine, preached at the Washington cathedral.

Both said the American people were to blame for the present power of Senator McCarthy, whose methods they described as "evil" and "another of the devil's disguises."

CALLS ON SENATE

Dean Pike called on the Senate to "show clearly where it stands on the American way by changing the leadership of the subcommittee" now headed by McCarthy.

Dean Sayre said that McCarthy "would be nothing without the active support of what has been estimated to be at least one-third of our people."

Dean Pike also told his Washington listeners that "the non-Roman churches will have to bear the heat of the day in making the Christian witness against this new tyranny.

"It is not surprising," the New York dean said, "that the Roman Catholic hierarchy, not averse to taking positions on other moral issues (for example, for their particular view on birth control), has been silent on McCarthyism, and that Roman Catholic papers with huge circulations have been pro-McCarthy in influence."

Rev. John P. Smyth Named To Havelock

HAVELOCK (ENS) — Holy Communion Service was celebrated at St. John's Anglican church here, Sunday, by the Ven. Archdeacon W. P. Robertson, B.A., B.D., of Peterborough.

There was a large congregation despite the stormy weather which included friends from St. Michael's church, Westwood to greet the Ven. Archdeacon.

Archdeacon Robertson informed the congregation of the coming in September of the Rev. John Paterson Smyth who is of a distinguished family of ministers, his grandfather being the Rev. J. Paterson Smyth who wrote several books on the Bible.

The parish of Norwood-Belmont has been in charge of E. J. McDonald a lay reader of St. Luke's church, Peterborough, since the Rev. H. E. Peasgood was appointed rector of St. Alban's parish, Peterborough.

A profitable, guaranteed INVESTMENT!

Start NOW to put a small portion of your earnings into which can be purchased to come due at age 50, 55, 60, or 65, or other ages.

A CANADIAN GOVERNMENT Annuity

Here is a typical example:

NOW — Supposing you are 28 and wish to secure an Annuity of $100 per month commencing at 65. Your monthly premium would be only $16.44!

AT AGE 65 — The Government will begin paying you $100 per month. These payments will continue as long as you live! Furthermore, in the event that you die within ten years after age 65, the monthly payments will continue to your heirs for the balance of that ten years. In other words, you will have paid $7,299.36 to receive a minimum return of $12,000 which will be even greater if you live past 75!

IF YOU DIE BEFORE AGE 65 — The Government will pay your heirs the total sum paid up to the date of your death, plus 4% compound interest!

OLDER PERSONS — An IMMEDIATE ANNUITY can be purchased from accumulated savings with monthly payments beginning one month after date of purchase. This provides a larger income than can be obtained any other way with the same security.

REDUCING ANNUITIES — IMMEDIATE ANNUITIES can be purchased which pay larger monthly payments until age 70 and then reduce payments by $40 monthly when old-age security payments begin . . . thus assuring a level income for life.

Any resident of Canada between ages 5 and 85 is eligible to buy a Government Annuity — WITHOUT MEDICAL EXAMINATION. The example given above is one of many Government Annuity plans available to meet your particular requirements. Consult your DISTRICT ANNUITIES REPRESENTATIVE.

A WONDER DRUG HELPED CHANGE THIS . . .

There are times when crutches are a vital necessity. But because of antibiotic wonder drugs in many cases their period of use has been considerably shortened. Serious infections arising from foot and leg punctures, compound fractures—acute inflammation in the smaller joints . . . all these have been helped by today's wonder drugs.

But in grandfather's day it meant many medicines, doctors, possibly surgery, nurses—and certainly a long period of convalescence on crutches. Even in his day of low prices all these costs were great.

It is only because truly staggering sums have been spent in research and development by the leading pharmaceutical houses that we can buy today's wonder drugs at all. And buy them, moreover, at prices that are very reasonable when compared to what grandfather had to pay for treatments—many of which are no longer necessary!

YOU CAN DEPEND ON YOUR NEIGHBOURHOOD DRUGGIST

You will always be sure of reasonable prices at your neighbourhood druggist's. He is highly-trained in the profession of pharmacy, a friendly man . . . and you can depend on him as surely as you can depend on the wonder drugs he stocks. See him soon for whatever you need.

Supplied Liquor To 3 Minors Fined $25 Each

BANCROFT (ENS)—Convicted by Magistrate R. C. Jackson on three charges of supplying liquor to young girls under the age of 21, Harold Bassett of Trenton, was fined $25 on each charge with costs amounting to $82.50. Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson, Q.C., prosecuted.

James Cecil Legge of Toronto, found guilty of breaking into and entering a cottage owned by Harry Rogers, of Lake St. Peter, was sentenced to three months definite and nine months indefinite in an Ontario reformatory. On a further charge of carrying concealed weapons, Legge wasf ined $50 and costs, or, in default one month, sentence to run concurrently with the previous sentence. The fine was not paid and the accused was committed.

Attempting to trap beavers and fishing illegally resulted in Burford Davis and Elmer Koss, both of Maple Leaf, being fined $10 and costs on each count. The two were apprehended by game warden Bob Ramsbottom at Green Lake in Bangor township on Feb. 25. The officer found beaver traps set and, on tracking the two men, made a further discovery of fishing lines and speckled trout.

Norman McCormick, of Maple Leaf, and Joe Thompson and Forrest Chapman, both of Bancroft, were also fined $10 and costs for illegal fishing. Convicted of drunk driving, Donald Spence, of Bancroft, was sentenced to seven days in the county gaol.

Fines of $15 and costs were levied on Jack Shield of Maynooth and Walter Rupert, of L'Amable, for ... places other than their residences. William Marshall of Belleville paid $10 and costs for a similar offence.

Convicted of careless driving, Joseph Collins of Belleville, and Lawrence Coulas of Madawaska, were each fined $20 and costs. Driving with inadequate lights cost Edward Conlin of Coe Hill, $5 and costs.

Puerto Rican Singing Lead At Premiere

ROME (AP)—Graciela Rivera, a young Puerto Rican coloratura, has received the almost unprecedented distinction of being chosen to sing the lead in the world-premiere of a new Italian opera at the San Carlo opera of Naples.

She will sing "Caterina" in the much-heralded premiere of "I Pescatori" (The Fisherman) March 25.

Miss Rivera was born in Ponce, Puerto Rico, and later lived in San Juan. She went to the United States when 17 years old to study music.

Four years ago she made her debut as Lucia in "Lucia de Lammernoor" at the San Carlo. Two years ago she sang the same role in her Metropolitan opera debut in New York.

"I play Caterina, 15-year-old daughter of a fisherman who is wronged by a member of her family," she said of the new opera. "It's a dramatic part and I love dramatics."

Miss Rivera is a pretty brunette who looks more like a film actress than the familiar idea of a buxom opera star.

Cobalt Unit Used In U.K.

NORTHWOOD, Middlesex, England (CP)—Britain's only cobalt radiotherapy unit—a Canadian gift—has fired its first dose at a cancer patient.

The unit, powered by a radioactive cobalt disc a half-inch thick and an inch wide, is in charge of Sir Stanford Cade and Prof. Brian Windeyer, two of the world's leading cancer specialists, at Mount Vernon Hospital here.

The so-called cobalt "bomb," a gift from J. W. McConnell of Montreal to the Empire cancer campaign, can combat deep-seated cancers beyond the reach of conventional radium equipment. Life of the cobalt disc is about five years, after which it can be recharged. Only about 10 of the machines are in existence.

The Mount Vernon machine is the only one in Europe and cost £25,000. Besides being used to treat patients, it will be employed in long-term research.

See Navigation Season Opening Late

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Marine men say that, regardless of spring weather, the Great Lakes navigation season for grain-carrying lake freighters will probably open late this year.

So little grain has been sold for export during the winter that wheat has piled up in Montreal. For the present, this is the key to the entire grain shipping situation along the great inland waterway to the Lakehead.

A Canadian Press survey today showed both grain-handling and steamship companies making plans to operate on a reduced scale until exports take an upswing.

In Montreal, a spokesman for the shipping industry said he expected the "worst beginning" in lake navigation in 15 years. He said he thinks half the bulk grain carriers will make one or two trips and then become idle after two weeks.

PREDICT SLACK SEASON

Elsewhere, too, shipping men talked of the possibility of an unusually slack season for the lake fleet, which numbers about 225 ships including ore-carriers and oil tankers.

A shipping company official in Port Arthur said there is no pressure on ship owners this year for an early opening of navigation. He said he thinks some of the Canadian fleet may be tied up this year.

Concern is expressed at the Lakehead that unless orders are received soon for wheat for export, grain movement will remain almost at a standstill.

Twelve grain-laden ships that wintered in Montreal will have their cargoes taken off and placed in elevators by the start of the season. But 30 other ships are reported between Montreal and Kingston, all preparing to sail for Montreal with their loads of grain for which there will be no space in Montreal elevators.

Ships which spent the winter in Owen Sound have almost finished unloading their storage cargoes of grain. When this work is completed, the elevator will be nearly full.

Earth Shocks Felt

CALCUTTA (AP) — Two strong earth tremors, accompanied by loud rumbling, rocked the Calcutta area and other parts of eastern India early today but first reports told of no damage. The shocks, lasting about three minutes, awakened the city's 2,000,000 inhabitants and sent them dashing into the streets in fear. The quakes were felt also in Orissa, Bihar and Assam states.

4,000,000 Pounds Of Fish Taken From Great Slave

EDMONTON (CP)—The winter fishing season is nearing an end at Great Slave lake, Northwest Territories, and officials expect another high yield—about 4,000,000 pounds of whitefish and lake trout.

Since large-scale commercial fishing opened on the lake in the 1944-45 season, it has graduated to the largest single producer of whitefish and lake trout in North America. The annual yield is estimated at 9,000,000 pounds, with an annual market value of $3,000,000.

The expansion has been due largely to construction of a 400-mile, all-weather highway from Grimshaw in northern Alberta to the lake itself.

Transportation has always been the major drawback. Each of the seven major companies operating in the district contribute at least one plane to the all-season airlift, and snowmobiles are used in addition to large trailer-trucks doing most of the hauling down the Mackenzie highway to the railhead.

About 90 per cent of the annual yield is marketed in the United States.

The lake, with an area of more than 11,000 square miles, has been sectioned off by the federal fisheries department. In each section a limited amount of fish is caught each season. Crews are continually on the move, eliminating the threat that one part of the lake will be fished out.

From Dec. 1 to March 31, the fishermen live in camps many miles out on the lake ice. The camps are mostly caboose shanties.

Few of the fishermen come to town during the winter. Their supplies are transported to camps by snowmobiles, planes and tractor trains.

The camps, from 50 to 150 miles out from shore, usually are built to house four or five men. At times the fishermen use gloves to lift their nets but for the most part they empty them with bare hands.

Travel over the lake is difficult. There are many pressure ridges to be skirted and the crews must also circle the sometimes 20-foot open "leads" in the ice.

Dozens of truck drivers play an important role in quick transportation. The Mackenzie highway is a lonely route. For the last 300 miles it cuts through a virtual wilderness after the Battle river district is passed.

Mystery Tea At Mark St. Goes Over, Big Success

A mystery which intrigued many residents, particularly of East City, for some weeks past, was solved on Saturday afternoon.

More than 200 of these people found the solution for themselves when they attended the affair called "The Mystery Tea" held in the parlors of the Mark Street United church.

It was the first affair of its kind in Peterborough, and, being timed for the week in which Saint Patrick, a man of some mystery himself, was being honored, added to its effect.

Hostesses were the ladies of two groups of the Woman's Association of the Mark Street church who decided on this affair as their money-making project. Co-conveners were Mrs. Robert Russell and Mrs. H. Allen and they received much assistance from Mrs. N. D. Patterson who prepared the menus, and Mrs. Gordon Eason who took charge of preparing the food.

Now this was not an ordinary 'tea,"—in fact it could have been called a supper, for certainly those who attended could not have eaten anything more for several hours at least.

The "mystery" was in the menus. These were all carefully itemized, in green ink of course, and there were four to choose from. But without a helpful waitress standing by one might have had considerabl difficulty.

Your reporter chose "St. Patrick's Best," and this is what it was advertised to be: Paddy's Special, Irish Preserves, Cork Soles, Chips from the Blarney Stone, Dew off the Shamrock, Irish Twist, Kilarney Mold, From Shell to Shell, An extra pound for ye, Witches' Brew, and A Chip off the old Block, Begorra.

What was served, in the language of an ordinary cook, was this: Hot beef and vegetable stew with gravey, baked buttered potato, tea biscuit, jellied fruit salad (green jelly) on lettuce, a do-nut twister, banana bread with butter, tea with cream and sugar.

Passed up in the other menu suggestions, were such delicacies as "Coon in Cotton," whatever that might be; "Dentist's Delight" which we can imagine;; "Backbone of History", no idea; "Compliments of Elsie, that one's easy; "Witches' Teeth", we think we know; "Picanninnies Pleasure", well sho' nuff; and "Sometimes Stuffed"—that's how we felt; and dozens more like them.

A three-dimensional, three-foot Shamrock highlighted the decor of the tea room which had green and white streamers overhead and hats upside down and full of shamrocks on the posts. Green centrepieces were on the serving tables, and shamrocks on each corner, with a green and white serviette placed for each guest.

A tea table was beautifully set for effect, as it was not used, and on it were pale green candles in silver holders, a bouquet of daffodils and pussywillows and s... tea services. Something new in the March 17th theme decorations was pink flowers to represent the bloom of the shamrock.

Servers were wearing green aprons and bandeaux and where possible a green dress. They were Mrs. Bud Miller, Mrs. Alf. Townsend, Mrs. J. L. Welsh, Mrs. Keith Brown, Mrs. John Hedges, Mrs. Harold Bell, Mrs. F. R. Samis, Mrs. Cecil Sarles; Mrs. V. Tyrrell, Mrs. Walter Ferguson, Mrs. A. E. DeNure, Mrs. Gordon Hopcroft and Mrs. J. S. Sage.

Preparing the plates and the food in the kitchen were Mrs. Eason, Mrs. George Thorn, Mrs. W. Pomeroy Sr., Mrs. H. Cooper, Mrs. Art Harris, Mrs. Edna Fowles and Mrs. Stuart Laing.

Pianists who provided a background of Irish music were Mrs. Fred Hunter and Miss Arlene Clysdale.

The two conveners, who are presidents of groups two and five of the WA, received at the door and Miss Mary Eason took the tickets. Mrs. Patterson was the tea room hostess.

June Drummond Weds Harold Paquette

Spring flowers decorated the Knox United church on Saturday afternoon as setting for the wedding of Helen June, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Drummond, to Harold William Paquette, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Paquette, all of Peterborough.

The Rev. H. G. Douglas performed the marriage and the music was played by organist Mr. W. R. Fotter.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was in ballerina length gown of white net over taffeta made with an overskirt of French embroidered net and a strapless bodice topped with matching jet jacket which was finished with a roll collar and long sleeves coming to points over the hands. Her veil was caught to a coronet of pearls and she was carrying white carnations centered with an orchid.

Miss Dorohty Drummond was bridesmaiad for her sister and wore a frock in ice blue which had a lace bodice and bolero and net skirt over taffeta in Ballerina length. She wore matching mittens and a bandeau of feathers and her bouquet was of spring flowers Mr. Edward Potter was attending the groom and the ushers were Robert Morrison and John Drummond, brother of the bride.

A reception took place afterward in the church hall. The bride's mother was receiving, wearing a navy corded bengaline dress with navy and white straw hat and corsage of pink carnations. The groom's mother was attired in a grey wool worsted suit and wore a black straw hat and corsage of sweet peas.

The bridal couple left afterward on a trip to Toronto and Buffalo. Mrs. Paquette was wearing a navy English gabardine suit, a white straw hat and navy and white accessories and an orchid as her corsage.

SIGNING THE MARRIAGE REGISTER of the George Street United Church are Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred D. Jones, the bride formerly Miss Irene Nicholls. They will make their home in Toronto.

Audrey Hepburn '54 Model For Fashions In Women

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Fashions in women, as in clothes, change. The 1954 model is 110 pounds, 5 feet and 7, with a Peter Pan face, dark hair and the lithe, supple build of a dancer. If this sounds like a description of Audrey Hepburn, it is.

A new cult started building around Miss Hepburn something less than a year ago when her first American film, "Roman Holiday" was released. Today, it is no secret in the magazine world that a picture of the lady on a cover is like a benzedrine pill to sales.

Sales of ballet slippers have climbed to 1,500,000 a year. What used to be the Italian boy hair-do is now more frequently described as a "Hepburn-type" crop. And rumor has it that there's marked uneasiness in the foundation garment business since film director Bill Wilder was widely quoted as exclaiming: "This girl may, singlehandedly, make the bosom boom a thing of the past."

As she was being hailed for her "Roman Holiday" performance, the amazing "new" Hepburn (the "old" one, of course, is Katharine, whose reaction to this method of distinguishing between them has not been recorded) had moved on to Broadway.

WINS OVER CRITICS

"Ondine," an old Jean Giraudoux fantasy adapted into English, opened to mixed notices. But there was no doubt that Audrey Hepburn completely enslaved the most hard-headed, rough-tongued critics.

"She exists in obvious defiance of laws of gravity," wrote one.

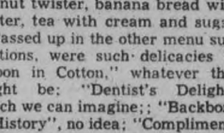
"Feathers envy her. . . . Space bows humbly and gets out of the way. . . . One sees immediately that Miss Hepburn came first and that sea nymphs have been imitating her for years. . . ."

Miss Hepburn away from the footlights or camera does not seem to have the electrifying qualities of personality, mystery and other-world beauty which devastate just about every man who sees her. She has a soft, pretty young girl's face; a clear, fine English complexion; wide, pleasant eyes, and the slim body of a dancer.

She was born in Brussels in 1927 of an Anglo-Irish father, J. A. Hepburn-Ruston, and a Dutch mother. Her maternal grandfather was the Baron Aernoud van Heemstra, a governor of Surinam and a member of Queen Wilhelmina's court.

Young Audrey summered on her father's estate outside the Belgian capital and the rest of the year attended English boarding school. Her parents were divorced shortly before her 10th birthday. In the Netherlands, Audrey lived through six years of German occupation.

GAINED SCHOLARSHIP



When the war was over, Audrey wrangled a scholarship in an English ballet school. The 'teen-age girl made ends meet by picking up a chorus job in the London production of "High Button Shoes."

Clouds of good fortune were gathering in 1951 when she went on location in Monaco for a movie, "Monte Carlo Baby." The French novelist, Colette, happened on the set, took one look at Audrey and instantly anounced: "There is "Gigi."

Colette's novel of that name was in the process of being translated into a Broadway play by Anita Loos, and Mmme. Colette not only cast the lovely unknown for the title role, but called Miss Loos to London to confirm her judgment.

Then someone persuaded Hollywood director William Wyler to take a look at Miss Hepburn in connection with the projected filming, in Italy of "Roman Holiday." Wyler reacted as had Colette: "This is the princess."

"I've had great breaks," she said in her pleasantly precise British voice. "But I've never been ready for them when they came. I've spent all my life trying to catch up to my good fortune with my technique."

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Menu of Overweight People With Intake of 800 Calories

A letter which ends ". . . please excuse this letter as I do not feel so good" demands (my own term) a careful answer from me.

This reader is convalescing from an operation and on doctor's orders must lose 79 pounds. Her daily calorie intake is to be only 800. That is very low, but drastic as it may seem to some of you skinny sisters there are dozens—nay hundreds—of our readers who are aiming at 800 calories per day, so they can buy a new spring suit, size 16, for Easter.

That is why my answer to Mabel S. is printed here . . . the Spartan souls among you may even eat-only 800 calories, but the less determined reducers might shoot at that count, and actually hit 1000 calories, which would be pretty good, considering.

800 CALORIE PER DAY (approximately) MENUS

BREAKFASTS

1) Half medium grapefruit — 60; 1 medium egg — 75; ½ slice 100% whole wheat bread—37; coffee with 1 oz. skim milk— 10; (1 oz. skim milk is 2 tablespoons).

Food, Schools, Hospitals Pressing Needs Of Koreans

By PETER STURSBERG

UNITED NATIONS — Food, schools and hospitals are among the major needs of war-torn South Korea. UNKRA, the United Nations Korean Reconstruction Agency, is making great efforts to fulfil these needs; and it is helping to reconstruct industry and restore the fisheries. But because contributing countries have failed to honour their pledges, it has less than a quarter of the money it needs this year. Added to this is the fact that Syngman Rhee government has wasted a great deal of the money that has been provided.

UNKRA's financing has to be untangled to be understood. When the agency was set up some time ago it was promised 207 million dollars at a conference; the United States pledged 162 million dollars, or roughly 65 per cent of the amount and the United Kingdom 28 million dollars.

ONLY CANADA PAYS

So far UNKRA has received in actual cash about 90 million dollars. Canada, which pledged 7,-250,000 dollars, is the only major contributor to have paid in full. The United States has handed over 66 million dollars; it is not going back on its promise, but a Congressional rule does not allow any American contribution to an international agency to be more than 65 per cent of the total; a similar matching rule applies to Britain, which has paid a little more than half its pledge.

It is the other countries, and the Latin-American states in particular, which are letting UNKRA down. If they would contribute or even honor their pledges, the agency would not be so badly off; for every dollar from them it would receive, under the matching rules, three dollars from the United States and the United Kingdom.

Of the 90 million dollars paid to it, UNKRA has spent some 70 million. Thus it is left with a little more than 20 million dollars for its work this year on a program on which it had planned to spend 85 million. The 65 million dollars which it lacks must be measured in schools and hospitals, factories and food to understand what it means to the South Koreans.

BOUGHT BARLEY

Last year UNKRA spent the largest single amount, 11 million dollars on barley; it was still concerned with direct relief then, with actually feeding people, but it also distributed nine million wollars worth of fertilizer to help get the farmlands back into full production, and spent more than five million dollars on education. UNKRA officials speak of the way the children sat shivering with cold in windowless schools; they obtained 94,000 square feet of glass for Seoul schools alone.

Among other UNKRA projects are the rebuilding and re-equipping of Taegu hospital; the rehabilitation of the fisheries by bringing in fish nets and boat engines and parts; the reconstruction of small industries such as textile plants, which have already been given 55,000 new spindles, and reclamation work generally. Most of these projects are being continued this year — until the money runs out.

UNKRA clears its program with the Syngman Rhee government, and officially, relations are described as good. It often happens, however, that although agreement is reached co-operation is lacking when it comes to the actual work. Articles in South Korean newspapers, most of which are government-controlled, would indicate that this is a deliberate attempt to gain a greater control of the United Nations agency.

SHOWY PROJECTS

South Korean leaders appear to be impatient with what UNKRA is doing and would prefer to spend the money in a more spectacular manner. They would like to build a great hotel for tourists in Seoul, with a swimming pool and other amenities, and a super-highway linking Pusan and Seoul. They have spent the dollar credits granted them by America on such costly schemes as an ocean-going fleet, the biggest radio transmitter in Asia, a national airline to provide a trans-Pacific service, an institute of higher learning, the latest printing presses and equipment for an English-language newspaper. Some of these schemes have had to be abandoned and so the money has been wasted.

UNKRA has also suffered from the artificial rate of exchange for the won. The Rhee Government has pegged it at 180 to the dollar, although its actual rate is twice as much. Across the dollar was selling 450 won on the Seoul free market. This means that UNKRA is receiving only half the value for the money it actually spends in Korea.

John Goodison, who is a Canadian business man with UNKRA, said recently, "We're a relief organization. Our job is to get goods into the country and help rebuild it and not to worry about exchange rates". Mr. Goodison, who is a deputy to the American Agent-General of UNKRA, Lt. Gen. John B. Coulter, admitted that there had been difficulties with the Syngman Rhee Government; but he said they were bound to occur.

It is true that none of these difficulties is insuperable, and that none is as serious as the UNKRA's present lack of funds. This is stressed by everyone at the United Nations, although there is some difference of opinion about why there should be this financial crisis. The majority incline to the view that many countries are not paying their contributions because they are alarmed by Syngman Rhee's warmongering statements, and are concerned about South Korea's future.

DOROTHY DIX:

Doubts Love Ample Proof Of Affection

DEAR MISS DIX: I am married 11 years and have two little girls. I've kept my appearance, weight the same as when I was married, but with all this I've never gotten affection from my husband. I used to nag him occasionally about it, but now I'm becoming convinced that he doesn't love me. He's a good husband as far as providing, fidelity, sobriety and consideration, but apparently he has no desire to express affection. I, on the other hand, feel a great need for affection; my parents died when I was small, and I never knew family life. Should I give up trying to change him and just consider marriage from a material angle?

ROBIN

UNDEMONSTRATIVE HUSBAND

ANSWER: This is no time to throw up your hands and call quits; quite obviously it's your job to instil happiness into your marriage. Your husband is not a demonstrative person, so you probably will never get from him a full measure of affection. Nagging, of course, was the worst approach you could use; now try a bit of feminine finesse. Be the gentle aggressor in the matter of caresses; make the daily parting and greeting kisses a routine followed by all the family and bit by bit you'll encourage more affection from your mate. His home life may have been lacking in tenderness to the point where he grew up naturally reserved. As a family, his folks may have been cold by nature; this inherited trait can never be completely overcome, but a patient program of re-education could give him a new sense of values. You certainly have every proof in the world that your husband loves you, except for this lack of expression, which can be overcome to some degree, at least. Rather than hopelessly following his standards in this regard, begin to set your own.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm 27 years old and seldom go out on a date. The chief reason is my mother's disapproval of the few boys I have dated. There are only two or three nationalities that she approves of, and if a boy has any other background, it's thumbs down for him. My brother married late in life because of this conflict. He married (at 31) a girl to whom mother vigorously objected, but they are very happy. Am I obliged to obey my mother in her command not to date fellows of the nationalities she doesn't like?

ANGELINA

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: When parents are as unreasonable as is your mother, I think young people are justified in striking out on their own. Your mother's real purpose seems to be a desire to keep her children at home, and this nationalities angle is just a cover-up.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My brother-in-law visited us recently and criticized everything in the place — the children, furniture, decorations, etc. My house is well kept, and definitely not deserving of his remarks. I think my husband (his brother) should have put him in his place, but my answer to was that a guest can do no wrong. Who is right?

S. H.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your husband is technically correct, but it certainly would be difficult to be gracious under these circumstances. Why not visit your brother-in-law's home and take advantage of the guests' "immunity"?

6—In Memoriam

ADAMSON—In loving memory of our dear daughter, Mary Ann Elizabeth, who passed away five years ago, March 20th, age three months.
No pen can write,
No tongue can tell
Our sad and bitter loss,
But God alone, has helped so well
To bear our heavy cross.
—Ever remembered by Mom and Dad.

CROZIER— Fond memories of Thomas Crozier, who passed away March 17, 1943, also Mrs. Greta Jamieson, on March 22, 1952.
Thy will be done, seems hard to say
When one we loved has passed away;
Some day, perhaps, we'll understand
When we meet again in the better land.
—Lovingly remembered by Mrs. Jessie Crozier and Family.

JAMIESON—In loving memory of Greta Belle Jamieson, who passed away March 22, 1952.
We don not forget her, we love her too dearly,
For her memory to fade from our lives like a dream;
Our lips need not speak when our heart's mourn sincerely
For grief often dwells where it seldom is seen.
—Sadly missed by husband and family.

GUPPY—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Albert W. (Arthur) Guppy, who passed away March 22, 1953.
His smiling face and pleasant way
Are a picture to recall;
He had a kindly word for each,
And died beloved by all.
—Sady missed by his Wife and Family.

MANNING—In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away March 22, 1953.
Please, God, forgive a silent tear,
A fervent wish our mom was here;
There are others, yes, we know,
But she was ours and we loved her so.
Dear God, take a message
To our mother in heaven above;
Tell her how much we miss her,
And give her all our love.
—Lovingly remembered by daughters Dorothy, Eileen and Family, Bucky, Milly and Family.

Penalties Rob Indians Of 5-4 Victory

STRATFORD (CP) — Penalties will kill you in hockey. Just ask Stratford Indians.

The Indians, down 2-0 in their best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Senior A final with Owen Sound Mercurys, took their second consecutive loss from the Mercurys Saturday when they dropped a 5-4 overtime decision.

Of the 13 goals scored against Stratford in the series, nine were counted while the Indians were short-handed.

Four of Owen Sound's five goals were scored while a Stratford player was in the penalty box Saturday. The only consolation was that the winning marker in overtime came while both teams were at full strength.

GAME SEE-SAWS

The lead changed hands four times. Owen Sound went [illegible] in the first period before allowing the Indians a 3-2 edge in the second. The Mercurys tied the score 3-3 before the second period ended and went ahead 4-3 in the third before Stratford counted to send the game into overtime.

Doug Gillespie followed Roy Leckie's two goals and singles by Herb Carnegie and Ralph Hosking with the winning marker at 2:39 of the overtime period. Bill Flick scored a pair for Stratford with singles going to Mickey Roth and Johnny Murgetich.

Third game of the series is in Owen Sound tonight.

Women Athletes Join AAU

TORONTO (CP)—The Women's Amateur Athletic Federation, which long has felt it has been left out in the cold in the affairs of track and field in Canada, has solved its problem. It has joined forces with the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada.

The WAAF, formed in 1952, was dissolved at the AAU semi-annual meeting here Saturday and officially became part of the AAU. "We wished affiliation with the AAU because we felt ourselves there was room for improvement in our organization," Margaret Lord of Hamilton, national secretary of the federation, told the meeting.

HAVE DIRECT VOICE

In effect, the "marriage" means that the women will have a direct voice in sports in which they participate and will have a say in the selection of women athletes for the British Empire Games at Vancouver and in future national and international competition.

Final details of the AAU-WAAF union will be worked out at the annual meeting of AAU at Vancouver next Aug. 9. In the meantime, however, it was agreed that each provincial branch of the AAU would have a woman on the national women's committee and the women would run their own affairs subject to supervision of the national AAU.

Sudbury Takes Northern Title

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) Sudbury Wolves completed the biggest comeback of this year's Ontario senior hockey playoffs Saturday when they eliminated Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds to win the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A southern group championship.

The Wolves, last year's NOHA champions, won three consecutive games from the Greyhounds after dropping the first two games of the best-of-five set. Their finishing touch was the 2-1 sudden-death overtime victory they posted over the Greyhounds here Saturday. Sudbury finished the schedule in second place, below the Greyhounds.

Lindsay School Wins Bonspiel

LINDSAY (CP)—John Laidley's Lindsay Collegiate rink won the annual schoolboy's invitational bonspiel for the second straight year here Saturday night with an 11-10 extra-end win over Clair Peacock of Oshawa Collegiate and Vocational Institute in the final game of the main event.

The second event was won by Ted Stibbards of Welland 12-3 over John Elder of University of Toronto Schools.

John Fleming of Kitchener-Waterloo Collegiate and Vocational Institute won the third event 14-3 over Bill Goodwin of Hamilton Delta Collegiate.

George Norman Sets New Mark

HAMILTON (CP)—George Norman of Toronto Gladstones showed the way to a field of 10 in the annual Guelph-to-Hamilton road race Saturday and established a new mark for the just under 30 miles.

Norman, who set the mark of 3.02.18 back in 1951, was clocked in 2.56.10 Saturday and he was all alone at the finish.

When the 10 starters toed the mark in Guelph shortly after noon they were greeted by snow and rain but despite this all made good time for the first 15 miles. At that stage of the race five men were in the running — Norman, Lorne White, Guelph; Jack Lambert, Toronto; Tony Dossaer, Dundas, and Fred Bristow, Toronto.

At the top of the hill into Hamilton Norman pulled into the lead and increased it over the last five miles.

In second place was White of Guelph who covered the distance in 3.02.10, and third prize went to Dossaer of Dundas who was timed in 3.16.15.

Virginia Grant Breaks Swim Records

TORONTO (CP)—Virginia Grant, 16, of Toronto, broke Canadian swimming records in the 50-yard and 100-yard free style events in the Ontario girls' swimming championships here Saturday.

Her performances helped her teammates from the Toronto Aquatic Club win the Dolphinet Trophy over six other teams. The Toronto team scored 133 points. Hamilton Aquatic club was second with 87 and Brantford third with 32. Following the top three teams were Aylmer with 20 points, London 14, Toronto Granite 12 and Toronto Mermaid six.

Miss Grant, 1953 Canadian 100-yard free-style champion, set both records in qualifying heats. Her time of 27.5 in the 50-yard free-style for girls under 17 bettered the mark of 28.2 set by Don Lynn in 1937. In the final of the 50-yard event she finished in 27.8 to again beat Miss Lynn's time.

Later she completed the 100-yard free-style heat in 1:01.7—six-tenths of a second better than the previous record of 1:02.3 which was set by Gladys Priestly of Montreal in 1952.

Sarah Barber, 13, of Brantford, won her heat of the 100-yard back stroke for girls under 14 in 1:12.3, 10 seconds faster than Marg Park- of Hamilton. Alec Stermac, coach of the Toronto winning club, said it was the fastest time he has heard of for a girl under 14. The time can not be claimed as a Canadian record because statistics don't list times for swimmers that young.

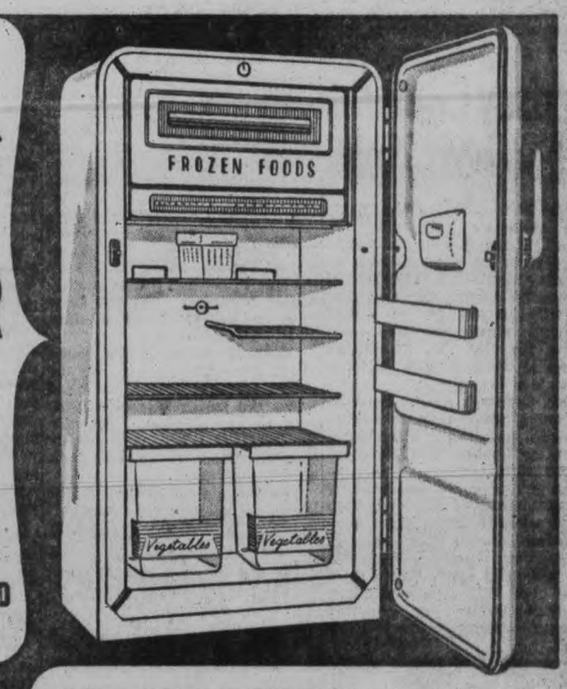
Miss Barber finished first in the final of the back stroke but was disqualified for failing to touch an end of the pool on a turn. But she won a first-place medal for winning the 50-yard free-style title.

Brantford relay teams won the 200-yard free-style and 150-yard medley events for girls under 14.

Panthers Take Championship

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Windsor Patterson Collegiate Panthers succeeded Niagara Falls Collegiate Red Raiders as Ontario's top high school basketball team Saturday night by dumping Jim Rose's classy Cataract City Cagers 65-69 in the windup of the annual two-day Ontario Federation of Secondary Schools Athletic Association tournament.

The Patterson win ended Niagara Falls' three-year reign as king of the province's prep basketball and shattered the defending champions' 71-game winning streak. It was Patterson's first victory in [illegible] event since 1948 and gave the locals [illegible] ished 18-0 record for the season.



Patterson staged a great comeback to defeat the Red Raiders. Eight points down at the start of the third quarter, the Panthers unleashed the hottest attack in the tournament and deadlocked the score at 35-35 on rapid-fire hoops by Tommy Grant, Gary Weir, Wilbert Ott and Gene Dziadura.

After that, the lead see-sawed back and forth until midway in the fourth quarter when three baskets by Ott moved Patterson out in front for keeps.

YMCA Regents Enter OABA Semi-Finals Probably Against Osgoode Hall After 90-53 Victory Over Orillia "Y"

Doug MacPherson's basketball Regents are within one large step of the Ontario Amateur Basketball Association intermedite "B" finals. That one step is the semi-finals against either Oshawa Grads or Osgoode Hall, most likely the youthful lawyers.

The Regents on Saturday night gained the semi-final round for the first time in two years when they trounced Orillia YMCA 90-53 at the YMCA gym. This was the second time in a week that the Regents have defeated Orillia, winning the first game 67-57. Therefore the Regents easily took the two-game quarter-final play 157-110.

Entering the game with a 10-point lead on the round, the Regents saw that lead falter slightly early in the first quarter. But it was never seriously threatened after that.

As the Regents gradually pulled ahead both in the game and the round, the play became rougher. The quintets had trouble preventing body contact as the play moved quickly up and down the small YMCA court.

STAR FOULS OUT

Personal fouls caused a pressure on both Orillia and the Regents, particularly in the second half when both had players with three and four fouls. Finally Orillia's star, G. Ruiter, the six-foot-six-inch pivot, fouled out in the third quarter, followed later by starry Regent guard Gord Burns. They were the only two forced to leave the game.

Former collegiate star Don Ash paced the Regents with 14 points on a variety of short and long set shots, layups and foul shots. Veteran Joe Stewart followed close behind with 12 while Ed Nicholls and Dan Griffin each had 11, Bob Smith 10 and Bill Edger nine.

Until fouled out, Ruiter was leading the Orillia attack as well as playing well defensively. Using his height, Ruiter flipped in rebounds for baskets and was often fouled, resulting in six points out of a possible nine. He totalled 14 points.

After Ruiter left, V. Cross paced the Orillia quintet, relying mostly on long set shots for his points which numbered 12.

TAKE LEAD

After Ash and Ab Stewart had given the Regents a slight game lead, Cross, Wilson, Kehoe and Page rallied the Orillia quintet to a one-point lead 7-6. But this lead fell quickly as Ash and Dan Griffin put the Regents ahead once more, finishing the first quarter ahead 17-14.

Both teams tightened their defence in the second quarter but Dave Langhorne and Joe Stewart kept the Regents' game and round lead well protected. Therefore the Regents were still 33-24 at the half.

In the third quarter the Orillia defensive patterns were shattered by the Regent attacks. The Peterborough youths broke quickly up the small floor and just as quickly scored 22 points. At the same time they held Orillia to 14 points, mostly on foul shots.

Down 27 points on the round (1? in the game) going into the fourth quarter, Orillia collapsed under the steady offensive pressure by the Regents. Nicholls, Smith, Griffin and Ash quickly took advantage to increase their winning margin.

The Regents expect to enter the semi-final play this weekend.

Harrison Rink Captures Sturgeon Cup

In two well-played games, the finals of the Sturgeon Trophy —main event and consolation— were held on Saturday evening. The two games were so much alike that we can hardly believe it—both tied coming home—each with the same score and the winning rinks each scored one point on the 10th end. It was real hard-hitting curling—close all the way, and the last shot on the last end settled the issue.

1st and Sturgeon Trophy: Mrs. J. Graham, J. Watts, Mrs. J. Watts, B. Harrison, skip.

2nd: Mrs. B. Grant, C. Campbell, Mrs. H. Lowes, B. Grant, skip.

1st Consolation: Miss Bev. Martin, H. R. Martin, Mrs. R. Miller, G. Brammer, skip.

2nd: Mrs. A. Hill, A. Hill, Mrs. E. O'Toole, C. Selkirk, skip.

There is room for a few more rinks for the Ostranders bonspiel this coming Wednesday.

The Rev. McDonald bonspiel has been set back to Saturday April 3, the last day of the curling season.

Thos. Doughty reports a grand time down Kingston way, all last week.

Jack Allen, formerly of Peterborough, but now living in Guelph, was in town Saturday meeting old friends, he curled with Fred Stenson in Saturday's bonspiel. He hasn't changed a bit; correction—maybe some of his stones are a little different.

Tow weeks more and it's all over for another season.

The winning skips in Saturday's bonspiel were: R. A. (Pete) Collins, 1st; B. Harrison, 2nd; H. Baptie, 3rd; L. Symonds, 4th, E. Robinson, 5th; V. Brown, 6th.

Lindsay Captures Schoolboys 'Spiel

LINDSAY (ENS)—John Laidley's collegiate rink won the annual Schoolboys' Invitation Bonspiel at the Lindsay club on Saturday night. It was the second consecutive victory for the local quartette in the 24-rink event. Laidley's rink won the main event, the Dr. H. D. Logan Memorial Trophy with a tense 11-10 win in the final game against Oshawa's Claire Peacock. The game, which took over three hours to play, required an extra end after Laidley tied the score in the 10th end.

The second event was won by Ted Stibbards, of Wollard, with a 12-3 win over John Elder, representing Toronto UTS. John F. Leming, of Kitchener-Waterloo, won the third event with a 14-3 score over Bill Goodwin whose Hamilton Delta rink was the youngest entered in the two-day event.

Warsaw Gains Darling Cup Over The Point

WARSAW (ENS) — Warsaw Flyers downed Young's Point by a score of 7-2 in a fast hockey game Friday night to take the two-game contest 14-12 and win the Hilliard Darling Trophy.

Wingett was at his best and was a whizz at keeping that puck out when Young's Point put on the pressure. Spenceley tried but was no match for the determined Flyers. Smith took a pass from Stan Lonsberry to open the scoring. About seven minutes later Stan Lonsberry, assisted by Mathews, rapped in another. K. Fawcett caught the rebound from J. Fawcett and Henry to put Young's Point in the scoring, then Stan Lonsberry from Mathews tallied again. G. Payne did a solo and drew Spenceley out of the net and rapped in the puck to make it 4-1 at the end of the first.

In the second, Smith from Clements opened scoring and less than a minute later, Len Lonsberry assisted by Griffen tallied again. Henry did a solo and secured another one for Young's Point.

In a neat passing play in the third [illegible] a pass from Len Lonsberry and the game ended 7-2.

Lineups:

Young's Point: Goal, Spenceley; defence, McNaughton, R. Shearer; centre, Heard; wings, Fawcett, J. McIsaac; alts., K. Fawcett, J. Northey, R. Northey, Gord Henry, C. Freeburn, Russel.

Warsaw: Goal, Wingett; defence, Watts, Payne; centre, S. Lonsberry; wings, Clements, Mathews; alts., Len Lonsberry, Smith, H. Darling, Crowe, Griffen, Williams.

LOT OF LAURELS

The Warsaw Flyers were banded together in the winter of 1945-46. Since then they have won the Tedford Tropny three times in the Norwood Bush League, the Ted Payne Trophy once, the Dit Clapper Trophy twice, in the EPL and then Friday night they added the Hilliard Darling Trophy.

Stan and Len Lonsberry, Doug Evans, Joe Watts and George Payne were on the lineup when the team started eight years ago.

The boys have played fine hockey all season without receiving pay and have brought two trophies to Warsaw this year, the Dit Clapper and Hilliard Darling trophies. They are trying to raise enough money to buy each a new jacket with the Warsaw crest, so any donations towards this worthy cause will be greatly appreciated.

NOT CLOSE ENOUGH—G. Ruiter, six-foot six-inch star of the Orillia YMCA intermediate basketball team, attempts to tip the ball through the hoop. Until fouled out he paced the Orillia team which finally lost to the Regents, 90-53, sending Regents into the Ontario intermediate "B" semi-finals. Joe Stewart, Ed Nicholls and Doug Ash all starred for the Regents who won the round 157-110. (Examiner Staff Photo).

OBA Sets $50 To Lodge Protest Now

CHATHAM (CP)—The Ontario Baseball Association at its 37th annual meeting Saturday increased to $50 from $25 the charge a team pays for lodging an official protest of a decision.

The amendment to the OBA constitution was one of 20 resolutions and amendments before the meeting. Sixteen were approved.

It was decided the executive will appoint a chairman to handle each series playdowns, and that the chairman would have power to disqualify any team that refused or failed to play when ordered.

All players' certificates must be in the hands of the OBA secretary by July 1.

Delegates discussed at length the arranging of a date on which league and association championships must be declared. It was decided that all series, junior, intermediate and senior, must start by the last Saturday in August.

The association treasury showed a balance of $112. It was decided to increase league fees to $100 for each association that operates 50 or more clubs in their series, leagues or groups.

Associations that operate 25 to 49 clubs will pay $50; senior, intermediate and junior leagues will pay $25; individual clubs in senior, intermediate and junior series who are granted direct OBA affiliation, $25; and juvenile, midget, bantam and pee-wee leagues granted affiliation, $10.

In junior A, B, C and D championship games, it was amended that the association take five percent of the gross receipts after government tax is deducted.

All umpires must affiliate with the OBA, for which they will get a registration card and OBA crest. Only registered umpires may be used for OBA playoff games.

Once a protest has been dealt with by the OBA or a committee delegated to act in such matters by the OBA, the ruling handed down must be considered final.

CERTIFICATE CHARGES

It was felt that through the lack of a senior ball series more than $1,000 in needed revenue was lost.

Players in all parties must sign OBA certificates and the tax on senior and intermediate playing certificates was set at $1 each; junior, 50 cents each; all minor from juvenile down playing certificates, 10 cents. Lost single certificate duplicates, 50 cents each; lost complete team certificates, $5 a team.

Classification of leagues of clubs was changed to read: "Leagues and teams are classified by population and ages: Pee-Wee A, B, C, D, age 13 before May 1; bantam A, B, C, D, 15 before May 1; Midget A B, C, D, 17 before May 1; juvenile A B C, D 19 before May 1 and junior 21 before May 1.

CIAU Rejects Football Schedule But Loop Will Operate Anyway

TORONTO (CP)—The board of governors of the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union has rejected the four-team intercollegiate football schedule for 1954, but a four-team schedule will operate just the same.

At a meeting here Saturday, the CIAU said it will not recognize the schedule involving University of Toronto, University of Western Ontario at London, McGill University at Montreal, and Queen's University, Kingston, because Hamilton's McMaster University was excluded.

McMaster, which competed in the league last season, was recently voted out by the other colleges. McGill was the sole dissenter to the majority vote.

The four-team college loop will continue to operate as in the past, but without the CIAU blessing. J.O. Loosemore, CIAU secretary, said at the meeting Saturday that members of the winning team will not be awarded CIAU crests. It is also considered likely that the CIAU's Yates Cup will not be presented to the winner.

Ivor Wynne, McMaster's athletic director, said the CIAU decision means McMaster has won a moral victory and that the college's chief aim had been to establish a principle.

"We knew weeks ago we wouldn't be in the league," he said "but it was the principle that worried us.

NOT WORRIED

Warren Stevens, director of athletics at the University of Toronto, wasn't worried that the Yates Cup might be removed from competition.

"It won't make any difference to us," he said. "Trophies aren't that important. We're simply going to play the people we want to play."

Frank Tindall, coach of Queen's Golden Gaels was happy about another CIAU decision, Saturday—to increase the maximum number of players on a football squad to 26 from 24.

"I'm glad to hear it," he said. "We use more than 24 players in a practice and it's tough on some boys to be left out of a game after practising as hard as the others."

MAY BE ELIGIBLE

The CIAU also ruled the students who have participated in professional sports may be eligible for intercollegiate football after a lapse of one year.

The union decided men with professional ranking in one sport can take part in other amateur sports if they so desire.

The governors also decided to restrict the term of office of executive committee members to a maximum of six years. They will be eligible for re-election to the committee three years after the end of their six-year terms.

Remember When—

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

James J. Braddock gained recognition as the leading heavyweight contender by defeating Art Lasky in 15 rounds, 19 years ago tonight. A few weeks later Braddock won the world title by winning an upset decision over Max Baer in a 15-rounder at New York. Braddock was champion for two years until he was knocked out by Joe Louis.

Dr. D. A. McLarty of the University of Western Ontario was elected president for 1954-55, and Dr. J. B. Kirkpatrick of McGill, vice-president.

Lindsay Muskies Even Puck Series

LINDSAY (ENS) — Lindsay Muskies outfought the Parry Sound Shamrocks for a 3-1 win here on Saturday night to tie their OHA intermediate quarter-final series at a game each. Parry Sound won the opener 7-5 last week. The Muskies started slowly against the Shamrocks, falling behind 1-0 in the first frame but they came back with two goals in the second period and added the clincher in the third as they gradually outclassed the visitors. Al Abbott opened the scoring in the first period, grabbing a bouncing puck in front of O'Connell with the Muskies short-handed to give the visitors the lead for the only time in the game. The Muskies couldn't solve the net-minding of Dagenais. In the second, Captain Stu Hicks took only 30 seconds to tie the score for the Muskies, cutting around the Shamrock defence and outguessing Dagenais cleanly. Orlie Crawford added the winners' goal when he slapped Parker's pass past the Shamrock net-minder to end the scoring.

The Muskies continued to miss a good many clear chances as they controlled play for almost 80 per cent of the period. The home club's margin of play was even more noticeable in the third, but Bob Lewis' first goal since leaving the team due to ill health in mid-season was the only tally they could register, coming with the visitors short-handed. Both goal tenders, O'Connell for the winners and Dagenais for Parry Sound were great, with Dagenais handling by far the most shot of the two.

TCS Captures Squash Championship

TORONTO (CP)—Trinity College of Port Hope won the little Big Four squash championship Saturday winning eight of 10 games against teams from Ridley College of St. Catharines and Upper Canada College, Toronto.

Ridley came second, winning seven games. Upper Canada failed to win a match.

The championship was decided in the final game of the tournament when Tony Brewer of Trinity defeated Witold Weynerowski of Ridley 15-13, 9-15, 15-12, 18-16.

Tiger-Cats In Finals For Volleyball Title

Roy Westropp's Tiger-Cats battled their way through YMCA round-robin volleyball semi-finals against Barney Dundas' Eskimos. The best-of-five finals will be staged next Saturday afternoon at the YM for the Lillico Trophy, following preliminary play in the consolations by the losers. The competitions will be followed by a victory banquet.

In the semi-finals, Howard David's Argos defeated the Lloyd Ash Bombers by scores of 15-13 and 15-9. Tiger-Cats then downed Argos 15-13 and 15-11. The Ti-Cats also trimmed Bombers 15-1 and 16-6 to capture the semi-final set and earn the right to meet the Eskimos for league honors and the trophy.

Yesterday's Stars

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gordie Howe, Detroit, who ended the National Hockey League season the loop's top points-getter with 82, by scoring one goal and assisting in two others Sunday.

Maurice Richard, Montreal, who finished top goal-getter with a goal Sunday to make his total 37.

Paul Masnick and Paul Meger, Montreal, who scored one goal each in the same game when Canadiens downed New York 3-1 to clinch second place in the league standings.

Jack Evans, New York, who scored two goals Saturday to pace the Rangers to a 5-2 win over Toronto Maple Leafs.

Local Shamrocks Get Semi-Final Against Kingston

Peterborough Shamrocks, sponsored by the Police Athletic Association here, moved into Ontario Minor Hockey Association midget "A" finals Saturday in Kingston by beating the All-Stars of that city by 4-2. Having won 11-2 here last Thursday, Pat Doherty's hustling young squad took the round by a 15-4 count. They now await the winners of Sarnia and Toronto Marlboros to go into Ontario finals. The Shamrocks last year won the Ontario bantam "A" title moving up to midget ranks this season.

Coach Doherty—who has Dave Hayes as club manager—advised his charges to play a defensive game on the large Limestone City surface and protect their healthy lead from the first semi-final play-off. The boys did this well to stave off continuous drives by the All-Stars, who played much better hockey at home than they showed here.

A GOOD GOALIE

Goalie Terry Welsh came up with some dandy net-minding in the Shamrocks' cage to hold off the Kingston huskies, and his defence and back-checking forwards gave him good protection in every period. It was a speedy and rather rugged affair, with 16 penalties meted out by two Belleville referees, eight going to each team. Kingston players kicked often at the refereeing—as they had done aginst Lindsay arbiters here in the first game—and they drew five of the six misconduct sentences given.

Along with Welsh in goal, Bill Forestell and Gary Darling were individual stars for the winners. Forestell was strong defensively all the way, and Darling once more came up with an excellent two-way display of fast, smart hockey. The rest of the classy crew worked well, too, and Kingston gave them a real battle with a hustling attack from the start.

SCORED FIRST

Pete Heffernan scored first for Shamrocks on a pass from McCarthy in the first period to give the visiting team a 12-2 lead on the round. However, the period score was tied shortly when Sanderson slapped the rubber into the Peterborough twine on a solo thrust. A bit later, Chris Heffernan counted another nice one with Jim McCarthy (who was dangerous throughout on attack) setting up the play.

The only goal of the second period was by Kingston, Ibey tallying on a play with hard-working Sanderson. Shamrocks drove back to get two in the third, Pat Baker again shining with two nifty efforts in close, aided on the first by Darling and later by Bill Mahoney. The homesters fought fiercely in the third frame but were beaten on the game and soundly trimmed on the home-and-home series. Teams:

Shamrocks: Goal, Welsh; defence, Riel and Forestell; centre, Haig wings, Darling and Baker; alts., Mahoney, Armstrong, Daley, P. Heffernan, McCarthy, Pace, Stewart, C. Heffernan, P. Baker and R. Baker.

Kingston: Goal, O'Neil; defence, Decca and St. Remy; centre, Wilson; wings, Hagerty and Sanderson; alts., Brooks Frawley, Reynolds, Turner, Stephenson, MacPhail, Walton, Ibey and Kisk.

Referees, Mulholland and Williams of Belleville.

St. John's Win Peewee Title Of Church Loop

St. John's yanked out a 2-1 victory over George St. on Saturday at Civic Arena to capture the peewee championship of the Church Hockey League by two games to one. All Saints had earlier won the bantam title, and Mark St. took midget honors this year.

Wayne Milburn scored in the first frame for George St., G. Dalliday tied it up in the second, and he helped on Lewis' winning goal in the third. The losers drew the only two penalties of a fine playoff tussle. Teams:

St. John's: Goal, McDonald; defence, Welsh, R. Parker; centre, Sedgewick; wings, Willison, Lewis; alternates, Henwood, Dalliday, Ross, Cunningham, Gunn, Muir, Gardner, J. Parker, Cotton.

George St.: Goal, Walsh; defence, Delahaye, Philp; centre, Milburn; wings, Black, Nelson; alternates, G. Rowley, P. Rowley, Newell; Murphy, Gatfield, Hancock, Jones, Drain.

Referees [illegible] Lost and L. Wilson.

WON TROPHIES

The following Church League players received trophies for outstanding play in the schedule, the cups being given by Canada Packers: Peewees, Harry Walsh of George St.; bantam—Bob Gatfield of All Saints; midget—Lester Scharf of Park St. The Fraser Wade Trophy for the most sportsmanlike player went to Eddie Warner of St. George's midgets.

The league executive is grateful to all who helped make it a succesful year, including Max Wilson, Vimy York, Herb Warr, Harry Walsh, Ed Smith, Joe Whetung, Ernie Bell, Barry Heard, Jack Drummond, Darrell Willshaw, etc. Also to referees Bill Post, Ed Woodcock, Bill Flint, Jack Hawthorne, Len Williams and Rock Batley.

Elect Russell OBA President

CHATHAM (CP) — Clarence G. Russell of Milton was elected president of the Ontario Baseball Association Saturday.

He succeeds Archie Stirling, Chatham, who resigned. Riddell was chosen ahead of Otto Manske, Waterloo, president of the Intercounty Baseball Association.

Tim Turow of Preston was named first vice-president by acclamation. Jack Craig, Port Dover and James Millman, London, were elected second and third vice-presidents.

Elected to the executive council for 1954 were John Bell, Listowel, John Leaske, Fort Erie, Pete McMullen, Milton, and Albert Walker, Oshawa.

Bomber Pilot Treatment May Aid Blindness

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Eye treatment for bomber pilots injured in the Second World War has unexpectedly opened the way to a possible cure from some types of blindness.

Dr. William Stone Jr., of Boston, says the break came when pilots, with tiny pieces of shattered cockpit hood imbedded in their eyes, showed little or no reaction to the foreign particles over long periods of time.

This already has lead to an apparently successful technique for implanting plastic corneas in the eyes of rabbits. Dr. Stone says the objective now is to perfect the technique for human use. He expects it will be at least three years before a trial is made on humans.

The cornea is the normally transparent covering of the iris and pupil of the eye. Many people are partially or completely blind because their corneas have become "scarred" by disease or injury.

Some 25 per cent of these people theoretically can be helped by an already established surgical operation in which healthy human corneal tissue is grafted onto diseased or injured eyes. A number of people, including some convicts, have made provision that their eyes be consigned after death to "eye banks" for that purpose.

But this operation is unsuccessful in many cases because sometimes the transplant becomes clouded over or is invaded by ingrowing blood vessels.

Medical researchers had considered using a transparent, artificial material which would not cloud or be subject to invasion by blood vessels. But they feared any "foreign" material incompletely covered by tissue might be harmful. Eventually, they ruled out.

The experience of the dive bomber pilots showed, however, that that was not always the case.

"Dive Bombers were frequently damaged so badly that their plastic cupolas shattered, imbedding many minute particles in the eyes of the unfortunate pilots," said Dr. Stone in a report on record with the office of naval research.

"In several cases the particles were so small and so numerous that removing all of them would have meant removing practically the entire cornea. Many of them were therefore left in place and, strangely enough, they produced little or no reaction."

Working with researcher Elizabeth Herbert and other associates at the Massachusetts eye and ear infirmary in Boston, Dr. Stone developed button-shaped plastic discs for the eyes of rabbits. Eventually, the scientists developed the following technique:

First, the rabbit's cornea was split into two layers by means of an incision made at its edge. Then the plastic disc was slipped between the two layers—much as a slice of ham is slipped btween two pieces of bread—and the delicate incision was sewed up.

The researchers left everything intact for a time to allow tissue to grow into small holes provided on the edge of the disc, so it would be held firmly in place.

Eventually, they cut away the front layer of the rabbit's cornea, leaving the plastic "cornea" exposed.

"Thus," reported Dr. Stone, "a 'window' of clear plastic was provided in the cloudy area, out of which the rabbit could see."

In reports in the American Journal of Ophthalmology, Dr. Stone said some rabbits have sported such plastic "corneas" for as long as two years with little or no the technique on humans, apparent adverse effect.

Tests with monkeys, in addition to the rabbits, are on schedule before any attempt is made to try

Soviet Warns Against Military Pacts

Would Be Taken As Hostile Move Against Reds

CAIRO (Reuters) — Russia today informed Egypt and other Arab countries that it could consider conclusion of any western-sponsored Middle East military pact "an unfriendly and even hostile act" directed against her, it was learned tonight.

The new Soviet ambassador to Egypt, Daniel Solod, repeated in an interview with Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzy the Kremlin attitude towards Middle East defence pacts.

Russia first informed Egypt and the Arab countries that she was opposed to Middle East defence pacts in 1951, when Britain, the United States, France and Turkey proposed a Middle East defence command.

The Soviet envoys in the Arab capitals have since pressed the Kremlin viewpoint every time the Arab countries have been near concluding defence pacts with the Western powers.

Monday night Egypt announced she would resist the Western policy of bilateral pacts with the Arab countries until the Suez canal dispute has been settled.

Slackening Business Is Blamed

Shipping Official's Gloomy Outlook For Coming Season

MONTREAL (CP) — Only half Canada's 225-ship inland fleet will be operating when navigation opens on the Great Lakes April 19, a lakes shipping company official said today.

The official added that the forthcoming season may wind up 'the worst on record" if there is not a sharp improvement in business conditions, especially the movement of vast quantities of stored grain.

In the Commons Monday Trade Minister Howe said there is no cause for "undue apprehension" because grain movements at Montreal have reached a standstill. Mr. Howe said in reply to questions, that full elevators during the winter months are a "normal" situation.

The shipping official said between 650,000,000 and 700,000,000 bushels of grain are at present in elevators and ships' holds at Great Lakes ports, awaiting buyers.

LOSSES ON GRAIN

However shipments of coal, ore, newsprint and pulpwood should be normal this year and would help operators through the initial crisis. These freight movements would not cut the losses of a lack of grain movement.

"All movements of freight are dependent on another movement and if we take one item of freight up to the Lakehead we usually count on bringing grain back," he said.

"This season we can expect to lose on the return journey."

The official said operators hope "things may perk up" after the first month of the season. "By that time there should be a good flow of freight from overseas for transhipment as well as other seasonal cargoes."

Fall in cargo is expected to increase representations by lake shipowners for some restriction on inter-port traffic by foreign ships.

Canadian owners claim movements of British, Dutch, German and French ships between lake ports will force many Canadian flag-vessels off the route.

Fishy Business!

HALIFAX — (CP) — Fish prices and shipping are interfering with transcription of debates in the Nova Scotia legislature. Earl Urquhart (L — Richmond) told the Legislature Monday that the House secretaries are finding it difficult to work from the recordings which often have bits of broadcast fish prices and harbor mesages—freak receptions picked up by the recording equipment.

By-Election Vote Shows No Change In Political Choices

OTTAWA (CP)—Voters in four federal constituencies have reaffirmed the political choices made in the general election seven months ago. By-elections Monday returned Progressive Conservatives in the Ontario ridings of Peel and Elgin; Liberals in Verdun and Gatineau in Quebec.

Yves Leduc, a Montreal lawyer, held Verdun for the Liberals in a seven-man contest. He succeeds Paul Emile Cote, former parliamentary assistant for labor, who was appointed to the Quebec bench.

Paul Emile Cote, former parliamentary assistant for labor, who was appointed to the Quebec bench.

Dr. Rodolphe Leduc, a dentist, defeated three other candidates in [illegible] ways has remained [illegible] former member, J. C. Nadon, died last December.

SUCCEEDS GRAYDON

John Pallett, 33-year-old lawyer, held Peel, which has elected Conservatives since 1900. He won by a wider margin than his predecessor, Gordon Graydon, despite a smaller turnout of voters. Mr. Graydon, member since 1935, died last September.

James - McBain, 42 - year - old farmer and former Elgin county warden, retained Elgin for the Progressive Conservatives in a straight two-party fight. He succeeds C. D. Coyle, member since 1945, who died in January.

Standing in the 265-seat Commons: Liberals 173; Progressive Conservatives 51; CCF 23; Social Credit 15; Independents 3.

Commenting on the results Monday night, Prime Minister St. Laurent said he is "gratified" with the two Quebec by-elections and "not surprised" at the results in Ontario.

GREAT ADDITION

Opposition Leader Drew said the new members from Peel and Elgin "will be a great addition to the strength of our party in the House." His party's candidates in the Quebec contests had waged good campaigns and maintained party organization in preparation for the next general election.

When counting ended Monday in Verdun, Mr. Leduc had a lead of 1,778 votes over his Progressive Conservative opponent on the basis of returns from 145 of 213 polls.

At that point, the count was: Mr. Leduc, 5,525; Armand Dupuis, PC, 3,747; Roland Gadbois, Independent Liberal, 3,123; William Dodge, CCF, 1,818; Herve Ferland, Liberal-Labor, 1,660; J. M. Hayes, Independent Liberal, 881; Ken Perry, Labor-Progressive, 155.

The final returns in Gatineau: Dr. Leduc, 6,678; Ernest A. St. Jean, PC, 2,615; Marcel Bonnier, Independent, 781; Roger Boucher, CCF, 699.

In Peel, 140 of 141 polls gave Mr. Pallett a lead of 4,791 votes over his Liberal opponent, A. J. C. O'Marra. The count at that point; Mr. Pallett, 13,637; Mr. O'Marra, 8,846; Lloyd Gane, CCF, 2,008.

In Elgin, Mr. McBain had a majority of 1,242 with 11,870 votes against 10,628 for Mr. Rodney.

Natural Causes Not Evident In Bell's Death

BELLEVILLE (CP) — Dr. Hans [illegible] pathologist, said today [illegible] examination showed no natural cause of the death of 52-year-old Percy Bell, whose wife has been charged with murder.

Testifying at the second day of the preliminary hearing of 48-year-old Mrs. Bell on the murder charge, Dr. Luckie said he examined Bell's body after the death Jan. 2 and found no signs of disease.

The arteries of Bell's heart were in good condition, as were his lungs, the doctor said. There were no signs of brain or lung haemorrhage.

"The body of Mr. Bell appeared that of a man in very good health," said Dr. Luckie.

Questioned by Alex Hall, special crown prosecutor, Dr. Luckie described the symptoms of strychnine poisoning.

"Is vomiting a symptom?"

"Not a specific one, but it may occur."

HAD CONVULSIONS

Dr. Reginald Anderson of Belleville testified Monday he was called to the Bell home early Jan. 2 and saw Bell in convulsions and vomiting a brown fluid in which there appeared to be slight traces of blood. He said Bell died less than 20 minutes after his arrival.

Nehru Expresses Belief Of Future Peace.

NEW DELHI (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru today said he believes [illegible] there is "less chance of war now than a year or two ago," but feels a peaceful future is no certainty.

He opened foreign affairs debate in the Lower House of India's Parliament with an expression of hope that the forthcoming Geneva conference on Korea and Indo-China will produce an easing of international tensions.

However, he said India—which hasn't been invited—has "no desire whatever to appear or participate in these conferences."

Nehru described as "a good step" the decision to have Red China represented at Geneva, as "it is far better to have governments face each other on their problems."

Without mentioning the United States specifically, he said non-recognition of Red China has brought about "an unrealistic situation" making negotiations difficult.

OPPOSES PAKISTAN AID

Nehru reiterated that American proposals to give military aid to Pakistan, India's Moslem neighbor, have brought "a climate of war" to the area.

After expressing the belief that there is less chance of a world war now, he said peace is no certainty and that the world situation is one in which any crisis could "set off a chain reaction toward war."

Any war between the great powers—if they followed the Korean and Indo-Chinese patterns — was likely "to go on indefinitely, with no one to end it."

Japanese Spurn American Offer

TOKYO (Reuters) — Japanese scientists today spurned American offers of aid in the treatment of 23 Japanese fishermen affected by radioactive ash from the United States hydrogen bomb test at Bikini atoll March 1.

Dr. Masao Tsuzuki and other scientists charged that American scientists are only interested in the fishermen because they want to gather information "for their own purposes."

They flatly opposed a Japanese foreign ministry proposal that American and Japanese doctors form a joint research team.

An American embassy spokesman announced meantime that Prof. Merril Eisenbud, director of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission's health and safety division, arrived Monday night for "an indefinite period" to help Tsuzuki's team in any way he can.

Condition of the 23 crew members of the fishing boat remained unchanged.

Frost Promises No Snap Election

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram says today Premier Frost of Ontario has given private assurances he will not call a snap election on the highways department issue.

Its newspage story says there has been talk of an imminent election, possibly as early as June.

"But the official government viewpoint now appears to be that no election should be held until the select committee slated to investigate the highways department has a chance to report a year from now."

After reports of irregularities in highway construction contracts in the Fort William district early this year, charges were laid against five highway department employees in that district. The charges now are before the courts.

Canada's Imports Exceed Exports

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's exports, which dropped sharply in January, recovered in February. But as in the previous month, Canada continued to import more than she exported.

Exports edged ahead fractionally to $279,800,000 in February from $279,600,000 a year ago, pushing the January-February total to $545,200,000, the bureau of statistics reported today.

This, however, was down by about $55,000,000 from $600,900,000 in the similar 1953 period. The drop was caused by the January decline.

Imports decreased during February for the second consecutive month, with Canada's purchases slipping to $300,300,000 from $310,100,000 in February last year. January-February imports totalled $582,200,000, down from $637,800,000 in the similar 1953 period.

With Canada importing more than she exported, the country had a deficit of $20,500,000 during that month, down from $30,500,000 last year. The two-month deficit of $37,000,000 was virtually unchanged from the $36,900,000 deficit a year ago.

Wren Proposes Commission Watch Highway Procedure

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Albert Wren, Liberal-Labor member of the legislature for Kenora, Monday night proposed formation of an Ontario highways commission to make sure that "irregularities" in the provincial highways department do not occur again.

"We must share the full responsibility of seeking out and removing the policies, or lack of them, which allow these irregularities to result," he told a Liberal rally in suburban Tecumseh.

The highways commission proposed by Mr. Wren would comprise three members: A "leading professional engineer" with at least 20 years' experience as chairman; the provincial highways minister as vice-chairman and a member of the official opposition.

PROPOSES COMMITTEE

The Liberal member would set up an "advisory committee" comprising representatives of municipal organizations, highway associations, highway users, labor and industry.

Those responsible for the situation leading to the present provincial highways probe, he declared, are the government policy-makers.

He said: "I'm going to see that these policies are corrected not just for the present but for many years to come."

Earlier he said in an interview that lack of pre-engineering on highway projects since 1949 may have cost Ontario taxpayers $17,000,000.

"Over five years of handling highway contracts the difference between amounts bid by contracting firms and the amounts actually finalized and paid by the province would amount to several millions and might reach $17,000,000," he said.

North America Prepares For Mock Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — A continental civil defence exercise, featuring mock atomic attacks on 42 selected critical target areas, was announced today for June 14-15 by the United States civil defence administration.

"Operation Alert," designed to disclose weaknesses and improve efficiency of civil defence organizations at all levels, will involve all 48 states, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, Alaska and the 10 provinces of Canada.

For purposes of the test it will be assumed that aircraft carrying atomic weapons will attack the continental U. S. and Alaska, and that guided missiles with atomic warheads will be launched from submarines off Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

CIVIL DEFENCE

At Ottawa, civil defence officials reported that aircraft will test the civil defence organizations in Vancouver, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Toronto, Windsor, Fort Erie, Ont., Montreal and Halifax.

To cope with the "heavy damage and casualties" expected in the mock attack, a Canadian federal emergency operations control centre will be set up near Ottawa. Incidents of sabotage, biological and chemical warfare may also be encountered during the trial.

Civil defence authorities stressed that the exercise is a routine test and is not occasioned by any increase of alarm over the international situation. The test will permit border cities such as Vancouver, Windsor and Fort Erie to work out co-operative measures with nearby United States communities.

Harvard Professor Says U.S. Schools Bad

TORONTO (CP) — Prof. Clive Perry, professor of public international law at Harvard University, said Monday night high schools and universities in the United States are "very bad."

"In Canada, I suspect the schools must be indifferent," he said in a talk to the University of Toronto law school. He said systems of legal education in England and North America are equally wasteful of time.

"In England, the schools are really very good, but . . . they are too few."

U.S. Britain Agreed On Use Of A-Bomb

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Churchill told the Commons today that "smooth and friendly arrangements" exist for consultation with the United States government about the use of atomic bombs.

Labor members had questioned him about machinery for consultation about their use in the event of war involving both countries.

Three Men Fail To Qualify For Nomination

Another nomination meeting will have to be held in North Monaghan township to get a fourth councillor, replacing Roy A. Locke. Mr. Locke resigned from council as he is moving out of the district.

Three men were nominated on Monday night but Bruce Johnston, clerk and returning officer, refused to accept them.

The meeting in the county council chamber was called for 7.30 p.m. Nominations closed at 8.30 p.m.

For the first half hour Mr. Johnston sat there by himself, occasionally exchanging pleasantries with the janitor. Finally, as the nomination period entered its last half hour, a dozen ratepayers drifted in.

Talk centred on assessment, taxes, schools and provincial government grants. With about 10 minutes to go Joseph J. Behan was nominated. Mr. Johnston pointed out that Mr. Behan would first to have to resign from the separate school board. So he was out.

DEFEATED AS REEVE

Walter Brown, unsuccessful candidate for reeve at the last election, was nominated by Clarence and Elwood Johnston; but an objection was raised on the grounds that Mr. Brown was absent and he had not given his written consent to stand. So he was out.

Norman Gainer was then nominated and it looked as though he would go in by acclamation, but the Johnston brothers (whose nominee Brown had previously been challenged) pointed out that the time was 8.32 p.m. Two min-

Order Dick Haymes To Be Deported

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Crooner Dick Haymes, accused of illegally re-entering the United States after a visit with Rita Hayworth in Honolulu last year, today was ordered deported to his native Argentina.

District director H. R. Landon of the U.S. immigration and naturalization service announced:

"This order is final and a deportation warrant will be issued forthwith.

"However, the order is appealable within 15 days to the board of immigration appeals in Washington, D.C., in which event deportation will be stayed pending disposition of such appeal."

Sight Crashed Plane

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters) — Wreckage of an RAF Lincoln bomber, lost after a night raid on Mau Mau terrorist hide-outs, was sighted today on the thickly forested Ruathia ridge in the Fort Hall reserve.

There was no report of any sign of life near the wrecked plane, which had a crew of five.

Will Get Opportunity To Repeat Statements

TORONTO (CP) — Rev. D. McMaster Kerr, member of the legislature for Toronto Dovercourt who said last week that trade unions should rid themselves of their "parasitic" paid organizers, will be offered a chance to repeat his statements before the Toronto and Lakeshore Labor Council (CIO-CCL), council was told Monday night.

"We can assure him of a safe passage in and out," said Herbert Gargrave, chairman of the labor body's political action committee.

Mr. Kerr said in the legislature that "It's time the trade unions cleaned out their nests of the parasites . . . the paid employees whose only jobs are as agitators such as in the strikes in northern Ontario."

Find New Clue In Murder Case

TORONTO (CP) — A new clue has turned up in the slaying of Fern Henkell of Woodstock.

Chief inspector W. J. Franks of the Provincial Police said today they are looking for the driver of an old-model red tractor-trailer who picked up the girl at a traffic circle outside Hamilton the day before her half-naked, bludgeoned body was found in a ditch 15 miles east of Windsor.

The slain girl was found by a Michigan man on March 14.

The truck has been traced to the Brantford area and police are checking every trucking firm in that area.

Masked Gunmen Escape After Robbery

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Three masked gunmen held up a 71-year-old night watchman and trussed him with ropes while they cracked open a safe and escaped with a small amount of money Monday night from the offices of Windsor Textiles, Limited.

The watchman, Nick Hucaluk, freed himself and called police as the three escaped through a side door.

Not Supporting Red Recognition

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent says he knows of no consideration being given at this time by Canada to recognition of Communist China or support of the regime of Mao Tse-Tung for membership in the United Nations.

The prime minister made the statement Monday in the Commons in reply to a question asked by Opposition Leader Drew.

Mr. Drew asked the prime minister to comment on press reports that the government is seriously considering recognizing Red China and supporting the Chinese Communist government for UN membership.

"I don't think there is any justification for the suggestion implied in the honorable member's question," Mr. St. Laurent said. He added that he knows of no consideration being given to the two matters.

United States Warns Police Officials Keep Watch For A-Weapon Smugglers

WASHINGTON (AP)—The justice department today made public a circular sent to all U. S. law enforcement officials by FBI director J. Edgar Hoover, requesting an alert against the possible smuggling of small atomic weapons into the United States by enemy agents.

The department said the letter was distributed in January. It followed a Dec. 15 statement by President Eisenhower in which he asked police officers at every level to report promptly to the FBI all information relating to violations of the Atomic Energy Act.

To assist local police in recognizing atomic weapons which might be carried by an individual, Hoover gave a description of what such devices are likely to look like. He conceded at the same time that it would be impossible to describe exactly what form a foreign atomic bomb might take.

INDIVIDUAL LAW

The FBI director emphasized that individual law enforcement officers should not attempt to dismantle such devices after discovering them. He said the National Security Council has set up explosive ordnance disposal units operating under the army to disarm any illicit atomic weapon coming to the attention of police.

Hoover said in his notice that it was necessary that police generally have some basic information on the possible designs of smuggled atomic weapons. For this purpose, he explained:

"Atomic explosions result when (1) certain amounts of fissionable material in two pieces or more are brought quickly together to form one piece of such material and when (2) a certain amount of fissionable material is quickly made more dense by squeezing it together. The important thing about each of these methods is that masses of fissionable material must be placed into rapid motion. We know that high explosives are capable of giving any material such necessary rapid motion.

GUN BARREL DEVICE

"In the first case we would look for some kind of a gun barrel device using high explosive to blow one piece of fissionable material from the breech end of the gun down through the barrel into another piece of fissionable material firmly anchored in the muzzle end of the gun.

"In the second case, we would look for a device using high explosives to squeeze fissionable material."

He noted that the latter device would involve the principle of "implosion"—a bursting inward as contrasted with the bursting outward of an explosion.

The letter called attention to the fact that the fissionable material is either uranium or plutonium, which weigh half again as much as lead. He said 50 pounds of such materials, in spherical shape, would be about the size of a soft ball. He added:

MANY SHAPES

"Since both of these materials can be coated with other metals or plastics and can be machined into all sorts of shapes, we should be especially alert regarding any article that is extremely heavy for its size. Pieces which might be smuggled would probably be of a size that could be carried on the person.

"The gun barrel type device will probably be made of steel. The diameter of the bore of such a gun barrel would probably not be less than 2 inches or more than 10 inches.

"It is possible of course that the gun tube and the two breech blocks may be carried as three separate pieces."

Political "Fish" Bites Back In British Parliament

By ALVIN STEINKOPF

LONDON (AP) — One member of Parliament called another member a rare fish Monday night, and for a few bright minutes scales flew.

Everything started when Sir Hartley Shawcross, attorney - general and president of the Board of Trade in the former Labor government, arose to make his first important speech in some time. A busy lawyer, he is not heard in Parliament often these days.

Up jumped Conservative Sir Walter Fletcher and remarked:

"Sir Hartley is the coelacanth of the Labor party, a fish which was supposed to be extinct."

The coelacanth was the sea creature with "hands" and "feet" caught off Madagascar in 1952. Scientists had believed previously that the species had died out about 70,000,000 years ago.

Shawcross didn't mind being called that kind of a fish.

"The coelacanth is a remarkable fish possessing at least four notable characteristics," he retorted.

"It is of long life and great endurance.

"It never deserts its home.

"Unlike the political minnows who drift and paddle in more stagnant waters, it never speaks unless it has something to say.

"And it has a sting in its tail which it uses not with wasteful progidality, but when occasion requires."

Drew Accuses Gov't Of Abusing Emergency Powers

OTTAWA (CP)—The government says it has not decided formally what to do about its emergency powers. The Emergency Powers Act lapses May 31 and Prime Minister St. Laurent said Monday the government has made no formal decision on whether to ask for its extension. One reason was that the Geneva conference next month on Korea and Indo-China may ease world tension enough to allow the government to do without special powers.

Mr. St. Laurent spoke on a motion by Opposition Leader Drew. The motion described as "repugnant" to Parliament the powers granted the government under the act to do as it sees fit to meet an emergency. The act was passed in 1951 and renewed by Parliament last year for another 12 months.

Mr. Drew's motion was supported by CCF and Social Credit members.

ABUSE OF POWER

He said an "outrageous" example of abuse of power occurred last year when, while Parliament was debating changes to shipping laws, the government, by order-in-council under the act, banned trade with China by Canadian ships. This step should have been taken as a change in the shipping laws so Parliament could debate it.

He urged support of his motion to reaffirm the supremacy of Parliament and the right of people to know in advance what laws affecting them were to be passed.

Mr. St. Laurent described the motion as an attempt by the opposition to decide government business. He decided the Geneva conference might bring an easing of the tension which had engendered the emergency powers.

NOT USED LAST YEAR

The Emergency Powers Act had not been used during the last year and the government would be happy if it does not need to use them. But it hadn't been decided whether to let the power lapse.

That question need not be decided until shortly before the date —May 31.

CCF leader Coldwell said the emergency conditions for which the government required the powers no longer exists. The act was inconsistent with responsible parliamentary government.

Social Credit leader Lowe said the act should not be kept in force if the powers are not used and the government cannot show valid reason for retaining them.

Fight Breaks Out Among Dockers

NEW YORK (AP) — Fights broke out again today between members of rival longshoremen's unions in the face of a plea by Mayor Robert F. Wagner that dock workers end their paralyzing port tieup, now in its 19th day.

The clashes were in Brooklyn, where violence erupted last week and led the mayor to order stiff police reinforcements to guard the piers.

Shortly after daytime operations began at the Bull Steamship Line piers at 19th and 20th streets, there was a skirmish between striking and non-striking union men.

Police quickly quieted the outbreak, with nobody arrested and no one hurt.

A short while later police reported that a "battle royal" had broken out. Some arrests were reported.

A plea Monday night by the mayor for a general return to work was virtually ignored on New York piers, early surveys indicated.

Housewife Burned As Stove Explodes

SIMOE (CP) — Mrs. Tracy Gregoire, about 25, was badly burned and cut today when a stove exploded in her house, shattering window glass and starting a fire.

Mrs. Gregoire's two-year-old son, Joey, was also burned and cut. With serious burns about the back and chest, Mrs. Gregoire staggered to the nearby home of her father to call firemen and an ambulance.

Mexican Gold Market Prices Increase

MEXICO CITY (AP)—A flurry of buying here Monday drove the price of gold up on one of the world's few gold markets.

The price went from $34.25 to $34.50 during the day, but dropped back to its original quotation before the market closed. Bankers said rumors from an undetermined source that the U. S. might increase its price for gold had caused the buying wave which drove prices up.

as Belleville undertaker George Rutledge testified there were vomit stains on the walls four feet above Bell's bed and it looked as if the engineer had "died in real agony."

Dr. Anderson said he was called to the Bell home about 3 a.m. Mrs. Bell met him and said her husband was very sick and that she had been trying to get a doctor since midnight.

The doctor said he found Mr. Bell in bed, groaning and saying "I feel awful." Bell had scratches on his chest "as if he had clawed himself in distress." A man at the bedside told him Bell had taken several fits.

Dr. Anderson testified that while he was in the kitchen preparing a hypodermic he was called to the bedside. Bell had vomited explosively over the clothes and over side of the wall by the bed.

"His eyeballs bulged and he died," the doctor said. He added there were only two or three things that could kill a man like that.

"It was certainly not his heart. It continued to beat two or three minutes after respiration ceased. I thought he had ruptured some important blood vessel in his brain."

The doctor said the symptoms immediately before death were "classic" and a "textbook picture" of death from strychnine.

He said he put down cerebral haemorrhage as the cause of Bell's death on the death certificate "with my tongue in my cheek." He said he thought Bell had died of an aneurism (a swelling of the arteries) "but I had no reason to suppose it was very important."

Prepared To Resume Suez Negotiations

CAIRO (AP) — President Mohamed Naguib today said Egypt is prepared to resume negotiations with Britain on the Suez canal base "only if Britain admits our rights without question."

The president was commenting on Foreign Secretary Eden's statement in the House of Commons in London Monday. Eden said violence in the Suez canal area has created a difficult atmosphere for the resumption of talks between Britain and Egypt. Egypt wants the 80,000-man British garrison withdrawn.

Naguib said martial law in Egypt will be lifted "on June 18 or before." Martial law was established after Cairo's fire riots of Jan. 26, 1952.

Living Costs Higher Last Part Of 1953

OTTAWA (CP) — The average family in five major Canadian cities spent $6.83 a week on food for each family member in the last half of 1953, up slightly from $6.78 in the first half.

Families surveyed were those in the metropolitan areas of Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver, the bureau of statistics reported Monday.

Spending on fresh fruits, eggs and bakery products rose while spending on meat, cereal products and dairy products declined.

Britain Begins New Drive Against Reds

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Britain has embarked on an anti-Red drive in a third Caribbean colony after seizing documents in lightning raids Monday on two left-wing centres in this West Indies island capital.

Following crack-downs on alleged pro-Communists in British Guiana and British Honduras on the American continental mainland, authorities swooped down here on the home of a Jamaican labor leader, Ferdinand Christofer Smith, who is assistant secretary of the Communist - dominated World Federation of Trade Unions, and on the offices of the left-wing People's Educational Organization.

Police said documents they seized in Smith's home identified Communist organizers and fellow-travellers in Jamaica. The files and papers taken in the raid on the educational organization were said by police to have been of a type banned by law as undesirable.

Announcements of the raids did not indicate that any action had been taken against Smith or the leaders of the educational organization. Smith, president of the Red-tinged Jamaica Federation of Trade Unions, was purged in 1948 as a leader in the United States of the CIO National Maritime Union on the grounds of Communist activities.

He was permitted to leave the U.S. "voluntarily" in 1951 to avoid deportation on charges of subversion and being an undesirable alien, and cannot return.

Colonial authorities have launched stern measures against the Reds in their [illegible] colonies, starting last year with the ouster of leftist prime minister Cheddi Jagan and his Peoples Progressive Party government in British Guiana.

An investigation is under way in British Honduras into claims that Communists in neighboring Guatemala control the Peoples Progressive Union, the largest political faction in that colony.

Considering Inventors' Award

LONDON (CP)—A spokesman for the royal commission on awards to inventors said today that the claim of a business man in Ottawa regarding the wartime invention of a pencil-like bomb detonator is still under consideration.

He was commenting on a press report that a letter had been sent to Cmdr. A. J. G. Langley saying an award was justified and that the amount would be announced soon. Langley, 56, formerly of Sevenoaks, Kent, now lives in Ottawa.

Langley's counsel, A. D. Russel-Clarke, told the commission that 15,500,000 flexible-tube detonators were produced during the Second World War at a cost of 1s 6d each. He said they were widely used by commandos and underground movements.

The "time pencil" was set in operation by crushing between the fingers, releasing a solvent which ate through a wire and caused the detonation. Explosion could be delayed from 30 minutes to 20 hours.

CNR Shows Profit For Second Year Of "New Look"

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian National Railways, its unwieldy corporate structure streamlined two years ago, has come up with its second straight surplus since the new look went in.

But it just barely edged over the top in 1953, making a profit of $244,017 on a record-breaking gross of $696,622,451.

In the annual report tabled in the Commons Monday, president Donald Gordon called the surplus "disappointingly small." And he pointed to current wage demands of employees which, the report said, could add more than $16,000,000 to the publicly-owned company's payroll costs.

With gross revenues up by $21,000,000 in 1953, operating expenses went up more sharply. A $24,000,000 increase brought them to an all-time peak of $659,049,086.

TRAFFIC LESS

Both freight and passenger traffic—the main items in the railway's revenue—fell off during the year, though higher freight rates pushed revenue in that department to an all-time peak of $553,618,000. Passenger intake dropped about $2,500,000 to $41,916,000.

Income from express, communications, mail and hotels was up.

Operating expenses, the report said, rose despite an improved operating performance and economy measures aimed at gearing costs to lower traffic levels.

The report said the chief factor was higher wages, which added $32,800,000 to operating costs. There also were larger depreciation allowances, higher prices for materials and higher costs for the CNR's pension plan.

As to possible future wage costs, the report said current demands of non-operating employees—now under conciliation—would cost the company an estimated $16,000,000 a year "with a further liability of $11,700,000 annually in respect of the request for sick leave with pay." The term "further liability" was not explained.

Ex-Miner Gains Strength In USSR

LONDON (Reuters) — A tough ex-miner from the Ukraine, Nikita S. Khrushchev, is progressively emerging as the Kremlin's strong man.

As Communist party chief he is officially No. 3 man behind Premier Malenkov and Foreign Minister Molotov. But western observers have not forgotten that Stalin ruled Russia for 15 years in the job Khrushchev now holds before he became premier as well.

Thus, by precedent, the premier is not necessarily the strongest man in the Kremlin. Each day, Khrushchev's voice is becoming stronger as the top Kremlin power —at least on the home front.

His tongue has mercilessly lashed Soviet bureaucrats right up to the top level, even including cabinet minsters.

Two days ago, the Communist party newspaper Pravda devoted four pages to his stinging rebuke of the ministers trying to boost food production.

The publicity given by press and radio to the statement rivalled that accorded to Malenkov's major policy declarations on home and foreign affairs.

City Truck Drivers To Attend Safety Meet

Attendance of twelve truck drivers of city's departments at safety promotion meeting wednesday March 31 at the Empress Hotel was approved by the board of works Monday night. Buffet lunch charge is 60 cents a plate.

City Engineer Chalmers said he had suggested to Constable Don MacKay that he write the council about this meeting, but Mayor Norman Graham expressed the criticism that the letter should have come from the office of the Chief Constable.

Toronto Stock Prices Lag

TORONTO (CP)—Both interest and prices lagged in early afternoon stock market trading today.

Industrials and western oils led the lower trend.

Papers, utilities, constructions, refining oils, financial institutions and retail stores were slightly weaker in the lower industrials trend, while steels and manufactures showed some strength. Foods and liquors were steady. Hardest hit individual issues were Minnesota and Ontario, Aluminium, Loblaws and a few others.

Waite Amulet, International Nickel, Consolidated Smelters and Falconbridge were down 12½ cents to lead senior base metals lower. Juniors and Manitouwadge-area issues were slightly lower.

Uraniums and Bathurst-area base metals continued the recent lower, dull trend.

Premier Of State Objects To Shift In Visit Plans

PERTH, Australia (Reuters) — Premier Albert Hawke of Western Australia state said today that changes made in plans for Queen Elizabeth's visit to his state this week amounted to "high-handed interference."

He said he and his cabinet regret that "so much unnecessary fuss and panic has been stirred up" because the Queen is coming to West Australia during a poliomyelitis epidemic.

He was referring to a statement made Monday by Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies that "every precaution short of cancellation" will be taken when the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh fly here Friday to begin their visit to West Australia.

Hawke told reporters that Menzies' announcement was "unnecessary and high-handed interference in a matter which was nearing settlement."

He said his cabinet has agreed, however, to co-operate fully with the public in carrying out the altered tour program and in giving the Queen a loyal and enthusiastic reception.

Family Farce At Sacred Heart Pleases Audience

A mixture of young love, impersonation, theft and several other ingredients were included in the play "The Honeymoon is Over," presented by the Sacred Heart Players Monday night in the Sacred Heart Club House to an enthusiastic audience.

The plot revolves around a young couple who return from their honeymoon to live with the young bride's parents until they can raise money to start a farm. Mother and daughter plot against father who has refused to loan the money. This involves the theft (borrowing) of mother's jewels.

Several other characters arrive to complicate the plot, but everything ends happily as they usually do in farces.

Between acts members of the Sacred Heart choir, led by Heribert Michel, pleased the audience with their selections. The choir included Barbara O'Reilly, Ann Lante, Mary Jane Hatton, Mrs. A. Conlin, Maureen Masterson, Eileen Crough, Helen Cummings, Mrs. L. Martyn and Mrs. H. Masterson.

The audience also enjoyed the efforts of the Nit Wits, a quartet consisting of Bob Grant, John Dinsmore, Dick Beck and George Berthin. Suzanne Martyn and Mrs. Michel played piano duets.

Defects In Feet Blamed For Many Troubles In Body

More than half of all children of five years have defective feet, Dr. Robert M. Smith, a leading Canadian chiropodist from Hamilton, told the Peterborough Rotary Club, Monday.

As the child matures, these figures become ever more alarming. At 15, said Dr. Smith, 75 per cent have defective feet and only one man in ten has a chance of escaping foot trouble before he reaches 50.

Defects and malformations of the feet can cause trouble in other parts of the body, said Dr. Smith, stressing the need for prevention work and early treatment of foot diseases. There is a close connection between foot troubles and [illegible], while imbalance of the feet may lead to sterility in women. Varicose veins and arthritis are also often traceable to feet trouble.

Chiropody is a profession clouded in public misunderstanding, said Dr. Smith. Fallen arches, far from being common, are quite rare. Dr. Smith said that in his entire career he had seen only a dozen cases of truly dropped arches.

NOT SO SERIOUS

Dropped arches and flat feet ar not synonymous, and flat feet are not necessarily indicative of serious troubles. Dr. Smith recalled that Anna Pavlova, probably the greatest ballerina of all time, had feet "so flat you couldn't slip a piece of paper under the arch."

Bone structure of the feet makes it "anatomically impossible" for the metatarsal arch to drop. There are 52 bones in the two feet, nearly 25 per cent of all the bones in the body.

Variations in arch structure, Dr. Smith continued, are perfectly normal. But just as blonds are more susceptible to sunburn than brunettes, so some types of foot formation give the individual a greater predilection to later disorders.

Heredity is the chief factor in malformation, said the doctor. Bunions, for example, run in families and are not caused by pointed shoes. Many disorders of the feet represent an atavistic return to more primitive structures. The evolutionary trend has been to make feet less and less prehensile, but this trend is occasionally reversed.

As a case in point, Dr. Smith cited the tendency of feet of some newborn babies to turn in. This can produce a chain reaction of physical disturbances as the consequent strain on the knees produces a functional shortening of the legs. The sacrum drops slightly to compensate, and the result is the common ailment known as "hollow back."

This brought Dr. Smith back to his point that feet disorders should be caught and treated early, because "later we can only do compensation work and later still the best we can do is a salvage job." He called for public support for Rotary's Easter Seals campaign so that more children "can stand up to life as well as possible."

Because of chiropody, said the doctor, more and more children are able to stand up to life. Although it is one of the oldest professions, dating back to the time of the Pharaohs, it is only since 1935 that "serious misconceptions" on pedal anatomy have been corrected. A milestone in chiropodic history was the textbook by Dr. Dudley Morton showing that the foot, as dissected in the medical laboratories, is altogether different from the foot as encased in shoes, and subjected to the stresses and strains of modern living. Such stresses compound the troubles created by heredity.

Dr. Smith was introduced by J. E. Girven, who called for the active support of all Rotarians to send the Easter Seal campaign for $8,000 over the top. The speaker was thanked by Dr. K. W. Milne.

Car Badly Damaged

LINDSAY (ENS)—A Peterborough man was uninjured but his car was badly damaged following an accident on Highway 7 west of Lindsay early Monday evening.

According to provincial police, the late model car, driven by Herbert Campbell of Peterborough, left the roadway at the "Dew Drop" curve, just west of Lindsay. The vehicle smashed through guard rails and snapped nine fence posts at the side of the road. Damage was heavy to the front end of the car.

Constable Clive Naismith of Lindsay investigated.

Cobourg Man Trenton's New Assessor

TRENTON—Council has unanimously decided to hire 37-year-old E. F. Hall of Cobourg as town assessor. The appointment was made after Charles Rogerson, who held the position here for three years, was dismissed Feb. 1.

Mr. Rogerson reassessed the town last year, using the Ontario Government's manual as his guide. The re-evaluation of properties split the community into two camps and became an election issue last December.

When the 1954 [illegible] over, its first move was to abandon the manual as a basis for assessment. After Mr. Rogerson was fired, his assistant, W. Baker, was empowered to act until a successor could be found. Three weeks later Mr. Baker resigned.

Mr. Hall, a former assessor for the united counties of Northumberland and Durham was chosen out of 15 applicants. He will start here April 1. Kenneth K. Kenny of Trenton was appointed assistant assessor.

Thousands Of Bodies In Iwo Jima Caves

IWO JIMA (AP)—Unknown thousands of Japanese soldiers lie buried in honeycombed caves beneath Iwo Jima while American marines ironically practise on the battlefield of nine years ago to defend Japan.

A United States air force chaplain who has studied the fantastic underground defences said "I've seen at least 5,000 bodies."

A marine engineer said "there may be 10,000 bodies here. We all know there were 20,000 Japanese here and only a handful got off. It stands to reason the rest are still down in the caves."

Many bodies have been uncovered accidentally by demolition squads exploding old ammunition and sealing off caves for manoeuvres by the 3rd Marine division—part of the American force committed to the defence of Japan.

Escaped Soldiers Arrested By Police

NORTH BAY (CP) — Three young soldiers of five whom broke out of London military detention barracks Monday, were arrested here today and held for being absent without leave.

Police identified them as Marcel Cyr, 21, Ottawa; Ralph McKay, 18, Moncton, N. B., and Charles Wolford, 18, Red Deer, Alta.

Police said they first got on the trail of the missing soldiers when Walter Neely, a farmer living near South River, 20 miles south of here, reported to provincial constable Ken Chalmers that his car had been stolen early today.

Neely said the fugitives took his car after ditching another vehicle. North Bay police were notified and arrested the men in the car. Police said in the back of the car were two army bayonets.

Fire Kills Two

CHICAGO (AP)—Two men were killed Monday in a fire and a series of explosions which destroyed a chemical manufacturing plant. Damage was estimated at $1,000,000.

The explosions sent black smoke and flames billowing 100 feet into the air from the one-storey 500-foot-long building housing the Pelron Corporation in suburban Lyons.

Use Blue Cross To Relieve Hospital Costs

TORONTO (CP) — Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario CCF leader, said Monday night the Ontario government virtually ordered the Blue Cross Plan for Hospital Care to establish the 26 per cent increase in rates which goes into effect April 1.

This was because the Ontario government hopes to use Blue Cross as a means of bailing Ontario hospitals out of their growing deficits, he said. Mr. MacDonald spoke from a prepared text in a free-time CBC broadcast over a provincial network.

"There was no pressing need for an increase in rates, at least at this time," he said. "The result. . . is that it is going to make hospital insurance even more lucrative for private insurance companies who are moving into this field to reap rich profits while providing inadequate coverage."

Mr. MacDonald adde:

"Within a short time after the Blue Cross increase goes into effect, members of the Ontario Hospital Association all across the province will start increasing hosfantastic charges of $12 to $15 a day. This will result in your 26 per cent increase in premiums to Blue Cross quickly ending up in hospital treasuries to help meet their deficits."

Private insurance company hospital rates are bound to go up also after April 1, Mr. MacDonald said. He said a hospital plan such as the CCF put into operation eight years ago in Saskatchewan is "the only way to provide hospital coverage at a cost within the means of the average budget."

D. W. Gayvie or Toronto, manager of Blue Cross, said Mr. MacDonald "should know better" if he had read anything about the plan.

He said the April 1 increase is necessary because of increasing hospital costs and the fact that more persons are going to hospitals.

At Chatham, William Gray, Blue Cross president, said the organization is faced with rising costs that have to be met.

"Regardless of Blue Cross, hospitals would have raised their rates because they had to."

Gives God Credit For Long Life

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Mrs. Teresa Healey, who today celebrates her 100th birthday, attributes her long life mainly to "the will of God." She added: "Of course, we try to live as long as we can, be as honest as we can, and be as sociable as we can."

Extremely bright and alert, she recalls her childhood in County Down, Ireland, where she was born March 23, 1854, on a farm. She came to Canada in 1911, and still remembers the boat trip.

"We had plenty of fun on the boat," she says. "There was a lively bunch and, of course, there was lots of life in me, too."

Now senior resident in the Mount Carmel home here, Mrs. Healey still reads, especially a prayer book, but has had to give up her knitting.

Smoking never posed a problem for Mrs. Healey. "When I was a little girl I smoked once for fun. It made me sick so I never smoked again."

Looking ahead after a century, she says: "If it pleases God I'll live as long as he wants me to live; I won't question it."

Italian 'Teen-Agers Parade In Rome

ROME (Reuters) — About 2,000 Italian 'teen-agers singing fascist songs and yelling anti - Yugoslav slogans, paraded today through the centre of Rome, demanding the return of Trieste to Italy.

Raise Tax Rate 3 To 6 Mills Cobourg Schools

COBOURG (ENS) — Tax rate of 47 mills for public school supporters, 46.5 for separate school ratepayers, was struck at last night's council meeting for the year 1954. This is an increase of three mills over last year for the public school ratepayers and six mills' increase for separate school supporters. Reason for the boost in the separate school rate is partly due to the new addition to St. Michael's school, built at a cost of around $116,000.

Total uncontrollable expenditures for 1954 amounted to $271,414.87 as compared with $247,135.14 in 1953. Total controllable for this year is estimated at $259,130.60 as compared with $221,996.15 last year. Total to be raised by receipts and taxes for 1954 is estimated at $530,545.47. Total for receipts and taxes in 1953 was $469,131.29.

BREAKDOWN

Breakdown of the rate is as follows: Cobourg High School district, $26,057.25; Separate school, $13,267.77; Public school, $108,373.20; county rate, $34,977.75; welfare, $2,973.50; parks $7,825.38; general, $173,676.55.

Committees whose estimates were higher this year were public works, protection to persons and property, health and sanitation and finance and harbor. The other committees were either held at their 1953 level or lowered.

Council Backs Fire Chief Private Sale Extinguishers

COBOURG (ENS) — Fire Chief Ken Baird, who was the subject of criticism recently in the Cobourg Sentinel-Star over the alleged sale of fire extinguishers to local institutions through him, was given a clean bill of health last night in a report filed with the town council by deputy-reeve Charlie Johnston, chairman of the fire, water and light committee.

Deputy-reeve Johnston reported this his committee had gone into the matter of the sale of some fire extinguishers by a local wholesalers through Fire Chief Baird to the Recreational Centre Board.

The extinguishers were supplied at the wholesale price through the fire chief at a saving of $300 to the Recreational Centre Board. One fire extinguisher was sold for $74, at the wholesale price, to the Counties Home for the Aged.

There was nothing in the appointment by-law of the fire chief to make it illegal for him to handle fire extinguishers sales and it was a fact, said the report of the committee, that many other municipalities had a similar arrangement.

Members of the fire brigade were interviewed and were satisfied with the fire chief. The committee accordingly was of the opinion that fire chief Baird did not deserve censure, said Deputy-reeve Johnston.

The New Canadian In Story

When Canadians were a small and unimportant people, it was with surprised humility that they found a Canadian figuring in fiction written outside the country. Mounties in northern thrillers. Coureurs-de-bois in historical romances. Prospectors in the glow of '98. Trappers on Arctic floes. The pleasure of surprise has dimmed with the years because, really, we Canadians know that there are others among us than those hearty pioneers; we have grown a little tired of them in fiction.

* * *

A new Canadian is now emerging in fiction, and the surprise of seeing a Canadian in foreign print kindles anew. The new story-book Canadian is a different fellow from Curwood's heroes, the Red-coated Mounties on the plains, the lone prospector. The new Canadian of fiction is an international personage, a cosmopolite.

* * *

Evelyn Waugh has a Canadian figure who commands politicians and gives his English lady-love a live tortoise whose shell [illegible] had embossed with diamonds. An American novelist writes of a fabulous Montreal hostess who throws the biggest parties in New York. Canadian engineers pop up in stories of South American enterprise. Canadian financiers figure in the international skulduggery of English thrillers. The curernt New Yorker has a story about Johannesburg's smart, rich set. In the centre of it is a "thirty-one year old Canadian who had been to Cambridge and had once sailed from somewhere to somewhere (I forget the details, but know they were adventurous) in a ketch he had built himself. They (the Canadian and the wealthy South African widow) became lovers . . ."

* * *

We are glad to note this change in the fictional Canadian. Novelists and short story writers, like other breeds of people, are finding that Canadians are not all bush whackers, muscle-men or half-wits grubbing for gold. Now, in fiction as in post-war fact, they move among financiers, weave through Paris salons, invest the seats of the mighty, lecture at universities, and build bridges and industrial empires in all parts of the world. The fictional Canadian has become an important fellow, somebody to be reckoned with; so has his country.

A Communal Antenna

Long before TV began to raise its thousands of arms on the rooftops of Peterborough we urged that some attempt be made to have neighbourhood aerials, rather than allow street after street to be complicated by poles and wires on each house; or sometimes two or three antennae on one roof. Our words fell unheeded, it seems, from the condition of the city's skyline now, despite ample proof that communal aerials were practical and in the long run cheaper than individually-installed ones. The army has multiple-set aerials in its camps. Now, we note, the Housing Authority for the big Toronto low-rental housing development called Regent Park has approved a plan to rid the buildings of a multiplicity of television antennae.

Under the scheme approved for Regent Park, a master antenna for the entire housing development will be erected on one building, and leads from it to the various housing units will be installed underground. This will do away with the "pigeon roost" appearance Regent Park's roofs are now acquiring. Rental fee for the use of this TV antenna installation will be $2.50 a month, which is less than the capital and maintenance costs of a householder with his own aerial. Householders will not be permitted to erect their own outside antennae.

This is a good move. The skylines of almost every street in almost every city within reach of a TV broadcasting station have become fantastically cluttered because of the individual antennae. Apartment house owners in many places are realizing how messy these poles and wires are, how much they detract from the appearance and therefore the value of their property. So many apartment-house owners are installing one master antenna for the use of their tenants. There is a new apartment building in Cobourg, for instance, one of distinctive appearance, and this has been equipped with a master aerial.

What Cobourg can do, what Regent Park can do, what army camps can do, cannot a neighbourhood also do?

Our question may be out of date soon. In the early days of radio high antennae and long wires were considered absolutely essential for good reception. Now, in the early days of TV, the same sort of equipment seems necessary. But we hear that new marvels are already in the offing. One fellow we know of in Toronto uses two rungs of an old iron bedstead, set in the form of a Y inside his attic. He gets Toronto and three American stations with the greatest of ease. An inventor now in Switzerland is said to have devised a TV reception outfit by which one can tune in stations a thousand miles away merely by doing something as simple as holding up a wet finger as aerial.

A Visitor Of Distinction

We welcome as a visitor to Peterborough today Mr. Herbert Marshall, Dominion Statistician, who is lecturing this evening to the local chapter of the Society of Industrial Cost Accountants. It is with peculiar pleasure that we hail Mr. Marshall's visit. He does not have the kind of distinction which ordinarily wins acclaim. He is not a politician or stateman, a general or commander of industry, he is not a designer of aeroplanes or a builder of cities. He is an analyser, a man who deals with figures and probes their meaning, a desk man who sifts and weighs, rather than creates. Yet his work is as important as that of many a creative genius, in this day when, in order to build wisely for the future we must know how the structure has developed in the past and what are its additions and subtractions year by year. Mr. Marshall is a statistician.

People poke fun at statistics; we have done so ourself at times. Statistics lie, [illegible] are half-truths; statistics are empty shells, having neither pearls nor oysters. So the criticisms run. We wish to point out—and probably Mr. Marshall will do so in his address tonight—that if the statistics are as good and careful as those assembled by Mr. Marshall's own department, their fault is with the user, not with the figures. He is the perverter, not the statistician. If a little knowledge be a dangerous thing, a little knowledge of how to use statistics is more dangerous, because statistics are charged with the deeds of life.

One of the most valuable annual publications in Canada is the Canada Year Book, a picture of the changing face and coursing blood of Canada which is without peer in any country. Mr. Marshall's Dominion Bureau of Statistics is the author of this significant work. Because of these, and other analyses, the Bureau of which he has been chief since 1945 has a world-wide reputation. It is a pleasure to welcome to the city a Canadian whose distinction has been gained without fanfare in a kind of work rarely leading distinction.

Keep Calm, Tourists!

The U.K. Minister of Supply has poured oil on the agitated waters around the Bahamas. There is not the slightest danger to human life from the germ warfare tests which were announced this month. There is no reason why tourist traffic should be interfered with in any way. The area chosen "is far out to sea, at least twenty miles from any inhabited island, and is widely removed from any normal shipping route".

How nice to know. It would really be very bad if such an important thing as tourist travel were interfered with by so small a thing as germ warfare tests. Do not worry about them; they will not bother your holidays.

Biological warfare is, of course, expressly forbidden by the rules of war. Like every other country, Britain is testing methods of germ warfare, not to make a germ war, but because "Her Majesty's Government can not neglect consideration of the precautions which would need to be taken should this form of warfare ever be applied against us". Why should there be a hullabaloo about the tests to be made off the Bahamas? Fear of germ warfare—pooh! Fear only that the tests might interfere with holiday travel to those salubrious regions. Set your fears at rest, you touring-minded people. Carry on; nothing to worry about; just germ warfare tests, out of your path completely.

NOTES AND COMMENT

"An idle hour is gone forever," says a sermonizer. True, and we have had some trouble in hanging on to our busy hours, as well.

A doctor has removed several small nails from the stomach of a boy of eight. Probably swallowed them while trying to spit them.

Four costly cats have been stolen in Chicago, and the Kitchener Record suggests that this is feliney. We recommend an appeal to the Bureau of Wanted Purrsons.

A report says that 'Parliament is expected to sit into the heat of summer'. Those of us who expect to work all summer, and without a pay-raise, are dissolved in pity.

Doctor In Wild N-W China

By O. M. GREEN

IN THE summer of 1947 a young New Zealand doctor named Spencer and his wife set off to found a hospital in the little oasis town of Sandan, on the edge of the Gobi Desert, in China's wild north-west. This is in the long panhandle of Kansu, which sticks out along the southern edge of Inner Mongolia and into Sinkiang, a vast area, mostly deserts and mountains dotted with oases. There they stayed for two years; and their adventures are now most entertainingly described by the wife Barbara Spencer in a well-illustrated book called "Desert Hospital in China."

IT GIVES a sidelight on the enormous work that the Communists have to do in raising the standard of living (in which respect there is no doubt they have already done a great deal) and in winning the allegiance of the north-western tribesmen, who in the past thirty years have been greatly affected by Russian influence.

Transport is not the least of these problems. The Spencers' journey to Sandan, along the old Silk Road by which Arab caravans carried Chinese silks and jade to ancient Rome, was sufficiently terrifying. To call it a road is an undeserved compliment. Climbing over ten thousand foot mountains it was repeatedly cut by ravines, crossed by crazy bridges whose foundations were so weakened by rain that at any moment the structure might crash into the ravine under the weight of the lorry. After the thirteenth bridge Mrs. Spencer says she stopped counting.

At one point, where the road ran beside the Yellow River, a landslide had buried the road in three or four feet of mud. In their first day the New Zealanders covered only thirty miles.

SANDAN was a great and important city one thousand years ago. Even fifty years ago its population was ninety thousand. But years of denudation of the once tree-clad hillsides—sources of so much [illegible] and famine all over China—of plundering by rival armies, of misrule by Chinese officials who, in the last years of the Nationalist Government, had "sunk to the lowest depths of bribery and corruption," had reduced the population to five thousand, all miserably poor.

The Spencers found a clinic in Sandan and a co-operative school, founded in 1944 by the famous Rewi Allen, once an employee of the Shanghai Municipal Council, who for the past thirty years has devoted himself to building up co-operative societies among the Chinese countrymen. But the hospital and the Spencers' own house had still to be built. The materials in Sandan are mud bricks. If you are not rich enough to lay a stone foundation, the house may melt into a heap of mud in rainy weather.

THE SPENCERS' BED was a mud k'ang, a sort of bench warmed by a flue beneath, which carried warm air from the stove. They tried to improve the look of their sitting room by pasting paper over the ceiling. But the rain came through the roof and the ceiling hung in flaps about their ears.

Language was a great difficulty because of the number of tones used, varying the meaning of the same word. Thus the word 'mai' can mean, according to the tone used, to buy, to sell or to bury. As Mrs. Spencer says, in a hospital any mistake "might tend to have disastrous consequences."

✧ ✧ ✧

FOOD consisted chiefly of millet, beans and potatoes. The meat was generally sheep so old as to be almost uneatable. There were, however, plenty of eggs. But when Mrs. Spencer asked the head Chinese student to buy her twenty he returned empty-handed. "One egg five hundred dollars," he said, "twenty eggs ten thousand: too dear." Yet ten thousand dollars were only worth one shilling. A year later, in the frightful collapse of the Nationalist currency, they would not have been worth that.

At last the hospital was built; the Chinese students decorated the surgery with appalling "Scenes from a Dissecting Room," cut from an American magazine; and the Spencers waited for patients, anxiously wondering what their chances were against superstition and fear of foreign ways.

✧ ✧ ✧

THEIR LUCK turned when the young son of a Mongol chief was sent to them, under directions from a Living Buddha, who had had a vision of "a wise man in the south" who would cure him. The boy was suffering from trachoma, neglected for five years, which had produced a huge swelling in one eyelid completely blocking the sight of the eye. Two most delicate operations were needed—operations which neither of the Spencers had ever performed. But they succeeded perfectly. The overjoyed father sent them "six large sheep with magnificent curly horns and enormous fat tails, which came charging up the steps of the hospital."

After this the hospital was besieged with patients. Frequently they brought ailing donkeys, goats, sheep and horses for treatment and were with difficulty prevented from bringing them into the surgery.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE ARE other picturesque memories: of the terrible winter cold, when surgical instruments touched without gloves stuck to the fingers, and penicillin froze in the syringe before it could be injected; of the barbarous native handling of a woman in labour; of the superstition that if she died in childbirth, she would be sunk in "the Bloody Well" but that if one of her hairs was fastened in a temple bell, she would be able to raise her head for air every time the bell tolled; of filthy vermin-infested inns and blinding dust storms from the Gobi; of the wonderful Caves of the Thousand Painted Buddhas, many hundred years old but still exquisitely preserved—as Mrs. Spencer says, "the greatest museum of ancient culture which China possesses."

THE BOOK ends with the coming of the Communist troops, at the mere mention of which the Sandan magistrates promptly bolted. Then Sandan was savagely looted by a Kuomintang (Nationalist) division:

"Soldiers were pulling down doors and windows, smashing them to pieces and building fires to cook the food they had stolen from the peasants. Others were taking bedding and any other articles they fancied, while their commanding officer stormed up and down the street kicking at anything in his way . . . peasants were dragged from their homes, their donkeys, camels or oxen with them and conscripted into the army to carry the equipment."

✧ ✧ ✧

THE PEACE and order restored by the Communist troops and their good behaviour seemed like the millennium (this, too, was the experience of all the missionaraies in 1949.) It was not until the political cadres arrived after the army that troubles began. But it is no wonder that China would not fight for the Kuomintang.

Only six weeks before the Spencers started for home, on a journey as bad as the outward one, their son was born. Perhaps the keenest of the Sencers' memories is of the numbers of people who flocked into their house to see him. They had never seen a white baby. They were particularly impressed by his voice. "Aiya! Such a very little baby, such a tremendous noise. Really quite remarkable!" (Copyright)

An American Opinion: "HERE, HAVE A SEAT!"

Holland Fights The Sea

By HENRI SCHOUP
(in The Hague)

THE DUTCH PARLIAMENT will shortly discuss a gigantic project [illegible] by Holland's leading water engineers, designed to prevent any recurrence of the flood disaster of February 1953, which caused the deaths of one thousand eight hundred people and damage amounting to some 2,000,000,000 guilders (about $600 million). The project entails the closing of all seaways and estuaries in south-west Holland except the New Waterway, connecting Rotterdam with the North Sea, and the Westerscheldt, which is the sea outlet of the Belgian port of Antwerp. Estimated cost is between 1,500,000,000 and 2,000,000,000 guilders, and the scheme will take from twenty to twenty-five years to put into effect.

It is a daring concept, which will shorten the long and intricate coastline of south-west Holland, and inaugurate a new chapter in the story of the country's fight against the sea; but a group of experts set up as a "Delta Commission" by the Dutch Government has concluded, after a year's research, that it is thoroughly practical.

One of the commission's statements was startling: it was that higher water levels than those which occurred in the fateful month of February, 1953, can be expected at any moment—within one year, within ten years or within the next century. The fact that the 1953 disaster did not touch the central regions and most important towns of the country does not mean this could not happen in future. The commission points out that water levels and wind power had by no means reached their maximum at the time of the big flood, and consequently that this country, of which one half, with sixty per cent. of the population, is below sea level, cannot afford any relaxation in the face of constant danger.

TWO possible solutions have been examined. One is the traditional one of increasing the height and width of the dykes, the other is a sensational one of building connecting dams between the islands (the province of Zeeland) which make up the most vulnerable area. The advantages of the latter solution are manifold. No valuable arable land would have to be sacrificed. Maintenance of a single row of dams, interlinked by the natural defence line of dunes, would be much cheaper and easier than maintenance of an improved dyke system inland. By building the sea dams, one could turn the sea arms into fresh water basins, which would largely help to solve the acute silting which threatens Dutch agriculture and horticulture each dry summer. The almost yearly occurrence of salt sea water penetrating deeply into the country for lack of Rhine or Meuse river water to keep it out, would stop.

The commission adds that the growth of the Dutch population (120,000 yearly) and of industrial investments (2,100,000,000 guilders a year) make a foolproof defence system an ever-increasing necessity. In view of these facts, the extinction of the fishing trade in Zeeland, in which some two thousand people are involved is of only minor importance. The province of Zeeland would see a repetition of what happened in the historic towns around the former Zuyder Zee: an old culture and a way of life would vanish, but a new and modern life would be introduced. Most serious would be the disappearance of Zeeland's flourishing oyster-breeding grounds.

But the engineering experts point out that geological processes make the adoption of bold measures unavoidable. It is known that the unfavourable difference between Holland's land and sea levels is increasing yearly. The Dutch soil is slowly sinking, while the sea level is slowly rising, due to the increasing melting of Polar ice.

Some doubts about the "delta-plan" have been expressed in naval circles. Admiral C. E. L. Helfrich, formerly of the Dutch Royal Navy, has pointed out that by closing all but two of Holland's outlets to the sea the country would be endangered in time of war. It would be enough for an enemy to sink one fairly large ship in the mouth of the New Waterway, near the Hook of Holland, for all connections between Rotterdam and Britain to be blocked. How easy such a blockade is was proved last year when the Panamanian ship "Faustus" ran aground near the Hook and caused a stoppage of the boat service to Harwich. At that time Holland's main port could maintain its overseas communications only by using the Zeeland estuaries. This alternative would be excluded if the delta-plan were realised, so Admiral Helfrich is insisting on the provision of at least one canal for seagoing ships between Rotterdam and the Antwerp sea outlet, Westerscheldt. Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Let not him that is deceived trust in vanity: for vanity shall be his recompense. (Job. 15: 31.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts: and see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting. (Ps. 139:23, 24.)

Woe to the rebellious children, saith the Lord, that take counsel, but not of me; and that cover with a covering, but not of my spirit, that they may add sin to sin: that walk to go down into Egypt, and have not asked at my mouth; to strengthen themselves in the strength of Pharaoh, and to trust in the shadow of Egypt! Therefore shall the strength of Pharaoh be your shame, and the trust in the shadow of Egypt your confusion. . .

Wherefore thus saith the Holy One of Israel, Because ye despite this word, and trust in oppression and preverseness, and stay thereon: therefore this iniquity shall be to you as a reach ready to fall, swelling out in a high wall, whose breaking cometh suddenly at an instant . . . For thus saith the Lord God, the Holy One of Israel; in returning and rest shall ye be saved; in quietness and in confidence shall be your strength: and ye would not. (Isa. 30:1-3, 12, 13, 15.)

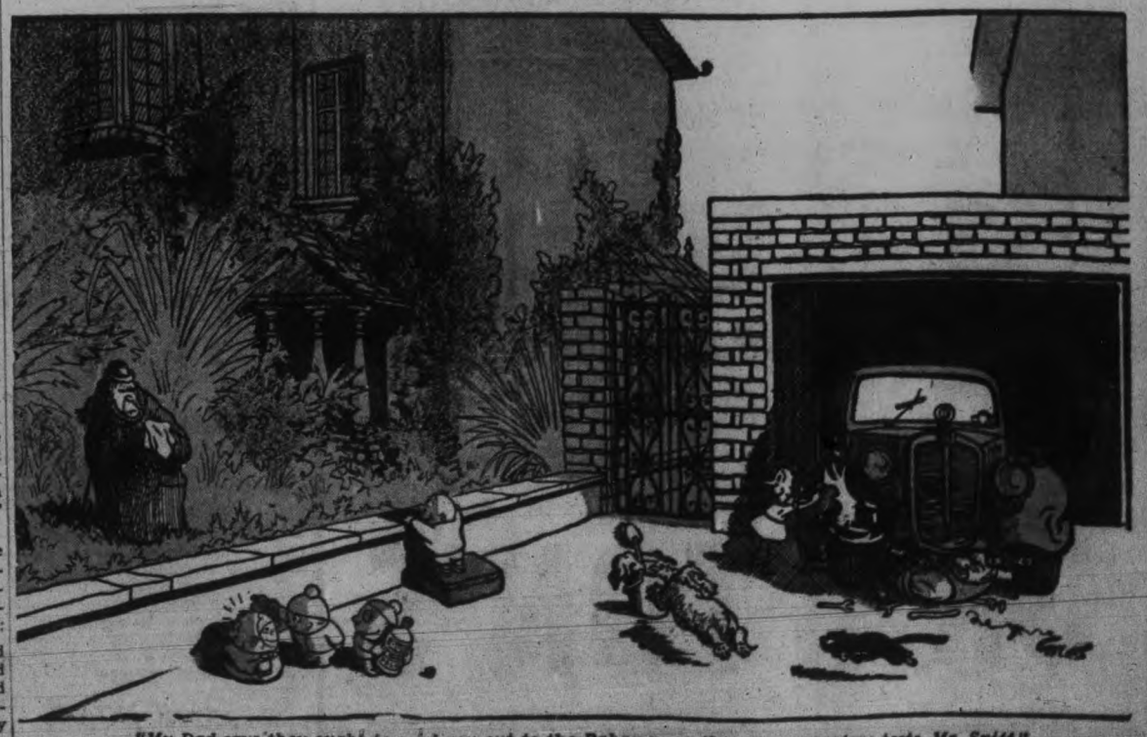
Lining Up With Mr. Duplessis



(Ottawa Citizen)

. . . Mr. Drew, confirmed unanimously as the party's leader, has gone farther on this question. He comes to the aid of Premier Duplessis of Quebec in that ultra-nationalist's campaign to have Quebec's new income tax made fully deductible from the federal levy. He declares that Ottawa should not take away "the only source of revenue" possessed by the provinces, and promises to fight the issue in Parliament and in the country.

Thus Mr. Drew and his fellow Conservatives are perpetuating the myth that a province loses autonomy by trading certain tax fields (and incidentally it has plenty left) for a fixed rental. The rental schemes make sense. They avoid duplicate taxation and the added administrative expenses thereof. They are geared to the budgetary needs of each province that wishes to become a partner, and as a result tend to a maintenance rather than a loss of true autonomy. For each province is completely free to spend the rental money in any way it chooses, within the framework of its constitutional powers and obligations.

It is doubtful whether many Canadians, other than those who have been blinded by Mr. Duplessis' oratory, consider that the provinces are downtrodden as a result of co-operating with the federal government in the field of taxation and in several other important matters. The Conservatives are perfectly free to go ahead and find out. From this distance, however, it would seem that their Ottawa meeting has hardly produced the weapon with which to win a resounding triumph at the polls three or four years from now.

Board, Drivers Fight Over Busses For Children

BANCROFT (ENS) — A long-drawnout conflict between the school board of Dungannon township and two of its school bus operators is to be decided in the civil courts. A writ served on school board chairman Don Littleproud by counsel for the two operators, W. J. Arthur Fair, QC, alleges breach of contract, arrears of pay and damages. The dispute came to a head early in March when OPP officers were posted at L'Amable school t oensure preservation of the peace and on one occasion schoolchildren were taken home in taxis while four buses stood idle at the school.

According to one of the school trustees the trouble originated last fall when school bus contracts awarded by a previous board were not ratified by the department of education.

Notice of non-ratification was received by the board in November of last year and the township was thereby saddled with an added expense of $1,800 annually which doubled the school rate. Early this year the present school board decided that this amount was an unfair burden on the ratepayers, and, at a special meeting, all school bus operators were asked to accept a new contract at rates approved by the department of education.

Three operators accepted the new contracts and two, Bob McGibbons, operating Bronson No. 3 route, and Cecil Hoover, operating Turriff No. 1, stated that they could not accept the new rates. The board asked the two men to consider the matter and, when no agreement could be reached, voted that one month's notice terminating the two contracts be served.

This action was taken at a special meeting held on January 12, when the secretary-treasurer, H. Hawkins, was instructed to advertise for tenders for the two routes at 30 cents a mile.

McGibbons and Hoover both tendered again at this time, but the contracts were awarded to Bennett Bentley and Maurice Adams.

On March 1, when the new contracts came into operation, youngsters living on the two routes were somewhat bewildered to find two buses arriving to pick them up, McGibbons and Hoover having apparently decided that they were still entitled to operate and that evening, when Bennett and Adams encountered some delay in delivery of PCV licence plates, they, in turn, decided to hire taxis to maintain their contracts.

School board chairman Don Littleproud said Monday night that he regarded the "whole matter as extremely regrettable, but we had to do our duty to the taxpayers of this township and Hoover and McGibbons had every opportunity to take over at the new prices, as did the rest of our operators."

Other members of the present board are Mrs. C. Price, Manley Whyte, Oscar White and Ed. McClean.

Tattoo Mark Could Warn Doctors Of Patients' Allergy To Drugs

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

CLEVELAND (AP) — Suppose you're one of the many people who become dangerously allergic to penicillin or some other drug.

And suppose you're hurt and knocked unconscious. Could a doctor unwittingly give you the drug which is bad for you?

A little tattoo—put in a place which even a bikini bathing suit wouldn't reveal—could be your vital protection, a physician suggested today.

The tattoos, perhaps the size of a penny, could be squares or triangles or other symbols or letters of the alphabet representing some specific drug or condition. The meaning of each symbol would be known, by prior agreement, to all doctors.

Identification cards in your wallet or pocketbook or dog tags around your neck could do the same thing. But you might lose the cards or forget to wear the tags on the day of some disaster or accident.

COULD BE FATAL

The tattoo system could be a more scientific way of carrying your medical warning against a drug or treatment which could give a bad reaction or might even cause death, said Dr. Hugh H. Hussey of Washington, medical editor of GP, magazine of the American Academy of General Practice.

Dr. Hussey, attending the academy's annual meeting, said some people are sensitive to penicillin or other drugs, or to horse serum used in tetanus antitoxin given as protection against blood poisoning. Some get severe reactions and sometimes the reactions are fatal

8 Graduate At Armouries Complete Short NCO Course

A special graduation ceremony was held at the armouries Monday night for eight members of the 28th Technical Squadron who recently successfully completed a junior NCO course.

Major R. Cross, GSO, 3 Eastern Ontario Area, attended the ceremon yto inspect and present graduation certificates to the class which included L/Cpl. W. C. Smith and H. Hallick, Craftsmen P. Coombe, G. Dack, G. Frederick, R. D. Green, J. E. Haslett and R. K. Wallace

Under L/Cpl Smith the class presented general salute for Major Cross before being inspected by Major Cross and Capt. Thomas Duffield, commanding officer of the squadron. Then under Craftsman Coombe they held a brief weapon (bren) drill, followed by a demonstration of foot drill, conducted by Craftsman Dack.

Gothic Stocks Food For Whole Tour

ADELAIDE, Australia (CP) — The royal liner Gothic has taken sufficient food aboard for the whole of the tour of Western Australia by the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, and for the voyage back to England, it was revealed today.

The Queen and the duke are to fly across the country from Adelaide to meet the Gothic in Western Australia at the beginning of the tour of that state.

A tour official reported today that the Queen's health adviser consulted Australian medical authorities before giving the royal couple their second anti-polio injection for their visit to Western Australia, where there is a polio epidemic.

During the tour of the state, as a precaution they will live aboard the Gothic, and the ship's cook will prepare all their meals.

Meanwhile, dozens of women and children fainted when they were crushed against barriers in 50-deep crowds waiting to see the Queen and the duke here today.

OPENS PARLIAMENT

The crowd, 27,000 strong, had gathered on both sides of the 100-yard-long road from Government House to Parliament House, where the Queen later opened the South Australian state Parliament.

The Queen wore an evening gown of ice-blue satin and a diamond tiara, necklace, earrings and bracelets.

Five functions the Queen was to have attended during the tour of Western Australia were cancelled under the arrangements to protect her from polio and discourage the gathering of large crowds.

The Queen looked rather pale, but showed no other ill-effects from the painful anti-polio injection she was given Sunday.

Biggest Cake In Canada Planned As Gift To Crippled Children

By FORBES RHUDE

The "biggest cake in Canada" will be produced at the annual convention of the Canadian Restaurant Association in Toronto March 29-31.

The cake will be nearly four feet high, with a bottom tier nearly four feet square. It will be presented to a child representative of the Ontario crippled children and will be eaten by some 1,900 child patients in hospitals.

Some 200 exhibitors will show their products, services and ideas along a "half-mile of exhibits" which will include, says a press release, "an induction ray which grills a hamburger in 25 seconds; pre-packaged individual plate lunches; an automatic coffee maker that produces 180 cups of coffee an hour."

The association has 23 regional branches across Canada, with a membership of nearly 1,400 food services executives.

The Cotton Institute of Canada says activity in Canadian cotton textile mills increased slightly in February over January, but the 25,249 bales of raw cotton opened was still 7,774 bales below February last year, and the lowest February total since 1939.

A Wall Street Journal story from Dallas, Texas, comments that while increasing quantities of oil are being found in the world, the increase is not so great as the increase in effort.

"New crude oil found in 1953 is estimated by Oil and Gas Journal, trade publication, at 2,900,000,000 barrels, 16 per cent more than in 1947. But this required more than 11,000 exploratory wells, some 60 per cent more than the earlier year."

Lily Lake WA Meeting

LILY LAKE (ENS)—Lily Lake WA met at the home of Mrs. M. Dunford with Mrs. Clarence Hancock as co-hostess.

The scripture reading was given by Mrs. Clarence Hancock and prayer was offered by Mrs. Evans McConkey.

It was decided to draw for a rose wool blanket at a card party in April.

The blanket committee decided to send woollens away for blankets the middle of April.

Mrs. Everett Tully expressed appreciaton for flowers and a sunshine basket sent to Shirley during her lengthy illness in the hospital.

The guest speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. A. E. Larke of Springville who gave a very interesting talk on "Home and Home Builders." She pointed out that you can always find time for the things you really want to do.

On behalf of the WA, Mrs. George Middleton thanked Mrs. Larke for a very instructive talk.

Lunch was served by the hostess.

Young Hosts Entertain Church Mission Band

SPRINGVILLE (ENS). — The March meeting of the Springville Church Mission Band was held on Saturday afternoon at the home of Anika Jonkers. The occasion was the birthdays of Anika Jonkers and Randy Deyell, two members of the band, and in their honor the children sang Happy Birthday.

Twenty-eight boys and girls answered the roll call by reciting a Bible verse. "Round the World" was the appropriate opening hymn.

DRIVERS DRY, ROADS HAPPY

Edith Lillico gave the peace report and Nelson Northey based his temperance talk on the slogen: "When the roads are dry, the drivers are happy; when the drivers are dry, the roads are happy."

Arrangements were made for the April meeting to be held on April 10 at the home of Debbie Darling and Mrs. R. F. McIndoo of Fairmount has been invited to be the guest speaker.

The juniors of the Mission Band under Mrs. Gordon Darling's leadership, had missionary stories read to them and they made invitations for their mothers to attend the Easter thankoffering meeting.

The older boys and girls of the band, under their leader Mrs. Clifford Johnston, studied a chapter in their study book on "Brazil." It told of the struggle to start a school for girls in a community that believed education was only for boys. The earliest missionary school for girls was finally started in a home of one of the church members.

Devise System Of Color X-Rays

NEW YORK (AP) — A system for making x-ray pictures in color, described as a significant new tool for medical science, was reported today to the Institute of Radio Engineers by Prof. R. Stuart MacKay of the University of California.

Experiments show the color x-ray pictures give more detail than the ordinary black-and-grey variety, he said in a paper prepared for presentation at the conference of the international organization of electronics scientists.

The use of color is based on the fact that different materials absorb x-rays differently. With the color technique, three ordinary x-ray pictures are taken of a part of the body, but a different wavelength or energy is used each time. The three pictures then are projected through three different color filters and superimposed to produce a single color image or photographic print.

In examining tht color picture, the doctor is not interested in the aesthetic effects but in what the color tells him on the absorption of x-rays by the various tissues that are shown.

Man Arrested After Wild Chase

HAMILTON (CP)—An 85-mile-an-hour chase along Barton street early today in which two shots were fired, ended in the arrest of one man and the recovery of a stolen car.

Police also claim they seized a loaded Luger and an automatic rifle. A second man who was said to have been riding in the car fled.

Gerald Parr, 27, of no fixed address, appeared in magistrate's court this morning charged with car theft and illegal possession of firearms.

Parr pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal possession of firearms. He was remanded until next Tuesday for sentence. Hugh F. Brown, assistant crown attorney, told the court there would be further information from Guelph before Parr is arraigned on a charge of car theft.

Bishop Warns Against Buying 'Holy Horrors'

BOSTON (AP)—The Most Rev. Richard J. Cushing, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Boston, warned a Lenten radio audience Monday night against the purchase of "holy horrors" peddled by persons "interested only in the dollar sales."

He listed as "pious junk" and "pious rubbish" such articles as "crosses that glow in the dark, religious pictures with eyes that follow you around the room, water from a holy hydrant, vials of miracle annointing oils."

The Archbishop added: "It's an insult to your intelligence; it's money spent for holy horrors. These things belittle Catholic devotion and encourage superstition."

Confirm McCarthy Rank

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Marine Corps Monday ended published speculation about the reserve rank of Senator McCarthy by stating that he is a lieutenant-colonel and has been for a year. Last March 27 the marine corps announced the selection of 184 marine reserve majors for promotion to lieutenant-colonel. Included on the promotion list was "McCarthy, Joseph Raymond."

Truckmen Two Up On The Petes After 4-2 Victory

By CEC. PERDUE

Adding insult to injury in Kingston last night, Oshawa Truckmen not only took a 4-2 triumph over TPT Petes but outbumped as well as outscored them. For the first time in the OHA senior "B" best-of-seven group final series, Oshawa drew more penalties than the Peterborough pack, though it was a clean enough game again with the winners drawing three of the five penalties. But it burned the losers up plenty after their rough semi-final series with Orillia Pontiacs, and they promised grimly after the game that they'd do a lot more bumping in the fourth fray here Thursday.

As the series stands now, Oshawa leads by 2-0, the first playoff ending in an overtime draw, Truckmen taking the second one here last Saturday in a 3-2 thriller, and putting the Petes definitely on the spot with the 4-2 verdict last night

LOOKING SERIOUS

Club officials of the Petes admitted after the game in the Limestone City that things were looking quite serious for the local squad, but they felt that the breaks must come Peterborough's way soon and they should win here Thursday to keep in the running. All the tilts so far in the series have been very close between the well-matched clubs, but Oshawa still leads 2-0 and needs but two more wins to move into provincial semi-finals.

The Truckmen struck fast for two quick goals early in the first frame before the Petes got untracked, and then it was a dogfight right through to the final gong, both teams playing on even terms in fast, exciting and clean going. Neither side counted in the middle chukker. Petes drew up on even terms with two goals in the third, but Oshawa had enough left to pot in the winner and then add an insurance marker five minutes before the bell tolled. A crowd of 2,343 fans enjoyed the fast action.

SCORED A PAIR

Jack Thaler was chief triggerman for the Truckers with two tallies, while Jerry Scott and Fred Etcher clicked for one each. Etcher also had two assists, as did Wally Samanski and Harry Sinden. For the Petes, Eddie Redmond and Keith Montgomery—two defencemen—did the scoring, an assist apiece going to Bill McMaster, Gus Leonard and Chum Fryia. Both goalies again were extra good as plenty of rubber was fired at them in every frame. Referees Andy Bellemer and Jim Crombie handled the fast-stepping fixture well.

The game was slightly more than a minute old when Thaler tore through on a three-man rush with Samanski and Etcher to blaze a rising angle shot into the net from close range. Berwick followed up with a good try as Oshawa pressed from the opening faceoff and Scott made it 2-0 at 4.48, aided by Sinden, on a ganging-up attack at close quarters. His slap shot caught a net corner. The Petes finally got settled away and played on even terms the rest of the stanza. Prentice and Belisle made Colvin jump and later Collins was thefted. Berwick pulled another close thrust before Hooper was gated for holding. Fryia notched one as the Petes ganged up hard but they were checked closely till Hooper returned. It was clean and fast toward the end, with Samanski just missing on a quick stab at the gong.

COULDN'T SCORE

The Petes were a bit slow again starting the second chapter and a Hooper-Holden rush almost paid off. Later it was hot and even till Redmond drew a holding penalty and Montgomery had Colvin almost standing on his head to save on a speedy breakaway. The Petes checked so well that Oshawa didn't have a shot on goal during Redmond's absence. Hooper and then Peterson tested rival netminders, and, when Hooper was waved over for charging, Fryia, Greenlaw and Leonard missed on several redhot chances in by the Colvin crease. The Petes should have had a couple of goals but Colvin couldn't be beaten and, with Hooper back, play settled down to a slower, more even tempo the final few minutes of the frame.

It was up and down at a lively clip early in the third and, after five minutes, the Petes finally broke the goose egg when Redmond scored from McMaster. He did it with a sizzling angle shot from out near the blue line as the Petes ganged up, the shot being screened and in before Colvin knew it. McMaster stopped Dickens on a dangerous rush in close and Colvin at the other end of the ice just got an elbow on the puck in time as Greenlaw let a bullet drive go. At 6.59, Montgomery scored the tying marker from Leonard and Fryia at the edge of the crease as the Petes pressed hotly around Oshawa's citadel. Leonard came close a minute later, but then Etcher got around the Petes' net fast to rap in a Sinden rebound with what proved the winning goal.

INSURANCE GOAL

McMaster had a good try later and, with Samanski off for hooking, the Petes tore in hard once more. However, Redmond followed for slashing after he ruined a Hooper breakaway. Donlevy was good as Oshawa threw hot rubber his way for a space till [illegible] back. Collins got a hard turf off as the Petes began pressing again, but Thaler put in the insurance marker at 15 minutes on a quick combination rush with Etcher and Samanski, his angle shot catching the open side of the net as they tore in. The Petes fought back fiercely but were checked closely and Oshawa iced the puck at times to relieve pressure as the minutes ticked off. McMaster got off one more good shot as the Petes peppered the Truckers' goalie in the late stages of th eperiod, but it ended in a 4-2 count.

Petes: goal, Donlevy; defence, Montgomery and Munro; centre, Hill; wings, Crowley and Collins; alts.: Belisle, Prentice, Peterson, Leonard, Fryia, Greenlaw, Redmond, McMaster and Armstrong.

Oshawa: goal, Colvin; defence, McBeth and Sinden; centre, Samanski; wings, Thaler and Etcher; alts.: Scott, Samolenko, Wilson, Holden, Hooper, Berwick, Yourth, Peters and Dickens.

Referees—J. Crombie and A. Bellemer.

RANGER REPLY — New York's Nick Mickoski, 11, leaves Canadian goaler Jacques Plante recumbent after "decking" him for his team's only goal in last night's 3-1 defeat at Madison Square Garden. Looking at the puck is Canadian defenceman Tom Johnson. The win assured Habs of second playoff spot in the Stanley Cup hunt.

Robert Batley President Softball Loop

Bob Batley was re-elected president of the men's City Softball League at the annual re-organization meeting last night in the YMCA. Percy Harrison, vice-president, John McPhee secretary, and Frank Wood treasurer. Committee members include George Dormer, Jack Playford, Hose Vinette, Harold Dormer, Ted Naish and Pat Calladine. Fred Scates was named a life member of the league, joining Dave Leether in this category.

SOFTBALL HEAD—Bob Batley last night was re-elected president of the men's City Softball League at the annual re-organization meeting. Indications are that it will operate again as a four-team league, playing twin bills twice weekly in the Ashburnham Bowl through the summer.

Entries were receeived from Ashburnham, Outboard Marines, TPT with a request also in from Cobourg. This will be discussed later. A few other prospective entries are being considered, but the league is likely to be a four-team one. Another meeting will be held April 5 at seven p.m. in the YMCA.

INVITE OASA

No changes were made in the loop constitution this year. It was generally agreed that an invitation be extended to the OASA to hold the 1955 convention in Peterborough. Local delegates to the association convention this spring are: Bob Batley, Harold Dormer and Percy Harrison. The league will nominate Harold Dormer to the executive of the OASA as the present local member of this body, John McPhee, has decided not to stand this year.

President Batley presented his annual report and thanked all who helped make 1953 a successful year for the circuit. Applications for umpires will be received by John McPhee at the next meeting.

NBA SUSPENDS WALLS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Boxing Association reported Monday that indefinite suspensions have been ordered against three high ranking boxers, heavyweight Earl Walls of Windsor, Ont., and Edmonton and middleweights Paddy Young and Pat Lowry.

All the suspensions were ordered, the NBA said, because the boxers failed to live up to contracts.

NBA suspensions are ordered after a member of the association files a complaint. Canada complained that Walls had failed to come through with a scheduled fight against Freddie Beshore in Edmonton.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Canadian Sport Monthly magazine just out lists the 1953 members of the Bols Hole-in-One Club in its golf section. A glance through the dozens of names of fortunate femmes and fellows from coast to coast in Canada who holed an ace last year showed us a couple from Peterborough. Miss Jean Castle and Mr. Slim Pearson made the honor role. The club comprises hole-in-one registered scorers since 1940 and now totals close to 1,900. Members of this unique club receive a handsomely engraved certificate to hang in home or office, these being made available by the originator of this golfing fraternity, Erven Lucas Bols of Montreal.

A meeting is being called for next Thursday evening—trust it's not during the hockey playoff—to check into chances of fielding a senior ball team in the COBL this season. A definite decision should come out of the huddle. Central League hopes to go with four or five clubs, including Oshawa Transporters, Belleville, Kingston and Watertown, as well as the Petes, if they climb aboard right away. Oshawa may seek a berth in a Toronto loop, and a Kingston official told us last week the K's may join an eastern circuit. So, early action is indicated up this way if senior baseball is to be revived this summer in Peterborough.

Deloro Boy In Boston

Stanley Cup semi-finals commence now with Leafs at Detroit and Boston at Montreal, best-of-seven sets. Rangers' upset 5-2 win in Toronto on Saturday dropped Leafs to third spot so they're forced to meet the NHL champs in the first round. However, anything can happen in puck playoffs, and fans would be foolish to sell any one of the four clubs short. Gord Howe coasted into the scoring title again while Harry Lumley earned the Vezina Trophy by a goal over Terry Sawchuk. Bruins recently called up Wayne (Weiner) Brown, second high scorer in the Westren League, a star with Seattle. The Deloro boy played district hockey there and in Marmora before going junior "A" with St. Kitts and then pro in the Boston chain.

* * * * * *

Oshawa's 4-2 win at Kingston last night put the Petes smack on the spot where they must win Thursday's playoff here or face the almost impossible task of taking the Truckers in four straight. Oshawa leads the best-of-seven senior "B" group puck finals by 2-0 (after one tied tilt) and could take a stranglehold on the set by a win up this way night after tomorrow. They struck fast from the first faceoff to take advantage of a slow start by the Petes last eve and 'twas 2-0 in less than five minutes. A furious, even scrap the rest of the way, but you can't spot the speedy Truckmen two tallies and overtake 'em with ease. A crowd of 2,343 (very good in Kingston with no Kingston club playing viewed the streamlined struggle.

* * * * * *

Lady Luck Looked Away

Petes did pull up on even terms at 2-all in the third but Oshawa again set a withering pace to fling two more pucks into the twine ere the finish, and that was that. Locals on Thursday will just have to dig hard from the opening whistle and they'll have to do some bodying if they hope to get back in the hunt. Unduly rough hockey is no good— and results in penalties— but the rules permit stiff checking and that's one method of slowing down a fast opposing squad. They're classy and well-matched teams, but the fact remains that the Truckers are two games up and the season could be over shortly for the TPT-ers if they don't start winning. Playoff hockey on tap at Civic Thursday should result in another packed house. It'll be a sizzler.

* * * * * *

Looks like four clubs will go this summer in the men's City Softball League. Entries in at last night's annual meeting were: TPT, Marines and Ashburnham, with several others reported interested. Bob Batley again heads the loop, other officers including: Percy Harrison, John McPhee, Frank Wood, Dave Leether, Fred Scates, George Dormer, Harold Dormer, Jack Playford, Hose Vinette, Pat Calladine, and Ted Naish. Going to the OASA convention next month, will be Bob Batley, Percy Harrison and Harold Dormer, the latter running for the executive, Umps' applications will be taken by John McPhee at a league meeting at seven p.m. April 5 in the YMCA. The men's loop had a successful season in '53 and should fare well at the Bowl this coming softball semester.

Kincardine Over Stirling

STIRLING (ENS) — A bus and several car loads of Stirling fans motored to Kincardine to witness the hockey game between Stirling and Kincardine on Saturday night. The game was tied when there was only a minute to go in the final period when Kincardine scored the lucky goal. So the game ended 4-3 for Kincardine.

Stirling goals were scored by Scott, Knapton and Hermiston.

Havelock Wins Playoff Tilt Over Marmora

HAVELOCK (ENS) — Havelock, playing the hockey they are capable of at the local arena Monday night, won their second consecutive game in the finals of the northern division T.V.L. by defeating Marmora 4-2. Marmora is now leading three games to two in the best four out of seven series. This game was one of the most exciting and closely contested games of the season, being tied 2-2 up to the 17 minute mark of the third period, when Floyd of the locals broke the tie, being assisted by Doris and Ruttan. Another goal by Doris at the 19.45 minute mark, assisted by Floyd and Kane, clinched the game for Havelock.

NEVER BEHIND

Havelock was never behind in the game, and were leading at the end of the first period by 2-0, both of the goals being scored by the line of Vitarelli, Mason and F. Mortimer, who played great hockey. Hannah and D. Mortimer played a strong game on defence wilth Wootton turning in sterling efforts throughout the game for the locals. Both goal tenders played brilliantly, with Nicholls in top form. Leonard of Marmora received a match misconduct penalty in the last few minutes of play for talking back to the referee after being given a minor penalty. About 1,000 fans witnessed the game, whic was refereed by Goyer and Carson of Belleville. Lavender scored two for Marmora.

Havelock: goal, Nicholls; defence, Hannah and Wootton; centre, Floyd; wings, Kane and Doris; alts.: F. Mortimer, Vitarelli, Mason, D. Mortimer, Laing, Ruttan, Kelly, Scott.

It is expected that a number of rinks from the Lindsay Curling Club will be down next Saturday evening for a friendly game.

There is still room for more rinks for tomorrow's Ostrander bonspiel.

Tonight it will be vice-spiks at seven and nine o'clock.

Curlers are requested to keep in touch with the notice board from now until the season closes. Events are happening awfully fast.

The Shriners enjoyed their annual bonspiel yesterday. We believe the 10 rinks had quite a day.

The Kiwanis Club is holding its yearly bonspiel lext Monday.

It is more than likely it will be a draw from the board bonspiel next Saturday afternoon.

Defeat Ottawa 101-64

OTTAWA (CP) — Toronto Tri-Bells piled up their highest score of the season Monday night as they defeated Ottawa Brookes 101-67 in the first game of the best-of-five eastern Canada senior basketball final.

McKenzie Lines Up Hombre As Partner

BIG IKE EAKINS

Four gigantic heavyweights will be embroiled in the tag team wrestling headliner at the Brock Arena on Wednesday night, when the combination of Tex McKenzie, 265, and Hombre Montana, 325, collides with the pairing of Fred Atkins, 250, and Big Ike Eakins, 270.

Eakins rushed to Atkins' aid against Tex here last week, following which the rugged Atkins-Eakins challenged McKenzie to meet them in a team bout with any partner he wanted. The six-foot-nine Texan didn't fool—he lined up the man-mountain called Montana, which should give their larruping rivals more trouble than they figured on.

Mike Paidousis will wrestle Jack Bence in the semi-final; Alan Garfield will test Jan Gotch in the first bout.

PRESENT ARMS—Roland LaStarza, American heavyweight fighter, hoofs it past a rigid Coldstream Guardsman outside Buckingham Palace in London. LaStarza is in training for his coming fight with English titleholder Don Cockell.

Eskimos Take First Win In N. Ontario League

SUDBURY (CP) — A goal by Herve Lamarche at 5:23 of the third period, backed by a strong defence and some fine netminding by Sully Porter, gave Abitibi Eskimos a 1-0 victory over Sudbury Wolves in the first game of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior A finals Monday night.

For the Eskimos, winners of the NOHA northern group, the first game was particularly significant since the best-of-five set is a short series and the underdog Abitibi team doesn't get a game on its home ice. The winner of the series will play either Owen Sound Mercurys or Stratford Indians, finalists of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league, for the all-Ontario championship. Owen Sound is leading its best-of-seven final 3-0.

The Eskimos playing a tight-checking game, allowed the Wolves nothing. Their closely-knit defence unit, comprised of Bernie Donovan, Clave Eckart, Gail St. James and John Mosgrove, allowed few Sudbury rushes to get by them. When the Wolves did get through Porter was there to stop them.

LATE PUSH

The stocky netminder was on the bit throughout the game and especially during the last few moments when the Wolves put on the pressure in an attempt to tie the score. With the clock running out, Sudbury coach Max Silverman sent out five forwards. When that didn't work, he pulled netminder Al Millar with 40 seconds left in the game in favor of a sixth attacker. But Porter stood firm.

Even without his stick, which he lost in the last few moments, the netminder was too good for the Wolves.

The goal that beat the Wolves, who eliminated Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds after finishing second in the Southern group, was a beauty. It came at the height of a Sudbury ganging attack inside the Abitibi blue line. Lamarche intercepted a Sudbury pass at his own line, rushed up the length of the ice alone, faked Millar out of position and lifted the puck into the net.

Millar also put in a good night's work for the Wolves. Up front Sudbury got the best from Ed Harrison and Pete Horeck.

Forced out of their arena by a five-day ice show, the Wolves will play the Eskimos in the second game at North Bay tonight. Third game will be at Schumacher Thursday and the fourth and fifth, if necessary, will also be played in Schumacher Friday and Saturday.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

Ten years ago this week, Joseph Henri Maurice Richard, known more familiarly as "The Rocket" banged home five goals as Montreal Canadiens defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 5-1 in a Stanley Cup playdown match. The scoffers of the day said that Richard, then in his first real major league season, was merely a "war-time flash"; that he would fade out of the picture, as indeed did many stars of that era, when the troops came marching home and peace settled uneasily upon the world.

But time has marched on, as it has a habit of doing, and with World War II long over, no other player has equalled the 5-goal record of the grim-faced Richard in a single Cup game; no one has approached his mark of 12 goals in a 2-Cup series; no one is close to his 79 points and 54 goals in play-off competition; and it will be many years, we confidently predict, before any player hits the high League mark Richard has achieved, since he shattered Nels Stewart's 324 goals record, and headed towards the 400-mark.

Possibly excepting Eddie Shore, Richard has been the highest-paid, the most vivid, discussed and publicized figure in hockey. Personally, out of hockey action, Richard is an almost isolated individual, polite but aloof and secluded. He is a ruthless competitor, plays hockey under a tremendous mental strain, and this carries over when the game is finished. In the dressing-room, he will answer questions, perhaps politely, perhaps curtly, his degree of moodiness depending upon whether the team has won or lost.

He seldom smiles, for his face is set in grim, hard lines. On the long train-trips that hockey teams must take, Richard does not share the easy sociability and camaraderie that develops. He seldom takes part in any of the card games, played to break the tedium of travel. He retires to his berth as soon as the train is in motion, reads and sleeps, and continues the same routine into the day.

But Richard definitely does not consider himself a superior being. No one will rush faster than Richard to aid a fellow-player in trouble, on or off the ice. In the latter, witness his out-spoken editorial defense of his team-mate Boom Boom Geoffrion. A former Golden Glove boxer, he is a heavy hitter in fistic combat, has laid more than one opponent low with a single knockout punch. But he seldom, if ever, hits first.

Long ago, Maurice Richard has lived down the designation of "war-time flash". His record beyond the war years has been little short of sensational.

Your comments and suggestions for this column will be welcomed by Elmer Ferguson, c/o Calvert House, 431 Yonge St., Toronto.

Cold Figures Cloak Exciting Drama Of NHL Final Series

MONTREAL (CP)—The National Hockey League's final statistics, released today, made it all official for the 1953-54 season but there were a few things to which the cold figures couldn't do justice.

There was the hair-raising finish for the goal-tending honors between Harry Lumley of Toronto Maple Leafs and Terry Sawchuk of Detroit Red Wings.

One long shot that beat Sawchuk cost him his third Vezina Trophy and the $1,000 that goes with it.

The final week-end also brought Montreal Canadiens second place in a bitter fight with the Leafs. Canadiens knocked off the Red Wings and New York Rangers. The Leafs lost to both.

It wasn't until the final week that Boston Bruins clinched fourth place over the Rangers.

FOURTH TITLE

In the closing days of the campaign Gordie Howe of Detroit was already a shoo-in for his fourth consecutive point-scoring championship. Howe finished with 33 goals and 48 assists for a point total of 81.

Maurice Richard of Montreal led the goal-getters with 37 and finished second to Howe with 67 points.

Ted Lindsay of Detroit, with 26 goals and 36 assists for 62 points, was third.

Montreal's Bernie Geoffrion, who played in 54 games compared with 70 for the three top men, finished fourth with 54 points, made up of 29 goals and 25 assists.

Bert Olmstead of Montreal finished the season in fifth place with 52, and defenceman Red Kelly of Detroit, with 49, was sixth.

Rookie Earl Reibel of Detroit finished seventh with 48 points. Ed Sandford and Fleming MacKell of Boston Bruins tied for ninth place with 47 points, and two centre men shared 10th place with 46 points each—Ken Mosdell of Montreal and Paul Ronty of New York.

Mercurys Appear Likely To Win League

OWEN SOUND (CP) — Owen Sound Mercurys, in the Ontario Hockey Association finals for the last four years, are on the verge of taking their second league championship since the 1950-51 season.

And if they win it, it will give them revenge over the team that beat them for the title in 1952 after they won it the previous year. Stratford Indians, who edged the Mercurys 4-3 in games in 1952, now are down 3-0 in their best-of-seven final in this year's series with the Mercurys.

Owen Sound took a stranglehold on the series Monday night by edging the Indians 3-2 on Gerry Reid's goal midway through the third period. Fourth game is in Stratford Wednesday and if the Mercurys win they will advance into the all-Ontario final against the winner of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior playoffs, Abitibi Eskimos lead the best-of-five NOHA [illegible] Sudbury Wolves 1-0.

Reid slapped in a goal-mouth pass in the thriller to give the Mercurys the victory. The score was tied 1-1 at the end of the first period and 2-2 after the second. Roy Leckie and Vern Gardiner scored the other Owen Sound goals. Billy Cupulo and Dinny Flanagan shot the Stratford goals.

TAKE EARLY LEAD

Cupulo's goal gave the Indians a 1-0 lead early in the game. It came at 3:0 on a pass from George Aitken. Gardiner scored the equalizer on a similar play with Jaydee McArthur late in the period.

In the second period the Mercurys took the lead when Leckie scored at 4:47 but a lucky goal allowed the Indians to tie the count. Flanagan let loose with a long floater from left wing at 13:05. Owen Sound netminder Bobby Gillson moved to cover the shot but his defenceman Ralph Hosking, trying to knock the puck away with his stick, deflected it into the opposite corner.

Stratford took seven of the 11 minor penalties but unlike the first two games of the series the penalties didn't hurt them this time. All goals came with both teams at full strength.

Gillson had an easy time in the Owen Sound nets, having only 14 stops to save. Bruce Dale, in the Stratford goal, turned aside 25.

CLAIM SWIM MARK

WARSAW (AP) — Polish swimmer Marek Petrusewicz equalled the world's record for the 200-metre breast-stroke at Wroclaw Monday. The record of 2:37.4 was set at Copenhagen Feb. 14, 1953, by Knud Gleies of Denmark.

Bookies Favor Irish Jumper

LONDON (AP) — Britain's top bookmakers have confirmed Irish jumper Coneyburrow as a clear 8-to-1 favorite for Saturday's 108th running of the Grand National—the world's toughest steeplechase.

Coneyburrow was bracketed with Irish Lizard as 9-to-1 favorite at last Wednesday's betting call-over in London. A flood of money on Coneyburrow in mid-week shortened the big eight-year-old's odds and several London bookies installed him as favorite.

Irish Lizard's price lengthened fractionally—from 9 to 1 to 19 to 2.

Bth Coneyburrow and Irish Lizard are favorably weighted for Aintree's gruelling four miles, 856 yards. Irish Lizard is slated to carry 145 pounds and Coneyburrow 151.

Royal Tan held to third favorite spot at 10 to 1 followed by Churchtown and Tudor Line at 100 to 8.

Other odds: Mont Tremblant 20 to 1, Gentle Moya 22 to 1, Sanperion 25 to 1, Dominick's Bar, Whispering Steel 33 to 1 and Legal Joy 40 to 1.

Remaining entries were unquoted.

Training Camp Notes

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — Milwaukee Braves management said Monday that Roy Smalley is with the club to stay.

"We didn't get Smalley to trade him," said general manager John Quinn. "We got him for insurance in case something happens to John Logan."

Talk swept through the Braves' clubhouse here Sunday when the swap of Dave Cole, seldom-used relief pitcher, to Chicago Cubs for Smalley was announced that the veteran shortstop probably would figure in a later trade with the Philadelphia Phillies for a catcher, perhaps Stan Lopata or Smoky Burgess.

Manager Charley Grimm joined Quinn in denying the rumors.

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Preacher Roe, Brooklyn lefthander who was routed by New York Yankees Saturday, says he won't pitch in any more spring games until he "feels ready."

"That was the worst racking I ever took," he said Sunday. "No matter what I did the ball wouldn't do what I wanted. I'm always a slow starter in the spring and this year maybe I was too eager for an old fellow like me."

Roe, 36, said he will pitch batting practice every day for a week "and see whether I feel strong again."

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Stan Musial's three-run fourth-inning home run on the second pitch thrown by relief pitcher Duke Markell enabled St. Louis Cardinals to cast to a 9-3 victory over Philadelphia Phillies Monday.

Musial, who drove in four more runs with a single and triple, slugged his third homer of the spring exhibition schedule when the score was tied 3-3.

The Cards now have an 8-6 exhibition record while the Phils have lost 11 of 16.

Sign With Galt

GALT (CP)—Pitchers Mel Duncan and Jeep Jessup have been signed for the 1954 season by Galt Terriers of the Senior Intercounty Baseball League.

Jessup, a big righthander, won 15 games for the Terriers last year — the best record in the league. Duncan, also a righthander, chalked up 12 victories for Kitchener Panthers last season.

Boston Bruins Get New Chance Against Canadiens In Cup Series

By W. R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP) — Boston Bruins, who couldn't win a game on Montreal ice all season, get a fresh crack at Montreal Canadiens tonight when the clubs open their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final series.

The Bruins dropped five games and salvaged two ties in Montreal during the regular National Hockey League campaign. On Boston ice they won four times, tied twice and gave up only one game to the Montrealers.

Canadiens hold a 41-32 edge in goals for the season, but the Bruins come into this money series against the 1953 Stanley Cup winners as the hottest team at the windup of the NHL grind. They zipped through their last 12 games with one loss, eight wins and three ties, holding fourth place safe against New York. Canadiens finished second.

ONE MAN OUT

The Bruins are expected to be minus defenceman Hal Laycoe for the first two games—tonight and Thursday—before the series shifts to Boston. Laycoe is suffering from a groin injury, but coach Lynn Patrick still has solid rear-guard strength in Bill Quackenbush, Warren Godfrey, Bob Armstrong and Frank Martin.

For penalty-killing duty Patrick can call on 38-year-old Wilf Du-mart, in Stanley Cup playoffs for the 13th time, and Gus Bodnar, obtained during the winter from Chicago.

Early today Coach Dick Irvin had not said definitely whether Jacques Plante will be in Canadiens' nets. The young goalie, recalled from Buffalo of the American Hockey League when Gerry McNeil was injured, has five shutouts in 17 games.

The Bruins last won the Stanley Cup in 1941 and they now are making their fourth appearance in a row in the post-season series. They were Montreal's victims in the final last year, four games to one. This is the sixth consecutive appearance for Canadiens, who last won the cup in 1946 before recapturing it a year ago.

Canada To Adopt Any Rule Changes

WINNIPEG (CP)—Bert Jones of Winnipeg, president of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association, said Monday night that Canada will adopt any basketball rule changes made by the National Basketball Committee now meeting in Kansas City, Mo.

Mr. Jones said Canada is associated with the committee and they are represented at Kansas City by Don Paul of Toronto.

Earlier the committee announced it has adopted two halves playing time instead of the four-quarter system and revamped its free throw rule.

The new method will allow one free throw on all personal fouls and a bonus shot if the throw is made. This will apply for the first 37 minutes. In the last three minutes, two free throws will be given as in the 1953 rules.

The rule for the last two seasons has allowed one free throw for a common foul and a second shot if the first was unsuccessful.

Riopelle Wins Quebec Scoring Race

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec Hockey League made it official today by crowning Howie (Rip) Ripelle of Ottawa the leading scorer for the 1953-54 season and naming Phil Hughes of Chicoutimi the winner of the Vezina Memorial Trophy as the loop's top goalie.

A third-period goal by Ripelle gave him the crown. He had gone into the game leading Skippy Burchell of Montreal by one point. Burchell overtook him by scoring a goal and an assist while Riopelle was held to a goal in the first two periods.

In the third, however, Ripelle deflected Red Johnson's shot into the net for the deciding point.

The former Montreal Canadiens' winger wound up the season with 31 goals and 60 assists, for 91 points. Burchell had the same number of goals but one less assist.

Andre Corriveau of Valleyfield, who led most of the season, wound up third with 88 points on 37 goals and 51 assists.

Leo Gravelle, Riopelle's linemate was the league's top marksman with 45 goals. He also had 41 assists for 86 points and fourth place in the standings.

Hughes had a six-goal edge over Bob Perreault of Montreal in the Vezina trophy race. He played 69 of his team's 72 games, allowing 185 goals.

Gayle Fielder Wins West Scoring Race

SEATTLE (AP)—Guyle Fielder, Seattle centre, won the Western Hockey League individual scoring honors for the year with 88 points, the league's final compilations showed today. His linemate, Wayne Brown, was second with 81 points.

Fielder also led the league in assists, with 64, and Brown was high in goals, with 49, six more than his closest rival, Gordie Fashoway of New Westminster.

Lorne Worsley of Vancouver Canucks won goalkeeper honors allowing an average of 2.40 goals a game.

Film Producers Threaten Fire 4,000 Workers

LONDON (Reuters)—A British film labor dispute today threatened to shut down the industry in 18 days and bog down production of movies starring Gregory Peck and Richard Conte, and a dozen other feature films.

The British Film Producers Association announced it will give 4,000 workers notice Friday, in answer to a strike begun Monday by 400 film laboratory workers protesting the firing of nearly 2,500 laboratory technicians last week.

Peck, now in the jungles of Ceylon, will be able to do no studio work on "Purple Plain" if the dispute remains unsettled. Nor will he be able to go ahead with his role in another movie, "Moby Dick."

Conte, who arrived in London Monday to begin work in "Mask of Dust," also would be made idle.

The shut-down would halt work on some $3,000,000 worth of new pictures.

FREE-LANCERS LOSE

Contract stars will still be paid if the shut-down goes into effect but many free-lance artists will go without pay.

First effect will be felt in the newsreels, which are expected to end some time this week. In a few weeks, if the shut-down goes into effect, there will be no new movies at all.

The laboratories affected process most feature movies shown in Britain, including imported films.

The technicians were fired for what the studios called slowdown tactics brought on by a wage-hour dispute.

FOUGHT MINE FIRE—This is a group of Draegermen—specially equipped mine rescue workers and firefighters—who fought a blaze in a Glace Bay, N.S., colliery. Two other miners died fighting the blaze in a tunnel of Dominion Coal Company's No. 26 mine which runs under the Atlantic. The fire started from an explosive charge used to loosen coal. The fire soon was out of control and two mines, No. 26 and the adjoining No. 1-B pit, had to be sealed off. The mines will be closed for three or four weeks, affecting about 1,200 men.—(CP Photo).

Nehru Sees Peaceful Power Transfer

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru said Monday "present developments in the French settlement of Pondicherry should lead to the peaceful transfer of power from French to Indian hands."

Replying to questions in parliament, Nehru said:

"There has been a very strong spontaneous movement demanding the merger of the French encalves with India and there could be no greater evidence than is being witnessed there at present.

"Everyone—counsellors, mayors of communes and industrial workers — unanimously support merger."

Members asked if it were true that French authorities in Pondicherry were intimidating people against the merger.

Nehru replied: "I also hear such information, mostly from newspapers, and have no details to give."

SEND PROTEST NOTE

This contrasted with statements distributed by a government spokesman Sunday charging French authorities in Pondicherry with intimidating merger supporters and reporting India had protested to the French government against such activities.

The protest note, the spokesman said, asked France to "take immediate steps to end intimidation and suppression of popular movements."

Pondicherry and three other French settlements on the Indian south and east coasts total about 150 square miles and have over 300,000 people.

France contends officially that a popular referendum should be held to determine French India's future. India rejected the proposal, asserting that French domination of the settlements makes a free ballot impossible.

Prime Minister Nehru has told parliament several times recently that India can no longer tolerate foreign pockets on her coasts.

Pearson Lauds American Might

CHATHAM (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson said Monday night the United States has accepted its responsibility of world power as no other country of such "mastering strength" has done before.

He said Canada has an important role to play in interpreting the United States and its policies to the Far East.

The United Nations and North Atlantic Treaty Organization make it impossible today for an aggressor "to attack us one by one," he said.

Speaking at a service club banquet in aid of crippled children he said defence in Europe is costing so much it "will be that much more difficult to hang on to" but "if we continue to be determined, it can stand between us and any aggressor."

Amputee Chosen For Blood Donor Exhibit

KITCHENER (CP)—A 47-year-old Hespeler man who in his youth lost both legs in a train accident near Guelph, has been chosen by the Ontario division of the Canadian Red Cross to exemplify "the blood donor."

Fred Humphreys, a native of England, will be one of the "living exhibits" used to dramatize Red Cross work at the Ontario division's annual meeting in Windsor, March 25-26.

Mr. Humphreys has made 73 trips to hospitals and clinics to give his blood. On Saturday, he gave his 74th pint at the Kitchener-Waterloo hospital.

He says he has given his blood freely to show his appreciation after his own life was saved after the train accident when blood from an unknown Ontario reformatory prisoner was pumped into his veins.

Jap Socialists Ran America

TOKYO (AP)—Japanese Socialists Monday rapped the United States for Japan's brush with the Bikini hydrogen blast. One press report said some ashes from the March 1 explosion fell on the ancient capital of Kyoto.

While the account from Kyoto conceded that the fall of ashes was harmless—the ashes apparently were borne in from far-off Bikini by stratospheric winds—resentment still ran deep.

The right-wing Socialists prepared a [illegible] that the United States use greater care in atom and hydrogen bomb tests in the Bikini area.

They also pressed the government to reject U.S. offers of help in treating 23 fishermen caught off Bikini in a shower of ashes from the massive hydrogen explosion.

Verne Submarine Comes To Life In Disney Film

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Even Jules Verne couldn't have imagined what Walt Disney is doing with "20,000 Leagues under the Sea."

The French novelist (1828-1905) dreamed up his most famous book in 1870 and it was the sensation in its time. It told of a fanatical scientist who roamed the ocean lanes in a huge submarine. No wonder the first atomic sub was named after the Nautilus of the book. Verne described his undersea craft as being run by the harnessed power of the universe.

Disney has converted the Frenchman's dreamings into vivid reality. This is Disney's most costly film, the bill being estimated as high as $5,000,000.

After looking over the production, I can see where the money goes. Eight costly weeks were spent in shooting locations in Nassau and Jamaica, mostly underwater. A brand new stage was built on the Disney lot for a water tank to house captain Nemo's sub and a huge, sponge rubber squid which James Mason (Nemo) has named Zsa Zsa.

The interior of the sub is another expensive set. Such an undersea craft you have never seen before. The place is done in red Victorian plush with overstuffed chairs and sofas, a water fountain and even a pipe organ. The walls are lined with all kinds of books from bound copies of Punch to rare editions of Shakespeare.

UNDERWATER MEN

Verne described his men as walking underwater without lifelines or other gadgets. Special suits were designed combining the features of a diving suit and aqualung.

Designer Harper Goff told me that submarines had been attempted before Verne's time, but never with much success. Leonardo da Vinci left a design of one. Americans attempted to use a sub on Britain in the war of 1812, and Confederates tried it in the civil war. Neither was successful.

"Verne predicted the double-hulled submarine," Goff remarked. "All modern subs have two hulls, one inside the other." Verne also had electricity aboard his sub. But with all his foreseeing, he didn't predict two basic things — the periscope and the torpedo."

RCMP Blame Italian For Narcotics Trade

VANCOUVER (CP)—An RCMP officer in an interview has identified Charles (Lucky) Luciano as the supplier of most of the illegal narcotics entering Canada via the west coast.

"We believe that most of the opium produced for the illicit market now comes from the Mediterranean area and the kingpin is Lucky Luciano," said Sgt. Harold Price, who heads Canada's largest narcotics force.

Luciano is a Sicilian-born racketeer deported from the United States after serving nine years of a 30-to-50 year sentence on 62 charges of compulsory prostitution.

Sgt. Price has been working on the narcotics problem since 1938 and now heads a narcotics force here of 20 men—double the number stationed in Montreal and Toronto.

Investigating Cattle Deaths

WINGHAM (CP)—Provincial police said Monday they are investigating the death by starvation of 18 cattle in a barn stocked with grain on a farm in East Wawanosh township.

They said they found cattle dead in their stalls, some partially covered with manure. The first animal was believed to have died two weeks ago.

Veterinarian Dr. K. M. MacLennan, said he performed an autopsy on one animal and found death due to malnutrition. Cattle were too weak to reach a nearby creek for water and grain stored on the floor above them was not thrown down for feed.

Neighbors are caring for several cows from the farm.

Man Hurt In Collision With Parked Car

One man received minor injuries in one of two motor accidents reported in the city during the weekend. He was Vern Revoy, 287 Park St., a passenger in a car driven by George Thompsett, 51 Sophia St.

The Thompsett car was proceeding south on Rubidge St., Saturday evening, when it came into a collision with a parked vehicle owned by Charlie Webb, 331 Rubidge St. Damage to both vehicles totalled $200.

Constable Harold Andrew investigated.

Three cars collided on icy streets at George and Hunter Sts., early Saturday evening. Donald D. Mooney, 8 Anglesey Blvd., stopped for the light and two other vehicles driven by William R. Flint, 47 Park St., and Douglas Leal, 666 Montrose Ave., skidded into collision. Damage to vehicles was not serious.

Constable R. B. Caldwell investigated.

Will Not Yield Premier's Demands

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government will not yield to Premier Duplessis' demands that Quebec's new income tax be deducted fully from federal income tax payments, well-informed officials report.

Nor will the federal government agree to undertake collection of the new provincial tax they added.

They said Quebec residents, subject to federal and provincial income taxes, will have to make payments on both. They then may claim a five-per-cent rebate allowed under Ottawa's tax laws at the end of the tax year.

Ottawa's rejection of the Quebec Premier's demands is expected to be crystallized in a statement by Finance Minister Abbott to be made public when he brings down his annual budget April 6.

Turnip Exports Up

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Nearly 403,000 bushels of turnips have been exported to the United States this season from Lucan, Centralia, Exeter and Blyth, it was announced by J. J. Johnson, inspector for the federal department of agriculture. He said the price is about 40 cents a bushel for Canada No. 1. Total exports is expected to reach 450,000 bushels, an increase of 150,000 bushels over any previous season.

Labor Groups Oppose Outside Unions

OTTAWA (CP) — Two labor groups Monday opposed the influence of international unions on the labor movement in Canada.

This view was presented to federal ministers in briefs from the Amalgamated Unions of Canada and the Canadian Association of Railwaymen, both all-Canadian bodies.

General representative Ernest Smith of Toronto said the AUC has a membership of more than 46,000. Vice-president Robert Sloan of Montreal claimed 3,600 for the railway group.

The AUC said it believes the objectives of international labor groups in this country are "both political and detrimental to Canada."

"Surely we are quite capable of maintaining our own distinctive labor movement," it added.

The association also opposed legislation for the checkoff of union dues, saying it should be a matter for collective bargaining.

The association of railwaymen, upholding the AUC on these points, also said the federal government should outlaw Communists from the labor movement.

Movie Star Joins Evangelist

LONDON (Reuters)—Movie star Roy Rogers Monday night threw himself fervently into evangelist Billy Graham's London crusade as it swung into its fourth week.

Last Saturday the western star joined the crusade by leading a rally of 40,000 children.

Monday night he told a capacity crowd of 12,000 at the Harringay sports stadium that boys were wrong to think it "sissy" to go to church. It took a real "he-man" he said, to live a Christian life.

Rogers plans to stay with the preacher's revivalist show for a week.

The Billy Graham organization reported 337 conversions Monday night, bringing the total for the crusade to 6,590.

Port Colborne Crews Prepare Vessels

PORT COLBORNE (CP)—Crews began work Monday to make the first of a number of vessels that wintered in this Lake Erie port shipshape for the 1954 shipping season.

Work began on the Canada Steamship Lines' Midland Prince, but marine officials said work on other ships will not begin for another week.

They expected the shipping season will be slow in starting this year, because grain elevators are generally full and there is grain stored afloat at many lake points.

Dutch Airlines Delays Purchase Of Planes

THE HAGUE (Reuters)—KLM Royal Dutch Airlines, disclosed Monday that it is holding off purchases of jet airliners until American manufacturers develop successful competitors for the British-made Comet.

Traffic manager Felix Von Balluseck said KLM intended to re-equip its service with jets in 1958-59.

"By that time we expect America will come out with new types which can successfully compete with the Comet," he told a press conference.

Balluseck said that neither the present model Comet, which pioneered commercial jet flight, nor the model II could yield KLM a profit margin. The expanded Comet III is not due until late 1956 or 1957.

GETS 10 YEARS—Walter Cierpisz, 17-year-old army private from Windsor, said to have a mental age of 10 years, has been sentenced to 10 years' hard labor for manslaughter. Cierpisz was tried for murder in the rifle slaying of Pte. Robert Blow of Winchester, Ont., in a washroom at Currie Barracks, Calgary, Jan. 5. A six-man supreme court jury deliberated 104 minutes before returning the reduced manslaughter verdict. In testimony a psychiatrist said Cierpisz was a mental defective.—(CP Photo).

World Office Answers With Counsel Present

TORONTO (CP) — Highways Minister Doucett said Monday that C. H. Nelson, former chief engineer of the highways department, refused to answer questions into alleged departmental irregularities without having counsel present.

He was replying to a question by opposition leader Farquhar Oliver.

"I understand he told those present that he would not like to answer questions without having counsel present," said Mr. Doucett.

The highways minister announced last week that Nelson, chief engineer from 1951 until his retirement last fall and who was still considered an employee, was suspended. The suspension cuts off Nelson's sick leave pay.

NO ACCIDENTS

Peterborough motorists were a law-abiding lot Monday. Deputy Chief John Naples said today that for the first time in some time, no new accidents have been added to police files. But there is still a lot of paper work to do, and the deputy was busying himself with a thick sheaf of old accidents. Today a wet snow has made streets skiddy and treacherous, so perhaps the no-accident record will not last.

2 Aldermen Urge Building For Market

Ald. Holt Complains Square A Sea Of Mud

Farmers and shoppers who use the market square got some unsolicited support for their quiet and lengthy campaign for a market building Monday night from two aldermen at a meeting of the board of works.

"It was a sea of mud a week ago Saturday, Alderman Mrs. Alene Holt told the board. "Just a shame to leave it like that; surely there is something we can do for the farmers . . . after all they do a lot of shopping in the city."

City Engineer Chalmers said that paving and drainage would be required to improve the conditions Ald. Holt regarded as unworthy of a Peterborough market.

"I suppose men are not shoppers," she remarked.

Support came from Ald. Powell who said he was often a market "shopper". Farmers were exposed to the extremes of weather, without cover. "I think we could well afford to spend a little to improve things. I don't want to stretch the budget too far, but I believe that something could be done. And, I know from experience that farmers of the market to come up town to shop," Ald. Powell [illegible]

Mayor Graham: "I suggest that we buy Mrs. Holt high rubber boots."

Several of the aldermen looked a bit perturbedly toward the press, as City Solicitor Huycke interjected the information: "Of course the city can't collect toll unless there is provision at the market for shelter in summer, and protection from the weather in winter. That is the law."

$60,000 HALL

City Clerk Outram offered as an estimate the probable cost of $60,000 for an adequate market building. It was suggested, too, that the market hall was available.

"Any one over 50 would have difficulty climbing those stairs," Ald. Powell said. In his opinion a "good percentage" of the retail business in Peterborough came from farmers.

"This subject of the market is something that goes back 130 years," City Solicitor Huycke observed from his delving into its antecedents when the city council decided that the ratepayers were entitled to a parking profit instead of annual outdoor market losses at the old location at Charlotte and Water Streets.

To a veiled intimation about the possibility of obtaining a satisfactory building, Ald. Holt pressed for some kind of remedial action.

"Probably the property committee would look into it," Ald. Farquharson proposed.

"That is what I move," Ald. Holt pursued, and Ald. Dewart seconded that recommendation to take the market problem out of the moth balls.

Sympathetic But Magistrate Fines Accused

Though he said it was possible to have a "great deal of sympathy for the accused," Magistrate W. R. Philp found Carl Patrick Moloney of R.R. 9, Peterborough guilty of careless driving today.

Driving a car he had never been in before Moloney was in collision with a car, driven by Stanley Lonsbury of Warsaw in the early morning of February 12. The accident took place one mile west of Warsaw on the Warsaw road in 20-below zero weather.

Defence counsel Donald Bark brought out that Moloney had volunteered to drive home a drunken man who was unable to operate his own vehicle. This man was convicted in court two weeks ago. Moloney testified that "it took a long time" to get the car started after a hockey game in Warsaw, and that he had driven only a mile, all uphill, when the accident occurred.

Just after he passed the crest of a hill west of Warsaw, Moloney testified that his car picked up speed going down a slope. He said the road was icy and when he applied the brakes, the car veered to the wrong side of the road and hit Lonsbury.

OPP Const. Thomas Armitage, who laid the charge,, said that the road was icy in places. He had had no trouble with his police cruiser, but acknowledged that it was equipped with snow-tires.

Ivan Payne, a passenger in the Lonsbury vehicle testified that this car was on the shoulder at the time of impact. Earlier the officer had placed the impact point well out on the road. Magistrate Philp agreed with Mr. Bark that this evidence was thus useless, but said it was not relevant to the main issue of the case—whether or not Moloney was guilty of careless driving when he veered to the wrong side of the road.

Bernard Condon a passenger in the Moloney car, testified that Moloney had not been stopped at the crest of the hill, as the prosecution had suggested.

Stanley Lonsbury said that he was talking to the accused before police arrived on the scene. He quoted Moloney as saying that a settlement should be made on the spot and the police not called. Mr. Bark felt that this was possible because there was a drunken man in the car.

Moloney was fined $10 and assessed $9.75 court costs.

County To Reconsider Grant Given To 4-H Club

The county council are going to reconsider their grant of $200 for extension work among the 440 Peterborough county girls and boys in 4-H clubs.

In 1953 the county council cut their annual grant from $300 to $200. The 4-H clubs budgeted on the larger figure and wound up with a deficit of about $100 at the end of the year.

At the January session county council renewed the $200 grant and today there was a two-man delegation — Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative, and Ken Best, assistant agricultural representative — asking them to reconsider the size of grant.

Mr. Paterson said that the farm program among young people is being enlarged.

MANY CLUBS

Following are some of the clubs and the approximate number working on projects: Lakefield forestry 80, Norwood forestry 20, Peterborough grain 13, Norwood grain 12, Peterborough swine 10, Norwood swine 15, west dairy 15, east dairy 20, Peterborough beef 20, Norwood dairy 25, Peterborough tractor 15. Two new clubs to be set up this year are a Lakefield calf club with an anticipated 15 members and a Norwood beef club with 15 members.

This year 116 girls will be completing their homemaking project, and another 50 will be in the garden club.

The 4-H clubs include girls and boys' ranging in age from 12 to 20 years. Most of the county council grant is spent on incidental expenses incurred on department of agriculture projects.

A Hot Seat!

TORONTO (CP) — Convicted of spanking a child whom he nearly hit with his bicycle, Lellan Robinson was given suspended sentence Monday and ordered to pay court costs.

Magistrate F. C. Gullen ruled Robinson had no right to hit two-year-old Glen Hyde just because the child got in his way. The boy's brother, Ralph, 11, asked if he saw any marks on Glen, replied: "No, but his seat was very hot, sir. I felt it."

3 Crash Victims Found Dead

EDMONTON (CP) — An air force ground party has reached the wreckage of an RCAF Expediter in northwest Alberta and report the three men aboard were killed in the crash, the RCAF said today.

Killed were the pilot, FO R. C. L. Hutchinson of Wawota, Sask., Flt. Lt. V. C. Dillabaugh of Ottawa and Flt. Lt. R. C. Seale of Vancouver, RCAF accountants.

The ground party reached the scene, 28 miles east of Grande Prairie, Alta., and 240 miles northwest of Edmonton, Monday night but the report the three men were killed was not received here until today.

Boric Acid Found In Baby Powders

OTTAWA (CP)—Health department inspectors have found small amounts of boric acid in three of six baby powder products investigated.

A government reply tabled Monday in the Commons said the three powders contained about five per cent of boric acid, and its presence was indicated on the labels. The other three powders did not contain boric acid.

The reply was made for Stanley Knowles (CCF — Winnipeg North Centre) who asked about reports of possible ill effects on infants treated with boric acid, sometimes known as boracic acid.

The government said: "Reports showed that unfavorable reactions in children resulted when pure boric acid or highly concentrated boric acid preparations—those containing 25 per cent or more of boric acid—were used repeatedly over large areas of abraded or damaged skin."

Several hospitals recently have stated they have discontinued the use of boric acid as a disinfectant.

Killed By Truck

TORONTO (CP)—Michael Kaban, 55, was killed early today when he slipped and fell beneath the wheels of a loaded truck.

No Raise In Pay For City Men Recommended

"The negotiating committee has made it clear that they are not recommending to the committee of the whole council any increase in salaries."

So said Ald. P. J. Anglesey at the board of works last night in a passing mention of the beginning of discussions with representatives of the Fire Fighters Union about the working terms for this year.

The annually presented draft of proposed contracts, submitted from the side of the several unions related to the municipal administration, is a comparatively new device.

The Federated employees, chiefly the outdoor workers, have submitted their 1954 brief. Copies have been run off and supplied to the members of the council for their study.

For the present, City Clerk Outram has been directed in an Anglesey-Farquharson motion to write the Fire Fighters re-affirming,the position of the council regarding the contract,—"that it remains the same as last year with the exception of a few minor adjustments".

Ald. W. Beggs suggested that whatever is done for any of the civic employees should apply to all.

Water, Mud To Get Attention

"A quagmire" on St. Mary's St., a ditch on Glengarry to a depth of surface water that might be a danger to toddling children, were several of the abnormal effects of spring freshets reported to the board of works Monday night.

J. M. Gear, of St. Mary's St., explained that there was no way for the water to move off between the sidewalk and road. He said he realized it was a seasonal condition and hoped that something could be done. The water remains after heavy rains in summer. The street lacks drainage. St. Mary's is one of the new streets between Western and High Streets.

George Minor of Glengarry Ave. said there was about 50 feet frontage where the water was 13 inches deep.

"We'll see what we can do," said Ald. A. B. Burrows promising engineering attention.

Adds To Traffic Problem

Like To Hear Peanut Whistle, But . . .

"I sort of like to hear the whistle of the peanut roaster," said Ald. Stan McBride in reference to an application from one Peter Andrews, a Greek, for a vending license at the meeting of the board of works Monday night.

That note of sentiment was repeated by Ald. Alene Holt, Ald. Gordon Powell and Ald. Gordon Farquharson.

But, the council of 1949 frowned on the peanut push cart as more or less an impediment to the swelling traffic, and decided against issuing any more licenses for that curb line business. Since then, the main street corners have been silent of the liquid whistle.

In the five years of its absence, the insinuating monotone of the roaster has become established as a memory, and with the increased volume of traffic since then, four members of the council felt obviously that it was better left out of the street scene. They were Aldermen Beggs, Dewart, Anglesey and Mayor Graham.

That left decision to the chairman, Ald. A. B. Burrows who remarked that apart from the little accent of sentiment the council should abide by the resolution on the books. So, that will be the recommendation in a small matter that goes forward to the council from the board.

PATRIOTIC

Ald. Holt recalled that the last peanut vendor was also a Greek, an elderly man who died shortly after returning to his native town. Ald. Holt was a helper in Victory Loan campaigns during the time that last peanut vendor was a quiet figure at downtown corners.

"I know he was a very patriotic person from the bonds he bought," Ald. Holt said.

"Possibly he had more money than the rest of us," Ald. Beggs suggested.

"If he had, he put it to good use," Ald. Holt replied.

The information to Ald. Farquharson was to the effect that the peanut man was allowed on the corners of main streets only after 6 p.m.

"Like Ald. McBride, I liked to hear the sound of the whistle," he said. "It seemed to add something to the atmosphere of the streets."

"As a matter of sentiment I'm in favor of it, too," Ald. Beggs commented, "but as a consideration of traffic I have to vote against it."

It transpired that Peter Andrews is befriended by Louis Yeotes.

Utilities, Assessor Reach Agreement On Cut of $52,280

On the recommendation of Assessment Commissioner J. E. Davis, the court of revision today deducted $52,280 from the assessment of property held by the Peterborough Utilities Commission.

Of this amount, $40,900 represented the power dam operated for CGE by the utilities commission. The remaining $11,380 was allowed for depreciation of the older portion of the filtration plant.

As for the dam, Mr. Davis told the court that the department of municipal affairs had advised him he was "on unsafe ground in assessing it. He had conducted an exhaustive research and could not find any other dam in the province that was assessed.

WRONG YEAR

He admitted the assessment department had made an error in assessing the entire filtration plant as having been built in 1953. Sixty-six per cent of the plant had been constructed in 1922 and an extension, amounting to the remaining 34 per cent, was completed last year. He recommended a deduction of 27 per cent for depreciation on the older portion.

Alex Elliott, QC, counsel for the PUC, pointed out that this was the first year the buildings had been assessed by the city. An amendment to the Assessment Act in 1950 had provided for payments on public utilities property in lieu of taxes; but until the 1953 assessment, the properties in question had been located in Smith township. They were included in the property annexed by the city last year.

In a letter read at the opening of court this morning, the PUC complained that although the pump house and the filtration plant were of approximately the same cubic content and built of the same materials, the former was assessed for only $17,404 and the latter for $55,592.

This would indicate, it was said in the letter, that the filter beds, reservoir and settling basins had been assessed: But it was contended that these were machinery used in the processing of water and therefore unassessable. It was also held that the water wheels driving the generator and control mechanisms in the power house should be considered machinery.

AGREED TO CHANGES

Following the reading of the letter, Mr. Davis then told the court of his recommendations in regard to the dam and filtration plant.

"Although the filter beds are used in processing water and therefore might be considered as machinery, they are also acting as foundations for the building; so I wouldn't deduct them," Mr Davis said.

"Did you get together with the assessment department and agree on a settlement?" T. C. Ephgrave, a member of the court, asked.

"That's right," said Mr. Elliott.

"I think that's a wonderful thing," Mr. Ephgrave said.

"We appreciate the helpfulness of Mr. Davis," Mr. Elliott said. "He was able to take a detached attitude towards the matter, in spite of the fact he is the city assessor."

"You're not the first ones who have mentioned his co-operation," said Chairman John Harstone.

Scratchy Will Not Accepted For Probation

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice J. L. McLennan of the Ontario Supreme Court refused Monday to accept for probate the handwritten will of Annie Munro Amos of Oxford county. The will was said to have been drawn up with the help of a pamphlet.

Mr. Justice McLennan said it could not be determined exactly when the will was set down. It had apparently been written at various times, he said. Sentences were scratched out, some rewritten and others obliterated.

The will, reported found in a cupboard, named the persons the woman wanted for pallbearers and the funeral director and specified favorite hymns to be sung at the funeral.

Mr. Justice McLennan indicated no action by Betty Lou Perkins against William McLeod and John MacKay. Mrs. Perkins asked the court to approve the will for probate.

"Accepting evidence of witnesses to the will that she deceased hid the top half of the page, I see that she deliberately prevented them from seeing her signature, if there was any at the time."

Committee Tries Find Counsel In McCarthy Feud

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate investigations sub - committee planned to meet today for another try at finding a special counsel for its investigation of the bitter fight between Senator McCarthy and the army.

William J. Jameson, president of the American Bar Association, on Monday rejected the hot - spot post on the grounds the ABA board of directors believed it would not be appropriate for him to serve. Jameson is a Republican as is McCarthy, the sub - committee chairman.

Senator Karl Mundt (Rep. S.D.) said the selection of someone else to direct the inquiry would have priority at today's session, which was closed to the public and press.

Mundt will preside at the public hearings planned for later, McCarthy having stepped aside to that extent.

WANTS HENSEL CALLED

Late Monday he said he will ask that one of the witnesses be H. Struve Hensel, newly named assistant secretary of defence.

McCarthy said he wants to ask Hensel, former general counsel to the defence department, why the army reelased a report alleging presures from the sub-committee for special favors for Pte. G. David Schine, a rich New Yorker who was an unpaid member of the sub-committee staff until he was drafted last fall.

McCarthy and Roy Cohn, the sub - committee's chief counsel, have accused Stevens and John G. Adams, an army lawyer, of trying to use Schine "as a hostage" to force the sub-committee to abandon its investigations of the army.

The army disclosed Monday it has tightened up its lines against possible infiltration of subversives. A new directive, among other steps, requires all commissioned and warrant officers to sign fresh loyalty certificates.

SECTION OF AN ESCALATOR was unloaded from a transport today for installation in the renovated Zeller store. There were three pieces in the complete unit, each weighing about 1,800 pounds. Assembly foreman expects that the escalator will be in operation in about two months but it may not be the first to serve the Peterborough public: the new Woolworth store, George and Charlotte Sts., corner, may have their two-way unit in operation first.

French Repulse Big Drive In Indo-China

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—The French army announced today that its troops have beaten off a big new Vietminh attack on the besieged fortress of Dien Bien Phu. They claimed to have destroyed one company of the Communist-led rebels.

The headquarters announcement said 175 Vietminh were killed and nine captured.

The clash occurred on the road linking the heart of the fortress with its southernmost outpost four miles away.

At the midway point on this road, the Vietminh tried to ambush the French as they opened the road Monday morning. French tanks and mobile units, infantry and artillery quickly smashed the rebel assault, headquarters said.

The Frech reported they had "some losses."

This was the biggest clash with the Vietminh since they halted their mass assaults on the fortress last week after losing 3,000 killed and 9,000 wounded in frontal attacks.

The French air force today continued "massive" assaults on the Vietminh concentrations under bright, sunny skies.

The rebels meanwhile stepped up harassing guerrilla attacks on vital French lines of communications in the Red river delta in an obvious effort to divert attention from their feverish preparations for new mass assaults on Dien Bien Phu.

But the French said the flow of ammunition, food and medical supplies continued moving steadily westward to Dien Bien Phu. They were being parachuted to fortress defenders, 180 miles west of Hanoi in the mountainous Thai country, from American - supplied Flying Boxcars manned by French and civilian American airmen.

Police Find Two Hanging In Attic

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — The bodies of a navy veteran and his wife were found hanging from a rafter in the attic of their home Monday night, and police pronounced it a case of murder and suicide.

The couple were identified as Joseph A. Wadas, 28, and his wife, Julia, 24, parents of a 10-month-old girl.

Police said Wadas left a note in which he said he and his wife had a "big argument" Saturday.

Medical examiner Aaron Wagner said evidence indicated Wadas strangled his wife with a piece of clothes line and then strung her up from the rafter. He said Wadas then apparently looped another rope around the rafter and hung himself.

VERVIERS, Belgium (Reuters) An electric milking apparatus short-circuited Monday, electrocuting seven cows on a farm at nearby Rahier-Stavelot.

Civil Defence Head To Visit Canada

LONDON (CP)—Sir John Hodsoll, the man who shaped Britain's air raid precautions organization during the Second World War and now heads her civil defence training program, will fly to Canada Saturday, it was learned today.

Sir John will attend the official opening of Canada's federal civilian defence training school at Arnprior, Ont.

Pulp Industry Has Low Accident Toll

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario's pulp and paper industry had the third lowest accident toll in 1953 of the last 40 years, R. J. Askin of Toronto, president of the Ontario Pulp and Paper Makers' Safety Association, said today in a statement.

Ten persons died and 2,973 were hurt in mill and woods operations compared with 18 deaths and 3,267 injured in 1952. Compensation awards were lower in 1953—$1,377,332 compared with $1,518,000 in 1952.

Abitibi's Soo Woods won the woodlands division award in 1953 accident prevention competition. Class A, mill division award went to E. B. Eddy Company, Ottawa; class B, Industrial Cellulose Research Limited, Hawkesbury; and class C, Martin-Hewitt Containers Limited, Peterborough.

Edmonton Police Get "Shake-up"

EDMONTON (CP) — A major shake-up of the Edmonton police department, including acceptance of the resignation of chief constable Reg Jennings, was endorsed by city council Monday night.

Chief Jennings, 61, will receive his salary until the end of this year and then obtain full city pension benefits.

The chief submitted his resignation Friday, just before city commissioners and retired RCMP superintendent Frank B. Baxter of Calgary, engaged to make a broad survey of the department, made sweeping recommendations for a shake-up.

The reports told of high-level laxity and poor police morale. Mr. Baxter said the chief had "lost control" by not keeping "in close enough touch with conditions he must have known existed."

Port Of Windsor Declared Open

WINDSOR (CP)—The port of Windsor was declared officially open Monday when the Imperial London, carrying 24,000 gallons of gasline, docked after a trip from Sarnia.

The ship, owned by Imperial Oil Company, was followed by the Imperial Simcoe, also carrying gasoline, which anchored in the river. Ship's officers reported ship channels in the St. Clair river and Lake St. Clair free from all but minor ice.

Malaria Drugs May Help Fight Cancer, Says Scientist

BOSTON (AP) — The quest for drugs to fight malaria may have turned up some new foes for cancer, a Boston scientist says.

Dr. Sidney Farber of the Children's Cancer Research Foundation here said five experimental compounds originally produced with the idea of combatting malaria have yielded temporary benefits when given to some people suffering from "acute leukaemia and scattered other tumors."

Leukemia is a cancer of the blood.

Farber said that while the benefits derived from the drugs were of short duration, they were sufficiently strong to warrant further investigation of compounds of this general type in connection with the battle against cancer.

The doctor told about it during a press conference with science writers looking into a number of research projects being sponsored by the American Cancer Society.

He said the tip-off on the possible usefulness of these anti-malarial drugs against cancer rested in this:

These particular drugs are, in a sense, bad news to certain vitamins and other materials necessary for the growth of living cells. Therefore, since cancer is considered to be a wild growth of cells, anything that might interfere with such wild growth would be of great importance.

The doctor also told of promising —although still temporary—treatment of leukaemia and certain other forms of cancer with other chemical materials.

He told of one victim of leukaemia, which once was invariably fatal in a matter of months, who now has been kept alive for almost five years. He still has the disease and his improvement is considered only "temporary," but Dr. Farber said, "life is being prolonged, and there is always that possibility that someone may come up with an answer in time to save such people."

Mrs. Eggleton thanked her friends and refreshments, including a birthday cake were served and a social time enjoyed.

Man Charged With Murder

MONTREAL (CP) — Eddie Lavigne, 43, was arraigned Monday in criminal court on a charge of murder resulting from the shooting early Saturday of a 15-year-old girl.

Giselle Brunette was killed and her mother, sister and two other persons were injured by a man who entered the Brunette home and fired a fusillade from a .22-calibre revolver.

Lavigne also faces four charges of attempted murder in connection with the wounding of the other persons. Preliminary inquiry was set for March 26.

Manitoba Wants Step-up Renovations

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Manitoba wants to increase to $150,000 the sum it sets aside yearly for provincial liquor [illegible] commission warehouses.

Attorney - General Ivan Schultz told the legislature Monday the main warehouse particularly needed repairs, but that the Liquor Control Act limited to $100,000 the amount that could be spent for renovations in any one year.

A bill to increase the yearly allocations was given first reading.

The legislature also approved appointment of an eight-man committee on redistribution over an opposition protest that it had too many government members. Five on the committee are Liberal-Progressive, two are members of the Progressive Conservatives, and one is a CCF member.

In the Alberta house, Liberal leader J. Harper Prowse accused the Social Credit government of fixing gasoline prices by setting the amount of crude oil that can be produced.

PRICES TOO HIGH

Mr. Prowse said gasoline prices are too high. He said the Alberta town of Grande Prairie pays 29.5 cents a gallon, compared with the 18.8 cents-a-gallon price in Spokane, Wash.

Premier E. C. Manning said the government does not restrict production "in the aggregate," but that if production were not restricted it would "squeeze out" the small producer.

In Saskatchewan, Highways Minister J. T. Douglas told the CCF government heavier penalties are needed to keep overloaded trucks from ruining highways. He introduced a highways act amendment providing for a fine of $3 for each 100 pounds above the load limit and impounding of the vehicle for five days or until the fine is paid.

Telephone Euchre

STIRLING (ENS) — The Hon. J. R. Cooek chapter of the IODE held a telephone euchre at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. C. West and Mr. and Mrs. George Noble with sixteen tables in play.

Prize winners were: ladies high, Mrs. J. L. Donohue; ladies second, Mrs. Douglas Pyear. Men's high, Jack Armstrong; men's second, Frank Long.

Travelling lone hand prize, Mrs. W. C. Pitman.

Refreshments were served at the close of the party.

Disposal Talks Urged

CARACAS, Venezuela (Reuters) The economic committee of the inter-American conference here Monday urged international consultation before agricultural surpluses are sold in world markets, to avoid harming normal production by other countries. The committee also recommended that the surpluses should not be destroyed.

Mill Foreman Honored After 28 Years' Service

BANCROFT (ENS)—Sixty-six year old John Sutherland, of Baptiste, preparing to retire on Friday evening, was much surprised when his boss, Whitney L. Martin, called to congratulate him on completing 28 years service as mill foreman with Mar[illegible] Bros. Lumber Co.

His surprise grew when thirty fellow employees and a truck load of party fare arrived shortly afterwards. During the festive evening which followed, Mr. Martin presented his long service employee with a handsome wrist watch and Mrs. Sutherland received a useful dinette suite.

The whole affair was a well planned secret and Mr. Sutherland had no inkling of it until the arrival of his guests.

Britain Approves New Exports To Russians

LONDON (Reuters)—Trade Minister Peter Thorneycroft has told the House of Commons that Britain to date has approved $38,500,000 worth of new exports to Russia.

The Russian orders, placed with a group of British business men who recently visited Moscow, included those for 20 trawlers worth $16,800,000 and textile machinery worth $3,500,000, the minister said Monday night.

Derick Heathcoat - Amory, deputy trade minister, said later that discussions now are going on for a further Russian order for British trawlers.

MARKET "WIDE OPEN"

Heathcoat-Amory added that the British market is "wide open" to Russian grain, timber, metals and manganese ore.

Speaking in debate on East-West trade, he said it would be "very helpful if larger quantities of grain could be made available."

He repeated Prime Minister Churchill's statement of last month that the government considers a "substantial relaxation" of present restrictions on trade with Russia would be beneficial.

Britain was "very anxious indeed" to get back to friendly trade relations with China.

Fire Loss $25,000

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Damage estimated at $25,000 was caused Monday night by fire which broke out in the office of Barnes Wines Limited. The fire gutted a basement office, damaged a wine testing laboratory and destroyed equipment, but did not damage wine in sealed casks.

RCAF APPOINTMENT—Group Capt. Richard M. Cox, 37, of Sioux Lookout, Ont., and Fort Garry, Man., has been appointed director of RCAF fighter operations. Group Capt. Cox, who enlisted in 1934 as a member of ground crew and later won his wings as a pilot, had a distinguished career in the RAF early in the Second World War before transferring to the RCAF in 1943. He has attended the RCAF staff college in Toronto, served on the directing staff of the RAF staff college, and also was at the North Atlantic Treaty Organization staff college in Paris.—(CP from National Defence).

Ex-Servicewomen Competing For $500 Award

Along with all other branches of the Canadian Legion in District F the ex-Servicewomen's Branch of the Canadian Legion here is organizing for an all-out membership campaign to be held throughout the present year. The immediate objective is a membership increase of at least 25 per cent., and in addition, the Ex-Servicewomen's Branch is also aiming to play its part in the effort District F to win one of the awards of $500.00 offered to the District in the Ontario Command which achieves the greatest percentage increase in membership. To win the award, the District must show an over-all increase of 25 per cent over its membership at Dec. 31, 1953.

According to Comrade Barbara Waters, president of the Ex-Servicewomen's Branch 452, a strong committee is being appointed to conduct the campaign locally, and to present to all veterans not now members of the Legion the [illegible] of joining with this national organization of service men and women. Special functions will be held to which all non-Legion veterans will be invited so that they may become familiar with Legion aims, objectives and activities. Comrade Grace Simpson has been named as chairman of the Ex-Servicewomen's Branch Membership Committee which will be in charge of the campaign.

Camp Dates Set Numerous Events Coming At YW

The YWCA Board of Directors commenced the monthly meeting Monday afternoon by paying tribute to the memory of Mrs. H. R. Kenner, a past president and honorary member of the board.

Vice president Mrs. Walter Perks was presiding and Mrs. James Fraser led the opening devotions.

Miss Flora Metcalfe reported that camp this year will run from August 8 to 18 at Camp Kawartha and Miss Beatrice Robertson will be director. The campers' annual reunion is to be on April 24th at the Y. Plans for the gym circus on May 7th and the swim revue on April 29 and 30 were also announced.

Acknowledgement was made of a time clock doanted by Miss Mabel Gillen for use of the basketball league.

The swim department's annual Bunny Tea for children will be on April 21st and Mrs. E. W. Collins is convening this. Mrs. W. G. Ovens, convener for World Service, advised that Mrs. J. Perkins of Agincourt, chairman of Y world service for national council, will be guest speaker at the World Service supper meeting on April 1st. Mrs. Perkins is a former local Y member.

From the program department, Mrs. C. A. Craig repotred the So-Ed closing banquet to be held on April 7th at the YW, and on April 10th the Little Women's Club will hold their annual tea.

A new feature coming up at the Y is a Hostess Course, to be held on Monday evenings, starting April 5th with Mr. T. O'Connor [illegible] settings. On April 12 Mr. Arthur Burridge from Pleasant Point will speak on interior decorations; on April 26th Mrs. G. B. Goulding on entertaining and menu planning; May 3rd Mrs. Florence Spencley on flower arrangements; May 10th, Mrs. H. C. Southeran on etiquette for the charming hostess.

BETA SIGMA PHI

Miss Moira Whalon was hostess at her home on Homewood Ave. Monday night to members of the Alpha Theta and XI Iota Chapters of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority for the monthly meeting. Mrs. Iris Sorensen, president of Alhpa Theta, was presiding.

As is the custom of all Sorority members, Miss Grace Ingram presented a box of chocolates with the announcement of her engagement to Mr. Ernest Drury, also of Peterborough.

Names of the [illegible] their reports and new officers were elected as follows:

Xi Iota: president, Mrs. Claire Sullivan; vice-president, Mrs. Ray Kearns; secretary, Miss Muriel Adams; treasurer, Mrs. Gordon Matthews.

Alpha Theta: president, Miss Marilyn Hollingsworth; vice-president, Miss Sheila Briggs; secretary, Miss Flinda Simmons; treasurer, Mrs. A. A. Mutton.

Mrs. Sullivan, convener, gave further information on the concert by Mario Bragiotti, tenor, which the Sorority is sponsoring in aid of the Council for Retarded Children. The concert will be given April 23rd in the Collegiate Auditorium.

Mrs. Jack Taylor took the chair for the program. Mrs. Garth Parnell introduced the speaker who was Miss Whalon. She spoke on an Irish play, "Juno and the Peacock," by Sean O'Casey. Discussion on this was led by Mrs. Ernest McWilliam.

Delicious refreshments were served at the close by the hostess and social committee members.

Feature Miracle Fabrics In Black's Fashion Parade

A whole new textile mystery world is open to Peterborough women and girls who shop at Black's it was revealed in the first of three fashion showings from their spring stock Monday evening. There were 220 women accommodated in the upstairs of their George Street store for this parade, and as many more [illegible] for tonight and Thursday evening.

Fabric developments more in the news this season than ever, and all in the Black's collection; included nylon and orlon acrylon that requires little or no ironing, drycon the crease resisting property, and milium, the wonder lining for coats and suits that sheds both cold and heat.

Unique treatment of staple fabrics, such as a black and white wool fabric topcoat set all over with sparkling rhinestones that are quaranteed not to come off, were shown. And the same tapestry fabric that hangs from many windows and covers many chairs was made into a smart casual skirt and a skirt and weskit suit.

This show, which has been arranged by Mr. Isadore Black, who also does the commentary, offers much in the "two for the money" line, which should appeal to the working girls particularly.

There is a dress that is completely reversible. You can go to the party in a navy taffeta with navy and white check trim and leave in a checked dress with plain navy trim, suggested Mr. Black. The reversible skirt showed white with navy pattern one side, navy with white pattern the other. And then there were twin blazer and skirt outfits, navy coat or white coat with white or navy pleated all round skirt.

Mr. Black said "We are presenting a sprinkling of what we think is smart and new for the spring and summer season" and added the assurance that it was all regular merchandise from stock and nothing too expensiv efor the average girl or woman of this city.

The "sprinkling" included nightwear in several styles of pyjamas and the shorties and a shortie gown topped with a smart denim duster coat; then the sports parade, which was highlighted with a cowboy suede jacket; next the skirts and blouses or sweaters; after that washable summer cottons; then the rainwear collection which started with a trio of military style coats to show the full ranges of sizes; after these came the suits, featuring the loose boxy jacket and straight skirt silhouette; with the suits were shown the furs with two lovely mink stoles included; "better" dresses for teas and parties were followed by the topcoats; and the show closed as all good fashions do with a bridal scene, only this time it was truly a "wedding" dress for the model will wear it for her own wedding soon.

Interesting to note is the fact that a black and white Swiss embroidered cotton model was shown at the Sportsmen's Show in Toronto last week as a "hostess dress." One of those holiday wardrobe outfits of shorts, toppers, skirts and matador slacks which two models displayed very effectively is in a pretty plaid and is a style from the Canary Islands.

The full skirt, after a long period of popularity again, were all worn over crinolines.

Star of the show was young Lynda Harrison who modelled the prettiest dresses, skirt outfits and coats from the children's wear department, and all the time was endearing herself to everyone in the room.

All other models were of the store staff, Molly Harrison, Eileen Collison, Shirley Foster, Reta Gibson, Pat Warman, Ethel Gallagher, Ardythe Halchrom, Judy Welch, Dorothy Foster, Mary Tudhope and Elaine Grant.

Blacks are most generous with their fashion show guests, entertaining them with refreshments at the close as well as providing a fashion show free of charge, and they gave out 14 pairs of their own brand sheer hose and other prizes on draws made by Mr. Black.

Winners of hose were Mrs. E. Hollingsworth, Mrs. Leo Healey, Miss Gladys Langton, Miss Barbara McCulloch, Mrs. Douglas Leard, Mrs. Queenie Jordon, Miss Lottie, Miss Betty Rusaw, Miss Mary Gosselin, Mrs. Jean Menzies, Miss Mary Ferren, Mrs. Reg. Burns, Mrs. Delbert Keene and Mrs. M. Carey.

Two lovely wool cardigans were won by Mrs. Marie Tully and Miss Anne Ferren, Miss Susan Mathews of Norwood and Miss Marjorie Sherry each won a bra. Mrs. Gerald Bulger won a rubber girdle and Mrs. Irene Linton a slip in a new cotton and nylon fabric.

Women Of India Outdo In Politics Says Kate Aitken

TORONTO — "Women in the middle class and upper income brackets are far more politically conscious than Canadian women," says Kate Aitken, who returned today from a 27,000-mile trip around the world. "In the government at New Delhi, for instance, [illegible] three women cabinet ministers and twenty women members. In spite of the faet, too, that eighty per cent of Indian women are illiterate, even village women understand the political situation and many are able to discuss politics intelligently."

In fact, in the past three years all over India, world-traveller Kate Aitken found a great development in women's influence in social and artistic fields as well as on the political scene. Women of the privileged classes have used their influence to build clinics for children, which they administer themselves. In the huge jute and steel factories of both India and Pakistan there are cafeterias where the noon-day meal costs 6c and nurseries where working mothers leave their babies in the care of native-trained nurses.

Mrs. Aitken also stated that women are responsible, to a great extent, for the tremendous resurgence taking place in ancient Indian arts such as sculpture, painting, pottery, weaving and metal work. Women have also undertaken an intensive campaign to preserve ancient landmarks and beautiful buildings.

Men Modellers Are Too Slow

LONDON (CP)—Britain's first big fashion show for men only was arranged by a woman who found that male mannequins can't compete with female models in quick changing.

Mrs. Frieda Sherren reported after the show—a success—some frocks can be slipped on in a minute, but men modellers need 10 to 12 minutes. One poor chap had to switch from farmwear to full highland evening dress in eight minutes.

Mrs. Sherren had 300 spare collar studs on hand during the show for her 10 clothes horses.

George St. Mothers Are Shown Film

Baby Band Mothers of George Street United church met in the board room Monday evening. The program was arranged by Mrs. Jack Telford who opened the devotional with a poem entitled "All on an April Morning." Scripture taken from St. Luke was read by Mrs. L. Edwards, and Mrs. R. Homewood led in prayer.

Fitting introduction to the missionary study of team work in India was "Father whose will is life and good." This was prepared by missionary education convener Mrs. W. Ward. Those taking part were Mrs. D. Metheral, Mrs. D. Spencer, Mrs. T. C. McCartney.

Guest entertainer was Mrs. Arthur Bacon, a former member, who played two piano selections, "Doll Dance" and "In a Monastery Garden." She was thanked by Mrs. M. Marshall.

A film from the "age and stage" parent educational series called "Frustrating Fours and Fives" was shown by Mrs. I. Ellicott.

President Mrs. Stuart James welcomed two new members, Mrs. Robert Hatton and Mrs. Ron Passey, and also one visitor, Mrs. Robert Aspinall, as she opened the business period. Final arrangements for a pot luck supper to be held Wednesday, April 28th, were made by convener Mrs. C. Howden and some plans were laid for a home bake sale to be held in May.

First Alderman's Bride Is Received At City Hall

Two precedents—both involving women—have already been set by the 1954 City Council. One wonders how many more before the end of the year.

The first reception for a bride took place Monday evening in the Mayor's parlor at City Hall. The bride, of course, was Mrs. Gordon Farquharson who took Alderman Gordon Farquharson into the ranks of the benedicts just two weeks ago.

In the memory of City Clerk E. A. Outram, which this young-appearing official is not ashamed to say goes back to the early '20's in civic affairs, there has been only one previous marriage among city fathers during their term of office.

That was the second marriage of the late Walter Stocker, and as Mr. Outram put it: "things were rather crude then". The only recognition of this event shown by Council was to litter Mr. Stocker's lawn with the "Keep off the grass" signs that were his "trade mark" throughout the city while he was chairman of parks.

Now that Peterborough has its first woman alderman things are different. Although Gordon Powell is chairman of the social and reception committee, his right hand committee member is Mrs. Alene Holt who looks after the finer points of such an occasion, such as the lace tablecloth, silver trays, flowers and gifts.

Mrs. Farquharson was most heartily welcomed to the city by Mayor Norman Graham and his wife, all members of the council and their spouses, except two couples now holidaying in Florida, and also by City Engineer and Mrs. A. E. Chalmers, City Solicitor and Mrs. W. F. Huycke and Dr. J. P. Wells and Mrs. Wells.

The wedding gift from the couples assembled to Mr. and Mrs. Farquharson was a salad ensemble in crystal with water lily design encrusted, and Alderman Arthur Burrows, third member of the reception committee displayed his artistic flair by wra[illegible]g it to look like a huge yellow water lily.

A bouquet of flowers was presented to Mrs. Farquharson by Mrs. Holt, following a brief speech and presentation of the gift by Mr. Powell.

A cake decorated with a message of good wishes was cut by the newlyweds in traditional fashion, and then served to conclude a most pleasant social evening.

Mrs. Norman Graham presided at the tea table, pouring tea and coffee which was served with very delicious refreshments by the three aldermen of the social committee.

Girl 18 Discovers Suitor Separated From His Wife

DEAR MISS DIX: Last summer I met Bert, and promptly fell in love with him. He looked about 20, and I was 18. After dating a few weeks, I learned that he was 27—and married, though separated from his wife. I found this hard to believe, but when I asked him about it, he admitted it was true. By that time, I was head over heels in love. So we coninued to date, though the only one in my family aware of the circumstances was my mother, who is most anxious for me to break off. Now, Bert's wife has begun suit for divorce (and I want to emphasize again, I had no part in their separation), and he wants to marry me when he's free. Up to then, that was what I thought I wanted more than anything else in the world. However, a doubt is beginning to creep in. Last week at a dance I met a young man of 19. To my surprise I enjoyed the evening with him and for the first time in months felt relaxed on a date. My problem is, should I tell Bert about this new beau, forget the latter and stick to my commitments with Bert—and should I tell the new beau about Bert. Also, should I persuade Bert to go back to his wife or let him go through with the divorce?

Hildegarde.

FORGET MARRIED SUITOR

ANSWER: The first step is to get Bert out of your life. Tell him you are convinced he isn't the one for you, that you have not been really happy with him, that in view of your personal feelings, plus your mother's wishes, you think a break is best for all concerned. Whether or not you tell him of your new heart interest is relatively unimportant. Your friendship with Bert never should have been allowed to go as far as it has. What he does from that point on is his business—not yours. Whether or not he chooses to go on with the divorce, or to try a reconciliation with his wife, is none of your affair.

Now, on to the new love. Since your friendship with him is in the budding stage, there's no point of making a general confession of the past. Fortunately, your relationship with Bert never became an "affair," and the friendship itself is your only point of indiscretion. If you and the new man become seriously interested in each other, the story of your involvement with Bert should be told. Otherwise there's no reason to mention it.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Would it be all right for me to buy myself a set of rings; I am a widow of 50, and have never had rings, as we were always unable to buy things like that. My children are grown, and I have an income that keeps us quite well. I feel I can afford a luxury or two now.

W. M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Bless you, there's absolutely no reason why you can't buy something you have always wanted and never could afford. Lots of women acquire diamonds late r in life. By no means are they the prerogative of the newly engaged.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I would appreciate your point of view on this problem. I'm a thoroughly contented married man, but I would like to take my wife out once a month, if only to the movies. We have two children, easy to mind, yet my mother, who lives nearby refuses to look after them. She has no reason that I know of, and refuses to give one.

JERRY

ANSWER: There are many reasons why older women don't like to mind their grandchildren. Sometimes they simply are too tired and feel unequal to the task. Others don't trust themselves around small children. Then, again, there are those who don't like to see young folks get off by themselves for a bit of fun. Why not solve your particular problem by calling in a baby sitter? There are many girls and women available for this work. Look over the "Situations Wanted" ads in the paper, or contact the local high school for responsible young ladies.

HERE IS AN EXCITING new taste treat for your Easter dinner menu. Peach halves make festive little baskets to hold relishes. These baskets may be filled with cranberry ginger relish. The relish is made from one pound can jellied or whole cranberry sauce, half cup of raisins, three-quarters of a teaspoon of powdered ginger and eight peach halves. Crush the cranberries with a fork, add raisins, ginger and chill thoroughly. Place a heaping teaspoon of relish in centre of each peach half.

Has No Regrets After Breaking Into U.K. Radio

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON (CP)—Errol MacKinnon of Charlottetown and Ottawa gave up a drama teacher's job to break into British radio. He has no regrets so far.

MacKinnon, 32-year-old straight actor with a voice that attracts many announcing jobs, studied at radio school in Toronto and Boston. With experience, it's not so tough to land radio work here, the netime bank worker found.

But MacKinnon has a lucrative sideline to help him cover the radio blind spots. Since he came to London in June, 1952, he has been the voice behind at least a dozen travelogue films, plus several manufacturing movies made to show British goods to North American wholesalers.

"It was a pleasant surprise when I walked into a cinema house recently and heard my own voice," he said.

"NEUTRAL" ACCENT

MacKinnon seems to have a "neutral" accent, but Britons say it is Canadian and like it. He has acted in several television films for North American circuits—and he's one of many Canadians now taking part in a series of half-hour films, called "The Queen's Men" and all about the RCMP.

In June, 1953, MacKinnon introduced a new character to the radio program, "Mrs. Dale's Diary." He has appeared periodically since as boy friend to one or two of the characters in the soap opera-style show and says "It's the only radio part that brings me fan mail."

Most of his radio and TV parts so far have been small. One was the role of an American sergeant in "23rd Mission," the second play by Montreal's Lionel Shapiro to be shown on British TV.

HAD SMALL PART

One of his first jobs was a small part in "Mac and the Atom," a TV play starring Vancouver's Bernard Braden and with Neil McCallum of Saskatoon in a supporting role. This play has been filmed recently for North American circuits with MacKinnon in the cast.

MacKinnon has been interested in radio from the age of 15. After wartime service with the Canadian Navy he took it up professionally. He spent three weeks teaching in Boston before deciding to come to Britain and his first radio play, a musical, is under consideration by the BBC.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Light Lunch Guaranteed To Catch A Man Easily

Three - handed bridge always seemed like a dopey game to me — until a couple of months ago.

For two months, when I am not at this desk, I have devoted my entire time to three things: preparing meals, attending church building committee meetings and playing [illegible] bridge.

At the meals and bridge games there was always one certain tall, dark and handsome young man (he's the orchid-bearer — remember?) and Marianne.

We've chortled, changed our bidding systems, consumed gallons of coffee and managed to swap our life histories betwen hands — and he was the victor. He won the bridge games (because Marianne and I are such eternal optimists about that turned-down hand). He won the girl. He won her mother's heart too. He is so gentle with my little treasure I have not one doubt in my maternal heart about her future happiness.

You know what this means, don't you?

I have to stage a wedding — next spring that is, for Marianne, of course, will finish her nurses' training.

So, when you write me letters, asking what to serve at your daughter's wedding and how much to prepare for twenty-five or two hundred and fifty I'll be interested —intensely!

To try to shackle myself to this desk this morning took all of the discipline and will power I have, for Marianne is on the other telephone calling her aunts and friends, or entertaining our neighbors and friends (Eleanor and Barb) over coffee while she spills the news. It Happened Last Night after our usual three-handed bridge game. If I were in my usual facetious trim I'd say "She's lovely! She's engaged! She uses Bonds!" But I'm considerably sobered. For her beloved is an RMC graduate army officer and that means one thing we will not be living in the same cities.

Her happiness is inseparable from mine and there are fast trains and planes and cars to bridge the gap.

A few moments ago I asked Marianne what I should write about today. She said "Tell your readers how to make cocoa and grilled cheese sandwiches. That's what Herbie likes."

Since I am almost completely useless here then is

MARIANNE'S COCOA

(guaranteed to catch a man)

In top of double boiler put 4 cups whole milk, and heat covered, over boiling water, until scalding hot. (There is a rule in our house that all milk is to be heated in double boiler. My kids and myself) are far too prone to wander off and practise their music lessons or play another hand of bridge while waiting for milk to heat—and only fly to the kitchen when they hear it boiling over.) Mix together dry 2 or 2½ tablespoons each cocoa and sugar. Then stir into this until smooth ½ cup hot water. Stir this into the hot milk, add a shake of salt, cover, and let heat until scalding hot. Beat with rotary beater until foamy. This amount makes 6 cups but there is never enough.

H. Waddell Speak To Church Group

SPRINGVILLE (ENS) — The YPU of the Springville Church charge met on Sunday evening at the home of Carolyn Whitfield.

Gordon Clifford had charge of arrangements for the program. He chose the topic "What Life is For" or "The Purposes Underlying our Lives."

Assisting him were Margaret Ramsay who read the Scripture selection Luke 19: 1-10, and Jerry Beavis, Douglas Ball, Joan Dunn and Hazel McIntosh who took part in a little pageant.

Bryce Larke, president, announced that arrangements had been made by the recreation and culture committee to meet next Sunday evening, March 28th at the manse with Mr. Hugh Waddell of Peterborough as guest speaker.

Announcement was also made of the Presbytery YPU spring convention to be held in St. James United Church, Peterborough, on April 3rd and 4th.

The local YPU is planning a variety show (including a one-act play, a fashion show and musical and elocution numbers) to be presented in Cavan Community Hall on Saturday evening, April 24.

A short recreation period in charge of Myrtle Seymour and the service of refreshments brought the meeting to a close. Appreciation was expressed to Mr. and Mrs. George Whitfield and family for their hospitality.

Marmora News

Corporal Hector Gould of the OPP and Mrs. Gould of Port Colborne were weekend guests of the laters' parents, Major Percy Gray and Mrs. Gray.

Mrs. John Kelly of Eldorado is visiting friends at Malone.

Reeve K. J. Crawford was the speaker at the Young People's Union meeting at Wellman's Corenrs on Thursday evening. His subject was photography.

Postponed from last Wednesday, the monthly meeting of Marmora Home and School Association is being held in the Public School on Wednesday evening.

Mr. Charles Cassidy has purchased the residence of Mr. Gerald Fox on North Hastings Avenue.

SELF-TAUGHT MUSICIAN

Sir Edward Elgar, British musical composer who died in 1934, was practically a self-taught musician.

WI Recalls 5 Generations Of Farming

SELWYN (ENS)— The March meeting of the Women's Institute was held in the hall on Wednesday evning. Mrs. Kenneth Sweeting presided.

The roll call was answered by each member having a written article on the history of their farm and these were passed on to Mrs. William Elliott to be entered into the Tweedsmuir History Book.

Some very interesting facts about the local farms were brought to light, and one that deserves particular mention is that of the Bell farm, which is operated by Reg. Bell, at present, and the Sweeting farm, operated by Sherman Sweeting, are the only two farms in this district that have been passed down through five generations and never changed names. The land was originally purchased from the Crown for both these farms.

Mrs. Sweeting gave the completion of the report from the convention in Toronto which she had attended.

A nominating committee of three members, namely, Mrs. Wilfred Nichols, Mrs. Evans Blewett, and Mrs. Ivy Northey was appointed to have a slate of officers ready for the April meeting.

A paper on current events was read by Mrs. Chalmer Sweeting and the vote on a short course resulted in "Aid to Effective Speaking" being chosen. This will be held later in the spring, in the hall. A collection was taken among the members for the Red Cross canvassers and this will be forwarded to Lakefield.

Mrs. Donald Raddon was convener for the meeting and her topic was "Historical Research and Current Events." She presented a paper on the history of the county of Peterborough.

She had also arranged a fashion parade of dresses worn almost fifty years ago, her models being Mrs. Hennessy and Misses Mary and Joye Raddon. They also modelled two wedding gowns which had belonged to Mrs. Millen Northey, and the late Mrs. Percy Spencer and a short commentary on these dresses was given by Mrs. Sherman Sweeting who was Mrs. Raddon's assistant on the program. Other items of interest, such as guns, were displayed.

Euchre Held

FOWLER'S CORNERS (ENS) —A very enjoyable card party in a series of card parties held at S.S. No. 2 Smith was held in the schoolhouse Friday evening with eight tables of euchre being played.

Mrs. Harry Archer claimed the ladies' high, and gent's high went to Oswald Westlake.

Consolation przies went to Mrs. Lorne Reynolds and Wallace Darling.

Those in charge of the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Reynolds and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Moncrieff.

Yugoslavian Woman Tests Rocks For Ontario Hydro

TORONTO (CP)—A Yugoslavian woman who fled with her husband and child from their homeland is busy with rock studies that will help engineers plan the St. Lawrence power project.

Dr. Ludmila Dolar - Mantuani works in the research department of the Ontario hydro commission.

She is the only woman in Canada, and one of three in North America, with a degree in petrology, the study of rock formations. A graduate of civil engineering and doctor of philosophy, she has had offers of work in Argentina and in the United States but has chosen Canada.

Her days are spent tapping and examining rocks to decide whether they will be suitable bases for dams, generator stations and various other works in connection with the hydro project.

BECAME TEACHER

Her interest in rocks started in the Alps at Ljubljana, northern Yugoslavia, where she climbed the slopes at the age of seven. When she reached university age, she was the only one in her group to enter geological classes.

As the daughter of a professor of Latin and Greek at the University of Ljubljana, it was natural for her to move into the teaching profession. She combined teaching with research work in mines and civil engineering.

During the German occupation of Yugoslavia, she and her husband, also a doctor of philosophy, decided to make a bid for freedom with their son, then three years old. Lying in the back of a truck, they crossed the border into Trieste, then made their way to Canada with the help of the Committee for the Placement of Intellectual Refugees financed by the Lady Davis Foundation of Montreal.

Regarding their decision to make their new home in Canada, she said in an interview:

"This is the place we want to educate our son, Mark, who now is 12. The Canadian educational system is good because it does so much for the spirit of the child. Instruction in knowledge is possibly better under the old European system but here the spirit is better."

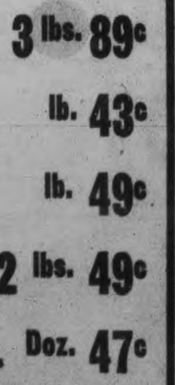
Canadian Signed For Lead

STRATFORD (CP)—A Canadian actress, Barbara Chilcott of Toronto, has been signed for the leading feminine role in "Taming of the Shrew," officials of the Stratford Shakespearian Festival of Canada Foundation announce.

Eleanor Stuart, veteran Canadian actress from Montreal, who also has appeared in England and the continent, has the leading feminine role in "Oedipus Rex." Mr. Mason will play the lead in these latter plays.

Original [illegible] an English actress would play the role of Katherine, the celebrated shrew.



Miss Chilcott, who has had several years' experience in English theatre, will play opposite two other Canadians, also assigned leading roles in "Taming of the Shrew." Mavor Moore of Toronto will play Petruchio and Frances Hyland of Regina will return from the London theatre to play Bianca.

Canadian actresses now have been assigned the chief feminine roles in all three productions for the second annual festival which stars James Mason, British stage and film actor, in two of the plays.

Miss Hyland will play Isabella in "Measure for Measure," and

"—In Memoriam

FORSYTHE—In loving memory of my only son, Pilot Officer E. B. (Sonny) Forsythe, (425 Alouette Sqdn.), accidentally killed at Tholthrope, March 23, 1945, rests in Stonefall Cemetery, Harrogate, England.
The years roll on, but memories stay,
As near and dear as yesterday.
—Lovingly remembered by Mom, sisters Frances and Joyce.

MAHOOD—In loving memory of David Mahood, who passed away, March 23rd, 1949.
Today recalls sad memories
Of our dear son gone to rest.
And the ones who think of him today
Are the ones who loved him best.
—Treasured in memory, Mommie, Daddy, Glenn and Evelyn.

MAHOOD—In loving memory of our dear grandson, David Lawrence Mahood, who was killed five years ago.
The little things you used to do,
The things you used to say,
Come crowding back to memory,
As we think of you each day.
You're memory to us is a treasure,
Your loss a lifetime regret.
—Sadly missed by Grandma and Grandpa Quick and Ted.

MAHOOD—In loving memory of David Lawrence Mahood who passed away five years ago, March 23.
Those whom we love go out of sight,
But never out of mind
They are cherished in the heart
Of those they left behind.
—Ever remembered by Aunt Frances, Uncle Keith and family.

O'TOOLE—In loving memory of a dear father who passed away, March 23, 1938.
I have only your memory dear father
To remember my whole life through
But the sweetness will linger forever
As I treasure the image of you.
—Lovingly remembered by daughters, Rita and Thelma.

CNR President Testifies In Paper Case

TORONTO (CP)—Donald Gordon, president of the Canadian National Railways, testified Monday as the first defence witness in the trial of 27 paper corporations and two individuals charged with operating a combine in the fine paper industry.

The defendants have been charged with operating a combine throughout Canada during the last 20 years.

The crown claims that during a period when the companies were under control of the wartime prices and trades board, they were laying plans to continue a conspiracy when controls ended.

Mr. Gordon agreed with crown prosecutor N. L. Mathews that certain files of the railway relating to bids made for supplying it with [illegible] were missing.

Mr. Mathews asked Mr. Gordon if he knew that when men from the combine investigation organization sought the files, they could not be found?

"I resent the implications the CNR would secrete information," Mr. Gordon said. "Lots of files are lost and I can't find them. It's a big organization."

Defence counsel Hazen Hansard said he would bring out "living evidence" to show the industry had operated throughout to the public benefit.

Kingston Woman Wins Scholarship

KINGSTON (CP) — Miss Ausma Rabe, 25, of Kingston, post-graduate student at Queen's University, has been awarded the $1,400 Marty Memorial Scholarship by Queen's Alumnae Association, it is announced by Mrs. H. A. Graves, Ottawa, scholarship committee convener.

The scholarship honors the memory of Dr. Aletta E. Marty and Miss Sophia Marty, formerly prominent Ontario educationists. Miss Rabe is holder of a $1,100 R. Samuel McLaughlin resident fellowship and this fall will enter an American University to study for a doctorate in psychology.

New Legislation Calls For Milk Commission

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature's agriculture committee today approved a new bill calling for the formation of a milk industry commission to co-ordinate all phases of the industry.

The bill will be referred back to the legislature for third reading and royal assent.

The committee held two meetings to hear representations on the bill.

Educationist Criticizes Neatby's Book

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario educationist said Monday night the ideas Dr. Hilda Neatby has expressed in criticism of Canadian education are not worth a nickel apiece.

Dr. John Long, director of educational research at the Ontario College of Education, said Dr. Neatby in her recent book, "So Little For The Mind," "presents criticisms which I consider to be quite unfair and she offers a picture of Canadian education which I think is quite inaccurate."

Dr. Neatby is professor of history at the University of Saskatchewan. She was the only woman member of the Massey commission on national development in the arts, letters and sciences.

She claimed in her book that children in elementary and high schools are bored and do not want to learn. She blamed teaching directed at the mediocre members of the class. She said western civilization faces the danger of "expressing democratic equality in terms of a dull level of mediocrity."

IMPLAUSIBLE ARGUMENTS

Speaking during a panel discussion at Forest Hill village junior high schools, Dr. Long said:

"Dr. Neatby uses English exceptionally well, a fact which to the poorly-informed tends to lend an aura of plausibility to even her most implausible arguments.

"She squanders a lot of $64 language on a lot of ideas which, if they were retailed at a nickel apiece, would represent profiteering."

He said Dr. Neatby's book content shows she is an armchair critic who has had little first-hand contact with the schools.

GETTING THE RUSH — Two deputy U.S. marshals forcibly remove Myles Horton, centre, of Monteagle, Tenn., from the Senate Internal Security sub-committee hearing in New Orleans, La. His removal was ordered when he refused to answer questions about a former instructor at the Highlander Folk School of which he is a director.

Canada, India May Play Part In Admitting China Into UN

LONDON (CP) — The Manchester Guardian today says a "sympathetic meeting" in New Delhi between Prime Ministers St. Laurent of Canada and Nehru of India may play a part ultimately in bringing Communist China into the United Nations.

A front page [illegible] New York, under the byline of the Guardian's chief American correspondent, Alistair Cooke, refers to Nehru's "persuasions" in talks with the Canadian leader, and says Nehru implied "that India can be as much of a reconciling force between the east and west as Canada is between western Europe and the United States."

After discussing the pros and cons of UN recognition of Communist China, including a reference to strong American opposition, Cooke adds:

"Mr. Nehru's theory that India stands in the same relation between the east and west as Canada does between western Europe and the United States is a flattery that is bound to appeal to the Canadians in the pride of their new industrial and financial power.

ADMISSION INEVITABLE

"Also, Canadian foreign policy is a new and dashing craft, less bound by dogma than the United States, less victimized than Europe by historical fatalism. The Canadians feel with the Europeans that the admission of China to the United Nations is inevitable. . . . Consequently the Cnadian government is coming to the conclusion that the practical thing to do with the inevitable is to mudge it into being."

The dispatch was printed above a news agency report from Ottawa quoting the prime minister as saying he knew of no consideration being given by Canada to recognition of Communist China or support of the Peiping regime for membership in the UN. The prime minister made the statement in the House of Commons Monday in reply to a question from Opposition leader Drew.

Comet Jets Back In Service

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's Comet jet airliners went back into the passenger-carrying business today after having been grounded 10 weeks because of a still-unexplained Comet crash in the Mediterranean, with 35 fatalities.

The screech of powerful jet engines at London airport and in Johannesburg signalled the reopening of British Overseas Airways Comet service between Britain and South Africa. Other Comet services to Pakistan, India, Ceylon, Singapore and Japan will be resumed soon.

The Comets were withdrawn temporarily from service after the crash off the isle of Elba Jan. 10 with the loss of all on board. Before being allowed to fly passengers again they were given a bolt-by-bolt inspection which revealed no structural weaknesses and no clue to the disaster.

OBITUARIES

ENOS HAYNES

Enos Haynes of 474 Elm St., died on Monday in hospital following a prolonged illness.

He was born in Castleton 79 years ago, son of the late Edward Haynes and Mary Salter, and lived in that district continuously until 14 years ago when he moved to Peterborough. His wife, the former Agnes Bookout, predecased him 19 years ago.

He leaves one daughter, Mrs. Harry Peden (Gertrude) and a son Rex, both of Toronto. Two other sons, Glen and Raymond Haynes, live in Peterborough. Mr. Haynes was a member of Castleton United Church.

Funeral service will be held at Comstock funeral home chapel on Thursday morning at 10:30. The Rev. Henry Cotton of St. Andrew's United Church, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Griffith of Castleton, will officiate. A second service will be held at Castleton United church the same day at 2 p.m., conducted by Mr. Griffith. Burial will be at Castleton cemetery.

JOHN CHARLES RISEBOROUGH

NORWOOD (ENS)—A resident of Norwood for 30 years, John Charles Riseborough, 74, died suddenly today at his home.

Born in Harwich township, near Chatham, he was the son of the late James Riseborough and Emma Dennis. Before coming to Norwood, he lived in Chatham and district.

A former CPR station agent, he retired in April, 1944. He was a member of Norwood United church and the Order of Railroad Telegraphers.

He is survived by his widow, the former Sarah Agnes Seeley; two sons, Oliver of Ottawa and Wilson of Hamilton; a sister, Miss Bertha Riseborough of Blenheim, Ont.; and three brothers, Frederick of Toronto, Sydney of Thamesville and Dr. Lorne Riseborough of Port Huron, Mich.

The funeral service will be held Thursday at the McConnell-Warner funeral home at 2 p.m., the Rev. H. K. Wright officiating. Burial will be in Norwood cemetery.

Woman Driver Fined

Mrs. Anna Mills of Hastings was fined $75 and costs in magistrate's court today on a charge of driving while her ability was impaired by alcohol. Police chief Robert Hall of Havelock testified that he had found Mrs. Mills behind the wheel of a car in a Havelock street in the early morning of March 14, and that she later was "very unsteady on her feet". Her husband was a passenger in the automobile.

Duke Donates Hockey Trophy

OTTAWA (CP) — A trophy emblematic of championship of the senior professional hockey leagues of Canada has been donated by the Duke of Edinburgh, it was announced today.

The trophy will go to the winner of the recently formed east-west series between the Quebec Hockey League champions and the Western Hockey League titlists.

The Duke of Edinburgh has consented to donate and sponsor the trophy, and final arrangements were completed this week.

Two Charged in Theft

A banjo, a woman's hat, food and a radio were among the items allegedly stolen by two youths from Lakefield cottages March 19. Walter George Lane was charged with five offenses involving breaking and entering, while Walter Herbert Soles was charged with receiving stolen goods. Both were remanded to March 30 for sentence after they pleaded guilty and Crown evidence was heard.

Car Thieves Sentenced

RIDGEWAY (CP) — Fred Bourage and James Coles, both 16, of St. Catharines, were given suspended sentence and placed on probation for 18 months in connection with the thefts of three cars. The pair was arrested in Barrie in a stolen car by Provincial Police.

C Of C To Hold Dinner 65th Anniversary

Past-president of the International Chamber of Commerce, J. Douglas Ferguson of Rock Island, P.Q., will be guest speaker at the 65th annual dinner of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce tonight.

Mr. Ferguson is vice-president and general manager of Spencer Supports (Canada) Limited having become general manager of the former Spencer Corset Company in 1933.

He was born in Bracebridge, spent his early years in Toronto where he attended University of Toronto, and in 1924 joined the Bell Telephone Company and remained with that company for ten years.

Charter president of the first Rotary Club in the world to have territory for membership in two countries, Canada and the United States in Quebec and Maine, he is also a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, life governor of the Antiquarian and Numismatic Society of Montreal and honorary chairman of the board of trustees of Stanstead College.

Among several out-of-town visitors expected to attend the dinner are J. C. Whitelaw, general manager, G. C. Barnard, manager of Ontario division and J. Ross Bolton, chairman, all of the Canadian Manufacturers Association, Toronto. President of the Peterborough Chamber, Sam Whitehouse will chair the dinner and entertainment will be provided by PCVS triple-trio singers.

J. D. FERGUSON

Radio, TV Stars Put On Show For Convicts

KINGSTON (CP) — An entertainment group including Toronto radio and television performers put on a show for about 800 prisoners in the big federal penitentiary here.

The program Monday, with the Billy O'Connor quartet and comedienne Libby Morris, ranged from Irish melodies to the blues.

Toward the end of the show, O'Connor called out to warden R. M. Allen:

"How long have we got?"

And from the back of the hall came the answer:

"Years!"

Introduce Two Bills For Promised Cuts

TORONTO (CP) — Bills introduced Monday in the legislature would provide for two minor tax cuts promised by Premier Frost in his budget speech.

One would eliminate security transfer tax on bonds guaranteed by the provincial and federal governments.

The other would reduce succession duties in certain cases involving adopted children.

U.S. Group In Pakistan

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP)—An American military mission arrived Monday night from London to survey Pakistan's military requirements for the purpose of United States military aid to this country. The 11-man mission will spend two weeks in Pakistan touring military estalishments.

U.S. Airforce Spokesman Refutes "Flying Saucer" Statements

By VERN HAUGLAND

WASHINGTON (AP)—A spokesman today termed without basis an assertion that the United States Air Force has recovered pieces of "flying saucers" and just isn't telling the public about them.

The air force position, he said, is that "given enough factual data" every "flying saucer" report over the last six years could be explained in natural, earthly, nonsensational terms.

"We don't think the so-called saucers come from outer space or from a foreign government," the spokesman said.

Bill Nash, a Pan American World Airways pilot, told the Greater Miami Aviation Association recently that he was convinced that, "The air force has collected hardware from outer space."

"I do not believe the air force cares to make all its findings public so long as the United States is threatened by unfriendly powers," Nash said.

SAW SIX

Nash was quoted as having reported sighting unidentified objects while flying from New York to Miami on a date not specified.

Nash said he and his crew saw six objects, later joined by two others.

"From their manoeuvres, there is no doubt in my mind these objects were controlled by intelligent beings," Nash said. "When you have seen them you realize they were not made on this planet."

The defence department officer currently handling "saucer" queries said that to date more than 80 per cent of the sightings, both visual and by radar, have been identified as of known objects. From 10 to 15 per cent had been outright hoaxes.

"The others probably could be explained if our knowledge of physics was greater," he said. "There are many things about the sky that science still doesn't understand."

Wings And Leafs Renew Feud In Stanley Cup

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs, hockey's most heated playoff rivals, renew their feud tonight in the opening game of the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Champions of the National Hockey League for six straight seasons, the Red Wings are favored in the best-of-seven semi-final series to reverse last year's sorry showing in the preliminary round. The winner will advance to the finals against the winner of the Boston-Montreal series.

Detroit and Toronto have met 13 times in the playoffs, with the Maple Leafs winning eight times and the Red Wings five. The odds, however, favor Detroit this time.

Toronto is bucking a terrific jinx against the Wings. The Maple Leafs haven't won in Olympia Stadium, scene of the first two playoff games, since Nov. 2, 1952. During that spell, they lost nine times and tied three.

BEST RECORD

In the last campaign Toronto was all but stifled in its seven visits to Olympia. They lost five times and tied twice, being shut out on five occasions and held to a mere four goals.

Toronto has been the best playoff club in the league. The Maple Leafs have won the league championships only once but lead in playoff victories with seven. Detroit, despite nine regular season titles, has captured the playoffs only five times—and only twice in the last five championship seasons.

The Red Wings folded badly in last year's post-season play, losing in a first-round upset to the Boston Bruins, a team which they had whipped all year.

The second game of the series will be played in Olympia Thurs- Toronto for games Sunday Tuesday. If a fifth game is necessary, it will be played in Detroit Thursday.

Manager Clarence (Hap) Day and coach King Clancy aren't making any predictions. Day said he feels the Leafs won't get "very far if they don't avoid foolish penalties" like they've been getting lately.

Helen Brown Leads

Helen Brown rolled high three of 699, including singles of 282 and 218, in the Mercantile Bowling League. Doug Smith had a 300 single in his 675 three. The 7-0 wins went to Ackison, Charl. Credit No. 1, Seabrooke, Bob & Betty, Dominion and Combines over Pet. Co-op, UCO, Canoe, Turner's, Austin's and Tent & Awning; the 5-2 victories were taken by Express over Loblaws and by Charl. Credit No. 2 over Jets. A 4-3 split went to Mustangs against Cherney's No. 2.

Good triples: M. O'Donnell (273) 674, T. Storey (255) 672, E. Smith (283) 683, M. Carveth (244) 672, J. Young (244) 670, T. Holyman (292) 667, R. Martell (256) 652, K. Holbrook (258) 648, R. Two Scholarship Winners Announced

HAMILTON (CP)—Two winners of the A. G. Alexander scholarship were announced today by McMaster University. They were John Richard Neal, Hamilton, and Donald Russell Hawkins, St. Catharines.

The scholarships, valued at $1,500 each, are awarded, at the end of third year on the basis of excellence in French, German, English and history.

They enable the winners to study abroad during the summer vacation, before their final year at McMaster. Both winners have booked passage for England and the continent and will leave after the year's final examinations.

Parry Sound One Game Up

LINDSAY (ENS) — The Lindsay Regent Muskies dropped one game behind the Parry Sound Shamrocks in their OHA intermediate "A" series Monday night when they lost a 5-3 to the Shamrocks in Parry Sound.

The Muskies took a 2-1 lead in the first period, Green and Davis scoring, with Neil Ryder countering for the Shamrocks.

In the second the Muskie defence became badly disorganized, and the Shamrocks took the lead they never lost. Doug Orr scored early in the period, then Buck Abbott Scott and Neill Ryder tallied three times within two and a half minutes.

Stu Hicks, who was the Muskies top forward, was finally rewarded by a goal in the third period.

The game was rough but clean with only one fight. Davis of the Muskies and McCahery of the Shamrocks tangled after McCahery had been penalized for cross-checking in the dying minutes of the third period.

Fourth game of the series will be played Wednesday night in Lindsay.

'Quake Hits Italy

VERONA, Italy — (Reuters) — Frightened tourists fled from their hotels along the shores of Lake Garda, in northern Italy, early today as a series of earth tremors set buildings creaking and chandeliers swinging. The shocks were particularly violent at the vacation resort of Brenzone. Twelve tremors each lasting 10 to 12 seconds, shook the town.

Says TV Screen Will Claim Public Attention

QUEBEC (CP) — A prominent British editor said Monday night "the television screen far more than the printed page is going to shape this century of the common man."

Malcolm Muggeridge, editor of Punch, the British humor magazine, in a speech at the annual dinner of the Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters, flayed state control of radio.

The slim, white-haired editor, who described himself as "unhumorous" and said he sometimes lies awake thinking of "the delights of life without humor" is well known for trying to bring competitive commercial television to Britain where the state-controlled BBC operates TV.

"The same arguments exist as existed at the time of the invention of printing for keeping so potent an instrument for influencing others in public hands, and they can likewise be refuted," he said.

Tracing the development of the BBC in radio Mr. Muggeridge said "What turned so many politicians and noble lords into ardent champions of the BBC was, of course, not the virtue they affected to find in it so much as the vast and ever-growing power it represented."

Unemployment Rises In Buffalo

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — The New York state employment service says unemployment in the Buffalo-Niagara Falls area had risen to 29,000 as of mid-February —a figure equivalent to 5.6 of the total labor force for the area.

Leo A. Sweeney, district superintendent of the employment service, said 4,500 persons were added to the jobless rolls between mid-January and mid-February.

About half of the layoffs were in manufacturing lines, while the rest were in non-manufacturing enterprises making seasonal curtailments.

Non-manufacturing employment of 226,500 was down 700 from the same time a year ago. The 210,700 employed in the manufacturing field compares to a figure of 215,900 for the same period in 1953.

Says Republicans Are Halting St. Lawrence Seaway Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican leadership in the House of Representatives is "dragging its feet" on St. Lawrence seaway legislation, representative John Blatnik (Dem. Minn.) contended today.

Expressing bitter disappointment over failure of the House rules committee to complete action on the measure and sent it to the House itself for debate, Blatnik said "We are getting a double shuffle by the House leadership."

Chairman Leo Allen (Rep. Ill.) of the rules committee said after Monday's session that there was no intention on the part of the House leadership to delay the bill.

Allen predicted it will be out of the committee in time for passage this session.

SENATE APPROVED

But Blatnik told a reporter he could see no reason for the delay. He is a member of the House public works committee, which earlier this year by a 23-to-6 vote approved the controversial legislation. The Senate on Jan. 20 passed it, 51 to 33.

Blatnik included Speaker Joseph Martin (Rep. Mass.) and majority leader Charles Halleck (Rep. Ind.) along with Allen among those whom he said are holding back on the measure.

Allen announced after a two-hour hearing before the rules committee that there would be a delay until April 1 before his rules group considers it again.

Famed Swimmer To Look Over Lake Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — Florence Chadwick, who gave up competitive long-distance swimming when she became tired of "double-crossing channels," may try to conquer Lake Ontario this summer. It depends on the answers to a "few thousand questions" about the course.

She has a date to look over the choppy, ice-cold waters today from the comfort of a Royal Canadian Navy vessel. "I want to know about currents, temperatures, cross-winds and so on and if the answers are satisfactory, and my managers say okay, I'll probably attempt the swim," she said in an interview Monday.

The attractive 34-year-old Miss Chadwick, from San Diego, Calif., only woman to swim the English channel both ways, arrived here to check arrangements for the 30-mile swim scheduled for late August or early September. The route hasn't been determined but it is probable that Fort Niagara, N.Y., will be the starting point and the Toronto lakefront, in the southwest section of the city, the finish line.

Sponsor of the swim, the Canadian National Exhibition, has offered a purse of $25,000 with first prize of $10,000.

George Duthie, CNE sports director, said later that "If Miss Chadwick tells us she thinks the course is an impossible one, we would not be inclined to go against her opinion and hold the marathon."

Will Inaugurate Harness Racing

TORONTO (CP) — Thistledown nets racetrack, where running races have been held for a half-century except in 1917, when curtailed by a government war ban, will forego the thoroughbreds this season and turn to harness racing.

An anouncement by general manager Lucien Chartrand ended a dispute over purse money between the track and the Quebec branch of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association.

Chartrand said that at an emergency meeting in Toronto Saturday directors of Blue Bonnets voted unanimously to operate the track this year without running races.

It was indicated that Ontario owners of harness-racing horses were favorable to Blue Bonnets, and Blue Bonnets will operate in competition with Richelieu Park, at nearby Pointe aux Trembles.

Chartrand said that with the closing of races at Dufferin Park in Toronto, the standardbreds will be moving to Blue Bonnets in a few days. Tentative plans, dependent upon the weather, call for harness racing to start at Blue Bonnets April 23.

City Carpetball

The schedule for the week of March 29 is: Fire Hall No. 4 vs. Glens No. 6; Legion No. 9 vs. Red Patch No. 13; L.O.L. No. 12 vs. Orphans No. 8; Legion No. 1 vs. Legion No. 3; Lawn Boys No. 2 vs. Fire Hall No. 10; Legion No. 11 vs. Legion No. 7; Post Office No. 14 vs. Legion No. 5.

Results of last weeks play: Legion No. 5 won two close games from Legion No. 3 by scores of 12-8 and 13-10, the latter game being won in the final end by a four. L.O.L. No. 12 won the first game over Legion No. 1 by 19-6 but bowed to Legion No. 1 to the tune of 10-18 in the second game. Post Office No. 14 won over Legion No. 7, 15-7, in the first game. The second one was a real tight one which finally went to No. 7 by a 16-15 score.

Both games went to Legion No. 9 by scores of 14-10, 13-11 over Lawn Boys No. 2, but No. 9 had to take the last two ends of the last game to win.

Fire Hall No. 10 also captured both games by scores of 9-7 and 13-4 over Glens No. 6.

BEAT RED PATCH

Coming from behind in the second game Legion No. 11 also won both games from Red Patch No. 13 by scores of 15-7 and 11-8. Fire Hall No. 4 won the first from Orphans No. 8 by a 20-2 score and after leading in the second game faltered and the Orphans went on to win 15-7 by capturing the last three frames.

The game reported defaulted last week was played and Legion No. 1 won both games from Legion No. 5 by 9-7 and 17-7.

Results of the Gracie's Doubles last week: Team No. 19 defaulted to team No. 31 (Hicks and Lundy); Team No. 22 (Bromley and Metcalfe) won by default over Team No. 20.

Team No. 9 (Hewson-Gracie) bowed in first game when team No. 4 (Pooley-Wilson) made it a tie 5-all game in the eighth frame and No. 24 won the two extra ends 8-5. The second game was captured by No. 9 by the same score. The third saw No. 9 eliminated when after leading they allowed No. 24 to score a four and then a three in the final two frames and the score was 12-6 against them. Team No. 25 (Cummings-Moyes) won the first game by a 10-4 score over Team No. 3 (Lord-Harrison). The second game was No. 3 all the way as they won 14-4. The third game was not won and was very close until going into the sixth frame. No. 5 scored a three and another three in the seventh end and then a two to take a lopsided 11-3 win over No. 3.

The draw for Wednesday, March 24 is: At 7.00 p.m. Team No. 11, Dionne and Amyotte vs. Team No. 14, Weaver-Nicholls, along with Team No. 23, Robinson-Ralston vs Team No. 23, Pilling-Gimblett. At 8.30 p.m. Team No. 5, Read-McLean vs Team No. 16, Holden-Hopgood, also Team No. 1, Starr-Findley vs Team No. 29 Vollans-Crough.

SECOND DRAW

The second round draw for the doubles to be played Wednesday March 31 is at 7.00 p.m. Team No. 6 McMullen-McPhee vs Team No. 22, Bromley-Metcalf, along with the winner of teams No. 1 and 29 vs Team No. 25, Cummings-Moyes; at 8.30 p.m. Team No. 26, Graham-Herr, vs Team No. 21, Irwin-Bloom, also Team No. 30, Wilson-Steadman vs winners of teams No. 23 vs 32.

One President Cup game has been reported. Legion No. 9 won in two straight over Red Patch No. 13 by scores of 12-6 and 9-3. But they had to came from behind in the first game to win it and as a result No. 13 is eliminated.

The date for the ticket draw is drawing close; get those tickets out of your pockets and sell them.

Canadian Hockeyists Beat Japanese 17-1

TOKYO (AP) — A visiting Canadian hockey team drubbed the Waseda University squad 17-1 tonight in the opener of a 10-game series in Japan by the Kenora Thistles, 1953 western Canada intermediate champions.

The Canadians scored five goals in the first period—three in 18 seconds—four in the second and eight in the third. The Japanese got their lone goal in the second period.

Scorers for Canada were Ray Simoneau and Don Bloom with three, Ken Robertson, Murray Robertson and Ray Westlund with two, and Frank Richards, Sam Robertson, Dick Elliott, Lorne Johnson and Don Robertson with singles.

MAY COME TO CANADA

WASHINGTON (AP)—Eddie Lebaron, a little man in a big man's game, may scrap his American career for a fling at Canadian football.

There's nothing definite yet, Lebaron said after two rather fruitless days of conference with George Preston Marshall, owner of Washington Redskins. Lebaron was on his way home to California today without making a decision.

Unlike most of the American players who have jumped to Canada, Lebaron said he isn't overly attracted by the money.

Eddie wouldn't tell reporters the reason for the Canadian lure, but it's no secret that he'd just as soon play for somebody other than the Redskins' coach, Curly Lambeau.

The Canadian club which has been after Lebaron is Calgary Stampeders, coached by Larry Siemering, who was Eddie's coach at the College of the Pacific and was on the coaching staff of the Redskins last season.

Lebaron and Lambeau clashed more than a few times last year over what kind of quarterbacking the Redskins should employ. Eddie was none too happy, either, about Lambeau's repeated pronouncements praising Lebaron's understudy, rookie Jack Scarbath.

COCKELL-WALLS MAY CLASH

TORONTO (CP)—Frank Tunney, Toronto boxing promoter, cabled London Monday suggesting Don Cockell, British Empire heavyweight champion, defend his title in Toronto against Earl Walls, Canadian champion now ranked seventh among the world heavyweights.

Cockell is scheduled to fight Roland La Starza, ranking American heavyweight, in London March 30. The Tunney offer would hinge on a Cockell victory.

In London it was reported Walls' British representative had received "a good offer from a syndicate" for the Canadian fighter to meet the winner of the La Starza-Cockell contest in London's 18,000-seat Earl's Court Arena.

SEEKS PARTNER

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—Lou Pieri, owner of the Providence Reds, today was looking for a partner to help him run his American Hockey League team.

At a press conference after the Reds' final game of the season Sunday night, Pieri said he no longer could operate the team independently and is hopeful that interested citizens will purchase at least half-ownership in the club so that it may remain in Providence.

The Reds have been in minor league hockey for 28 continuous years but have been having trouble lately. They failed this season for the second straight year to qualify for the Calder Cup playoffs and attendance has dropped.

Rugby Delegates To Discuss Important Issues

EDMONTON (CP) — Western delegates to the anual meeting of the Canadian Rugby Union in Toronto Friday and Saturday consider the most important business will be import regulations, roster limitations and use of ineligible players.

These issues were singled out by Ken Montgomery, president of Edmonton Eskimos and CRU executive member representing the Western Interprovincial Football Union. He will head the WIFU delegation.

The WIFU will suggest that prior to the third scheduled game of the 1954 season, the teams should name 10 imports not including those who have played four or more seasons of Canadian football.

The western clubs will also propose that only eight of the 10 imports be used in any league game and that at the end of the schedule the teams declare eight of the 10 for the playoffs.

The WIFU also will advocate that no more than four "Canadianized-Americans" be allowed each team during the season.

The West feels that this new import setup would result in a considerable saving in salaries and provide insurance against injuries.

Sullivan Sets All-Time Record

NEW YORK (CP)—George Sullivan of Hershey Bears set an all-time scoring record for the American Hockey League with 119 points as the regularly-scheduled season closed.

The former mark of 119 points was made by Carl Liscombe playing for Providence Reds in 1947-48.

Sullivan's record was composed of 30 goals and 89 assists, the latter also a league record.

Jackie Gordon of Cleveland Barons finished in second place with 102 points. Don Marshall of Buffalo Bisons was third with 96. Gaye Stewart of Buffalo had 95 and Ed Olson of Cleveland had 94.

Lorne Ferguson of Hershey, Sullivan's linemate, was the leading goal-scorer with 45.

Jacques Plante, who played for Buffalo before he was transferred to Montreal, finished the season with the best goaltending record, an average of 2.69 on 148 goals allowed in 55 games.

Howe, Plante is not eligible for the Harry Holmes Award as he did not play after Feb. 15. Gil Mayer of Pittsburgh will receive the award for his second-best record, an average of 3.12 on 212 goals allowed in 68 games.

Stories From Prisoners Brought Tommy To Canada

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—This is the story of a Tommy who built up a curiosity about Canada in some of the toughest spots in the Second World War and before he had much time to satisfy it found himself on his way to Korea with Lord Strathcona's Horse.

"I met Canadians overseas and heard them talk of their country," said Sgt. Victor Heath. "I wanted to see it but I didn't have much time because here I am out here."

The 37-year-old Military Medal winner was born at West Hartlepool but gives Barrie, Ont., as his address.

The other day he picked up an old copy of an English magazine and saw himself in a picture with Field Marshal Erwin Rommel.

Heath had been in the 1940 retreat through France and the Low Countries. His outfit was cut off and captured by Rommel's Panzer formations. After the war the magazine had used German pictures of the PoW roundup to illustrate a story on Rommel's early successes. And Heath is in the picture, large as life, next to the German general who became known as the Desert Fox.

JOINED CANADIANS

He was in the coils of Rommel's troops for a few days. So great was the confusion he escaped and joined a Canadian column, which had made a brief sortie into France before it was withdrawn. He went back to England with the Canadians and that was the first time he heard at first hand "what a wonderful country we have."

A year later, as a commando, he was captured again by the Germans on the French coast. He had helped sabotage an oil refinery but was made prisoner on his way back to the beach. This time the capture was for keeps. Before his liberation he met Canadian prisoners, first from the Dieppe raid and later from the Italian and Western fronts.

"By this time I knew I had to go to Canada and see it for myself," he said.

REACHED CANADA

Having had some merchant marine experience, he shipped aboard a tramp and eventually reached Canada.

When the Korean war broke out he was ashore as a carpenter. He joined up but was first posted to the Royal Canadian Armored Corps training school.

Here he ran the physical training program, drilled the officer cadets and had an important hand in organizing a band. Finally he got to the Strathcona's and to Korea.

"I like Canada and the Canadian Army, and I'm going to stick with it until they retire me," he said.

3 Days, Nights Without Sleep Under Influence

In spite of the fact that hundreds are out of work in and about Peterborough right now, there is still plenty of work for some. Monday, a crowded court heard the astounding tale of one man, 48-year-old Ernest Perritt, who had that much work to do, that for three days and nights he did not have time to sleep.

At the end of all that he took time off for two bottles of beer, and then attempted to drive his company's pick-up truck. The truck's rather erratic procedure along Water St. on the evening of February 25 led to Perritt's arrest for drunk driving by detective Dennis Traynor and Constable Sherman Keliele.

Both policemen told Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, that in their opinion, Perritt was very drunk. He had smelled strongly of beer, seemed hazy about things in general and was unable to walk straight. While following him along the road, they had seen his truck narrowly escape colliding with four different vehicles.

Defence counsel Donald Bark considered that any man who had been without sleep for over 60 hours, would be so tired that he might, appear intoxicated. The policemen agreed that might be correct. Mr. Bark also contended that one glass of beer would smell as much as 10 glasses. No one disagreed.

Testifying, Perritt said he was a concrete finisher, a job which entailed working on concrete while it was still not properly set. For three days prior to his arrest, there had been so much work to be finished that he had just kept going night and day.

"I was very, very tired, but I wasn't drunk," he added.

"It is somewhat difficult to understand why Perritt went into the beverage room when he was so tired," commented the magistrate. "And it can be readily agreed that any man so fatigued will be more easily affected by liquor."

"There is no doubt in my mind that he was very tired, but there is also no doubt that he was under the influence of alcohol. I will convict him of being impaired."

Saying that we was taking a fairly serious view of the matter, the magistrate imposed a fine of $100 costs $5.

Farmers Getting "Free Gas" Contracts

TORONTO (CP)—Unless the Ontario legislature steps in, a number of Essex and Kent county farmers and municipalities will be receiving free natural gas at the expense of all other consumers on the trans-Canada pipeline route.

The legislature's natural gas subcommittee learned Monday that legislative action will be needed to break "free gas" contracts with these individuals and municipalities. The contracts were entered into many years ago in payment for rights of way and other benefits to the gas companies.

The deals made with municipalities included such things as free natural gas for schools and municipal buildings. One case cited before the committee was of a school which is getting free heat. When the contract was signed it was only a two-room school but now there are 10 rooms and the fuel bill is higher.

The original natural gas serving these contracts was local gas. When the trans-Canada pipeline brings Alberta gas here, it will be pumped into western Ontario as well as other parts of the province. But in all other parts of the province consumers will have to pay for it.

A measure to break the contracts was introduced in the legislature two years ago but was withdrawn before receiving third reading.

Gov't Acts First Gets Approval Later—Drew

OTTAWA (CP) — Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, says the belief is growing that the government acts by its own authority subject only to consistent approval later by its parliamentary majority.

He said Monday State Secretary Pickersgill demonstrated a belief in a one-party state during a radio address last month. Mr. Pickersgill had said the government should share responsibility only with those entrusted by the electors with that responsibility.

Mr. Drew said that statement shows that Mr. Pickersgill believes the Commons is not a chamber where responsibility is accepted by all members. Yet this sharing of responsibility was at the root of the parliamentary system.

The government originated legislation but "all the House of Commons shares the responsibility for what follows."

Quoting liberally from Mr. Pickersgill's February speech, Mr. Drew said the state secretary labelled as "subversive" and contrary to the constitution the "notion that Parliament and the public are entitled to see every document in the possession of a government department."

"PRIVILEGED DOCUMENTS"

Mr. Pickersgill said the information he referred to in his speech consisted of the letters exchanged among ministers and civil servants. These were "privileged documents." However, Parliament was entitled to know the facts used by the government to introduce legislation.

Government officials sometimes disagreed with ministers and even cabinet members disagreed among themselves. These diverging views should be kept secret if the government was to remain in power. That was an established parliamentary custom.

Poison Going Out Of Fashion

REGINA (CP)—Poison is rapidly going out of style as a murder medium D. H. Ward Smith of the Ontario crime detection laboratory said at a week-end conference here of poison experts.

Dr. Smith said the last proven case of murder by poisoning in Ontario occurred some 20 years ago.

Newer drugs that cause poisoning are largely unknown to the general public, he said. Today, as in the past, toxic agents used to perpetrate murder were chiefly strychnine and rat poison.

Dr. Smith also said it is practically impossible for anyone to die from an accidental overdose of sleeping pills.

This aspect of poisoning was discussed by the experts, from various parts of Canada and the United States. It was their opinion that an overdose of sleeping pills in sufficient quantity to cause death must be taken deliberately.

"The story of an accidental overdose of sleeping pills is a polite fiction to cover up for somebody," the Ontario expert said. "I will not say positively that it is impossible to take a lethal does of barbit erates accidentally, but I will say it has not been proven."

Grading Of Lumber Improving Quality

TORONTO (CP)—Charles Griffin said Monday a campaign to have lumber graded with the aim of improving the quality received by dealers and bought by house builders is progressing to the point that within one year all lumber may be grade marked.

Speaking to the Ontario Retail Lumber Dealers' Association, Mr. Griffin, outgoing president, said the project was undertaken by the Ontario association in co-operation with the organization in Quebec and with the national organization.

M. H. Armstrong of Burlington was elected president. Directors include Karl Stoskopf of Sebringville and Jerry Doren of Sarnia.

Bought Liquor For Minor "Not Only One"

A man who obligingly went into the city liquor store and bought a bottle of liquor for a 16-year-old youth, did so without realizing that the long arm of the law was already reaching out towards him.

Detective Dennis Traynor was standing across the road when he saw Harry McCallum, 29, of 176 Edinburgh St., give an Ennismore boy, William Crough, a bottle of liquor. The detective arrested them on the spot.

Before Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, in court Monday, the man and boy both pleaded guilty to their charges — one of giving liquor to a minor and the other of obtaining it without a permit.

Crown attorney John A. Bradshaw said that McCallum, reputedly out of work, had a liquor book that showed considerable purchases.

"He ordinarily hangs around the billiard saloons," added Mr. Bradshaw.

"I understand that Crough gave McCallum $5 to buy the liquor and got back $1," commented detective Traynor. "The liquor only cost $3.20, so McCallum made a profit of 80 cents on the purchase."

18 PURCHASES

"I see you have 18 purchases in your book for the month of February and 13 to date in March," said the magistrate to McCallum.

McCallum: "That's right."

Magistrate Philp: "There are people who do business on the outside. Are you one of them?"

McCallum: "I'm not the only one in this town."

Magistrate. "Oh, you're not?"

McCallum was remanded for sentence until Tuesday. Crough was given a two-year suspended sentence, the first year of which will be served on probation.

No Indications Of U.S. Dumping

OTTAWA (CP) — There have been no indications of United States dumping of celery and onions in Canada, Revenue Minister McCann said today.

He told the Commons that specific tariffs of one cent a pound have been levied on imports of U.S. celery and onions during the marketing period of the Canadian products. The tariff was applied for the maximum periods of 24 weeks for celery and 40 weeks for onions.

Junior Farmers Loan Board Called Cautious, Inept

TORONTO (CP)—The policies of the Ontario junior farmers establishment board Monday were criticized by members of the Ontario legislature's committee on government commissions.

The members expressed their dissatisfaction over the fact that out of a $10,000,000 fund set aside for helping establish young farmers, only $4,000,000 had been used in the last year and a half.

J. C. Steckley, board chairman, said a "very cautious" policy has been followed by the board in making loans. Only 601 loans valued at $3,834,881 had been made although 1,309 applications had been received in the last year.

INSPECTORS UNDER FIRE

T. L. Patrick (PC—Middlesex South) said the board inspectors "are not worth a tinker's damn", claiming they did not know the values of the farms they were evaluating.

William Murdoch (PC—Essex South) said young men in his county were "tired of beating their heads against a stone wall" and were applying elsewhere for loans.

Harry Nixon (L—Brant) said the board's business had been conducted on "too much of a dollars-and-cents basis" and called for a "genuine effort" on the part of the board in assisting young farmers.

Mr. Steckley said his board "may have been too hard" in the past but it would continue to follow its policy until "otherwise instructed."

The committee will hold another meeting to discuss recommendations.

Veterans Fail To Claim Cash Benefits

OTTAWA (CP)—Hundreds of former Canadian prisoners-of-war entitled to cash benefits for maltreatment by their captors have failed to put in claims for them.

And the deadline for claims, already extended once, is only eight days away—March 31. Officials of the war claims commission said the deadline is unlikely to be extended a second time. The original extension was from Dec. 31 to March 31.

Some $4,500,000 has been paid so far to former Second World War prisoners or their dependents. The money comes from a $13,000,000 fund built up from the seizure of German, Italian and Japanese assets in Canada.

Servicemen held prisoner by the Japanese were paid benefits on the basis of $1 a day for each day of internment. All prisoners of the Japanese were considered by the war claims commission to have been maltreated. About 2,200 of these prisoners or their dependents have been paid about $2,000,000.

NOT SAME BASIS

Prisoners of the Germans and Italians are not paid on the same basis. They are given a lump sum—the average is $325—and several factors are taken into account. These include shackling, forced labor, hunger marches, transportation by boxcar and other forms of maltreatment. There is no award for internment as such.

To date, the commission has received 6,600 claims from former prisoners in Europe or their dependents. There is no accurate estimate of the number who have not filed claims. The figure is somewhere between 300 and 3,000.

Magazine Probe To Be Dropped

OTTAWA (CP)—The restrictive trade practices commission will not investigate distribution of magazines in "packages."

Justice Minister Garson said Monday in a return for Davie Fulton (PC—Kamloops) the commission has taken note of a case of contempt of court involving a Cornwall magazine distributor.

However, it did not present a reason for investigation under the Combines Investigation Act.

Mr. Fulton asked if the commission will investigate the case of magazine distributors who must accept for distribution all magazines supplied by publishing companies and offer them to vendors for retail sale on penalty of forfeiting their contract.

The distributor, Edward Bryan, was found guilty of contempt of court for distributing magazines which contained articles on the slaying of Marie Anne Carrier, a reserve army sergeant from Levis, Que. Lieut. Peter Balcombe was found guilty of murder in a Cornwall court and sentenced to be hanged.

Bryan was sentenced to 10 days in jail by Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of the Ontario Supreme Court. He was freed later after paying a $50 fine.

Flowers Defy Snow

FORT ERIE (CP) — Several gardeners in Fort Erie report that tulips and daffodils are coming up through the ground, despite the fact that the earth is still covered with snow. Robins have become numerous and several red cardinals have been spotted.

Textile Mill Folds

GALT (CP)—The Galt Knitting Company Limited will go into voluntary liquidation after 73 years of business in Galt, Edward G. Warnock, president of the company, has announced. He said high labor costs, over-production in Canada of the products the company makes and high competition make it unwise to continue in business. About 150 persons are employed at the firm.

TV Reception Good

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—CHSJ-TV, first television station in the Atlantic provinces, went on the air Monday night with test patterns.

The telecasting began at only half power but reports of reception were received from such widely separated places as Halifax, Summerside, P.E.I., Presque Isle, Me., and Eastport, Me.

5 Soldiers Escape Detention Barracks

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Five soldiers escaped detention at Wolseley barracks early today and military and civil police across western Ontario are pressing a search for them.

An army officer said the men smashed the lock of a door to break out. He said they were being held on charges of being absent without leave.

Civil police connected the disappearance of a car from a street a block away from the barracks with that of the men.

Military authorities said the men were not armed but civil police worked on the assumption that they might have bayonets.

Premier Frost Announces Committee To Study Mining

TORONTO (CP)—The plight of the gold mining industry in northern Ontario "has been of increasing concern to us," Premier Frost said Monday.

The premier, in anouncing to the legislature the formation of a three-man fact-finding committee to study the industry, said it was hoped that from the group's work "will come a better understanding" of the factors causing the ailment and "that this will promote the industrial harmony which is so essential to the gold mining industry in this difficult period."

The legislature spent most of Monday's session considering and finally approving the agriculture department's estimates, calling for $9,245,000 ordinary and $7,750,000 capital expenditures.

Mr. Frost announced the House would hold its first night sitting tonight to consider further estimates.

Professor F. A. Knox, head of the department of political and economic science, Queen's University, will be chairman of the committee. Other members are Professor E. E. Reilly, professor of economics, University of Western Ontario, and Professor H. R. Rice, head of the department of mining engineering, University of Toronto.

PRIVATE MEETINGS

The committee, to meet in private, will examine the conditions affecting the industry, underlying trends in employment, wages, working conditions, profits, etc., and the effects of these developments on northern communities.

Replying to a question by J.B. Salsberg (Lab.-Prog.—Toronto St. Andrew), Mr. Frost said labor was not represented on the committee "because I don't think this House wants the committee to turn into an arbitration board."

During consideration of the agriculture department's estimates Hon. G. H. Challies, the government's representative on the hydro-electric power commission, said hydro's rural program for this year calls for a total expenditure of $23,933,034.

The changing picture of power consumption indicates that rural customers now regard the supply of power as essential not only for lighting but for the maintenance of labor-saving equipment.

The average annual farm consumption has increased from 2,199 kilowatt-hours a year in 1945 to 3,886 kilowatt-hours. Rural customers' average increased from 2,026 in 1945 to 3,540 in 1953.

G. C. Wardrope (PC—Port Arthur) called for further expansion and reduced consumer costs of hydro in northwestern Ontario.

Seek U.K. Immigrants

TORONTO (CP)—The Church of England in Canada has asked the federal government to make it easier for British immigrants to get to this country. The church's diocesan council for social service, in a resolution sent to Immigration Minister Harris, also asks the government to take more responsibility for placing immigrants in jobs.

SYRIAN TROOPS MASSING AT FRONTIER

St. Laurent's Daughter Enjoys Trip

Finds World Leaders As Natural As Her Own Father

MONTREAL —(CP)— The daughter of Prime Minister St. Laurent says that statesmen around the world "are just as natural as my dad."

Mrs. Hugh O'Donnell, who acted as Mr. St. Laurent's official hostess on his round-the-world tour, said that before the trip she had never met any prime minister except her father.

"I needn't have worried though, the statesmen we met are just as natural as he is," she said in an interview on her return here.

Mrs. O'Donnell's story showed a woman's attention for detail and the romantic aspect of the places she visited—and she also managed to add to her housewifely lore.

At Midway Island and Waikiki beach, Honolulu, "I relaxed in the warm Pacific, the water so buoyant you could sleep on it, and ate roast pig at Dan the Beachcomber's."

HOW TO COOK TURKEY

At luncheon with Sir Winston and Lady Churchill, "I learned the answer to something that puzzled me since Christmas—how Lady Churchill's cook coped with a 43-pound turkey given to No. 10 Downing street.

"They put it in a tin tub and boiled it on top of the stove.

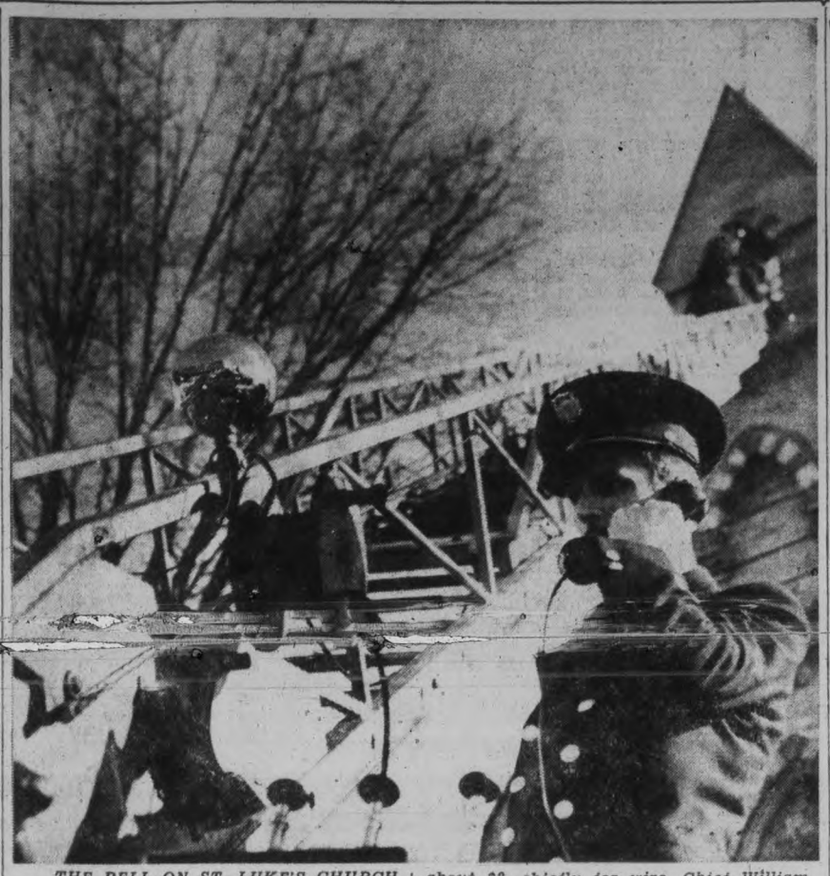
"But two things I shall never forget are the natural kindness and hospitality of statesmen and their wives, and the wonderful morale of Canadians in the East."

The St. Laurent party arrived home last Thursday, "but the trouble is I'm still in Tokyo," said Mrs. O'Donnell, meaning she had no chance to add to her trip-dairy since arriving in that city.

DIARY FOR HUSBAND

The diary was begun primarily for her lawyer husband and children, Mary, 2, and Michael, 3, on the nine-hour flight between London and Bahrein, and "then I wrote for eight hours straight."

During the subsequent packed program, she noted each day's events in letters home.



"It is a personal account, written for my husband," she said. "Perhaps later I may re-write it for others to read. Yes I think I shall."

High on the list of unforgettables was the performance of four tired and hungry baby elephants at a garden party one night in Ceylon.

"It all happened because of a chance remark of Sir John Kotelawala, the prime minister," Mrs. O'Donnell explained still astonished.

ST. LAURENT

THE BELL ON ST. LUKE'S CHURCH wouldn't ring—again—and the Peterborough Fire Department were called. It hoisted the aerial ladder today to have a look and set things to right. Firemen also tried out a two-way telephone for the first time from ground to ladder top. Rigged up by electricians at the Fire Hall, it cost only about $8, chiefly for wire, Chief William Sorrie said. Fireman Cyril James is shown (above) working the ground control; he and the man at the other end reported it was very satisfactory. The phone will be used to give instruction during a fire to the man operating the hose at the top.

Will Improve Defences Israel Says

Ask Bus Incident Brought Before —UN Security Council

JERUSALEM (AP)— Premier Moshe Sharett told parliament today the tense situation along Israel's borders "now calls for the utmost preparedness and the strengthening of Israel's defence."

He announced Israel was asking the United States, Britain and France to bring before the United Nations Security Council the Negev bus incident in which 11 Jews were killed by machine gun fire a week ago.

Israel blamed the killings on Jordan and walked out of the Israeli-Jordan mixed armistice commission Tuesday after the UN-sponsored body failed to adopt an Israeli resolution to that effect.

Sharett said Israel's ambassadors in the capitals of the western Big Three powers had been instructed to inform those governments of the latest developments in the Israeli-Jordan dispute and suggest that the Big Three bring up the matter before the Security Council.

"TROOPS REPORT FALSE"

Sharett said a false report had been circulated "by one of our neighbors that Israel was massing troops, while in fact this country (Syria) is massing its own troops along the Israel borders."

An Israel military spokesman announced this morning that Syria had moved up an infantry brigade to strengthen her forces on the border.

An Arab spokesman complained to the United Nations last week that Israel was concentrating troops on her borders with Syria, Lebanon and Jordan. Israel denied the charge.

WALK OUT OF COMMISSION

Israeli members walked out of the UN-sponsored Israel-Jordan armistice commission Tuesday after the American chairman, representing the UN, refused to support an Israeli motion to condemn Jordan for the bus attack.

The chairman, Cmdr. Elom Hutchison, said he did not think the commission had conclusive evidence the Arab attackers came from Jordan. He suggested that investigation of the incident continue and refused to break a tie on the Israeli motion between the Israeli and Jordanian members of the commission.

Not Beaten Yet

HAMILTON (CP)—A new weapon in the city's war against the starlings will be given a trial in the near future. J. R. Jones, secretary of the board of control starling shoot committee, said recordings of starlings' distress calls were made following the shoot Tuesday night. These calls will be amplified through loudspeakers in the area where the starlings roost, in the hopes of frightening them away.

Suez Talks Broken Off Britain Reveals

CAIRO (AP) — Britain today informed Egypt that she now considers British-Egyptian talks on the future of the Suez canal base "formally broken off."

A high Egyptian official source disclosed this, adding that London's notification was made in a "note which has been handed over to Egypt."

The talks, revolving about Egypt's demand for withdrawal of Britain's 80,000-man garrison and Britain's demand for an airtight understanding on future defence of the canal zone, have been at a stalemate since Oct. 18, but recently there were indications that they were about to resume.

DIMS CHANCES

Today's development, according to Egyptian political circles, considerably dimmed any chances of an early settlement of the Suez dispute, outstanding in various forms for more than 70 years.

An Egyptian government spokesman charged that British army headquarters in Suez had failed in maintaining order. As to the negotiations, he said, "Egypt from the start was aware of the fact she would never obtain her rights through negotiation."

H-Bomb Explosion Out Of Control, Showered Tanker

PEARL HARBOR (AP)—The United States' hydrogen explosion March 1 at Bikini atoll, described by one congressional observer as so tremendous that it was out of control, showered radio-active ash on a U.S. Navy tanker carrying 92 men.

The navy, in a cautious announcement Tuesday night, disclosed the new victim of the mighty blast but said "no apparent injury to crewmen exists."

The naval district here said the 4,200-ton tanker Patapsco received "a slight and not a dangerous contamination of radioactive fall-out."

Twenty-three Japanese fishermen were badly burned in a shower of nuclear ashes from the same blast. They said they were [illegible] and outside the official hazard zone.

In addition, 28 U.S. technicians an 264 Marshall islands natives more than 100 miles from the flash point were exposed to milder radiation.

"OUT OF CONTROL"

Representative Chet Holifield (Dem. Calif.) said Monday that the explosion "was so far beyond what was predicted that you might say it was out of control."

Its power has been estimated as between 600 and 700 times greater than that of the 1945 Hiroshima atomic bomb which killed 60,000 persons.

Confronted with the tremendous power of the latest thermonuclear devices, U.S. authorities have more than tripled the distance ships must keep between them and the flash point of any new Pacific tests. The radius is 450 miles from the new danger zone, an increase of more than 20 times in square miles. The old hazard zone was roughly 150 by 200 miles.

Emergency Plan Produces 1,100 Teachers

TORONTO (CP)—An extra 1,100 elementary school teachers have been produced by the education department's new "emergency plan" devised to combat the teacher shortage, Education Minister Dunlop said Tuesday night.

Speaking during consideration of his department's estimates in the legislature, Mr. Dunlop said that under the plan a grade 12 graduate takes six weeks' intensive summer training, teaches a year, takes another six-weeks course, teaches a second year, then attends a teachers' college for 12 months.

DOING WELL

"A great majority of these young teachers are doing really well. There are very few failures among them."

Dr. Dunlop said education planning is being governed by the huge increase in school population. There were 915,000 elementary and secondary school students in the province—58,000 more than last year. Sixty thousand more were expected next year which meant 1,500 extra rooms would be needed.

Says Something 'Happened' In H-Explosion

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower told his press conference today that something must have happened at the recent hydrogen explosion in the Pacific which surprised and astonished scientists.

His comment was made after a reporter told Eisenhower at his press conference that anti-American newspapers in Japan and elsewhere were making much of the incident in which Japanese fishermen 75 miles away from the Pacific blast March 1 were reported to have been possible victims of contamination.

HASN'T HAD REPORT

Eisenhower said Admiral Lewis Strauss, chairman of the atomic energy commission, has not yet returned to report to him on his investigation of the explosion.

But the president said that from what he has been able to learn thus far the reports of possible injuries to persons who were relatively close to the blast are more serious than the actual results of the explosion on them justified.

The power of the blast has been estimated as between 600 and 700 times greater than that of the Hiroshima atomic bomb explosion which killed 60,000 persons.

President Says McCarthy Shouldn't Sit In Judgment

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower replied to a question about Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep.-Wis.) today by saying: In cases where a man is a party to a dispute in America—directly or indirectly — he should not be permitted to sit in judgment.

The president declined at a press conference to express any opinion on McCarthy's demands for the right to cross-examine witnesses in the forthcoming Senate investigation of his controversy with army officials.

As is his custom in connection with questions regarding McCarthy, the president said he has no feelings regarding any particular situation.

GOES ON RECORD

But he said he was ready to put himself on record with respect to the general situation.

It was then he declared that a man should not sit in judgment on his own case.

Beyond that the president said he did not believe that any leadership can escape the resposibility for carrying on that tradition and that practice.

McCarthy himself in statements Tuesday night sought to discount the row as "a blown-up . . . squabble between an employee of the sub-committee and an employee of the army."

Eisenhower has repeatedly said he does not deal in personalities.

WANTS CROSS-EXAMINATION

McCarthy has said he plans to take no part in any decisions made by his sub-committee in connection with its public investigation, at a date not yet set, of his row with army officials. But he has insisted on retaining his right to cross-examine witnesses, and said army people should be allowed to question him.

An army report has alleged that pressure was exerted by McCarthy and Roy Cohn, counsel to the subcommittee, seeking favored treatment for Pte. G. David Shine, an unpaid sub-committee consultant until he was drafted last fall.

McCarthy and Cohn replied that G. Adams, assistant army counsel, had sought to "blackmail" the subcommittee to drop an inquiry into alleged subversion in the army. Army Secretary Stevens and John

Ask Quick Action On Discrimination

TORONTO (CP) — A call for "immediate and effective" action on the part of the provincial government to eliminate discrimination in Ontario was heard today by Premier Frost and his cabinet.

In a brief submitted to the cabinet by representatives of four organizations, and read by Irving Himel, executive secretary of the Association of Cvil Liberties, the organizations said reports of discrimination have been received from Chatham, Ear Falls, Hamilton, North Bay, Sudbury, Toronto and Windsor.

"Without immediate and effective action there is an inherent danger that such practices may grow and spread," the brief stated.

An active program of education by the government "would be most welcome."

"But it does not alter the fact that where the dignity and welfare of human beings is involved, it is not only right but the duty of the government to act and take effective steps to deal with the situation."

FROST SYMPATHETIC

Premier Frost said he was in sympathy with the delegates and promised a thorough study of the brief.

"It is my—and our—desire to do everything possible to eliminate discrimination on the grounds of race, color or creed. Discrimination in any form is certainly a blot on the good name of the province . . . it is calculated to cause differences when we should all be pulling together."

Eamon Park, representing the Ontario Federation of Labor (CIO-CCL) called for quicker action by the liquor licence board in dealing with cases of discrimination in drinking establishments.

Important Progress In A-Bomb Treatment

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Important progress in developing an effective treatment for atomic radiation sickness was reported today to the 125th national meeting of the American Chemical Society.

Encouraging results of experiments on mice suffering radiation injury was reported by Dr. R. K. Main, chief radiological chemist in the United States naval radiological defence laboratory in San Francisco.

Dr. Main described the curing of radiation injury in mice by means of a "spleen protective factor." Mice recovered from the effects of ordinarily fatal x-rays when they received injections of this "protective factor," obtained from the nucleus of spleen cells, immediately after exposure.

The spleen is a gland located near the stomach.

April 28 Set For Election

BELIZE, British Honduras (AP) The people of this British Central American colony will hold their first general election under the new constitution April 28, it was announced today.

Setting of the date followed assurances by Governor Sir Patrick Renison that the elections would be held as planned despite the government's decision to launch an investigation into suspected Communist influence in the colony's leading party, the Peoples United Party.

Britain has sent Sir Reginald Sharpe, a London lawyer, to start the investigation.

Johnson Asks Reason For His Dismissal

KITCHENER (CP)—George W. Johnson of Owen Sound said today he has written a letter to the board of the Ontario Hog Producers Association asking why he was relieved of his job as secretary. He has been secretary three years and on the provincial executive since 1945.

He told the Kitchener-Waterloo Record by phone from Toronto that at a directors' meeting March 15 Norman G. McLeod of Galt was re-elected chairman of the producers' marketing board. When the election of secretary came up Mr. McLeod ran against Mr. Johnson. Mr. McLeod won and immediately resigned as chairman. Eldred Aiken of Allenford then was elected chairman.

Mr. McLeod told The Record from Toronto that he would rather not comment on reasons for Mr. Johnson's dismissal and that Mr. Johnson would receive an answer to his letter following a board meeting Friday.

Tractor Driver Tossed 18 Feet

TRENTON — A semi-trailer transport and a farm tractor tangled on Highway No. 2, six miles west of here Tuesday and the tractor driver, Ken Yonge, 30, of RR 2, Brighton, was hurled into a ditch 18 feet away.

He picked himself up and saw his tractor, still hooked on to the chassis of the transport, being dragged along the road.

Constable H. Cook of the Brighton OPP said that the transport, driven by J. Reinbolt, of Chauvin, Alta., overtook the tractor. The underside of the chassis caught the big left rear wheel of the tractor, pulling the farm vehicle under the semi-trailer and hurling Yonge into the air. The tractor was carried 300 feet down the road.

Yonge escaped with minor bruises and a shaking up.

Report Mao Back In Circulation

HONG KONG (AP)—Mao Tze-tung, Red China's top man, today was reported back in circulation after three months of absence from public life.

The Communist New China news agency said he presided Tuesday over a meeting in Peiping.

It was his first reported appearance since Dec. 29.

Mao's failure to attend the February plenary session of the Chinese Communist party's central committee, one of the most important party meetings in five years, had set tongues wagging around the world. It was rumored he was seriously ill.

At that meeing it was announced only that Mao was on a holiday.

Belleville Motorcyclist Killed In Accident

BELLEVILLE (CP) — Walter Mondeville, 25, of Belleville, was fatally injured Tuesday night when the motorcycle he was riding crashed into an approaching car as he turned out to pass a transport on Highway 2.

Police said Mondeville crashed into a car driven by Ronald Byrne, RCAF, Trenton. The auto-transport was driven by Roy Walls of Brooklin, Ont.

Saw Percy Bell Swallow Some Pills

BELLEVILLE — (CP) — Roscoe Jenners, a boarder in the Belleville home where Percy Bell died in convulsions Jan. 2, testified today that the 52-year-old engineer swallowed some pills the night he died.

Jenners, whose counsel, R. D. Arnott, asked for and obtained the protection of the Canada Evidence Act for the Belleville barber, said Bell had taken the pills for a pain he suffered in the left shoulder.

He said he got the pills for Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Bell, who is now charged with her husband's murder and that Bell "shook some in his hand and swallowed them."

Asked if he had put anything in the bottle "besides Carter's Little Liver pills" Jenners replied:

"No, I never had it open. It had been lying in a drawer for six or seven months."

HADN'T HARMED JENNERS

Jenners said he had taken the pills himself previously and had no ill effects.

Bell's body was exhumed from its grave 20 days after he died and on Jan. 22 his 48-year-old wife was charged with his murder.

Magistrate T. Y. Willis agreed to give Jenners protection under the evidence act "on questions that might incriminate the witness."

A medico-legal expert said Tuesday he injected contents from Percy Bell's stomach into a white mouse and it died in convulsions within an hour.

Dr. Ward Smith, director of the Ontario attorney-general's crime laboratory, testified at the preliminary hearing of Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Bell, charged with murder in the poison-death of her 52-year-old husband. Bell died in convulsions Jan. 2.

Dr. Smith said that when he injected the extract into the mouse, it went into convulsions and died. This showed Bell's stomach and liver contained a more-than-lethal dose of strychnine, he added.

Dr. Smith testified he found 9.5 milligrams of strychnine in the one-third of Bell's stomach contents he analyzed. This indicated at least half a grain of the poison in the total stomach contents.

Find It Too Dangerous

U.K. Paper Urges H-Bomb Tests Cancelled

LONDON (Reuters)—The Manchester Guardian says today that United States hydrogen bomb tests scheduled to be held in the South Pacific next month should be called off.

The paper expresses doubts over the wisdom of holding the tests in view of the effects of the March 1 H-bomb tests at Bikini atoll. It says flatly that this time American scientists are moving into the realm of the unknown.

The Liberal paper's editorial says the effects of the weapon exploded March 1—which rained radioactive ash on 23 Japanese fishermen, injuring some of them seriously — "were far greater than the scientists had expected."

IS EFFECT KNOWN?

It asks:

"Do the scientists really know what will happen after the explosions which they are planning to make in the Marshall islands in April? In Washington it has been announced that the device or devices to be detonated then will be four times as powerful as the one exploded on March 1.

"How great an area of the ocean will be contaminated and how far may the waters and fish move?

"The scientists are moving now into realms which are unknown, and the consequences of their experiments may be most serious.

"Is it really wise to proceed with these explosions?"

BEYOND CONTROL

The Guardian's apprehension is echoed more strongly by a German newspaper, the Frankfurt Abendpost.

"What the whole world has feared has now happened," says Abendpost. "The explosions are beyond control."

It urges scientists to "realize how far they can go" and not let themselves be forced by politics to use their work in a way "which leads to the end of mankind."

MARCH 1 BOMB "BABY"

In Canberra, Prof. Marcus Oliphant, Australian nuclear physics authority, said today that the hydrogen bomb exploded March 1 was "undoubtedly a baby compared with what the Americans have up their sleeves."

But he advised the world not to panic about the disastrous effects of such weapons. Man can control anything he wants to, Oliphant said, and he knows he can't fight another war with atomic weapons "without destroying himself."

Pearson Hopes To Head Geneva Delegation

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson said Tuesday he hopes to head Canada's delegation to the Geneva peace conference on the Korean war.

He told the Commons no instructions have been drafted for the guidance of the delegation, but he said the position of the delegation may be clarified for the House in an external affairs debate Thursday.

The conference opens April 26.

Asks U.S. Help Unify Korea By Force

SEOUL (AP) — President Syngman Rhee today called on the United States to help unify Korea by force or give him a South Korean army which needs no help "if peaceful efforts fail.

Only if one of these conditions is met will South Korea attend next months Geneva conference on Korea and Indo-China, Rhee declared.

The South Korean army numbers 20 divisions. American military experts have voiced doubts that the Korean economy could support a larger army or that the 20 divisions could fight for more than a few days without American supplies.

Rhee said he has not received adequate assurances from the United States oncerning south Korea's position at Geneva. However, the state department has assured Rhee that the U. S. will walk out with South Korea after 90 days if the Communists appear to be using it solely as a propaganda sounding board.

County Cuts Budget By $17,870

Pass Estimates In 20 Minutes, Finances Said Good

Peterborough county council are budgeting to raise $292,671.79 to meet their commitments in 1954, a decrease of $17,870 over last year. The levy will be 16.337 mills, a decrease of 2.577 over last year.

This welcome news to the 13,255 county ratepayers was given Tuesday afternoon by Mrs. J. A. Spurway, county clerk and treasurer.

"I'm sure the ratepayers will be pleased this year by the slight reduction in the county rate," said Warden Willard Waterman of North Monaghan township.

There was practically no other comment as the 1954 budget was itemized by Mrs. Spurway. The councillors apparently felt that the county's finances were in good shape and the estimates were approved in 20 minutes.

CURRENT SURPLUS

A current surplus of $21,122 on 1953's operations is responsible for the reduction in estimates—almost the equivalent of one and a half mills.

(For general purposes a mill raises $14,722 this year, but less for county roads because four of the northern townships are not in the system. However they pay for bridges.)

Rates for the past two years:

1953—18.914 mills on an equalized assessment of $14,203,018 (this included the loss of $435,120 in equalized assessment caused by the Smith township annexation).

1954—16.337 mills on an equalized assessment of $14,722,270.

On county roads the estimated expenditure is $288,106 and the estimated revenue is $186,633. This leaves a total of $101,473 to be raised by levy.

A summary of the estimates approved Tuesday follows:

		Mills
Roads	$ 97,056.70	7.500
Bridges	4,416.68	.300
Gannon's Narrows Causeway	16,194.49	1.099
Debentures,
Civic Hospital	10,051.99	.682
Chemong Causeway	7,593.25	.515
Norwood Dist. H.S.	29,981.70
Lakefield Dist. H.S.	25,369.13
Education	10,115.22
Hospital Deficits	20,516.78	1.393
General	71,375.85	4.848
	$292,671.79	16.337

Next to roads the largest disbursement is $74,932 for the administration of justice and upkeep of the jail. This is some $2,500 more than was spent last year. A series of jury cases at the last sitting of the supreme court helped boost that figure.

Receipts which include fines, the city's share of administration of justice costs, and the grant from the province should bring revenue up to $40,974.

Urgently Need $10,000 For Korean Children

SARNIA (CP) — Urgent need for $10,000 by the end of the week to send two carloads of barley to Korea to feed the hungry children there was stressed today by Dr. [illegible] committee of Canada.

Addressing pupils of the Sarnia collegiate, institute and technical schools she pointed out that the two carloads of barley will feed 125,000 Korean children every day for three months. One dollar feeds five children for a month.

Already 22 carloads are Korea-bound at a cost of $90,000.

The project is under the auspices of the United Nations.

Swimming Club To Perform In McGill Pool

The spirit of Peterborough's champion twelve girl team in synchronized swimming was related by Ald. Alene Holt in conveying their request for permission to convey the city's greetings from Mayor Norman Graham to Mayor Camilien House of Montreal.

Mrs. Pansy Forbes' talented girls are performing at the McGill University pool, Saturday April 10th in aid of the Quebec Cancer Society.

Ald. Holt told the board of works Monday night that the members of the team were travelling in the day coach to keep expense of their trip to a minimum, as their contribution in lessening cost to the Quebec Society.

"We are so accustomed to travelling with both eyes on the expense account that we don't think so much about comfort as we would otherwise do," Mrs. Forbes remarked to the Examiner. "The members of our team are happy to be able to assist the Quebec Cancer Society who are allowing us $100 for our fares. We are leaving on the midnight of April 9th, from Port Hope, and are due in Montreal at 7 a.m. (Saturday).

"We asked for permission to use the pool for practice Saturday morning to get accustomed to it. We have learned that the team will be televised and also motion pictures will be taken. The team is performing for children in the afternoon, for adults at night. We leave Sunday at 3.30 p.m. for home."

Mrs. Forbes said the Quebec singles and doubles girls were taking part with the Peterborough [illegible] and she [illegible] swimming display.

At any rate the Peterborough girls will have to depend for sleep and rest on the accommodation of the day coach.

"I said I had not seen an elephant all the time I was in India. Then at a party Sir John gave us in the magnificent garden of his home, there were the elephants waving their trunks at me.

"They were wakened specially and were tired because they usually get up at 5 a.m."

KOREA RUGGED

A far cry from such luxury was the stern terrain of Korea, where she spent a night as guest of the British minister in Seoul, and two more as guest of Canadian Red Cross girls and army nurses. These nights revived other memories for the prime minister's daughter, the former Major Madeleine St. Laurent, who served four years in Canada and overseas with the Canadian Army Women's Corps during the Second World War.

"Dad's two secretaries, Annette Perron and Andree Monet, thought it 'terrible,' but for such a spot as Korea I thought the conditions were good," she said.

At Tokyo, Mrs. O'Donnell began catching up on her father's shopping—selecting a tailored brocade dressing gown for her mother, who was unable to make the trip.

"There were presents for 17 grandchildren, two other daughters, two daughters-in-law and 'Aunt Laura' St. Laurent at Compton, Que.," she said.

"In Pakistan on a hurried visit to a shop all an assistant could suggest for the grandsons were daggers and knives. Heavens, they're trouble enough without being armed."

Mrs. O'Donnell, dazzled by an "array exquisite but confusing" settled for embroidered silk and straw hats and handbags embroidered in gold and silver, and tiny mirrors.

She said that "Once at New Delhi when dad had spoken about home to a gathering in the Canadian embassy [illegible] spontaneously into the singing of 'O Canada,' I almost disgraced myself by crying. Despite their high spirits we knew then how homesick they really are."

Warns Press To Handle Trial Carefully

BELLEVILLE (CP) — Magistrate T. Y. Wills issued a warning to the press today to be careful about headlines after defence counsel in the murder hearing of Mrs Mary Elizabeth Bell protested a headline appearing in a Toronto morning newspaper.

Mrs. Bell is charged with the murder of her husband, 52-year-old Percy Bell, whose body was exhumed from its grave 20 days after he died in convulsions Jan. 2.

Defence counsel Ronald Cass strongly protested a Toronto Globe and Mail headline reading: "Fatal dose in body, Bell given strychnine in cocoa, crown claims."

ASKS COURT ACTION

He asked Magistrate Wills to take some action, saying there were witnesses excluded from the hearing who would read the story and draw the wrong inference. He said the headline was prejudicial to the defence.

Alex Hall, crown prosecutor, said that editors, not reporters, are responsible for headlines. This could have been a wrong interpretation of the story.

Magistrate Wills said an inference had been drawn by the headline which was utterly ridiculous. He warned the press that such matters should be treated in the proper manner.

Reds Mustering Fresh Army

HANOI (AP) — Communist-led Vietminh today were "beating the bushes" everywhere in western [illegible] seeking by every available fighting man for their next big assault upon the French Union "dustbowl" fortress of Dien Bien Phu.

Rumors circulated in Hanoi that the Vietminh military commander-in-chief, Gen. Von Nguyen Giap has sworn he will amass a force "up to 100,000 men if necessary to crush the French fortress.

It is no secret that along with rushing up fresh war equipment, ammunition and other essentials over the dirt roads and mountain trails linking Vietminh hill positions with the border of Red China, Giap also has been moving in fresh troops.

On the basis of information available in this war capital for the French Union forces, there appears no chance that Giap can muster regular troops anywhere near 100,000.

Say House To Debate China Policy

PC Leader Opposes Recognition Of Red Government

OTTAWA — (CP) — China policy is expected to be the focal point of an external affairs debate scheduled for Thursday in the Commons.

Possibility of Canadian recognition of the Chinese Communist government has been a hot topic in the capital since Prime Minister St. Laurent made a series of pronouncements on the subject near the end of his world tour.

At Manila, Seoul and Tokyo, he said Canada is sooner or later bound to recognize the Chinese Reds, no matter how much she might dislike the Communist complexion of China's government.

He stuck to that view in a press conference on the return home a week ago today, though in the Commons Monday he said the government isn't considering recognition "at this time."

DEAL WITH GOVERNMENT

In the Far East, the prime minister's chief point seemed to be that if there were to be any solution to problems in which China was directly involved and which couldn't be settled without co-operation of the government in control of China, then Canada would apparently have to deal with that government.

China is obviously involved in both problems, Korea and Indo-China. They will be discussed at Geneva starting April 26 by Britain, the United States, France, Russia and Communist China.

As a nation which participated in the Korean war, Canada will also be represented. External Affairs Minister Pearson plans to head the Canadian delegation.

Informed sources here say Canadian recognition of the Chinese government may hinge on the outcome of the Geneva conference.

If the conference made progress—the Ottawa view is pessimistic—Canada then would be prepared to give serious thought to recognition.

Britain recognized the Chinese Communist government in 1949, but the United States has been bitterly opposed to recognition.

Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, is on record as opposing recognition. The CCF contends the government should recognize the Reds.

Queen's Visit Proving Worry

NEW YORK (CP) — The New York Times says today in a Madrid dispatch that British authorities in Gibraltar have expressed "deep concern' over the possibility of "serious incidents during the Queens visit to the fort May 10.

The Madrid story says exceptional steps are being taken at Gibraltar, at the southern tip of Spain, to tighten security measures.

"The British preoccupation lies mainly in that underground organizations opposing the Spanish government or merely 'anti-Britsih hothead' conceivably might seize that occasion to endanger the Queen's safety by some irresponsible acts that would lead to a grave crisis in British-Spanish relations," the dispatch adds.

"These relations already are tense."

The possibility of trouble has "been indicated by a number of threatening letters received last week in London saying the Queen would be in danger if she landed at Gibraltar. Some Spanish elements have long agitated for the return to Spain of the rock fortress, British stronghold since 1703.

Trading Moderate On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO (CP)—Early afternoon prices were lower and trading was moderate on today's stock market.

Industrials and western oils led the lower trend as the mining groups followed in light trading. Volume totalled 1,160,000 shares.

Western oils had their weakest session of several months as losses spread and the lower trend was extended beyond the profit-taking stage of early weakness. Gains were outnumbered by a margin of more than six to one.

Papers, foods, textiles, financial institutions, refining oils and retail stores were weaker in the industrial slump and utilities, liquors and manufactures added slightly. Steels were steady.

Golds, although lower, slowed a little in their drop, and several small bright spots appeared in quiet trading. Seniors were steady.

U.S. May Train Indo-Chinese

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP)—Defence Secretary Charles E. Wilson's announcement in Washington that he and the French army chief of staff, Gen. Paul Ely, are discussing sending an American mission to train the new Viet Nam army caught French military circles by surprise today.

French military men here are still strongly opposed to the idea.

High military sources affirmed today that there has been no change in the emphatic view voiced a month ago by their top commander in Indo-China, Gen. Henri Navarre, who then said it was "unthinkable" that Americans should train the fledgling Viet Namese army.

Navarre added that though Americans had much experience in Korea, it was not experience which could be applied to the peculiar topography and climatic conditions of Indo-China.

Longshoremen Boost Back-To-Work Threat

NEW YORK (AP) — Quiet prevailed today on New York's strife-torn waterfront as pickets of the striking longshoremen's union marched peacefully in front of Manhattan piers. There were no reports of any trouble in the strike-bound harbor.

Scattered fist fights, rock barrages and clubbings Tuesday marked the efforts of non-striking longshoremen to pass picket lines to get to work. Five men were arrested and at least two injured, and there were two false bomb scares.

The outlaw strike by members of the International Longshoremen's Association (Ind.) for 20 days has kept thousands of members of the rival AFL union of the same name from work.

The New York-New Jersey waterfront commission reported that 2,680 men were working Tuesday.

Millionairess Weds Queen's Chaplain

BOSTON (AP) — Eighty-year-old millionairess Mrs. Ethel L. Paine Moors, descendant of a signer of the declaration of independence, and Canon Charles E. Raven, 68, Queen Elizabeth's personal chaplain, exchanged marriage vows in fashionable Trinity church today.

Foregoing the traditional middle aisle approach to the altar, the couple entered and left the church by a side door.

Queen To Broadcast Farewell Message

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) — Queen Elizabeth will broadcast a farewell to Australia from the royal tour liner Gothic when she leaves Freemantle April 1.

N. N. Finlay, assistant general manager of the Australian Broadcasting Commission, announced today that Radio Australia will pick up the address from the national network and relay it throughout the world.

1953 Building Costs Remained Stable

OTTAWA (CP)—Building costs remained comparatively stable in 1953 despite more construction activity, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation said Tuesday.

The annual report of the government's housing agency, tabled in the Commons, said prices of building products declined but wage rates of construction workers went up.

"As in 1952, the combination of these factors produced a fairly constant price level to the buyers of new housing," the report said.

CMHC said that municipal difficulties in providing serviced land in some cases held back new house construction. Lack of serviced land was probably the chief reason why residential housing starts in the Toronto area were less than half of Edmonton's.

Even when enough land was available, the report said, speculative activity forced up the price of raw land.

Canada Sends 2nd Protest

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has sent a second note to the United States protesting legislation before congress for diversion of additional water from Lake Michigan into the Chicago waterway.

External Affairs Minister Pearson tabled the March 10 note in the Commons Tuesday.

The congressional legislation, passed by the House of Representatives but not yet by the Senate, would send an additional 1,000 cubic feet of water a second into the waterway, a navigable channel that also carries Chicago's waste into the Mississippi river system.

An earlier note was sent from here March 1, urging that the matter be dealt with by the International Joint Commission.

The Canadian government contends the diversion could have an adverse effect on the proposed St. Lawrence Seaway and on the hydro power potential at Niagara Falls and in the St. Lawrence river.

The new note places special emphasis on navigation in the Great Lakes and river.

"The effect will be particularly marked in periods of low stage," it said, "and recent lowering of lake levels indicates that a cycle of low levels may be experienced in the near future. . . If the supply of water is reduced during a cycle of low levels, very serious injury to navigation in boundary waters will undoubtedly result."

Officials Run Ragged Marketing Wheat Crop

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe said Tuesday Canada's grain officials are being "run ragged" trying to market last year's wheat crop.

He said the present crop year is "as difficult a year for the wheat board and grain commissioners as any we have ever had."

Mr. Howe was replying in the Commons to a request by Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) that the Canada Grain Act be given a thorough study by the Commons agriculture committee.

The minister in charge of grain marketing said he would not object to calling the wheat board and the board of grain commissioners before the committee for one or two weeks. But he was not prepared this year to make unusual demands on the time of either board while they were being "run ragged" in trying to market last year's bumper grain crop.

Mrs. Bell, 48, was charged with murder Jan. 22, 20 days after Bell's death and 11 days after his body was exhumed on the order of the attorney - general's department. Mrs. Bell showed signs of strain during the second day of the hearing but did not burst into tears as she did the day before.

DEATH NOT NATURAL

Dr. Hans Lucke, a provincial pathologist, said Bell was husky and weighed more than 200 pounds. He said he performed a post-mortem Jan. 9 and could find no signs of natural death.

He said the bitter taste of cocoa would make it the best beverage in which to hide the bitter taste of strychnine. He said, however, that brown material found in Bell's mouth and windpipe did not resemble "ordinary cocoa" to his eye, but seemed more similar to some kind of chocolate.

Testimony Monday was that Bell vomited a "cocoa-colored liquid" before he died.

Dr. Lucke termed strychnine a "very practical" poison because it is absorbed so rapidly in the body it may be hard to detect.

The hearing is expected to take about six days.

SASKATOON (CP) — Architects have been retained to prepare plans for a new city hall on which construction is expected to start late this year. Estimated cost is around $1,000,000.

St. Patrick's Day Theme Of WI Program

HAVELOCK (ENS)—The program presented at the meeting of the Belmont Women's Institute at the home of Mrs. Randal Vansickle was in keeping with St. Patrick's Day.

Mrs. W. Anderson was convener. Community singing of Irish songs opened the program. Two solos were sung by Lynn Anderson, 4, accompanied by her grandmother, Mrs. W. Anderson.

A paper on historical research and current events was given by Mrs. William Smith, who also gave a reading. A solo was sung by Mrs. John Beatty. A demonstration on making after-dinner mints was given by Mrs. Wesley Johnston.

There were 24 members and seven visitors present. The president, Mrs. W. Harris presided for the business session. The treasurer announced that $58.20 had been realized from a bingo and bake sale.

It was decided to make exhibits for the handicraft department of the Peterborough Exhibition. The following members will take part in this project: Mrs. A. Dafoe (work apron); Mrs. W. Anderson (pot holders); Mrs. Morrow (baby's knitted jacket); Mrs. C. Jones (men's knitted socks); Mrs. W. Goadsby fancy apron); Mrs. H. Hoard (tea towels); Mrs. H. Scott and Mrs. C. King (lunch cloth).

COMPLETE HOSPITAL

Mayor R. J. Locke brought up the matter of raising the capital funds necessary to complete the hospital building, prior to the setting of the tax rate. The matter was laid over until March 31, when it will be discussed jointly with council and the Seymour township council.

Mayor Locke, who is a member of the Memorial Hospital board, presented a lengthy statement, on hospital finances. He said that the operating deficit for the first two months of 1954 was approximately $2100. A motion was passed, whereby the hospital board will be allowed to use the money obtained through the sale of the old hospital building [illegible] for the reduction of the deficit.

A monthly grant of $450 was also included in the 1954 budget.

Arthur K. Loucks, secretary of the North East Northumberland high school area board, presented the high school estimates, observing that there are a number of items not yet settled. He said that Campbellford's share of the total area levy as it had been so far estimated, would be $12,733.34.

The total levy necessary to conduct the business of the board, was estimated at $39,866.44 of which the town of Campbellford pays 31.94 per cent, Percy township 27.709 per cent and Seymour township 38.351 per cent. Included in the requirements is $3,013.69 for the final debenture payment on the Campbellford high school.

W. C. Tatham and S. A. Hopping, two members of the public school board addressed council in response to a request for further particulars concerning the public school levy. The board asked for $25,000, an increase of $3800 over last year. The trustees explained that salary increments would take an extra $1,900 and the building of a fence adjacent to the school yard would cost another $500. School books to be supplied to the children would cost $500 and insurance amounted to $1,800.

Council considered the applications for the position of stenographer for the town office, and the application of Mrs. Helen Potts was chosen. She will be employed on a trial basis at a salary of $130 per month. Her duties will commence on April 1.

Cobourg Council Approves $62,682 School Addition

COBOURG (ENS). — Formal approval of a four-room addition to the new eastend school was given by town council at its regular meeting here. The public school board asked council to pass a bylaw covering an extension to the school costing $62,682.

The extra accommodation was needed in order to take care of pupils arriving in town with ordnance depot personnel. A letter from the school board informed the council that the department of education would pay a subsidy on that amount.

"We need the extra accommodation. There is no doubt about that," said Mayor John D. Burnet. "I might point out that this year [illegible] federal government [illegible] to 75 per cent of taxation on the assessed value of the ordnance depot buildings.

"If legislation now pending goes through, we will get 100 per cent next year. It amounts to fifve mills this year," added the mayor.

REPAIR OFFICES

A communication from the counties clerk enclosed a memo on the recent meeting between the property committees of the town and counties councils in which it was agreed that the town woud wash, paint and plaster the offices of the road engineer and counties clerk. Materials would be supplied by the town and labor by the counties.

The counties also wanted the windows of their rented offices washed regularly at the expense of the town, but this item was deferred so that the town clerk could look into the lease.

Council discussed the supply of water and sewer services to a number of housing sub-divisions now under construction. In each case the town engineer was instructed to look into it.

Councillor Jeff Rolph reported to council that Gerald Towns, who has a trailer camp, wanted to know what council proposed to do in regard to granting permission to operate it. Mr. Towns was [illegible] was reluctant to take any steps until he knew where he stood, said Councillor Rolph.

EDUCATION FEE

Mayor Burnet replied that he had been advised that the school board had tried to collect the $80 fee from the families in the trailer camp for each child attending school, but had not been successful. He felt that there should be some guarantee from Mr. Towns that if his tenants wouldn't pay the fee, he should look after it himself.

Council decided to write the school board to have it down in black and white whether the $80 could be collected or not.

The office of tax collector and assesor, held by E. A. Hircock, with Vic Hewson as assistant, was split up by town council, with Mr. Hircock as tax collecter at a salary of $3,400 per year and Vic Hewson as assessor at $2,800 a year.

Seek To Improve Farm Methods

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — Lindsay Anderson was guest speaker at the Monday noon luncheon of the Campbellford Rotary club.

Mr. Anderson is the superintendent of the dairy herd at the Massey-Harris farm at Milliken, Ontario.

He said the purpose of the farm is to develop new and improved methods of farming. His job is to make the dairy herd pay its way, including accounting for costs of feeding, depreciation and upkeep, etc. This he said was [illegible] of a herd of Holstein cattle, than for Shorthorn beef cattle, where the original investment was much higher per head.

The speaker told of a 90 acre testing ground, used in the testing of the company's machinery.

TOKYO (AP) — The visiting Kenora Thistles tonight swamped an all-Japan collegiate hockey team 23-1 in the second game of a 10-contest tour of Japan.

The Canadians outplayed and outmanoeuvred the Japanese throughout.

The 1953 western Canada intermediate champions scored eight goals in the first period, five in the second and 10 in the third. The Japanese score came late in the third period.

Canadian goals were by Ray Westlund with five, Ken Robertson and Ray Simoneau with four, Don Blom with threa, Murray Robertson and Bernie Milliard with two.

Mrs. B. W. Burgess Red Cross President

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — The Red Cross on Monday elected officers for 1954. Mrs. Helen McKenzie of Beaverton, representative of the Central Ontario Division was guest speaker.

Plans for community projects were discussed, but details will be decided at a later meeting. The local campaign for funds will be held on April 3.

The election of officers resulted as follows: president, Mrs. D. W. Burgess; 1st vice president, Mrs. Ken Cairns; 2nd vice president, Mrs. Ken Hazell; secretary, Mrs. Don Russell; treasurer, Mrs. R. D. MacDonald.

Levelling No Cause To Bleat Recession Says J. D. Ferguson

Since women spend 85 cents of each consumer dollar, they can perform a vital service for the Canadian economy in demanding Canadian goods for their money, J. Douglas Ferguson, president of the Canadian Manufacturers Association told the Chamber of Commerce's 65th annual banquet Tuesday night.

It has been said that people don't care where the goods they buy originate, but Mr. Ferguson wondered if this was accurate. In any case he felt that if Canadian made goods were demanded, sagging home industries could be bolstered, wages kept at a stable level and keener competitive conditions created.

The combination of cheap foreign labor, often working for as little as 40 cents an hour, and the fact that Canadians earn the second highest wage rates in the world makes it difficult to keep the economy on an even keel against foreign competition, said Mr. Ferguson. As a case in point he cited the chronically-depressed textile industry.

This factor is common to the whole North American continent but Canadians, too, must compete with goods from the United States. Mr. Ferguson felt that the price variant between Canadian and United States goods is often too great, partly due to the ability of American monopolies to undercut Canadian prices, but more because of Canadian tax policies.

The federal government needs to take a "good, hard, long look at its tax structure" Mr. Ferguson declared. He was not enthusiastic about either the 10 per cent sales tax or the 15 cent excise tax.

TAX TROUBLE

Because of the 15 per cent excise tax, "many manufacturers are finding difficulty in keeping their production lines busy. Mr. Ferguson foresaw a possible "serious reduction" in sales in 1954 with this tax at the present level, with a consequent falling off in incomes and, hence, in tax revenues to the government.

Corporate icome taxes, too, are "unduly high." From 18 per cent in 1939 these rose to 33 per cent in pre-Korea years and now the present peak is 49 per cent. This "direct tax on the carrying on of business" said Mr. Ferguson is "too high to be accepted as an irreducible minimum."

These are some of the clouds on the face of business in 1954, but he did not feel they were enough to justify either more government legislation in social service fields, or "piteous moans of pessimists" talking of recessions and depressions.

Despite the current unemployment wave, Canada is "offering opportunities to industry, to capital, and to individuals which are almost unequalled since the dawn of the industrial age."

No economy, said Mr. Ferguson, whether the free market type or "the dreamboat type of the Utopian socialists," can move ahead without a pause. He said there was a "hesitancy" in the economy, which could be expected to carry into 1954, but this "levelling off" does not justify cries of recession.

Mr. Ferguson said he agreed with Trade & Commerce Minister C. D. Howe, in the view that there seems "little indication of any serious interruption in the generally prosperous conditions now prevailing." Adjustments in the United States should not be of sufficient magnitude to curtail seriously sales of Canadian export items to the U.S.

STABILIZING

Again referring to Mr. Howe, Mr. Ferguson said that he expected sales prospects to be firm at home and spending to remain high. Heavy government expenses on defence will be a "stabilizing influence" balancing a high level of consumer-good spending despite an expected levelling-off in the rate of expansion of consumer credit. Consumer credit cuts may "reduce the buoyancy" in the durable goods market.

Lashing out at state planning, Mr. Ferguson asserted that "you can't have more and more so-called benefits of the welfare state and still have a healthy economy." He compared socialists to fleas, settling parasitically on the back of a dog (the economy). "With a housing unit in every wrinkle, the fleas had little to do but eat sleep and multiply." Soon they became so numerous, that the dog "wandered into the wilderness and passed away." Panic reigned among the fleas, "disillusioned and without sustenance". They died in the "cold, unsympathetic world as they tried to thumb a ride to the next dog."

This analogy brought Mr. Ferguson to his point that "the more a man demands and gets, the bigger the federal tax bite in his paycheck." He said that workers are "lucky" their taxes are deducted at the source, and predicted that there would be fewer socialists if all had to make lump-sum income tax payments.

"The moral fiber of the nation is loosened in any decline of the free market system." Mrs. Ferguson declared. He said there is "no more ruinous attitude" than the one that the economy can be controlled by "string manipulation for 1954 hows [illegible] for [illegible] prosperity" but he felt there was [illegible] enough cause for optimism "to wipe the grin off the faces of those who have been making political capital out of prophesying that unhappy days are here again."

FASTEST GROWTH

Since 1939 Canada has grown faster than any other country in the world. Canada ranks third among the world's trading nations, and has been transformed into a predominantly industrial economy. Of each dollar of national income, 33 cents is derived from industry, which Mr. Ferguson felt compared favorably with the 37-cent high in the United States.

Since 1939, national production has quadrupled and there are now more Canadians employed in manufacturing than in agriculture, mining, fishing, public utilities and finance combined. The population is soaring, too, "but our population is still far too small in relation to the resources we possess."

In spite of the levelling-off signs at the end of 1953, Mr. Ferguson pointed out that the national product had risen three and a half per cent in 1953. It is now at a peak of $24,200,000,000 with consumer spending at a new high of $15,000,000,000, up $700,000,000 from 1952. Industrial wages are up six cents to an average peak of $1.40.

Capital investment, including an increase in inventories, rose to $6,200,000,000, a rise of 13 per cent from 1952 and equal to 26 per cent of 1953's gross national product.

These statistics led Mr. Ferguson to conclude that with a "reasonable amount of initiative, a bit of self-discipline, plus self-reliance", the Canadian economy will continue to stay healthy.

Earlier, Mr. Ferguson called for closer co-ordination between the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and the various Chambers of Commerce. The aims of both, he said, are parallel—"the prosperity of Canadians and of Canada as a whole."

When he is not busy with the affairs of the Canadian Manufacturers Association, Mr. Ferguson tries to find time for his coin collection, described as one of the finest and largest in North America. He was born in Bracebridge, educated at the University of Toronto and spent several years with the Bell Telephone Co. More recently he has been president of the Spencer Support Co.

Mr. Ferguson's earliest recollection of Peterborough is a lecture in a Sunday school hall to which he was firmly taken by the hand by a boy named Lester Bowles Pearson.

Mr. Ferguson was introduced by J. E. Girven and thanked by John Madden.

Picton Kinsmen Visit Campbellford Club

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — The Kinsmen club met on Monday evening at Edgewater Park. Several members of the Picton club were guests.

It was announced that the club has been given the use of a local theatre on the afternoons of April 20 and 21 for a special matinee. Kinsmen and Kinettes will act as ushers and the only cost to the club will be the films.

Several members of the Picton club spoke briefly and later put on a mock initiation ceremony.

That The Government May Govern

An Act first passed in 1951, replacing a more stringent wartime Bill, has been described by the Opposition Leader, Mr. George Drew as repugnant to Parliament. It is the Emergency Powers Act, which lapses this May unless it is renewed. The Government has not yet decided whether to ask Parliament to extend it, and for an understandable reason; the "emergency" of the Korean War has passed. The Act removes some power from Parliament and entrusts it to the Governor-in-Council, that is, to the Cabinet. Hence it is not popular with rank and file Parliamentarians, and certainly not with the Opposition.

* * *

The Emergency Powers Act has far more significance than as a mere emergency measure. It, and the criticism of it, are at the heart of the vast problem of how to adapt Canadian parliamentary processes to the conditions of the modern state. The problem is: how to enable the Government to govern; and at the same time to ensure the effective responsibility of the Government to our elected representatives. It is a problem which was discussed last summer by Professor H. A. Corry of Queen's University, in an address to the Canadian Political Science Association.

* * *

Fifty and even twenty-five years ago the problem of governing Canada according to parliamentary processes was relatively easy. The area of government was much smaller, the responsibilities of the Government fewer. As Professor Corry said, any intelligent person coming to the House of Commons with some experience of community affairs in his own locality had little difficulty in understanding the policies and work of the Government of Canada. Now, although the quality of the membership of the House of Commons has seldom been higher, the complexities of economics (national and international), the multitude of details and the mass of the work to be done, strain the capacity of the House of Commons. The business of Government now amounts to about four billion dollars a year. The necessity for many and rapid decisions had never been greater.

* * *

As Professor Corry has said, because society is not longer largely self-regulating as it was fifty, or even twenty-five years ago, the social structure will break down if Government action in economic and social matters suddenly ceases.

> Each of these Government measures is complex; each that is set going creates new situations in respect of which additional Government action may be necessary. More than that, all aspects of public policy are now closely interrelated. Policy on social security, on price supports for agricultural products, on developmental expenditures, must all be considered in relation to one another and to fiscal and monetary policy. Because economic and social stability depend to a considerable degree on careful integration of Government policy, it may be serious and even disastrous to the whole programme, if one line of major policy has to be abandoned under ill-informed or irresponsible pressure."

It is clear that to exist well today, a State must have a strong executive. In a parliamentary state, that executive (the Government) must be able to explain its policies to Parliament and secure approval for its actions. So it is that in Canada, the business of the Government now occupies a very large part of the time of the House, leaving little for members to debate or Parliament to perform its critical functions. The problem is deep in a democracy today. The Government must be enabled to govern; therefore it must have strength such as has been given the Canadian Government by the Emergency Powers Act. On the other hand, the more power the Government gets, the less resides in Parliament. Parliament must be informed about Government policy and details and at the same time have power of surveillance over them. If not, the supremacy of Parliament will have passed to the Cabinet.

* * *

Professor Corry has suggested a politically practical means of resolving the conflicting needs. Procedural changes are necessary to expedite Government business. On the other hand, the House needs better access to informed knowledge of what is going on. Professor Corry has proposed a "deal" in which greater expedition in handling Government business is traded for better organization of the House for carrying on its functions of surveillance. It is possible that the Government's hesitation about renewing or not renewing the Emergency Powers Act is due to attempts to work out such a deal.

Trains Of Decayed Gentility

In its classified advertisement columns the London Times carries appeals of charitable institutions; among them requests for donations to a fund for Gentlewomen in Reduced Circumstances. It is a touching appeal; one's mind wonders about these Gentlewomen. How faded is their grandeur, how dim the ballroom chandeliers of their Victorian girlhood, how shabby the bonnet still worn with stubborn dignity?

Canada has few ghosts of such a past, perhaps the only relics of old splendour, staunchly chin-up despite distress, are certain railway carriages. In Eric Munsterhjelm's new novel The Wind and the Caribou there is this description of a train called the Muskeg Flier. It makes (or did until a few years ago) one trip a week over its three or four hundred miles of track between Edmonton and the town of Waterways on the banks of a tributary of the Athabaska.

> "The train consisted of about ten antiquated freight cars, with a wooden passenger coach from the last century attached to the rear. This cavalcade of relics was pulled by a locomotive which panted and trembled, not from eagerness, but from age . . .
> "Half a century before, the coach might have been the pride of some transcontinental crack train. Decorated bronze lamps hung from its ceiling, its walls were of mahogany panels framed by carved mouldings, and the upper parts of the windows were stained-glass mosaic set in lead. One could picture how, fifty years before, frock-coated gentlemen had attended bustled ladies with smiles and flattery."

One does not need to take the Muskeg Flier to discover Victorian gentility (first class, of course) down at the heel, tarnished and tattered with years, definitely declasse. We have such coaches right here in this district, doing milk-runs where formerly their elegance could reduce even the Rockies through which they ran into crude commonness. In how many backwater and backbush regions of Canada still move with humbled pride such creatures of decayed gentility.

In the first summer of the war we took a train from Woodstock (N.B.) eastward into a hinterland of lakes and woods. It had one coach, such a one as the carriage of the Muskeg Flier, but even more ornate. It has pillars and arched aisles as well as stained glass, ornamental brass and mahogany panelling. Was this perchance the very carriage which Sir William Van Horne used on some of his Western Canada painting expeditions? He, the President of the railway, would order a special train and special coaches suitable to the luxurious tastes of a Victorian-Canadian millionaire. Two or three young painters would be taken along for company and to give him instruction in the art. When a particularly picturesque view of mountains or lake offered, Sir William would stop the train and encamp on a siding while he dabbled on canvas. How lowly from its great days must the New Brunswick carriage have fallen!

The dowagers of Canadian railway grandeur still haunt the sidelines, their decorated grace tarnished, their loveliness faded, their plush blowsy, and their frames creaking; old ladies of decayed gentility, wraiths on the rails of Canadian time.

Mr. Oliver Is Hasty

When Mr. Farquhar Oliver assured a delegation from the Ontario Federation of Labour last week that the Ontario Liberal Party favoured the voluntary revocable checkoff, he was hasty and unwise. The voluntary revocable checkoff, as most of our readers will know, is a system by means of which employers deduct union dues from the pay of their employees and hand them over to the union; we doubt if a majority of Ontario Liberals favour it, and it can be argued forcibly that it is opposed to Liberal principles. It is true that the six Liberal members in the Legislature have moved for adoption of the checkoff, under Mr. Oliver's guidance, but those gentlemen are not the Liberal Party in Ontario. Nor is Mr. Oliver the party leader; he is the House leader. A leader will be chosen at a convention next month and Mr. Oliver's name has not been seriously considered for this post.

The Liberal Party in Ontario cannot be strengthened by such ill-supported assertions as this one by Mr. Oliver. The CCF has long ago found that espousal of the labour cause is not in itself enough to carry a party to success. Labour is united on labour matters, but it is divided when it goes to the polls, and no party can count on a large section of labour support. If Mr. Oliver thinks that he is rousing the enthusiasm of labour for the Liberal party by talking in this strain, he has learned little from his years in politics. Nothing shows the weakness and intellectual destitution of a party so clearly as this sort of cadging for support on minor issues.

NOTE AND COMMENT

We read that until quite recently, reckless drivers in China were beheaded, and their heads displayed as an example to others. Just the thing for the police to display on the aerials of their prowl cars!

SCANDAL IN ITALY

Montesi Affair

By WAYLAND YOUNG

ITALY is the throes of one of those atrocious politico-moral scandals which are almost a part of the constitutions of the two great Latin democracies. The Communists have been exploiting it for all they are worth, so as to discredit the present ruling set; for the last two months it has provided front-page headlines every day, and at the moment it is worth a good ten columns in the daily papers and takes precedence over the great debate on the ratification of the European Defence Community Treaty, and even over the vote of confidence in the new Government. The country's Chief of Police has had to resign. So far there are more than twenty libel cases arising out of the affair, and there is a new one almost every day.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE MONTESI AFFAIR began in April 1953, when a pretty girl called Wilma Montesi was found dead and half naked at the edge of the sea near Rome. Her fiance and family cried murder at first, but then became abruptly silent. The police inquiry led to a conclusion of accidental death, and was filed. But rumour grumbled, and people wondered just how it could be that a girl should go twenty miles to the sea just to bathe her foot because it had eczema; should take off not only her shoes and stockings to do so but also her skirt and her underclothes; and most of all why, even if she was unwell at the time, she should have lost consciousness when her foot touched the water; should have fallen, drowned and been carried ten miles in a day by the tideless Mediterranean.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN JANUARY this year, nine months later, a young editor called Silvano Muto published in his illustrated weekly a more or less open allegation that Montesi had passed out at a drug orgy, and that her companions had panicked and thrown her, possibly still living, into the nearby sea. The affair blazed up immediately, especially in the Communist and fellow-travelling Press, and Names began to be dragged in. The orgy—rather a series of orgies—was alleged to have taken place at a shooting-lodge hired by a syndicate whose secretary, a false marquis caller Ugo Montagna, is now said by the police themselves to have been a spy and pimp for the Fascists, Nazis and Allies in turn. But more important. Piero Piccioni, the son of the present Foreign Minister of Italy; Tommaso Pavone, the head of the police; Professor Galeazzi Lisi, the Pope's personal physician, and Giuseppe Spataro, a former Minister of Public Works, were alleged to have been Montagna's associates and intimates.

THE AUTHORITIES took the extreme course and prosecuted Muto for publishing lies calculated to disturb the public peace. At his first appearance in court Muto maintained his story was true, and he had been told it by two girls. He failed to produce them as witnesses, and the case was adjourned.

Then began a hunt for the girls. One of them, Adriana Bisaccia, was found without much difficulty, and half denied she had told Muto anything. "I am in no condition to remember," she keeps saying. She has provided the public with nothing more than her complete family and sentimental history, and the popular leader-writers with nothing more than a few slaps at "existentialism," which they take to mean having no money and hanging around cafes where the artists and film stars go.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE OTHER GIRL, Anna Maria Caglio, is made of sterner stuff. She wrote down her allegations, sent copies to the Pope and the Minister of the Interior "in case anything should happen to her," and vanished. Her father and her uncle—a priest—held the stage for a few days, but at last she was run to earth in a convent in Florence.

She had been Montagna's mistress, and so was right at the centre of things. A pro-Government daily paper adopted her and drove her about in its cars thus stealing the Communists' thunder. The police at long last reopened their inquiry into the death of Wilma Montesi; and Anna Maria Caglio accused and accused and accused. Daily indiscretions spoke of drug traffic and still more drug traffic; a whole factory making drugs for sale was discovered near Milan and was closed down. Everything about Montagna was made public (this seems to have been Caglio's chief aim) and more and more shadowy men and women in dark glasses filed libel suits against the Press and one another.

✧ ✧ ✧

WHEN their clients had enough the lawyers began to sue one another. Journalists prowled round Italy in deerstalker hats with pipes and magnifying glasses, and made astonishing revelations to the police, though not to the public. But the truth about the alleged orgy of the fatal night remained obscure. One of the most hideous stories which got around was that when Montesi passed out her companions telephoned to "a person high in authority" in Rome for advice, and got it: ditch her.

✧ ✧ ✧

TWO DAYS BEFORE the Muto case was due to be resumed, the police shelved their inquiry for the second time. Wilma Monetsi was bathing her foot in the sea and she fainted; that was that. The Muto trial is now proceeding again, and Anna Maria Caglio is sticking to her guns. No, she was not there on the fatal night, but she had heard this conversation and that phone call. Yes, she remembers very clearly. Yes, she is a promiscuous girl if you like, but she had heard this and this and this. She does not contradict herself and leaves the court after six hours cross-examination fresher than the lawyers. On March 12, Pavone, the Chief of Police bowed before the storm and resigned. And the Foreign Minister Attilio Piccioni, was expected to "provisionally resign."

✧ ✧ ✧

SO it goes on. When it is over there will be a good thirty libel cases to hear, including one of Montagna against the police whose dossier on him, which they produced in court, is, he says, full of lies. Whatever the outcome, there is no doubt that "the public peace" is disturbed. The rather charming and dramatic and characterful face of Caglio, with just a hint of the loony about it, smiles up from every paper every day (in colour in the weeklies), and she and Montagna and young Piccioni and the Pope's doctor and the discredited Chief of Police are the talk in every bar and at every dinner-table and street corner. They are also the names flung at the Government in the blazing rows there have been in Parliament.

Nothing is certain. At the best it is very ugly affair indeed. At the worst it may do exactly what the Communists want it to do: it may give rise in the minds of the people of Italy to a belief that their masters are a rotten, decadent lot.

An American Opinion:
JUST ANOTHER PROBLEM ON A TEDIOUS JOURNEY

Letter To The Editor

CANADIEN REPLIES

Sir: In answer to Elaira C. Smith's letter of a few days ago, published in the editorial page of this newspaper, in which the writer bring up the present parliamentary flag debate, and in which he (or she) makes some remarks about the French-Canadians' attitude on the subject and even bring into question their part played during the last war, let the writer please take a note of this:

1. The French-Canadians are not opposed in general to a flag with a Union Jack; they simply wish to put in along with it a trait of their racial origin. Whether you like it or not, Canada is of primarily French origin and Canada has originally been under the French rule for more than 150 years (that is as long as under the British rule). To deny them such ethnical rights would lead to condemn the present Russian-ridden countries whenever they strive to maintain their pre-slavery state or resist to the red infiltrating philosophical ideas. It would also lead to approve Sweden of having forced Norway under her monarchy in the last century and disapprove the latter of having recovered their monarchical independence about a century later. It would also lead to blaming United States for not having subdued totally Japan, for not having deprived them of their ethnical rights and for not having forced them into a total and complete Americanization (language and all).

After all had not the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor hypocritically? etc., etc., etc.

2. The long list of figures you have drawn up and the important amount of work you seem to have put up to your dissertation are to me but a waste of time, since most Canadians already know about Quebec's attitude toward conscription. Such work however, can be useful in two ways: firstly, you are now informed of the whole male population of Canada between ages 18 to 45; this might help you in some way. (You might even subdue and put to reason one of these Quebecers); secondly, the figures given show a percentage even higher than I expected for all provinces, Quebec included.

3. Instead of gloating at figures, you should have at least worked a little at studying the real causes of French-Canada's attitude. Their duty was in helping the cause of the Allies the best they could but might there not exist on their behalf some reasons which you could never have suspected, being entrenched as we are most of us behind one side?

4. You cannot take advantage of the saying of one individual (Paul Bouchard's) to attribute it to the majority.

5. Although you have acquired a certain sort of "blind knowledge" by such a compilation of figures, you have however revealed your ignorance of a very simple fact: the Anthem "God Save The Queen" is not our National Anthem but Great Britain's (This does not keep us from having a great respect for it.)

6. "O Canada" is not just a song but a real anthem although it is not yet officially recognized as such. The mere fact that foreign bands as well as local bands have greeted our Prime Minister with this Anthem so many times during his world "tour de bonne entente", suffices to show that this "air" is not just a mere song.

7. The Anthem "O Canada" is not in French-Canada "Le Chante Nationale" as you put up, but "Le Chant National" which means "The National Anthem" and for French Canada it is in fact a National Anthem as much as "God Save The King."

8. Why do you use such words as "the superfluous words and boastful theme of O Canada" when you don't even seem to know a single word of it? You write "O Canada, we stand on guard for thee"; this is the English version and although these words are very nice, the French version has an entirely different meaning whatsoever, its words being nonetheless as nice.

9. The average French-Canadian has a great respect toward Great Britain, at least as much if not greater than the average English-speaking Canadian of non-Britannic origin.

10. To write the article the way you did, might indicate a certain lack of education on your part. It is the presence of troublesome people like you who make difficult at present the establishment of true peace in this world of ours.

"O Canada, mon pays, mes amours."

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Blessed are the merciful: for they shall obtain mercy. (Matt. 5:7.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Wherewith shall I come before the Lord, and bow myself before the high God? shall I come before him with burnt offerings, with calves of a year old? . . . He hath shewed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God? (Mic. 6:6, 8.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And when he was demanded of the Pharisees, when the kingdom of God should come, he answered them and said, The kingdom of God cometh not with observation: neither shall they say, Lo here! or, lo there! for, behold, the kingdom of God is within you. (Luke 17:20, 21.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamour, and evil speaking, be put away from you, with all malice: and be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you. (Eph. 4:31, 32.)

RAF Says Goodbye To Last Spitfires

(Cornerbrook, Nfld, Star)

The last Spitfires in operational use by the Royal Air Force have now been replaced with jet aircraft. The famous planes which made a world-wide name for themselves in the Battle of Britain, were flown by countless Canadian and Newfoundland airmen. The only remaining Spitfires—less than 50—are used to make meteorological climbs. Designed by the late R. J. Mitchell, the first Vickers-Supermarine Spitfires were delivered in 1938 and since then nearly a quarter of a million have been built.

A BRITISH OPINION

SO FAR, FAR AWAY FROM THE CALM OF THE CITY STREETS

With a note by Farmer Giles

READING that the days of the "wicked-old-varmer-chasing-townsfolk-off-his-land" are over, and that a Farmers' Union spokesman announced that Britain's farmers WANT city people to visit their lands—as they would a factory—prompts us to illustrate an ancient legend concerning city visitors to the country.

Asked by a visiting city gentleman why that cow had no horns, a farmer replied that there were all sorts of cows, some with long horns, some with short horns, some had crumpled horns, and some had no horns at all, but the real reason THIS particular cow had no horns was that 'twas a horse.

There are, of course, lots of jokes about farmers visiting towns.

STATISTICS and how they are collected and used was outlined Tuesday night at meeting of the Peterborough chapter of the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants by dominion statistician, Herbert Marshall (second front right). So-Ed To Discuss Recreation

A panel discussion on recreational programming in the community will be the theme of tonight's So-Ed program at the YMCA. This supersedes original plans for discussion of the aims and functions of So-Ed.

A panel discussion, moderated by So-Ed chairman Tom Cook will discuss this theme. Will Langan of the Recreation Commission will sketch the work of their organization while Ken Kingston and Mrs. Anne Rowell will represent the YMCA and YMCA respectively on the panel.

On hand at the meeting tonight, fourth in a series of five So-Ed programs will be a delegation from the joint YM-YWCA in Cobourg. It is expected that at least two carloads will be here from Cobourg.

Purpose of the visit, said YMCA general secretary, Jim McClenaghan, is to give the Cobourg group an opportunity to study the operations of So-Ed at first hand. Tentative plans have been laid for a So-Ed program in Cobourg.

February Jobless Reported Higher

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment continued to rise during February, with the number of persons seeking jobs at national employment offices jumping to 558,969 on Feb. 18.

This is an increase of 35,361 from 523,608 on Jan. 21 and a jump of 157,245 from 401,724 on Feb. 19, 1953, a survey by the bureau of statistics and labor department showed today.

Officials said some applicants for work probably have jobs of some sort, though the vast majority would be jobless.

The number of applications for work now before the National Employment Service offices is the highest since the offices were set up in 1941.

In a separate government survey, Canada's civilian labor force was estimated at 5,230,000 on Feb. 20, down slightly from 5,242,000 on Jan. 23 but up from 5,194,000 on Feb. 21 last year.

Of this current labor force, the number of persons working 35 hours or more a week totalled 4,442,000 on Feb. 20, down from 4,465,000 on Jan. 23 and sharply lower than the 4,518,000 on Feb. 21, 1953.

Federal Official Tells How Statistics Aid Development

The Dominion bureau of statistics, now employing 1,200 people, has doubled its size and services since the Second World War, Herbert Marshall, dominion statistician, told a Peterborough audience Tuesday night.

Mr. Marshall, who has headed the bureau since 1945, was addressing a meeting of the Peterborough chapter of the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants of Ontario. More than 50 members and the guests attended the dinner meeting in the Empress Hotel's television room.

His subject, "The Function of the Bureau of Statistics in Post-War Canada", was a general description of the country's centralized statistical organization, housed in a modern functional building in Ottawa that was designed for statistical work.

TAKEN ON TOUR

The talk was built around an imaginary tour through the building with an account of the work done by the various departments.

Some of the divisions:

Health and Welfare—responsible for vital statistics, i.e., births, deaths, marriages; statistics of hospitals and other such institutions.

"These statistics, particularly when combined with population statistics, are basic for all those who are interested in the growth and the health of the nation," said Mr. Marshall.

"Vital statistics when combined with population statistics enable us to make annual estimates of the Canadian population and also to projetc it for a decade or two into the future on the assumption that current trends in birth and death rates and immigration will continue.

"Statistics of the causes of death point out the targets at which the medical health officer and medical research activities should dircet their heaviest artillery. Judicial statistics are important in the [illegible] facts of crime and its prevention.

For example: assuming that present trends in birth and death rates and immigration continue, a projection of the Canadian population to 1961 indicates a total of 18,000,000 by 1961 and 22,500,000 by 1971. Since 1931 the life expectation of males has been increased from 60 to 65 years; the life expectation of females from 62 to 69 years.

Information section: Here the "daily bulletin" answering a great number of general inquiries is produced; also the Canada Year Book and the Canada Handbook (the latter a smaller and more popular version of the Canada Year Book).

PUBLIC ACCOUNTS

Public Finance and Transportation: public accounts are arranged in co-operation with the provinces so they can all be presented on a uniform basis. Also included are statistics on transportation and public utilities.

Special Surveys Section: a section responsible for taking a monthly survey of the monthly labor force. Thirty thousand households, chosen by scientific sample procedure, are covered each month. This gives the most

Road Workers Continue Strike

PLANTAGENET, Ont. (CP) — A union organizer today said municipal road workers for Prescott and Russell counties will continue a strike they started last Monday until the counties recognize the National Union of Public Service Employees (C[illegible]) bargaining agent.

About 35 road workers threw a picket line around the roads division headquarters here. Lionel Gladu, NUPSE organizer, said the men will continue the strike until their union is recognized.

Reeve Gerard Landry of Clarence Creek, chairman of the counties' roads committee, said the strike is illegal and the committee cannot give union recognition. The Ontario labor relations board rejected the union's application for recognition after the United Counties council passed a by-law excluding the employees from jurisdiction of the Ontario labor laws.

Chadwick May Try To Swim Lake Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — Florence Chadwick skimmed over chilly Lake Ontario Tuesday—aboard a Royal Canadian Navy minesweeper—and said that she could swim it from the United States side to Toronto in "about 18 hours." But whether or not she tries the 31-mile route depends on the word of her managers and the financial arrangements.

The 34-year-old dark-haired marathoner, after a three-hour huddle with ship's officers, decided that this was one more large body of water she would like to swim. "It's a challenge and I'm dying to try it but it will be a long grind—about 18 hours," she told reporters.

She said it wouldn't be as tough as the English channel because of the currents but that the average water degree of 58 for the lake in the fall will "make it awful tough and I don't think too many will make it." The Canadian National Exhibition has thrown out a challenge to the world's marathoners to try the 31-mile swim from Fort Niagara, N.Y., to Toronto.

SWIM IT ALONE

The CNE has put up a purse of $25,000, with first prize of $10,000, but it is likely that Miss Chadwick won't make the plunge, scheduled for early September, with the others. "I'm recommending to my managers that I try it but I think they'll say I should swim it alone," she said.

"I'm convinced the swim could be made, and I'd like to be the first to do it," she added.

ISSUES CHALLENGE

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Mrs. Winnie Roach Leuszler, Canada's top long-distance swimmer, challenged Florence Chadwick of San Diego, Calif., to a race "any time, any place, any distance."

Mrs. Leuszler said in a radio interview Tuesday night she can "swim just as far and just as fast as Miss Chadwick and I would relish a chance to prove it."

Mrs. Leuszler said she has issued three other official challenges to Miss Chadwick but received no reply. But when the U.S. swimmer attempted to conquer Canadian waters it was "time to draw the line."

She would be glad to compete in the CNE swim or under separate sponsorship, whichever Miss Chadwick decides.

Mrs. Leuszler, mother of three children, said when she swam the English channel, her time was better than Miss Chadwick's. "I made it in my first attempt; Florence took several tries at it before she was successful."

O'Hearn is not available for comment as he's presently playing goal for the Springfield Puckists in the Quebec League semi-finals. Coach Bob Thorpe, when contacted, said he heard a rumor the other day to the effect that Nip might go west this season. Bob said the club would miss the robust and genial defenceman, but added that prospects appeared bright here for a good replacement. He'd know more about that within a week.

* * * * * *

The Nipper came here from St. Catharines in 1950 and helped the Petes to win three straight Mann Cup championships. His solid bodychecking made O'Hearn popular here but heartily disliked by rival clubs, especially Vancouver and Victoria in Canadian finals. Evidently, the rebuilding 'Rocks—who last week signed up Goalie George Johnston of Toronto Yorks and Orillia—felt the team could use a strong defenceman like Nip. He was born in Halifax, but the happy-go-lucky Nip lived most of his life in St. Kitts, helping 'em win the Mann Cup back in '46. Has played a lot of minor pro hockey, too, in the winters as a goaltender. If he does go west, we wish him well, but trust the B.C. officials don't entice any more of our champs out that way.

Truckmen And The Petes

Switching to a more seasonable subject (though the season is running out), let's mention the OHA senior "B" group finals for a minute or two. The best-of-seven set resumes here Thursday night with Oshawa holding a 2-0 lead over the TPT Petes, after the first playoff joust ended in an overtime tie. Truckers need two more wins, while the Petes are definitely on the spot, requiring four victories to stave off elimination. A tough task, but only the game fish swim upstream. A win here tomorrow would put 'em back in the hunt and they could sew up the series Saturday in Kingston. All three playoffs to date have been closer than this, so it's quite possible the scrappy Petes will snap into top form from here in and knock the speedy Truckmen off.

* * * * * *

"We're playing them too gentle," big Bill McMaster growled after the last fray in the Limestone City; "they waltz in there, often with their heads down, knowing they're not going to be bounced around. Well, it'll be different in the next one." Other players spoke in similar manner, so we look for a fighting squad of home puckists to give the Oshawans a tough evening Thursday. They won't be standing around Jack Donlevy's crease pulling fancy pattern passes—nope, they'll be picking themselves up off their pants this game. Petes have to win or they're practically gone geese, and they know it. A packed house, no doubt, will view the fourth playoff struggle.

Whitewash In Cup Sets

Shutouts featured the first games of the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-finals last night. Canadiens clipped Boston Bruins 2-0 in Montreal, while the Wings flew through Leafs for a 5-0 verdict at Detroit. Next games are Thursday in the same arenas, the third tilts being moved Saturday to Toronto and Sunday to Boston. Same ices Tuesday for fourth frays of these sets. A bonus of $1,000 involved in semi-finals for each of the winning players, and $500 for the losers. Latest NHL bulletin showed Gord Howe taking part in all 70 games and having 33 goals and 48 assists for 81 points to lead the loop once more. Richard was next with 67 points. Canadiens were the most penalized team, Toronto being next.

* * * * * *

Calder Cup semi-finals are on now, too, being best-of-five series. Pittsburg went overtime to edge Hershey 4-3 last eve, Cleveland meeting Buffalo in their opener tonight. Hornets are at Hershey on Thursday. Last AHL bulletin showed Red Sullivan of Hershey leading the loop in points with 119, having most assists (89) and setting new league records in both assists and total points. By the way, don't be too surprised if Sullivan moves up to the NHL with Chicago Hawks next season. We hear that Red suspect that his contract has been sold by Bruins to the Hawks for delivery next fall. If so, George will be playing that campaign in the big time with Ike Hildebrand, also of Hawks.

LONDON (AP) — Mont Tremblant, top-weight entry in Saturday's Grand National Steeplechase was withdrawn from the race Tuesday night because of a strained tendon.

Owner Dorothy Paget said the horse had pulled a suspensory ligament, possibly in the soft going of the recent Cheltenham Gold Cup.

Mont Tremblant, second in the race last year, was fourth choice at 20-1.

Irish, St. Catharines Tie In 6-6 Overtime Game

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Home ice, a haven for St. Catharines TeePees and Toronto St. Michael's College Majors during the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A schedule, has turned into a dread for the teams in the playoffs.

The Majors and TeePees have each won a game in the best-of-seven semi-finals. One game is tied. The Majors won their game in St. Catharines in the opener of the series and St. Catharines came up with their victory in Toronto in the second game. The third game in St. Catharines Tuesday night ended in a 6-6 overtime tie but again the Collegians nearly won it. A goal 12 seconds from the end of regulation time gave the TeePees a 5-5 tie to send the game into the extra period. Each team scored once in overtime.

In the other playoff game Toronto Marlboros defeated Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts 3-2 in Kitchener to win their best-of-five quarter-final 3-1. Marlboros will meet Hamilton Cubs in the semi-finals.

BARLOW GETS THREE

The Collegians led through most of the game. Held to a 1-1 tie in the first period they went ahead 3-2 in the second and led 5-4 with less than a minute left in the third. Hugh Barlow scored one of his three goals 12 seconds from the end of the third period and fired another one in overtime to give St. Catharines a 6-5 margin. Don McLean, Hank Ciesla and Cec Hoekstra tallied the other St. Catharines goals.

Jim Logan counted three for St. Michael's, including the overtime tally at 8:28 of the overtime period that gave the Irish an even break with the TeePees. Other Irish goals were scored by Paul Knox, Brian Anderson and defenceman Marc Reaume.

If the first three games of the series are any indication, tonight's game in Toronto should be poison for St. Michael's.

ALBANI SPARKLES

The Marlboro victory, which eliminated the Greenshirts from the playoffs, was featured by the netminding of Johnny Albani, five-foot, five-inch goalkeeper for the Dukes. Albani was especially great in the third period when Marlboros were outshot 17-7.

The Marlboros went ahead 2-0 in the second period but were outscored 2-1 in the third.

Billy Harris, Gerry James and Bob Pulford scored goals for Marlboros. Gary Collins notched both for Kitchener.

Hornets Edge Hershey 4-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pittsburgh Hornets, fourth-place finishers in the American Hockey League, defeated second-place Hershey Bears 4-3 Tuesday in an overtime period. The game was the first in a best-of-five semi-final playoff series for the AHL's Calder Cup.

The teams will meet again Thursday in Hershey before moving to Pittsburgh.

Cleveland's third-place Barons and the first-place Buffalo Bisons will meet in Buffalo tonight for their first playoff encounter.

Hershey, scoreless for two periods, tied the score in the third, then forged ahead at the start of overtime. Hornest scored two quick goals to win.

Ray Timgren and Bob Hassard gave the Hornets the lead in the first two periods. In the third, Norm Corcoran and Skip Teal tied it up.

Corcoran gave the Bears the lead, but Bob Sabourin tied the score and Willie Marshall won the game for Pittsburgh.

Dr. R. Morgan's rink came through on Monday to qualify for the final round on Friday. They were playing at the Granite Club, Toronto, in the all-week mixed rink bonspiel.

Harold Hamblin's rink did not fare so well, although they did account for H. Howard's rink, one of the favorites of the bonspiel.

Dr. R. Clark and C. Coons are skipping rinks in the same bonspiel today.

The ladies are holding their annual banquet on Tuesday, April 6, at the Kawartha Club.

The men's vice-skips' bonspiel continues Thursday evening.

Seeking COBL Entry From Peterborough

A meeting of those interested in reviving senior baseball in Peterbroough this season will be held Thursday evening at 7.30 in the committee room of the Public Library. If sufficient interest is shown, a committee will be lined up and given authority to enter a club in the Central Ontario League.

The way has been left open to the Petes to enter up till the end of March by COBL officers. The last league meeting in Belleville saw four prospective entries, without Peterborough, these being Watertown, N.Y., Kingston, Oshawa and Belleville. But the league was also anxious to see Peterborough return to the Central League competition this summer.

Sudbury Defeats Abitibi Eskimos 4-2

NORTH BAY (CP) — Sudbury Wolves overcame their surprise in time to defeat Abitibi Eskimos 4-2 in overtime Tuesday night and square their best-of-five Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior final 1-1.

The Eskimos, who weren't given much chance before the series began, pulled their first upset Monday by edging the Wolves 1-0 on the strength of some tremendous netminding by Sully Porter.

Tuesday night the Eskimos were ahead for a large part of the game and again it was Porter that held them together. With six minutes left in regulation time Abitibi led 2-0. Then Yacker Flynn banged in Sudbury's first marker of the series from a goal-mouth scramble. Before the Eskimos could recover Nick Tomiuk tied the game for the Wolves.

Red Wings Blank Leafs 5-0; Canadiens Win Too

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The hex still works for Detroit Red Wings and Montreal Canadiens. It could carry them into the Stanley Cup finals. The Wings, who haven't allowed Toronto Maple Leafs a National Hockey League victory at Detroit since Nov. 2, 1952, whipped the Leafs 5-0 Tuesday night in the first game of their cup semi-final series on home ice. And Canadiens kept right on where they left off in the regular season by blanking Boston 2-0 at Montreal to keep their record clean against the Bruins at the Forum this season.

The victories gave Detroit and Montreal the first big ones in post-season play and with the second games of the best-of-seven semi-finals scheduled for the Forum and Olympia Stadium Thursday night, it could mean a 2-0 lead in games for Wings, and Canadiens before they move to Toronto and Boston for the third and fourth games.

The Wings, with two Stanley Cup victories in their last five championship seasons, scored in every period to shut out the inept Leafs before 13,177 fans.

Boston held Canadiens to a scoreless first period but the Montrealers went ahead 1-0 at 4:25 of the second on a goal by Rookie Lorne Davis of Regina. Bernie Geoffrion scored the insurance goal at 13:48 of the last period, reaching through a maze of legs to tap the puck past goalkeeper Jim Henry who had 43 shots thrown at him by the defending cup champions.

At the other end, goalkeeper Jacques Plante handled only 12 shots, many of them from far out. His biggest scare of the night came in the final minute of the second period when Rookie Doug Mohns shot from 15 feet out and the puck bobbled off Plante's pads and dribbled about the goal line.

The Bruins howled that a goal had been scored but goal judge George Moore of Detroit ruled the puck had not crossed the line.

Canadiens did not dress two players—veteran centre Elmer Lach and defenceman Jim MacPherson. Bruins were short defenceman Hal Laycoe, left at home with a groin injury, and two rookie farmhands were used, centre Guyle Fielder and left-winger Wayne Brown from Seattle of the Western Hockey League.

Detroit capitalized on a defensive lapse by Toronto's Sid Smith to take a 1-0 lead at 8:21 of the first period on a goal by Marty Pavelich.

Ted Lindsay made it 2-0 before the period ended and Tony Leswick and Gordie Howe added second-period goals. Pavelich, who scored only nine times during the regular 70-game schedule, clicked again at 14:01 of the final.

In the third period referee Bill Chadwick slapped Tod Sloan, Toronto centre, with a misconduct and game misconduct penalty. When the referee called the game misconduct the Leaf player pushed Chadwick by the throat. The two penalties carry a $75 fine.

Line-up

Toronto — Goal: Lumley; defence: Thomson, Horton, F'aman, Bolvin, Morrison, Bolton; forwards, Kennedy, Smith, Stewart, Watson, Armstrong, Migay, Sloan, Hannigan, Nesterenko, Bailey.

Picture-Taking Upsets MP Committee Members

OTTAWA (CP) — News photographers seldom find anything picture-worthy at parliamentary committees.

Tuesday, however, two of them came upon warden R. M. Allan of Kingston penitentiary who showed the Commons-Senate committee on corporal punishment what a strap and a cat-o'-nine-tails look like.

They shot pictures of Mr. Allan holding the two whipping instruments, but there were rumblings of protests from committee members.

Even while the picture-taking was going on, Mrs. Ann Shipley (L—Timiskaming) questioned the propriety of such action.

After the committee meeting was opened Davie Fulton (PC—Kamloops) said news photographs might place witnesses in an embarrassing situation. He suggested that the committee's steering committee should study the question of picture coverage in the future.

TAKES RESPONSIBILITY

Don Brown (L—Essex West), joint committee chairman, said he took full responsibility for allowing photographers to take the pictures.

The public was entitled to know everything that goes on in the committee and that included news photographs of exhibits shown at meetings.

He said he is "highly indebted" for the newspaper coverage given to the work of the committee. Evidence presented was not only to help the committee's 27 members make up their minds on capital and corporal punishment and lotteries. The public also should have access to that evidence.

CCF Member Supports Labor Code Change

OTTAWA (CP)—A bill to provide for the "voluntary revocable checkoff" of union dues in the federal labor code was supported in the Commons Tuesday by a CCF member and opposed by a Liberal.

Angus MacInnis, veteran trade unionist who is CCF member for Vancouver Kingsway, and Dr. Pierre Gauthier (L—Portneuf) disagreed on the measure sponsored by Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre).

In Tuesday's hour devoted to private members' legislation, the bill was "talked out." It can come up again later.

WOULD AMEND CODE

The bill would amend the labor code to compel employers under federal jurisdiction to deduct union dues for employees and turn them over to the workers' union, on application by the employee. The employee could revoke the arrangement.

Mr. MacInnis said the legislation is more necessary now than in the last few years because, with an apparent downtrend in employment, employers were beginning again to "resist the organizing efforts of their employees."

Dr. Gauthier said he favors the checkoff but it should be negotiated between management and labor.

Province Expanding Probation Officers

TORONTO (CP)—The province is expanding its system of probation officers which will eventually cover all of Ontario instead of a few areas, Attorney - General Porter said Tuesday night.

Speaking during consideration of his department's estimates in the legislature, Mr. Porter said it is planned to add 20 more officers this year, for a total of 70, compared with 17 in 1952. The estimates called for total salaries of $177,000, an increase of $42,000.

Head-on Crash Kills 1

NEUSTADT (CP) — Mrs. Margaret Pringle, 34, of Neustadt was killed Tuesday in a head-on collision between two autos on a county road three miles south of here. Three others were injured.

Hollywood Star Profits By "Beefcake"

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Tab Hunter was in a characteristic condition: Mostly bare.

When I saw the new bobby-sox idol, he was doing a scene with Dorothy Malone in "Battle Cry." She was in a bathing suit, he in a pair of trunks.

Hunter is the latest young man to profit from what Hollywood calls beefcake, a form of publicity that has helped send Kirk Douglas, Tony Curtis, Rock Hudson and others to stardom. It is the male counterpart of cheesecake, which has proved a boon for such dolls as Marilyn Monroe, Jane Russell and Betty Grable.

Tab's fame started when he was chosen to play the bare - chested hero of "Island of Desire" with Linda Darnell three years ago.

Green as an actor, his performance was somewhat less than sterling.

While the studios failed to flood him with offers, the fan magazine readers swooned over him. For three years they kept his career alive although he played in only three quickies during that time.

NOW'S HIS CHANCE

Tab's big chance now comes in Warners' "Battle Cry," taken from the best-selling novel of marine corps life. If he proves successful, the studio can pick up his option for a term contract.

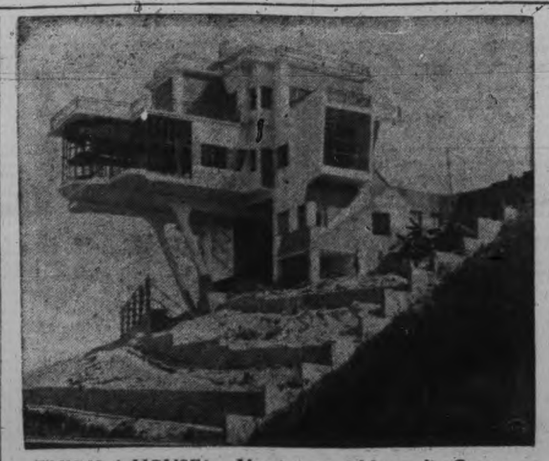
Oh, yes, about that name. The boy's real handle is Art Gelien. But this is the era of unusual names, as for instance Rock Hudson, Race Gentry, Touch Connors, etc.

The agents sat around and figured their client would have to be tabbed something else. "Tab—that's it!" exclaimed one of the brains.

CGIT Take Charge Of Apsley Service

APSLEY (ENS). — On Sunday evening the CGIT had charge of the evening service at Trinity United church.

Melva Tucker gave the call to worship. Elaine Brown led the reading of the CGIT purpose. Joan McCauley read the scripture lesson. Holly Tucker led in the responsive reading of the psalm. Rose Everett gave the announcements and Mary Jean Wilson led in prayer.



John Stegenga spoke on the theme "So I Send You."

A choir made up of CGIT members sang the CGIT hymn. A quartet, Joan McCauley, Gail Reynolds, Holly Tucker and Shirley Reynolds sang. Organists were Mrs. Keith Watson and Shirley Reynolds.

After the benediction the service was closed with the singing of Taps.

Gets Four Years

WELLAND (CP)—John Russell Hill, 17, of Fort Erie, was sentenced to four years in penitentiary for robbery with violence. John C. Ferguson, 86, of Bertie township said Hill came to his home last Feb. 4 presumably to watch television but instead robbed him of $83.91 and a set of binoculars.

THIS IS A HOUSE?—Yes, it is, and Monreglio Oreste, an Italian immigrant to Caracas, Venezuela, is mighty proud of it. The home has 13 rooms, several open-air sun porches and entire rooms framed in glass. Without the landscaping the modern home has already cost Oreste about $275,000.

2 Hold Tickets On Favorite

MONTREAL (CP)—Two Canadians—one from Montreal and the other from Sydney, N.S. — hold Irish Hospital Sweepstakes on Coneyburrow, favorite for the Grand National Steeplechase to be run at Aintree, England, Saturday.

Seven other Canadians drew tickets on Irish Lizard, Churchtown and Royal Tan, the three other most favored horses in the race.

In all 123 Canadians hold tickets in the sweepstake, worth a record $140,000 to the winner, $56,000 for second and $28,000 for third. Last year 174 persons in Canada drew tickets.

The list of ticket-holders on Saturday's race was cabled here from Dublin. Most ticket-holders used noms de plume.

Ticket-holders on Irish Lizard include Michael, Preston, Ont., ZQ 48963.

Guild Raises $49.37 For Building Fund

APSLEY (ENS)— St. George's Ladies Guild met at the home of Mrs. Victor McFadden with 18 members and three visitors present.

The meeting opened with the Guild prayer, followed by a Bible reading by Mrs. Hales.

Proceeds of the afternoon tea and rummage sale toatlled $49.37 in aid of the building fund. The Guild shipped 549 pounds of cast off woollens and cotton to Fairfield's to be made into blankets.

The Guild will sponsor an "On Stage Canada" amateur act the second week in April. Proceeds will go towards decorating the new rectory. New choir gowns and surplices are being made for use at Easter. Remnants were given to members to make into useful articles for the June bazaar.

The meeting closed with prayer. Lunch was served.

Physician Dies

YONKERS, N.Y. (CP) — Dr. Esley R. Froats, 51, attending surgeon and secretary of the medical board of Yonkers Professional Hospital died Tuesday. Born in Spencerville, Ont., and a graduate of Queen's University, Kingston, he was past president of the Yonkers Academy of Medicine.

Search For Slayer In Windsor Area

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The search for the slayer of Fern Henkell of Woodstock was concentrated in Windsor area Tuesday as police announced they were hunting two young men.

The half-naked body of the girl was found March 13 in a water-filled ditch about 15 miles southeast of Windsor.

Police traced her movements from Toronto to Tilbury and one to Windsor Thursday then back to Hamilton Friday. The trail was lost at the juncture of Highways 2 and 8 outside Hamilton at an early hour Saturday morning.

Police are hunting an old-model red tractor-trailer which is believed to have picked her up on the highway juncture. Police think the truck may have carried her as far as Tilbury where the two young men picked her up sometime between 5 and 8 a.m. Saturday. She was found about 3:30 p.m.

Guelph Tax Rate Set At 76 Mills

GUELPH (CP) — Guelph's tax rate for 1954 was set by city council Monday night at 76 mills, an increase of 3.5 mills over last year's figure. The rate for farm land inside the city, a new consideration that developed with annexation in 1953, was set at 67 mills.

Punch Editor Delights Ottawa Club

OTTAWA (CP) — A man who claims he doesn't know any funny stories convulsed the Canadian Club Tuesday with funny stories.

Malcom Muggeridge, editor of Punch, the British humor magazine, said: "To expect me to tell a funny story would be like expecting the junior senator from Wisconsin to enrol those two splendid warriors, Mr. Cohn and Mr. Schine, in the Rover scouts."

(Senator Joseph McCarthy and Roy Cohn, chief counsel for McCarthy's U.S. Senate investigations sub-committee, have been accused by the U.S. Army of trying to get preferential treatment for Pte. David Schine, a member of the sub-committee staff until he was drafted last fall.)

Deadpan Mr. Muggeridge said they are few really funny stories—"to be exact, 11; now that men are changing into women, 11½."

LAUGH RARE THING

A laugh in the offices of Punch was as rare "as a genuine tear in an undertaker's parlor." One Punch staff member had been forced to retire because he had shown a lamentable lapse of taste one time by smiling.

The more absurd life became, the more difficult it was to be funny about it. Humor at its greatest portrayed a sense of the imperfection of mortal life and was truthful. Good taste was the enemy of humor.

In practice, there was no essential difference between British and American humor, though the latter might be sharper, more sexy, more brutal and based on the wisecrack.

"Sex must rate as humorous material. Now that I approach my 60's I find the whole subject more ridiculous than alarming."

Reds Take Credit For Jet Invention

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet armed forces newspaper Red Star declared Tuesday the Soviet Union invented the jet-powered airplane and still leads in its development.

Britain's Sir Frank Whittle is generally credited in the west with developing the first successful jet turbine engine for use in planes. Whittle took out his first patent on a jet propulsion engine in 1930 and his first experimental jet-powered plane was flown in 1941.

AFTER-EFFECTS—Capt. Howard J. Dager, one of the U.S. Army's atomic experts, tests for radio-activity aboard the No. 11 Nikko Maru, a 164-ton Japanese fishing boat which was about 1,000 miles away from Eniwetok at the time of a recent nuclear blast held by the U.S. Crewmen of another fishing boat suffered radiation burns and sickness as a result of the blast.

New Equipment To Protect Forests

TORONTO (CP) — New equipment and new ideas for fighting bush fires are expected to help protect Ontario's forests this year.

Lands and Forests Minister Gemmell said Tuesday in a statement that designation of 19 fire districts will make it possible to close one or more of the areas to travel when the fire hazard is high.

Improved radio communications, tied in with airplanes and helicopters, as well as new fire-fighting techniques will be used.

Water bombing, use of fire-fighting equipment and provisions to fire line crews and the carrying of small initial attack crews on air patrols are among techniques to be expanded in 1954. All were found highly useful last year.

EXCEED AVERAGE

Last year the number of fires, 1,520, and the area burned, 58,809 acres, exceeded the average for the last five years.

"Reasons for last year's unusually high figures included a province-wide spring hazard period, an abnormal incidence of lightning fires and an abnormally long season with fires in March and November," the statement said. Twenty-five per cent of last year's fires occurred between May 1 and May 15.

House Rejects Criticism Of Government Authority Under Emergency Power Act

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons has rejected a strongly-worded criticism of the government's wide powers under the three-year-old Emergency Powers Act. Liberals and one CCF member Tuesday defeated, 134 to 68, a Progressive Conservative motion describing executive powers under the act as "repugnant" to responsible government.

Clarie Gillis (CCF-Cape Breton South) sided with the government in opposing the motion, backed by other CCF members and three Quebec Independents as well as the Progressive Conservative and Social Credit groups.

The Emergency Powers Act, passed in 1951 to meet conditions arising out of the war in Korea, was renewed last year to May 31.

Opposition Leader Drew, who offered the motion Monday, said the government's governor-in-council powers under the act have been abused. He said Parliament should not be asked to extend the act beyond May 31.

NO DECISION YET

Prime Minister St. Laurent replied that the government hopes it will not have to ask for an extension. No decision had been made yet, but if the government decided on an extension because of the international situation, Parliament would have an opportunity to debate the issue.

As debate on Mr. Drew's motion continued, Justice Minister Garson said it casts a reflection on the decision taken by the last Parliament. The opposition was asking "that this Parliament in 1954 move a vote of want-of-confidence in itself for what it did in 1953."

Donald Fleming (PC — Toronto Eglinton) said the legislation granted powers which would make any dictator envious. The "sweeping and arbitrary" powers could not be justified by any world emergency. The act had all the elements needed to transform Canada into a dictatorship and its confederation into centralized government.

"PROPAGANDA MOVE"

Mr. Gillis described the motion as a "propaganda" move by the opposition. The Commons was not being asked to vote on the Emergency Powers Act.

"That act is not before the House at the present time," he said. "There is nothing before this House but a lot of noise."

The legislation was enacted because the world was insecure in 1951. It still was uneasy with a cease fire in Korea and war in Indo-China.

A REGULAR FELLA NOW!—Brother and sister? Not at all—just a little boy before and after he lost his beloved curls. David Pollock, 3½, of Sturgis, near Saskatoon, is shown as he was with curls and in a girl's dress and again a week later after he got a haircut and became a "regular" boy. David liked his curls and only let his mother cut them off for the second picture if she would paste them all back again. She didn't have to keep her promise—he liked it better with the curls off. Mount Pleasant Farm Forum Wins Northumberland Contest

WARKWORTH (ENS)—Northumberland county farm forum has the distinction of being the only farm forum in Ontario that sponsors an annual drama festival, said James Bird, Codrington, a member of the provincial farm forum executive, in a brief address at Warkworth town hall on Friday evening when the annual drama festival was held. Four one-act plays were presented.

Mr. K. V. Brown, of the C. CI staff, Cobourg, was the adjudicator and chose "The Neighbors," the play presented by the Mount Pleasant farm forum as the prize winning play and winner of the Federation of Agriculture trophy.

Mr. Edgar Buttars, Plainville, county president of the federation of agriculture, presented the trophy to Mr. James McCaig, who received it on behalf of the cast. The members of the cast were: Mrs. D. Ducie, Mrs. Henry Kemp, Levi Glenney, Mrs. L. Glenney, James McCaig, Mrs. Lorne McComb, Mrs. Norma Fitchett, Mrs. Harvie Welton. The play was directed by Messrs. Alex McComb and Don Campbell.

The other plays were: "Buddy Buys an Orchid" by West Dartford farm forum, described by the adjudicator as 'an excellent play, well chosen, well cast, full of action with great contrast between actors.' The members of the cast were: Willis McCracken, Anne Pollock, Vic. Morrow, Mrs. Don Pollock Melville Broadworth. This play was directed by Mrs. Raymond Richardson and Mrs. A Ward.

"High Windows" by the Codrington farm forum was a heavy play and a difficult play full of drama. Every member of the cast playing their part well. This play was directed by Mrs. W. A. Goodfellow and the members of the cast were: Mrs. C. E. Jenks, Harper Peister Mrs. Douglas Woof, James Bird and Mrs. Bryce Hazelwood.

"A Wedding", presented by the Plainville farm forum was a comedy, the actors making the play into entertainment and playing their parts well. The members of the cast were: Earl Linton, Warren Buttar, Marie Linton, Wallace Buttar, Dolly Buttar. Directed by Mrs. L. Buttar, Mrs. E. Buttar.

Don Carruthers, Grafton, is chairman of the farm forum drama committee.

Miss Myrtle Hardy and Mrs. Douglas Knight were pianists for community singing. Morganston male quartette contributed vocal numbers. Victor Morrow led in community singing; Misses Leila and Donna McColl, Wooler, sang vocal duets. The Houlihan sisters, Codrington, delighted the audience with their dance numbers.

The Warkworth hall was filled to capacity by an appreciative audience.

Mr. Victor Morrow, Roseneath, is president of the county farm forum, with Mrs. Raymond Richardson, Dartford, as secretary-treasurer. Mr. Floyd S. Harnden, Grafton, is vice-president.

Members of the drama committee are: Don Carruthers, Grafton, Mrs. James Bird, Codrington; Mrs. Earl Linton, Plainville.

This drama festival will be repeated in Baltimore community hall on Saturday, March 27.

No Five-Day Week For Provincial Police

TORONTO (CP)—Attorney-General Porter said Tuesday night the government is not considering the five-day week for provincial police.

He was replying to a question put by opposition leader Farquhar Oliver during consideration of his department's estimates in the legislature.

"I can't see any dissatisfaction in the force. They get an extra week's holiday with pay. . . There are a great many advantages in belonging to the provincial police. The work is not as intensive as in the city. . . ."

The attorney-general said there were 118 resignations in the force during the last year.

13 Killed in Riot

DACCA, East Pakistan (AP)—Thirteen persons were killed and 35 were injured in a riot at the Chandragona paper mills at Karnaphuli, about 230 miles from here, it was announced Tuesday. The announcement said it was believed the riot followed an exchange of hot words between the manager and a subordinate officer.

Chavez To Keep Seat

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Tuesday defeated a Republican attempt to unseat Democratic Senator Dennis Chavez of New Mexico. It voted 53 to 36 against invalidating the 1952 senatorial election in which Chavez was declared the winner. The resolution which would have declared Chavez' seat vacant because of "flagrant" irregularities in election procedure.

Porter Denies Ordering Rate Increase

TORONTO (CP)—Attorney-General Porter denied Tuesday night in the legislature that the Ontario government "virtually instructed" the Blue Cross Plan for Hospital Care to increase its rates.

The charge was made by CCF leader Donald C. MacDonald in a broadcast speech Monday night.

Mr. Porter referred to the CCF leader's statements that Blue Cross rates were ordered by the superintendent of insurance to be increased and that this had followed a switch in Blue Cross regulations from the health department to the Ontario superintendent of insurance.

Premier Frost entered the discussion and said Blue Cross had suggested the advance in rates, which are effective April 1. He added:

"The changes in regulations are openly and clearly apparent to anyone who was here."

Mr. Macdonald does not have a seat in the legislature.

Spends 22nd Birthday In Federal Court

BUFFALO, N.Y. (CP) — A 22-year-old St. Catharines youth Tuesday spent his birthday in federal court and was given a one-year suspended sentence and ordered deported for making false statements when he entered the United States Feb. 10.

Ronald W. Bowden was put on probation for one year. Earlier, his 23-year-old brother, Beverly, was sentenced to one year and six months in a federal institution by judge John J. Knight. He had pleaded guilty to entering the U.S. illegally at the same time as his brother and was ordered deported after completing his sentence.

John Pallett Polls Total 13,667 Votes

BRAMPTON (CP)—Progressive Conservative John Pallett, elected to the House of Commons for Peel constituency in Monday's federal by-election, polled a total of 13,667 votes, the unofficial count showed today.

Mr. Pallett defeated Liberal A. J. C. O'Marra and Lloyd Gane, CCF candidate, to retain the seat for the Progressive Conservatives. The seat was left vacant by the death of Gordon Graydon last October.

Ask Ottawa To Allow Full Quebec Tax Reduction

OTTAWA (CP) — Three Independents and two Progressive Conservative members from Quebec Tuesday night asked the federal government to allow full deduction of Quebec's new income tax for purposes of federal income tax payments. There was no reply from the government.

Paul Gagnon, Independent member for Chicoutimi, initiated the debate with a proposal to allow the full deduction. He was supported by Raoul Poulin (Ind.—Beauce), Fernand Girard (Ind.—Lapointe), Leon Balcer (PC—Trois-Rivieres), and Robert Perron (PC—Dorchester).

They used the argument that the provincial income tax will bring into Quebec coffers about $23,000,000, an amount far below the subsidy offered by the federal government for rental of direct taxation rights.

Mr. Balcer said the federal government offered Quebec an annual subsidy of $123,000,000 if that province would sign a taxation agreement.

Quebec is the only province which has refused to sign a tax agreement with the federal government.

Mr. Balcer said that if full deduction of the provincial tax was allowed, it would not take anything away from the federal subsidies to the other provinces.

Get First Peacetime Ack-Ack Regiment

OTTAWA (CP)—The army soon will get its first peacetime anti-aircraft regiment.

Army headquarters said Tuesday the 1st Light Anti-Aircraft Regiment is being formed this week as part of the 1st Canadian Infantry Division. It will comprise a regiment headquarters and 2nd, 3rd and 4th batteries.

The regiment will be equipped with 40-millimetre Bofors guns. Though the army declined comment, it is possible that the regiment eventually will be supplied with a weapon firing ground-to-air guided missiles.

Regimental headquarters and the 2nd and 3rd batteries will be stationed at Picton.

Preserve Historic Site

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government has designated the site of an Indian village that may be 7,000 years old at Shequiandah, Manitoulin island, as an archeological site. The government will protect the 300-acre village against the encroachment of commercial interests and souvenir - hunting tourists.

SOMEWHAT STRONGER

Before the Chamber of Commerce's 65th birthday party Tuesday, guests milled about a table adorned with two groups of full glasses. One group was labelled "Fruit Juice," the other simply "Somewhat Stronger." Observant souls were wondering if there was any hidden significance to the fact that the "Somewhat Stronger" sign was hastily sketched on the back of a Department of Health poster forbidding poulution of waters.

Modern Education Methods Of 1894 Ran Headlong Into Criticism From All Sides

It has been said that the quickest way to start an argument on any street corner is to sound off on the state of modern education. But the educational critics of 1954 seem colorless Pollyannas compared to those of 60 years ago.

In April, 1894, a debate was raging in the Ontario legislature on an alleged government-organized racket in textbooks. It was charged that the government had licensed one firm to supply all textbooks to the province, with a rakeoff presumably going to the government.

The man who organized this monopoly withdrew the study of English history from the curriculum because it "was not in the public interest." This aroused such a furore that he was forced to recede, but not before the opposition to Sir Oliver Mowat's government had had a field day.

At one point a Mr. Glendenning rose in the house during the course of the education debate, and declared that the desks of several opposition members had been rifled. This, too, created some violent charges and countercharges, neither side emerging much the better for it all.

At a more rational level, the basic issue seems to have been a decrease in the provincial grant to rural schools. Delegations proceeding to Queen's Park in protest, were told that the decrease was natural because the province was becoming more urbanized.

Morrow Bequest To Give Library $150 Each Year

The income of $150 a year from the $5,000 bequest to the Public Library by the late W. G. Morrow has been allotted to the improvement of its reference section.

There were no conditions attached to this gift, Wm. Graff, Librarian, explained today to the Examiner. And, with a free hand, the library board decided to invest the principal and use its earnings for the benefit of the reference department.

"Mr. Morrow was a member of the board for some years, and was also its chairman," Mr. Graff said. "He made permanent his in his will."

"The policy of the board is to maintain our encyclopedias, keep them up to date, and generally to buy books and sets, the price of which would probably deter the members from making that expenditure.

They approved purchase of the publications of the Champlain Society which we bought at a cost of $275. Today they are worth $700. There are 50 volumes, and are still in production. Within the next year or so, an additional volume will be devoted to Champlain's journeys "On the Trent", which should be of special interest to our own community.

An American university was applying for one of the available 500 sets of the Champlain edition when our Library decided to buy at the price of $275.

"Literary Garland" in thirteen volumes included the writings of Susanna Moodie, published before they appeared in book form."

ART REPRODUCTIONS

Mr. Graff mentioned among other new works in the reference library, volumes of art treasures of the world, published in Switzerland. The reproduction of famous paintings in the galleries of Great Britain, Italy, France, the United States and other countries is of fine quality. These books provide a comprehensive collection for the study of art.

Pasted on the inside of the cover of each of the books obtained through the bequest of Mr. Morrow is an etching of the library building with tribute to the memory of Mr. Morrow. This sketch was prepared by James Butler.

Present chairman of the library board is Herbert I. Bradburn. Investment of the principal of $5,000 in Hydro-Electric bonds, supplies a means of permanent remembrance of Mr. Morrow and also a continuous sum of at least $150 a year for expenditure on special books for the reference library.

The income has been received by the library board since the dispersal of Mr. Morrow's estate as he devised it.

Speeder Fined $100

COBOURG (ENS)—Stiffest traffic fine in a considerable time was imposed by Magistrate R. B. Baxter in fining Peter Fisher of Kingston $100 and costs for dangerous driving. Provincial Constable W. Warner said that he saw Fisher speeding near Port Hope and chased him through Cobourg and Grafton but was unable to catch him. He radioed Brighton provincial police who stopped Fisher at Brighton. His speed ranged from 83 to 85 miles an hour and outdistanced the police car, the court was told.

Ask Arguments Be Written On Store Bylaw

Because evidence has been so scattered and detailed in the store-closing bylaw case against Fred B. Correll, magistrate W. R. Philp today asked city solicitor W. F. Huycke and defence counsel W. B. Gordon, to submit written arguments for examination before judgment.

Edward Spurway, an employee of Barrie's Ltd. a fur and ladies' wear retail store, testified that store had complied with the early closing bylaw. Evidence from notes by the city clerk at the time the bylaw was enacted, however, indicated that Barrie's Ltd., was not affected by the bylaw, although it did sell some ladies' wear articles. Mr. Spurway said the proportion was about 35 per cent ladies' wear and about 65 per cent fur.

Detective Doug Farthing testified that he had observed Correll's ladies' wear store on the evening of September 11, 1953, and that clerks and "ladies dressed in fall coats looking at merchandise", were seen in the store until about 9:00 p.m. He said he had not conversed with any people entering or leaving the store, and did not know if any sales had been made.

Previous evidence indicated that at least one sale had been made, but the exact time of the sale was not established.

In requesting the written arguments from Mr. Huycke and Mr. Gordon, magistrate Philp suggested that they include discussion on the validity of the bylaw.

"I will have it there," said Mr. Huycke. "I know all the law."

"I hope you have it all in your statement," said magistrate Philp.

"I wouldn't be quite so boastful," answered Mr. Gordon. "It seems to me there could be a text book written on the subject."

The case was adjourned until April 28.

Say Jobs Available If Men Will Look

WELLAND (CP) — Trade Minister Howe told a Crowland township council delegation at Ottawa Monday that there are jobs to be found in Canada and those unemployed should hustle out and find them.

The delegation, reporting to the township council Tuesday night, said that was Mr. Howe's view on unemployment.

The minister predicted improved conditions for major plants in this area where large-scale layoffs have taken place.

He assured the delegation there would be no evictions from the township's wartime houses. Told that many residents had already received eviction notices, the minister asked for particulars.

Jackson Bound Over To Keep Peace

TORONTO (CP)—Harvey (Busher) Jackson, 43-year-old former Toronto Maple Leafs hockey star, has been bound over by magistrate Norman Gianelli to keep the peace for three months on a charge of threatening, laid by his wife, Marie.

Jackson, one-time brilliant left-winger on the Kid Line, was originally charged with assaulting his wife Feb. 20. This charge was withdrawn at the request of Mrs. Jackson when the case came up for hearing in Etobicoke magistrate's court Tuesday.

The lesser charge of threatening was substituted.

Replacement of Industries Must Come Before Expansion

Industrial Mortality Certain

"Mortality in industry is just as certain as death and taxes," Samuel J. Whitehouse, chairman of the 50th birthday banquet of the chamber at the Empress Tuesday night.

Because some industries will inevitably fall by the wayside even in the best of times, Mr. Whitehouse felt it was the duty of every Chamber of Commerce member to give wholehearted support to Industrial Commissioner William Birney in encouraging new industries to settle in Peterborough. Chamber of Commerce members should be "ambassadors for Peterborough"—for before there can be expansion, there must at least be replacement of industries lost. Mr. Whitehouse pointed out that two firms have collapsed in the last [illegible] for a job well done" to retiring president John Madden. The presentation was made by Harry Cherney, chairman of the retail section. J. Douglas Ferguson, president of the Canadian Manufacturers Association and theme speaker at the banquet, was also given a gift.

"What you get out of the Chamber of Commerce depends on what you put into it," Mr. Whitehouse told the 300-odd members, wives and guests at the banquet. He said that the local chamber is constantly growing in numbers and influence but much more work must be done along these lines if it is to be as effective as it should.

MEMBERSHIP 400

Present membership of the chamber is in the neighborhood of 400, and the immediate aim is to increase this to 500. But even this, said Mr. Whitehouse, does not compare too well with Lethbridge, a city of only 23,000 which has a chamber of commerce membership of 571. Corollary with this membership drive, the chamber will seek to put its financial affairs on a "sound and business-like basis."

Membership cards were presented to these new members by George A. Gillespie: Stan Burrows, William Dougherty, W. J. Robinson, Claire Grainger, Mort Knox, Robert Matthews, Lorne Smith, Austin D. Elliott and Clifford Sisco.

Greetings from the city were brought by Mayor Norman Graham, who extended to all out-of-town visitors an invitation to make a guided tour of city hall.

Music was provided during the evening by the PCVS Triple Trio. These nine girls recently won first place in the Kiwanis Music Festival. Arrangements for the 65th birthday dinner were handled by W. Howard Powell.

Leafing through the minutes of the Board of Trade in 1894 Mr. Whitehouse recalled that some of the problems faced by this group did not seem too unfamiliar. The 1894 board was quite excited about an iron-ore discovery in Marmora, and was pressing for construction of a smelter in Peterborough.

There was also some agitation by the 1894 Board of Trade for sewage installations but "nothing was done by the city, and this is much the same as today," Transportation was a contentious issue then, too, and the Board of Trade was pressing for good, comfortable street cars and was urging the Canadian General Electric Company to build them. At this point J. E. Girven interjected that the CGE had, for a short time been in the street car manufacturing business.

PIGEON CREEK BRIDGE

Sixty years ago the forerunner of today's Chamber of Commerce was agitating for a bridge at Pigeon creek, and this has a familiar ring. A floating bridge was built across the Gannon Narrows, and this is now being replaced by a concrete causeway.

Then, as now, the Chamber was interested in attracting industries but seemed abnormally particular about what firms would prove assets to Peterborough. Perhaps this was because 1894 was a time of depression and many firms were folding. Mr. Whitehouse recalled that a few "worthy" firms had been invited to come to Peterborough, while, in the words of the 60-year-old minutes "some bonus-hunting concerns" were given the brush-off.

Finances in 1894 were less complicated. Receipts for the year were $92.96 and expenditures $61.15, "a lot of money then."

Moving to the present, chairman Whitehouse paid tribute to all who have aided the growth and development of the Chamber of Commerce. He made particular mention of secretary-manager James M. Fraser and his assistant Robert Hamilton, former assistant manager Don Kingdon, now with the Belleville Chamber of Commerce and George A. Gillespie, one-time director.

SPECIAL GUESTS

Mr. Whitehouse also introduced the following special guests at the banquet Tuesday: J. E. Whitelaw, general manager of the Canadian Manufacturing Association, J. E. Girven, chairman of the Peterborough branch of the CMA, Judge John DeN. Kennedy, Mayor Norman Graham, John Madden, immediate past president of the Chamber of Commerce.

George A. Gillespie, dean of Peterborough businessmen, J. R. Belton of Toronto, of the Ontario division of the CMA, Industrial Commissioner William Birney, Bruce Edwards, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Henry Nokes of the Trades and Labor Congress, Alf Barber of the Peterborough and District Labor Council, J. W. Stewart, superintendent of the Trenton division of the CPR, G. C. Bernard, Ontario divisional manager of the CMA, Tom Newell and a chamber of commerce delegation from Minden, and a similar group from Lindsay.

A feature of the evening was the presentation [illegible]

Sea Cadet Corps Presented With New Ensign

The Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps now has an ensign of its own.

The new ensign was hoisted to the masthead at RCSCS Howe Tuesday night, after a presentation ceremony by Ald. Gordon Powell. Designed by the Navy League and the Royal Canadian Navy, the new ensign eliminates the George Cross and has the sea cadet motif on the fly.

The old ensign was marched off, as the band played "Sunset," by an armed party under the command of Sub-Lieutenant H. Willis. The new flag was then blessed by the Rev. M. P. Poole, ship's chaplain.

After Ald. Powell commented on the ship company's spirit and efficiency, he presented the new ensign to Sub-Lieutenant Douglas Laird who, in turn, handed it to the yeoman of signals, Petty Officer R. Willis. As the band played the General Salute, the colors were hoisted to the masthead.

Lieutenant William Carr, commanding officer, thanked Ald. Powell and Mr. Poole for their part in the ceremonies. The ship's company was reported in by Chief Petty Officer L. C. Braniff. Lieutenant Jack Ainslie was in charge of proceedings.

Algoma Union Stages Walkout

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) A general membership meeting of Local 2241, United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), is tentatively set for Thursday to discuss a walkout in the Algoma Steel Corporations plant here.

The walkout, unauthorized by the union, involves one shift of the rail mill which refused to return to work Tuesday night because, they claimed, "Algoma Steel was deviating from past practice as far as seniority is concerned."

Union officials said today that if the situation is not cleared up immediately it may cause shutdown of a large part or even all of the steel plant.

John Barker, international representative of the USW said that the men had walked out on their own and the general meeting is being held to look into the matter with a view to settling the grievances as soon as possible.

RCN Helicopter Brings Three To Hospital

HALIFAX (CP) — A Royal Canadian Navy helicopter flew 50 miles to sea today to take three ill crew members off a United States ship and land them in hospital here.

The three, one of them in serious condition, were picked off the military transport Gen. H. F. Hodges 50 miles off Halifax.

Names of the three and extent of their illness were not released.

Work To Start On First House At Manor Heights

Breaking of ground for the basement of Percy Killingbeck's house on Holloway Drive Thursday morning starts building activity in the Manor Heights subdivision.

Fifty-two lots on the former Hatton property have been taken, leaving 46 still to be sold. Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation is opening that list of lots to builders on Thursday, April 1. This is an intimation to people who have been interested in Manor Heights but have been deferring purchase for their own plans and accommodation.

Manor Heights is at the west end of Charlotte St., the area that was acquired by the government during the war for a site of temporary housing.

Phil Siefried, in charge of work on the first lot, said his big shovel will start digging at 10:30 Thursday probably with a touch of ceremony marking completion of the transfer of the subdivision property from temporary to permanent housing.

Province-Wide Alert For Young Mother

TORONTO (CP) — York township police have sent out a province-wide alert for a young mother of three children who has been missing since early last evening.

Mrs. Dorothy Ruth Albin, 27, left her home about 8:30 p.m., telling her mother she was going to a party. Her husband William left the house about half an hour earlier.

Mr. Albin checked with his wife's friends and relatives but was unable to learn where the party was held or who attended it.

Raise Ward Price 50 Cents In Kitchener

KITCHENER (CP)—An increase to $7 from $6.50 a day for patients in four-bed wards of the Kitchener-Waterloo Hospital was authorized at today's meeting of the hospital commission.

Other rates increased to anticipate rising costs of operation, include a 10 per cent raise in operating room charges, increases to $3 from $2 a day for nursery and laboratory charges.

Increases were authorized after the board was told that the gross deficit for February was $11,468.73 and for the year to date $22,810.16.

Committee Says Old Turner House Should Be Razed

The property committee of city council have recommended once more that the old Turner house on Water St., behind the public library, should be torn down.

Last year's committee made a similar recommendation on the basis of a report by Ronald Winter, consulting architect, who estimated the cost of repairing the house and converting it to office space at $14,662. Mr Winter suggested demolishing the house and using the site for a landscaped parking lot.

Subsequently, however, there were requests from local groups for space in the house, including one from the recreation commission, who suggested it be used as a community centre, providing facilities for arts and crafts and social activities for older citizens.

Accordingly, council decided not to go ahead with the demolition until estimates were received from local contractors on the cost of "merely putting the house in shape," as it was termed.

$16,500 ESTIMATE

Ald. Gordon Farquharson, chairman of the property committee, said today that one estimate, including wiring and plumbing costs, had been approximately $16,500, about $2,000 more than that of Mr. Winters.

"Perhaps five organizations — possibly more—requested space in the house," Mr. Farquharson said. "In the first place, their needs were so various that, if the house were merely put in shape, they couldn't all be provided with space. [illegible] organizations were carefully studied, and it was discovered that the city was under no obligation to provide space for any of them.

"Nevertheless, it was thought Mr. Winter's estimate may have been a bit out of line and so estimates were asked from reliable local contractors. Actually, Mr. Winter's estimate was about $2,000 lower than the local one. In view of this and the two other factors I've mentioned, the property committee decided unanimously to recommend tearing the house down."

No recommendation was made as to the future use of the property, Mr. Farquharson said.

U.K. Pamphlet Reveals Secrets

NEW YORK (AP) — A British pamphlet which anyone can buy for about 70 cents is reported to contain atomic information of a type long kept highly secret in the United States.

It contains enough information of a type called "classified" in the U. S. to send a person to jail and possibly even death as a traitor if made public by an American scientist, it is believed.

The New York Times describes the pamphlet in a dispatch today from Kansas City, where the American Chemical Society is holding its national meeting.

BEING STUDIED

The Times says the British government pamphlet, written about a month ago by K. E. B. Jay of the division of atomic energy of the ministry of supply, is being studied by leading American scientists "with avid interest."

"It tells the story of atomic energy production in Britain. It tells in detail how the British enrich uranium to fissionable levels and how they produce plutonium, material for the atomic bomb.

"These techniques, developed first in the United States, are known in detail to few American scientists because here security regulations, established by Congress, require that such information be 'classified.' That is, it has to be stamped 'top secret' and filed in a safe."

Find Company $34,420 Under Assessment

A mistake in the transposition of figures resulted in the Monaghan Rd. property of the Peterborough Canoe Co. Ltd. being under-assessed by $34,420, it was revealed at the court of revision Tuesday night, when the error was corrected.

Assessment Commissioner J. E. Davis told the court that the slip had apparently been made when the figures were being copied from the assessment department's field sheets to the assessment notices.

ADDITIONAL MISTAKE

He said the same figures had been entered on the notice for the company's Monaghan Rd. buildings as for their buildings on Rink St. This had led to a further error in the business assessment, which was 60 per cent of the building assessment. The assessment [illegible] correctly copied.

The court approved Mr. Davis' recommendation that the assessment on the buildings be increased from $30,120 to $51,630 and the business assessment from $21,910 to $34,820.

Asked if the company was contesting the increase, Mr. Davis said they had notified him they would have a representative present that evening if they intended to oppose it. No-one from the company showed up and the revised assessment was approved.

Haymes Pressing Deportation Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Crooner Dick Haymes flew into Washington today "for a couple of hours" to press his fight against deportation to his native Argentina. He has appealed a deportation order.

Haymes, wearing sun glasses and in need of a shave, walked smilingly past reporters at National airport. He said he expects to return to New York this afternoon.

In the meantime, he said he hopes to see Senator William Langer (Rep. N.D.), described as "a very good friend" of Haymes' wife, actress Rita Hayworth.

Haymes said Miss Hayworth was "at home" in New York.

Upturn In Market Seems More Remote

NEW YORK (AP)—An upturn in the American steel market seems more remote now than it has for several weks, Iron Age, national metal-working weekly, says today.

Steel - making operations are scheduled at 66.5 per cent of rated capacity, a drop of 1½ points from last week.

Industry optimists who had predicted an upturn in the first quarter now are discouraged about ... steel business. The Iron Age said, but there are some bright spots. Scrap prices rose this week for the first time in 1954, and another favorable sign was improvement in wire demand.

But the publication says buyers show no inclination to boost their April schedules or to hint that May will be better.

City Standards Should Not Apply To Hillbillies

"I don't know if we can enforce city standards in a hillbilly district," said Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, asking for leniency for Milton King of Havelock. King was convicted in magistrate's court Tuesday on three charges of careless driving, driving without a license, and obstructing the course of justice.

"You don't seem to think much of this area, Mr. Bradshaw," Magistrate W. R. Philp commented.

"No, your worship," said the Crown Attorney. "I know it well."

The three charges against King were laid as a result of an accident on Highway 7 three and a half miles west of Norwood on February 26. King pleaded guilty on all three counts.

OPP Constable Doug Ross testified that he found two vehicles parked on the road, with indications of an impact. King's car was crosswise in the middle of the highway, but there was no sign of King. Another vehicle was on the north shoulder, together with the driver. Apparently King passed another car at the wrong time and so was in collision.

Const. Ross testified that when he tracked down King, the latter told him that another man was driving. His passenger, Marie Baker of Havelock, corroborated this statement and sent police on a fruitless mission to Indian River. King is a married man with two children.

When police called on King again he acknowledged that he ... asked for his license, he said it was not available, but subsequently produced a 1951 license.

Questioned by Magistrate Philp, King said he had bought the car on December 23, and had not been driving before this date since 1951. He said he was a carpenter and made a living either working out or doing carpentry work in his own shop.

In view of King's precarious economic status, Magistrate Philp asssesed minimum fines, a total of $52.50 including costs on the three charges.

Husband Ignores Stork

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—An Ohio grocery clerk surrendered here Tuesday night, and police said he admitted he was on a 24-hour spree with an embezzled $3,500 while his mother lay dying of cancer and his wife awaited birth of their fourth child. Police identified the clerk as Carl Richard Downs, 24, Chillicothe, O., who said he had taken the money meant for bank deposit by the grocery owner. "I started for the bank but just kept going," he told police.

Don't Realize Power Of Radio To Sell Radio

QUEBEC (CP)—Fred Pemberton of radio station CKSF Cornwall, said Tuesday broadcasters do not always realize the power of "radio to sell radio."

In a talk during a panel discussion at a meeting of the Canadian Association of Radio and Television Broadcasters, Mr. Pemberton said he first realized this when collecting material for a program which aimed at telling how a manufactured product progressed from raw material to the finished goods.

In travelling through the country to visit industries which contributed to the products featured in the programs, he witnessed that radio was selling itself as well as the product itself.

IDEA POPULAR

"Little did we know then how this simple idea was to snowball into something that would bring radio to the immediate attention of top-level management, not only in Canada but south of the border and in Britain," Mr. Pemberton said.

"By far the greatest result has been the impact of radio and what it can do on business executives.

"I manage only a smaller station but I sincerely believe that programs of this nature can bring industry, people and radio together in a better understanding and in a more remunerative way."

Mr. Pemberton leaves April 9 on a visit to Belgium, Holland, Germany and England to collect additional material for industrial programs.

On Wrong Side To Avoid Crash Says Accused

Richard J. Monaghan of 635 Hawley St. was acquitted on a charge of careless driving in magistrate's court Tuesday.

The charge was laid as a result of an accident on a sweeping curve on the Westwood county road on the evening of February 26. Monaghan was in collision with a car driven by Thomas F. Kelly of Indian River who was also charged with careless driving, but whose case was dismissed after Crown Attorney John Bradshaw presented no evidence.

The prosecution picked up its case where it left off March 16 as Const. Ross of the OPP testified that he had found the Monaghan car, which had been travelling south, on the wrong side of the road near a point where another county road intersects. The other car was a few feet away.

Defence counsel Trevor Clarke lost a spirited debate with Magistrate W. R. Philp, as court resumed in the afternoon, on his motion for dismissal of the charge. He then called the accused as his only witness.

Monaghan testified that he saw the headlights of a car approaching from the east on the curve. Then the other car stopped near the middle of the road, apparently to make a turn. Monaghan then swung to the wrong side of the road in a vain attempt to avoid a collision and the two cars sideswiped.

Asked by Crown Attorney Bradshaw if he had not been hugging the inside of the curve all the way around, Monaghan said: "If I had been I would have ...

The case was then dismissed.

Drunk Driving Penalties

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Alberta plans to double the penalties for drunken and impaired driving.

Amendments to the Vehicles and Highway Traffic Act were given first reading Tuesday. They double to 12 months the automatic suspension of a driver's licence for drunk driving, and increase to six months the licence suspension for driving with ability impaired.

The bill also provides for a mandatory 20- to 30-day jail term for operating a vehicle while one's licence is suspended, or for knowingly driving a vehicle while its registration is suspended.

In British Columbia, increased pension and compensation benefits are provided for workers under proposed amendments to the Workmen's Compensation Act.

Labor Minister Lyle Wicks tabled the amendments for the Social Credit government. They will, if approved increase the maximum allowable income for workers to $4,000 from $3,600 and increase pensions to $1,650 from $1,540 annually for a pensioner whose annual wage is $2,200 a year.

In Saskatchewan, the legislature unanimously approved a resolution asking that a comprehensive crop-insurance scheme be set up.

Mouse Makes Money

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—A young woman who barked her shins on an open desk drawer when she spied a dead mouse in her boss' hand was awarded $1,750 Tuesday. Corrinne Reynolds, 26, told a jury that Cecil W. Koffman, department manager, shook the mouse in her face as she sat punching an adding machine. She had sued for $10,000.

Devise Way Of Detecting Early Cancers

By FRANK CAREY

BOSTON (AP)—Boston scientists have devised methods of detecting and diagnosing in a relatively early stage three of the commonest killers—cancers of the brain, breast and uterine cervix.

The result of this research were disclosed today to a group of science writers touring leading research centres under the guidance of the American Cancer Society.

A Tufts Medical School scientist, Dr. William H. Fishman, has found a simple, cheap and rapid way of detecting not only well-established cancers of the uterine cervix, the tip of the womb, in post-menopausal women but also cancers of microscopic size and even pre-cancerous conditions.

While his method misses a little less than 20 per cent of proven cancers, it has brought to light many cancerous and pre-cancerous conditions which might have been missed by conventional methods, he said.

Drs. William H. Sweet and Gordon L. Brownell of the Harvard University school of medicine and Massachusetts General Hospital, reported that they can pin-point brain tumors without opening the skull.

INJECT ARSENIC

They do this by injecting the patient with radioactive arsenic, which concentrates in brain tumors and can be traced an hour or a day later.

Dr. Ira T. Nathanson and associates of the same institutions have found they can predict with high accuracy whether a lump in the breast is benign or cancerous.

They do this by injecting the patient with radioactive potassium, which concentrates in cancer and, as a rule, goes only in small quantity to benign tumors.

The science writers in another interview were told that 18 patients with localized cancer of the larynx four years by multi-million-volt x-rays show no evidence now of the disease.

MPP Would Provide Protection For News Services

TORONTO (CP)—W. M. Nickle, Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for Kingston, Tuesday called for a safeguard for freedom of the press by the provision of legal protection for the sources of newspapers' information.

Speaking during the budget debat in the House, Mr. Nickle asked Attorney-General Porter to consider an amendment to the evidence Act to provide that no newspaper or reporter could be ordered by the courts to disclose the source of information.

"Until the law is changed, freedom of the press can be throttled."

During the debate J. F. Edwards (PC—Perth) asked the provincial government to institute a contributory health insurance plan.

At the first night sitting of the current session, the legislature approved the estimates of the attorney-general's department ($12,222,000), the education department ($80,023,000), the department of insurance ($190,000) and miscellaneous expenditures ($100,000).

RECENT COURT CASE

Mr. Nickle referred to a recent case in which a court ordered Blair Fraser, writer for Maclean's Magazine, to disclose his source of information in connection with an article on British Columbia politics. The article was the basis for a libel action against the writer and the magazine by former attorney-general Gordon Wismer.

"The time has come when those of us who believe in freedom of the press should amend the law."

He said adequate provision was given for a suit for damages by anyone who thought he had been libelled without forcing a reporter to reveal his sources. However, no exceptions were made for witnesses being excused from answering questions.

AFRAID OF COST

In calling for a contributory health insurance plan, Mr. Edwards said this and a free cancer clinic service was "a must and would allay the fears and worries of many who postpone early treatment, because they are afraid of the cost."

Before the house rose, Premier Frost said the province plans to study other provincial schemes and would "proceed slowly and soundly" on the question.

W. E. Brandon (PC—York West) proposed a central registry for liens and chattel mortgages and suggested the work of the municipal board be spread out, thus relieving the pressure of work on the group.

A. J. Child (PC — Wentworth) called for a reduction in the school-room grants, from $20,000 to $17,500, as an economy measure.

He said some school boards are erecting schools to last 75 to 100 years that become outdated in 20.

"Over-ambitiois school boards are only building monuments to themselves."

Lakefield Lions Consider Artificial Ice

LAKEFIELD (ENS) — Stanley Richardson of the Canadian Ice Machine Co. Toronto, gave a very comprahensive talk to members of the Lions Club at a recent meeting, on the installation and maintenance of artificial ice in Lakefield Arena.

The highlights of the discussion were: 1. A three-unit system offered no advantage in economy of operation over a one-unit system. The number of hours of use required by each type was the deciding fator. 2. The ammonia brine system was preferable to the free-on gas system. 3. Steel piping was always more satisfactory than plastic piping. 4. By provincial law an engineer is required to operate this plant. 5. The cost of new equipment and installation with a coating of gravel over the pipes would be approximately $30,000. The cost of second hand equipment and installation, approximately $31,000. The cost of concrete or asphalt covering over pipes would be about $10,000.

This equipment would have sufficient capacity to serve ice in the arena as well as three ice surfaces in a curling rink adjoining the arena. The estimated cost of operating the equipment was placed at $20 per day.

Additional necessities required would include a tiled drain around the outside of the arena and webb tiling in the ground underneath the piping; wooden sleepers on which to rest the piping; header trench across one end of the rink and a suitable building (20' by 25') at one end of the building to house the equipment.

The value of all free labor would be deductible from the contract price of the engineer, would be used in the project.

Jack Ryan, chairman of Civic Improvement Committee of the Lakefield Lions Club was appointed a member of the general village committee which will formulate a comprehensive plan as to how the property adjoining the rink biulding could be made into a recreational centre that would serve the needs of the citizens and tourist trade.

Under the chairmanship of Lion Clayton Hannah, the Lions Sports Committee sponsored a local hockey league in Lakefield Arena for forty juvenile boys of the village. The four teams played a regular schedule once each week.

Managers of the teams were George Chappell, Bernard Wannakamer, Walter Palmer and Sam Henderson. Lion Jack Chittick was official referee.

Team "C", under the guidance of George Chappell won the honors. Each player was presented with a sweater bearing the words, "Lakefield Lions".

Turn Down Censorship

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—The judiciary committee of the Michigan senate Tuesday pigeonholed a bill to establish state censorship over television advertisements of beer and wine. The bill would have required the state liquor control commission to forbid sale of intoxicating beverages which were advertised on television in such a way as to dramatize the act of drinking.

Steam-Heated Hot Air

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—The city hall here has been too hot since a section of the boiler used to heat it burst. An old steam tandem roller, which put its best years of service into smoothing asphalt paving on city streets, was pressed into service. It's a good temporary boiler but the heat can't be controlled.

GEN. ELY VISITS IKE—President Eisenhower appears to be flicking something from his brow as he talks with French Chief of Staff Paul Ely (right) at the White House. Ely had come to ask the President for more American planes to bolster the fight against Communist troops in Indo-China.

Urge Parliament Put Lid On Amount Canadian Money

OTTAWA (CP)—The opposition's financial critic urged Parliament Tuesday to place a lid on the amount of money that can be created in Canada.

James Macdonnell (PC—Toronto Greenwood) told the Commons banking committee that currently there is no limit on the amount of money which can be created by the government.

he said, of some "irresponsible" government getting into power and increasing the money supply indiscriminately as an election incentive.

Under the current law, he added, there is nothing to prevent a government from, say, increasing baby bonuses to $500 a month.

DIFFICULT TO DO

Graham Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada, said he does not know of any practical way to limit the creation of money, except through these two ways:

1. Canada could go on the gold standard and this would mean that a certain fixed portion of Canada's money would have to be backed by gold.

2. Parliament could place a limit on the amount of money which the Bank of Canada can hold. But there must be some leeway to provide for shifts in holdings when Parliament is not sitting.

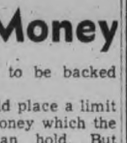
Mr. Macdonnell suggested that reasonable limitations should be imposed for the Bank of Canada's

Mr. Towers replied it was a question of what "checks and balances" there should be on the administration of the day.

The issue developed as the committee continued scrutiny of the government's two monetary bills, giving the central bank greater control over bank credit and streamlining and extending the lives of Canada's chartered banks.

Forced To Work Relief Rolls Drop

STRATHROY (CP)—Town clerk John Eakins says a Strathroy scheme to make able-bodied men drawing town relief work for three days a week has cut down the number on relief. In other centres, he says, there has been a sharp increase.



Wood has been cut for the town and, Alexandra Park cleaned up. The men were paid mainly by vouchers drawn on local stores.

Mr. Eakins said relief costs have been kept to about the same level as last year.

TTC Education

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Transit Commission is going to make sure nobody gets lost on its new subway. Hundreds of schoolchildren are being given lessons on how to transfer from street-cars and buses and find their way around. And the TTC has printed 300,000 pamphlets of directions for adults so they won't get lost either. The subway, Canada's first, opens next Tuesday.

Addicts Cost Vancouver $7,000,000 Year

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police estimate that narcotics addicts cost Vancouver nearly $7,000,000 a year.

The estimate was made by veteran city detectives Rex Cray and Cliff Mead of the city vice squad following RCMP disclosure Monday that Charles (Lucky) Luciano was the man behind the distribution of narcotics through Vancouver.

Cray and Mead said an average addict needs three capsules of heroin a day, at $3 each. Addicts live in the cheapest accommodation possible at a minimum of $7. Allowing only $10 weekly for food, the addict must have $80 weekly.

Multiply this by the 1,000 addicts in Vancouver and the total hits $80,000 a week.

Of this, $25,000 is gained by selling drugs and $55,000 by shoplifting, smash and grab, bogus cheques and breaking and entering.

Since the selling price of stolen goods is only about half its value, the thefts must total $5,720,000, the detectives estimated.

Corporal Punishment Great Deterrent For Crime

OTTAWA (CP) — Corporal punishment was described today as "very definitely a deterrent" to crime among offenders in the 16-24 age group.

Warden R. M. Allan of Kingston, Ont., penitentiary said however the strap or paddle has a greater effect as a deterrent than the lash or cat-o'-nine-tails. He suggested the lash be done away with, but that the strap be retained.

The 64-year-old penitentiary official added that application of corporal punishment has varying effects on individual inmates.

He said that in his 41-year experience he has found no evidence that whipping leaves prisoners embittered towards society.

The strap or lash, he told the Commons - Senate committee on capital and corporal punishment and lotteries, leaves no physical marks on a man's body. He said he has never known an inmate to be incapacitated for work more than 24 hours after receiving corporal punishment. He knew of no case of permanent disability due to corporal punishment.

Most inmates who suffer corporal punishment returned to work the same day unless they ask for rest. They were submitted to a physical and mental examination the day corporal punishment is administered. Doctors could decide whether corporal punishment should be administered or not.

The penitentiary physician was in attendance during administration of corporal punishment and could stop it at any time.

The strap is administered for serious violations of prison regulations, such as assault on an officer, rioting, or willful property damage. It is applied on bared buttocks. The leather strap is about 16 inches long by 2½ inches wide. It has a 10-inch long leather handle.

The cat-o'-nine-tails is applied only as part of a court sentence. It consists of a wooden rod of about 18 inches. At one end are attached nine strands of sash cord, about 16 inches long.

Leather thongs on the strands were abandoned some 20 years ago, he said.

Pope Receiving Special Treatment

VATICAN CITY (CP) — Vatican sources say the Pope, ill since Jan. 25, has been receiving special treatment for his heart and circulation with an appliance designed by a West Berlin doctor.

The treatment, informants said, has been administered by the Pope's physician, Professor Riccardo Gaeazzi-Lisi.

The 78-year-old Pontiff received his pro-secretaries of state Tuesday.

It was understood that his doctors have suspended since Sunday the indirect feeding which had maintained him since the outbreak of his illness.

Mothers of the Baby Band groups of all city churches showed their sympathy for the children of Korea by contributing $30 in an impromptu collection taken at the Baby Band Mothers' rally held recently. The money will send powdered milk to the Korean children through a United Nations agency. It was decided to do this instead of buying books for the library as had been done other years. A report from Korea stated that 46,000 children are being cared for in 360 orphanages.

April To Be "Talent Month"

Her very interesting talk on "Stories of our Hymns" was given by Mrs. F. W. K. Harris at the Women's Association meeting in Murray Street Baptist church parlors Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. A. Smedmor introduced Mrs. Harris and she was thanked by Mrs. L. H. Ingram. President Mrs. Earl McNabb presided and the devotions were led by Mrs. Harry Weston. Local Council representative Miss Mary Ellis reported the proceedings of the recent meeting. Mrs. R. G. Gavine reported on the cent-a-day collection and dedicated the offering. Mrs. Ross Matthews was appointed to convene a rummage sale which will be held May 1st. It was decided that April will be a talent "month" and each W.A. member is asked to make some talent money and bring the amount to the meeting on April 27th. These proceeds will go toward the new kitchen project now underway. Pianist for the hymns was Mrs. P. W. Johnston. A social half hour with refreshments was convened by Mrs. Clare Boorman and following this there was a "silent auction sale," convened by Mrs. O. J. Hayward, assisted by Mrs. H. Wells. This sale of small articles brought in by the members was very successful and netted $18.

Spring News! Match Jewellery And Fragrance

The big idea this spring—and a perfectly logical one when you come to think of it—is to match your fragrance with your jewelry. How do you match something you smell? That's easy. They both are accessories and you match them to fit mood and occasion. And since fragrance is in a sense the jewel of your personality there is a natural affinity between these two forms of adornment. It is fitting and proper, therefore, that you consider what jewelry to wear; then decide on a fragrance to match. Or you can do it the other way: If you're in the mood for a certain scent, adorn yourself with jewelry that

Let's start with one of the newest and gayest jewelry ideas in years—earrings made of tiny flowers — the very essence of spring. Yes, flowers actually cascade from the ears in shower bouquets, or swing in great blossomy hoops. Of course a floral scent is indicated to interpret this clever new idea in fragrance. To do proper honour to these conversation-piece earrings, you should literally bathe in flowers —using your favourite floral oil or salts in your bath—and carry the sequence clear through to the final touch of perfume. And remember to spray scent on the earrings themselves!

From the newest idea we come to the classic idea, the forever -right idea in jewelry—pearls. As are all classic concepts in the world, pearls are always correct. And with them you wear the fragrance classics—perfumes that never lose their distinction, that are always in fashion, because they are great and timeless fragrances. Every woman has her favourite among fragrance classics and she instinctively wears it when she wears her pearls. That's feminine intuition at its best.

Heavy jewelry as well as jewelery that looks bulky but is actually light in weight, will be smart this spring. And with heavy jewelry goes a heady fragrance, so that together they may project the worldiness and sophistication of the wearer. Its character is as sophisticated as the jewelry it complements so happily. Oriental and semi-oriental spicy or woody notes have an exotic character that is in keeping with jangling bracelets and bangles climbing smartly up the arm, a brace of chain necklaces perhaps, and earrings that are big and bright.

For dress-up occasions when you want to shine, wear sparkles at your throat, on your ears, circling your wrists, pinned to your most festive frock. And, of course, wear a sparkling fragrance to match! In selecting your fragrance, let your imagination roam. If a fragrance seems to have many facets, as a jewel has and stirs up your emotions, as a jewel does, then it's the one that will make you sparkle!

There's a hint of where to apply perfume in this jewelry association too. Wear it where you wear your jewelry—at your throat, on your wrists, touched to your ears, on your hair. Remember that fragrance is an invisible jewel that conjures up, through the emotions, the loveliest you in the whole wide world!

Red Cross Branch Hears Reports

Peterborough branch of Canadian Red Cross meeting was held in the Red Cross rooms Tuesday evening with a good attendance.

In speaking for the Junior Red Cross, Miss E. Dix gave the report of the field secretary from Ontario division, who visited Peterborough district and city schools during March. She expressed the hope that more teachers and parents would become interested in this department of Red Cross and encourage the pupils to re-enroll in September and gain the training received from following the three-fold aim of their club—mitigation of suffering, prevention of disease and improvement of health.

Mrs. F. E. Hooper, in reporting for the visiting committee, told of her visit to Anson House where she was able to contact 10 women and men and distribute small gifts of candy and cake.

Miss Helen Gerrard had finished one hundred garments in her sewing group at the Red Cross rooms and had ordered more material for her autumn work.

Publicity convener Claire Collins thanked the various conveners for news material given him during the community campaign and the society thanked him for his untiring and effective work in this connection.

Nominations and appointments of assistance leaders and instructors' course is being sponsored in April and the registration is now oversubscribed.

Easter Message Presented For Silver Cross

Final plans for the Spring Tea which the Silver Cross Chapter members will hold on Wednesday afternoon, April 7, at the YWCA, were made at the regular meeting Monday. Advertising posters for this event have been made by Miss Betty Mason and are on display in downtown store windows. Mrs. F. M. Craig is in charge of publicity, and tickets are being distributed by Mrs. F. W. Burnham and Mrs. A. M. Fitzgerald.

President Mrs. A. S. Williams presided and welcomed Mrs. Hooten as a new member.

Easter songs were sung by Mrs. A. Scriver and Mrs. W. Hepburn, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. A. J. Stevenson.

Speaker was Mrs. J. M. Beatty who chose "Easter" as her subject. "As in the case of Christmas, Easter customs owe their origin largely to pagan practices," she said. "The English word Easter is in itself pagan, coming from the Saxon word Eostre—Goddess of Spring and Beauty".

Fasts are still held in some countries to celebrate the return of spring and Easter is the Christian celebration that has taken the place of ancient spring festivals Mrs. Beatty explained. The custom of using eggs as symbols at Easter signifies creation or new birth, and she told that hot cross buns were the cakes which the Saxons used to eat in honor of Eostre. The early clergy, rather than attempt to eradicate this custom, sought to expell its paganism by marking the buns with the holy cross.

"During modern history the religious importance of Easter with its spiritual significance is stressed in most Christian countries while retaining a few qaint and often beautiful customs" Mrs. Beatty said.

Appreciation of the Easter songs and message was expressed to the contributors by Mrs. N. Fee. Final enjoyment of the evening was a social half-hour with refreshments served by Mrs. E. Pruner and assistants.

A silver rose bowl and butter dish were presented to Mrs. George by her cousins.

Mr. and Mrs. George (nee Matilda Greenly) were married at the United church parsonage at Warkworth by the Rev. F. H. Howard. The attendants were Miss Edna Greenly (now Mrs. Carman Nelson) and Marcus Radley. Their married life has been spent at their farm home, west of Roseneath, on Concession 2, Alnwick township.

They have two sons, Eldon of Roseneath and Verne of Oshawa, and a granddaughter Eva Anne George, Roseneath.

Shop In England From Catalogue

An overseas shopping centre is open to local citizens and just as near and accessible as the mailbox.

Canadian women can now shop in England for their entire family, via British mail order catalogues. From London to Canada and American homes the [illegible] a year ago a whole new world of choice English goods in a catalogue of Joyce Wells, Ltd., the only British mail order list designed exclusively for Canadian and American use.

The catalogue covers goods from Somerset to Scotland, from Ireland to the Shetland Isles — dresses for mother, coats and suits for dad, toys and clothing for the children, furnishings and antiques for the home. It is claimed that everything is at least 50 per cent cheaper than any like goods sold in Canada, simply because the catalogues are really a manufacturers' outlet, and the goods is as near factory prices as possible.

Each item lists below the price the amount of duty that will be collected by the postman at the door. Deliveries are as fast as trans-Atlantic mails allow and all goods are sold on the guarantee of complete satisfaction or money back.

Glamor Girl Of Early 30's Heads Canadian Actors

TORONTO (CP)—A former Austrian glamor girl of the early 30s who once shared a spot in the chorus line of a Vienna night club with Hedy Lamarr, is director of the recently formed New Canadian Actors Association.

Blonde, six-foot Mrs. Lore Loens, now a busy Toronto housewife with three young boys, says she is still an actress at heart. She was well-known on the Austrian stage. Since she knew many New Canadians who were once on stage, she decided to gather them together into a special company.

"We feel we can contribute quite a bit to Canadian culture by acquainting Canadians with the European legitimate theatre," she said. "Your talented actors go to the United States, but we are here to stay."

Mrs. Loens didn't have far to look for talent. In Toronto she found actors and actresses whose names should be familiar to theatre goers in Germany and Austria.

Members of the new group are producing their first play, "The Broken Jug."

In the company of Seigmund Morgenstern, former star of Metropol theatre in Berlin; Helmut Neuman and Adelaide Ostermann of Radio Stuggart; Lisa Ra-pan Maximilian Schmack, well-known in the State theatre, Dresden, and Hans Seifert of the Municipal theatres, Heidelberg.

Mrs. Loens said that her company is "trying to build a cultural bridge between native-born and New Canadians."

Rumors Of Husband's Affair Confirmed Before His Wife

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm 27, married, have four children, and up to a year ago was very happy. I've been working to help my husband make a living, and hired a woman, whom I shall call Laura, to care for the youngsters. Although warned that she couldn't be trusted around men, I refused to believe the rumors. Even when it became quite evident to everyone but me that she was flirting with Martin, I wouldn't let her go. I trusted them both so completely. I had to believe my own eyes, however, when I came home unexpectedly early and found them in each other's arms. She left immediately, and since then Martin has been going to see her. He says he loves her, and wants me to divorce him. I still love him, in spite of everything, and I know the children need him. What should I do?

EMILY R.

CHEAT'S BRAVADO

ANSWER: You have certainly reaped a sorry reward for your trust and confidence, not to mention the sacrifice you've made in leaving four small children so you could work for your husband. Your domestic setup would be better if you let him make the money so you could stay home with your family. I doubt that Laura's influence on them was very good.

Martin is making a great show of bravado with his claim that he wants to leave you for Laura. Since he couldn't support one family, how does he expect to make ends meet for two families? Perhaps you've let him off with so little responsibility that he's forgotten what the word implies. Well, wake him up. Make up your mind that from now on you remain home, where you belong, while he earns the living. Remind him that if you divorce him, he'll have to contribute to the children's support, as well as taking on the obligations of a new home. Paint a verbal picture of the life of hard work he'll have to endure, and I think he'll be scared off any threats of leaving home for Laura.

What your family needs is a proper division of chores—father as breadwinner and mother as homemaker, with no outsiders called in for assistance.

DEAR MISS DIX: I have a lovely new home and furniture, which my husband and I worked very hard to get. It so happens that I am the "soft touch" of the neighborhood, getting all the babies to mind, older children to taxi, and all the kids in for refreshments. I've cared for neighbors' children as long as two weeks. However, when I ask for something, the answer is generally "No". The youngsters are careless about my things when they're in the house — furniture gets scratched, ornaments broken, etc., with no apologies forthcoming from the parents. My husband is getting quite angry about it.

ANSWER: You are just about the softest person I've heard of. Since the neighbors don't mind hurting your feelings by saying "No", I don't see why you can't use the same tactics. Stand in front of your mirror and say "No, no, no" for a while until you get the feel of it. Doing favors is wonderful, but not when your kindness is abused and never returned. Stiffen up a bit, and stop letting people take advantage of you.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: We are two teen-age girls who have been friendly with a girl who isn't very careful about the way she talks—especially to boys. Consequently, she's acquiring a bad reputation. Don't you think if we continue going with her it may be harmful to us?

ROSETTA

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You may be perfectly sure it will. I advise you to get some new friends.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Clam Chowder Just Right With Lobster Salad, Biscuits

Rings of pineapple wouldn't do. Fresh pineapple wouldn't do. Those we had. But no, she had to have crushed pineapple for what Dorothy wanted to make. So, in spite of having just bought $18.41 worth of groceries we had to tear out and buy a can of crushed pineaaple for Dorothy was in a dessert-making mood.

You see, Dorothy is one of my cooking buddies, and was visiting us for the weekend, and when she takes over in the kitchen she is exacting about the supplies she requires.

She prepared Saturday night's supper. I sat down with my hands folded in my lap and just talked sort of ladylike on the never-tiring topic of our kids while she cooked for them.

Clam Chowder
Biscuits Supreme
Lobster Salad
Pineapple Marlow Coffee

CLAM CHOWDER

Cook 2 thick slices of back bacon, finely chopped, in large frying pan. Add 1-16 teaspoon garlic powder, and 1 No. 2 can of clams —whole or minced. (She used whole clams and cut them up coarsely.) Let this come to boiling then add 1 can of condensed clam chowder, ¼ cup evaporated milk and 2 cups whole milk. Bring to boiling. (If you can catch her you ask Marianne to polish the silver soup tureen to give this dish the elegant service it deserves.) This makes a rich chowder, and while a cookery expert should not resort to cutting corners, using the can of clam chowder saved all the trouble of paring, chopping and cooking raw onions and potatoes. It was popular and served five generously.

LOBSTER SALAD

One 7-oz. tin South African rock lobster, 1 cup finely chopped inner celery stalks, mayonnaise to moisten. We made up individual salad plates with the lobster mixture on the lettuce, piles of cottage cheese, sliced tomatoes, and radishes all around it.

BISCUITS SUPREME

(Dorothy was not familiar with [illegible] our newer readers may not be familiar with either. I think this is the sixthh time I have used it in thtis column.) Two cups stirred but not sifted all - purpose flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1½ teaspoon each cream of tartar and salt, 2 teaspoons sugar, ½ cup butter or margarine or ½ butter and half shortening, 2-3 cup milk. Cut the butter or shortening into the sifted dry ingredients, until fine. Add milk all at once, stir in quickly. Pat and roll out to ½-inch thickness on lightly floured board. Cut out with 2-inch cutter. Place on ungreased baking sheet and bake at 450 deg. Fahr. 10 minutes.

PINEAPPLE MARLOW (easy)

Drain the juice from 1 No. 2 can of best quality crushed pineapple. You should have 1 cup. Dissolve the [illegible] package of pineapple [illegible] cup boiling [illegible] and stir until dissolved. Add the 1 cup pineapple juice, the crushed pineapple, about 1 or 1½ cups cut up marshmallows. Cool and just as it begins to congeal fold in ½ cup heavy cream which has been whipped until stiff. Chill. Serve this in stemmed glasses, topped with a little more whipped cream and the inhevitable cherry—preferably green. Dorothy says she often makes one of these on a Saturday to have ready for dessert if her young people bring friends home with them on Sunday afternoon.

Presentation of a figurine was made to Mrs. Philp in recognition of her devotion to the duties of secretary for the past four years. Mrs. J. M. Wishart acted on behalf of the mothers.

Tea table for this occasion was laid with white linen and centred with a china model of a baby carriage which was filled with green carnations and yellow roses and some shamrocks for St. Patrick's day. Green candles in crystal holders were set on doilies on which were pasted pictures of children of various countries. The tea was poured by honorary presidents Mrs. S. D. Carver and Mrs. W. H. Morton.

Past secretary Mrs. W. R. Philp gave an overall resume of the year, stressing that layettes and children's clothing were made for five United Church Mission Hospitals in Canada as well as clothing sent to Angola and Korea, and a box of toys sent at Christmas to Trinidad. Special work with children in the local churches had been helped by the groups.

A prize offered by Mrs. Philp for the most interesting scrapbook of activities produced by a group

Bringing Up Baby

Hints Collected by Mrs. Dean Carder (Mother of 5)

Wonderful the way mothers think of everything. Like the one who had daddy attach a small size coathook to the back of baby's high chair. Claims it's the best little step-saver ever, since bibs and face wipers are always in a handy place.

• • •

Another note for the high-chair set. For tots who are sporting brand new teeth . . . Gerber's Junior Foods are just the thing. For they have a tender, evenly-minced texture which encourages baby to chew. And they have the naturally good, true-to-nature flavors and colors baby's been used to in Gerber's Strained Foods. 14 varieties of Junior Foods to stimulate mealtime interest . . . including fruits, vegetables, vegetable-meat dinners, and desserts.

• • •

Clothing cue. Bright-colored outdoor play-togs for a toddler will make it much easier for you to keep track of that little busy-body.

• • •

Straight story on old yarn. Easy way to straighten out the crinkles in raveled yarn: just wind yarn around a piece of cardboard, then dunk the whole thing in luke warm water. When dry, wool will be straight as a die . . . ready for knitting something new for baby.

• • •

Teething time? Gerber's Teething Biscuits can be mighty helpful. They're smooth-surfaced and so soothing to tender gums . . . extra-firm so baby can get plenty of chewing satisfaction. Of course, Gerber's Teething Biscuits are made of wholesome ingredients and baked into a special shape that's easy for little hands to hold. Individually wrapped in sanitary cellophane, they're perfect to pocket for visiting purposes.

• • •

Adding meat to your tot's diet? Then here's good news! Gerber's have now introduced 6 Strained Meats and 3 Junior Meats to their wide variety of baby foods. Watch for them at your favorite store!

COFFEE 'N' SUGAR—If coffee prices keep soaring, Abbe Lane, wife of bandleader Xavier Cugat, might be forced to bathe in a demitasse cup. However, for the present she's content to relax in a whole tubful of the precious stuff in New Orleans, La. The pretty singer claims coffee helps tone her skin.

A. E. Sedgwick

Funeral services were held today for Albert Edward Sedgwick, who died at his home on Maniece Ave. Monday. Mr. Sedgwick, a retired Otonabee farmer, was in his 84th year.

The funeral was held from the Nesbitt funeral home for service at St. Luke's church at 2:30, Archdeacon W. P. Robertson officiated and interment was in Little Lake cemetery.

Pallbearers for Mr. Sedgwick were Wilfred Curtain, Gordon Maniece, Harry Brook, Dan Creely, Harold Payne and Doug Copperthwaite.

A. GORDON NAIRN, senior executive official of the Life Underwriters Association of Canada, will be guest speaker at the annual ladies' night banquet of the Peterborough branch of this group 6:45 Friday at the Aragon. Mr. Nairn, a gold medal graduate from McGill in both arts and law and a specialist in economics, is director of agencies for the Prudential Insurance Co., of America.

Two Secret Inquiries In Italy Scandal

ROME (AP)—At least two high-level secret investigations are under way into the Wilma Montesi affair which has shaken Italian democracy.

One probe is being conducted by an important minister of Premier Mario Scelba's government; the [illegible]

Both aim to find out how the 21-year-old Miss Montesi died on the night of April 9, 1953, and whether, as alleged, her death had ramifications reaching into dope traffic, government attempts at cover-up, and influence-peddling.

Tuesday night in a turbulent chamber of deputies, Scelba's hard-pressed centre government won postponement of all debate on the scandal until July 1, when the probes should be completed.

The 270-198 victory may give the government a breathing spell from the clamorous affair.

TRIAL HALTED

Last Monday the trial of journalist Silvano Muto, charged with spreading false news, was halted abruptly pending a new investigation of the death.

The interruption followed introduction of a letter alleging that the scandal's central figure, Marquis Ugo Montagna, was the leader of a dope ring and that Piero Piccioni, jazz-musician son of Italy's foreign minister, was its "assassin."

Anna Maria Moneta Caglio, raven-haired former mistress of the marquis-come-lately wrote that she was leaving the letter because "I am afraid of disappearing without leaving any trace."

Gets 3 Months Extra For Jail Escape

GUELPH (CP) — Maxwell Storms, 19, Napanee, was sentenced today to an additional three months in Guelph reformatory for escaping custody March 16.

Storms, who fled from a group of prisoners working along the Guelph-Toronto highway, enjoyed a half hour of freedom. He was serving a twelve-month term imposed at Napanee on a charge of breaking and entry and theft.

OBITUARIES

MRS. MATTHEW BELL

A lifelong resident of Smith township, Mrs. Matthew Bell, the former Margaret Elizabeth Boyce, died today at the home of her son Reginald Bell, RR1, Lakefield at the age of 87.

She was the oldest citizen of the Selwyn district. Born in Smith township, she was a daughter of Wellington Boyce and Margaret Ayre, both deceased.

Her husband died in 1927. She was an adherent of the Selwyn Baptist church.

She is survived by her one son, Reginald, a grandson, Roy, and two sisters, Mrs. Edward Fitzgerald (Florence) Birtle, Man.; and Mrs. Charles Jordan (Hannah) of British Columbia.

The funeral service will be held Friday at 2:30 p.m. at the Hendren funeral home, the Rev. T. H. Fleetham of Bridgenorth United church officiating. Burial will be in Lakefield cemetery.

JOHN BAUER

John Bauer, factory superintendent of the Great West Saddlery Co. died suddenly at Peterborough Civic Hospital Tuesday. He was in his 63rd year.

Born in Russia, the son of the late Henry Bauer and his wife Anna M. Prusendorf, Mr. Bauer came to Canada with his parents when a child. He lived in Winnipeg most of his life before coming to Peterborough two and a half years ago.

Mr. Bauer is survived by his wife, the former Katharine E. Buchamer. Mr. and Mrs. Bauer resided at 98 Ware St. in Peterborough.

Three sons and a daughter also survive: Mrs. Margaret Schade and Henry Bauer of Winnipeg, and Harold and Ernest Bauer of Osoyoos, B.C.

Three sisters also survive: Mrs. H. Engleheart and Mrs. A. Green of Winnipeg and Mrs. Sliter of Jasper, Alberta.

The funeral service will be held Friday from the Comstock funeral home to the Lutheran Mission, where Mr. Bauer attended. Officiating clergyman will be Pastor H. Gastmeier and interment will be in Little Lake cemetery.

Award 53 Scholarships For Research

TORONTO (CP) — The research council of Ontario awarded 53 post-graduate scholarships this year to university students chiefly in science courses.

Candidates will receive from $900 to $1,200 depending on the stage of their post-graduate studies. The awards apply to the academic year beginning this fall. Most students will study at Ontario universities but several will attend universities in the United States and Great Britain. One will study in Holland.

Main purpose of the scholarships is to encourage scientific research.

Ontario winners include: W. A. Andrews, Clinton, of Western; W. A. Armstrong, Port Arthur, of Queen's; C. A. Barlow, Leamington, of Toronto; H. H. Bostock, Ottawa, of Queen's; G. M. Brown, Aylmer, of Western; S. B. Brown, Owen Sound, of Queen's; E. H. Buckley, Harrow, of O. A. C.; G. C. Bush, St. Catharines, of McMaster;

B. G. Chidley, St. Catharines, of McMaster; R. W. Dankwardt, Kitchener, of Western; K. G. Davey, Chatham, of Western; N. K. Glendenning, Galt, of McMaster; A. G. Harrison, Watford, of Western; A. H. Houston, Carleton Place, of McMaster; A. C. Kerr Lawson, Swastika, of Toronto; C. G. Miller, Kingston, of Queen's; reliable figures on the unemployment situation.

H. W. Quinn, Harrowsmith, of Queen's; F. A. Sherk, Waterloo, of McMaster; W. Shumovich, Pickering, of O. A. C.; R. C. Smith, St. Thomas, of Western; P. G. Sutterlin, Galt, of McMaster; R. L. Williams, St. Thomas, of Western.

Agriculture Statistics: responsible for current statistics on the whole field of agriculture. Abandant data is supplied on acreages sown, growing conditions, livestock, estimated crops, farm income, and other items to assist business, government and the farmers themselves.

International Trade Division: all statistics on trade—the country's imports and exports.

(An interesting piece of information in this division estimate of foreign to domestically owned capital in Canada. In 1950, about 69 per cent of investment in the business section of our economy was Canadian, compared with 31 per cent foreign-owned. Fifteen per cent of the funded debt of Canadian governments and corporations is owned outside Canada; and between 15 per cent and 31 per cent of all forms of Canadian investment, including farms and homes and other kinds, is owned outside Canada.)

PRICES

Labor and Prices Division: retail, wholesale, security and other prices indexes are compiled here. The best known of these is the consumer price index, sometimes called the cost-of-living index. Recently it has been more static or dropping slightly.

Of direct interest to organized labor in this division is the compilation of employment, unemployment insurance statistics and a record of applicants registered in employment ofices. Also the payroll statistics of hourly and weekly earnings.

Census of Industry and Merchandising Division: a division that compiles statistics of the primary industries of mining, forestry, fisheries and the secondary industries of manufacturing and processing.

Research and Development Division: produces the index of the physical volume of production, indicating whether industrial output is increasing or falling off.

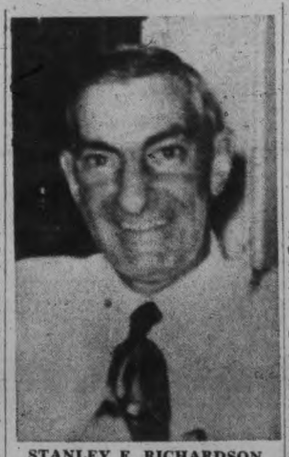
NATIONAL INCOME

Of major importance is the series of national income or national accounts that indicate the health of the economy. They are used as a background for forming government policy.

Two floors are taken up for census facilities. Here are the figures on the Canadian people—their sex, age, occupations, origin, language, education and other pertinent data.

"Linked with other official data it rounds out the scheme of information which assists governments to direct their affairs and helps business in the solution of many problems," said Mr. Marshall.

The 1951 census employed 20,000 enumerators, and because of a radical change in methods was completed at a saving of $2,000,000 and in half the normal time.



"In the last year or so we have been working on an improvement in our census of industry schedule for the larger firms. Our aim is to design it so that it will conform as closely as possible to the accounting practices of business thus making it easier for firms to complete it. This work is nearly complete and we are going to discuss the new form with representative firms in the near future."

Mr. Marshall also asked his audience of industrial and cost accountants to co-operate with the bureau by willingly and promptly filling in the questionnaires sent out by the Ottawa ofice. Tht is the only way that the valuable information can be compiled, he reminded them.

Mr. Marshall was introduced by Arthur Pitchford, program director, and thanked by Frank Raper, membership director. President J. Leonard Ireland was chairman.

STANLEY E. RICHARDSON

S. E. Richardson Dies In Lakefield

LAKEFIELD (ENS)— Stanley Earl Richardson, a highly respected citizen of Lakefield village, died at his home on Prospect St. on Tuesday after a lengthy illness. Born in Lakefield he was the son of the late Fred Richardson and Mary Andrews. He was 47 years old.

Mr. Richardson was for 13 years chief patrolman for the department of highways on the Lakefield to Apsley to Nogie's Creek sections. Five years ago he resigned to devote his entire time to his own trucking business. In recent years he has also been contractor for the village street maintenance. Mr. Richardson served for four years on the public school board and was also a member of the board of stewards of the United Church. Every fall he hunted with [illegible] Trout Lake Hunt club of which he was a member.

Mr. Richardson is survived by his wife, the former Edna Frankish, two daughters Anne and Margaret and a nephew, Fred Boulton of Toronto. His only sister, Margaret, Mrs. Foster Boulton, predeceased him.

The body is resting at the Anderson funeral home until noon on Friday when it will be taken to the Lakefield United church for the funeral service at two o'clock. The Rev. H. C. Wolfraim will officiate at the service and burial will be in Lakefield cemetery.

Members of Clementi lodge A.F. & A.M. No. 313 of which Mr. Richardson was a member, will parade in a body to the church.

Say Red Agents Obtain "Ash"

TOKYO (Reuters) — Foreign Minister Katsuo Okazaki announced today that police are investigating a report that Communist agents have obtained some of the "death ash" from the United States hydrogen bomb test March 1.

He told the Diet's foreign affairs committee he had been informed that "unidentified persons" offered to buy clothing worn by some of the 23 crew members of a Japanese fishing boat who were injured by a rain of radioactive ash on the day of the Bikini blast.

Police now are followig up the report that the mystery men were agents from Communist countries. The foreign minister gave no other details.

Photographs By Panter Shown Camera Club

A portfolio of high key photographic prints by R. A. Panter ARPS of Toronto was on display at the Peterborough Camera Club meeting Tuesday evening in the Public Library.

It has been prepared by Mr. Panter at the request of the Photographic Society of America for a tour of Canada which is to begin April 1. The narrative and explanatory comment which accompanies the portfolio was read on this occasion by his sister, Miss Ruth Panter of Peterborough.

High key is a field of photography in which few amateurs are successful. It was reported that in an exhibition now open in Toronto there are 160 prints and only five are high key, three of these being by Mr. Panter.

His travelling portfolio is to consist of 20 prints, a still life, several shots of a live model, a series of story-telling photographs and nudes. He tells the set up of his studio in the basement of his home, the lighting he uses and procedures in developing in the narrative.

Thirty members of the club enjoyed this special evening.

Mrs. Harold Cranley

Funeral service for Mrs. Harold Cranley, 57, RR 1, Douro, who died Monday in hospital, was held today from the home of her son, John Cranley, 152 Dufferin St., to St. Joseph's church, Douro.

The Rev. J. J. McCarthy celebrated requiem mass. The Rev. Joseph O'Sullivan was in the sanctuary. Burial took place in St. Joseph's cemetery with Father McCarthy saying the graveside prayers. The funeral was largely attended.

Pallbearers were Thomas Heffernan, Frank Heffernan and Ray, Alphonse, Louis and Jim Fitzgerald, all first cousins of Mrs. Cranley.

Elusive Herring

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The winter herring fishery in the Bay of Islands has been described as a failure, and herring ships shifted to Port au Port bay farther up the west coast. Cold weather was blamed for the poor catches.

Sugar Growers Defeat Motion Non-Confidence

CHATHAM (CP) — The annual meeting of the Ontario Sugar Beet Growers' Association Tuesday defeated a want-of-confidence motion in the directorate of the board proposed by Walter Craig of Dresden.

In proposing his motion, Mr. Craig spoke of a "growing and serious lack of confidence" in the board. The participating contract between company and grower needs improvement, he said, so that the grower is guaranteed at least the cost of raising his crop. Furthermore, the cost of the crop should be paid on delivery of the beets to the factory.

Rumors were rife, Mr. Craig said, that directors of the board, even those who negotiated with the company, were shareholders in the company; it should, he stated, be made a condition of accepting a directorship not to hold shares in the Canada and Dominion Sugar Co.

BLAME 1953 CONTRACT

The 1953 contract was the centre of dissatisfaction of those who supported the lack of confidence motion. Negotiations for this contract reached an impasse, and the Chatham Board of Trade offered to arbitrate. At the final meeting April 10, 1953, no agreement was reached, since the growers made a final offer which the company negotiators were not empowered to accept.

As a last measure, W. J. Reid of the Board of Trade got in touch with the president of Canada and Dominion Sugar Company, who was vacationing in the United States, and got from him a direct acceptance of the growers offer. As a result, the agreement was

Jail Lord Montagu For One Year

WINCHESTER, England (AP)—Lord Montagu of Beaulieu was sentenced today to one year's imprisonment on charges of sexual offences with males.

A 12-man jury found him guilty of two charges of gross indecency with a young airman, John Reynolds, and of one charge of counselling Peter Wildeblood, 30-year-old London journalist, to commit an unnatural act with Edward McNally, a second airman.

Montagu's cousin, wealthy 37-year-old Michael Pitt-Rivers, was found guilty on similar charges.

All three accused had pleaded not guilty. The jury took 4½ hours to reach its verdict.

28 Jets Take Off For European Bases

MONTREAL (CP) — Twenty-eight Sabre jet aircraft took off from here today en route to RCAF bases in England, France and Germany.

The planes whooshed away in seven flights, the first leaving at 11 a.m. EST and the last getting airborne at 12:10 p.m. They will replace older-model jets which now will be turned over to other NATO countries.

This movement, known as Operation Random, follows the initial flight of 14 Orenda-powered Sabres early this year.

Pilots of the leading flight included K. Cheeseman, Fort William.

12 Members Of Love Cult Describe Life

DEGGENDORF, Germany (Reuters)—Twelve members of a little-known Bavarian "free love" cult unfolded a story of community marital relations in a courtroom here Tuesday.

They face charges of procuring and immorality — adultery is against the law in Germany.

A woman member of the cult, Therese Hackl, said she regularly had sexual relations with other men while her husband was having relations with their wives.

The leader of the cult, Franz Angerea, said he had had two children by the daughter of a cult member and also had been intimate with the girl's mother.

Angerea, a 57-year-old stonemason, and "bishop" Josef Kochl, 52, are the two main accused.

The sect, "Die Wahrheit" (truth) had its followers only in a few villages in this backward region of Bavaria, not far from the Czech border.

RELIGIOUS ORIGINS

Angerea was alleged to have told his followers that, in obedience to a "revelation from the Lord," they should disregard marital bonds and establish sexual relations freely.

Angerea founded the sect in 1927. It was forbidden by the Nazis but he revived it after 1945.

Angerea said he based his free love teachings on Jesus' injunction to his disciples to love each other.

Here And There In Sports

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

JUMPS TO WIFU

WASHINGTON (AP)—Eddie Lebaron, Washington Redskins' No. 1 quarterback, has scrapped his contract with the Redskins to jump to Canada.

George Preston Marshall, owner of the Redskins, said Tuesday Lebaron told him by telephone from his Lodi, Calif., home that he planned to play for Calgary Stampeders.

Lebaron, a five-foot-nine ball-handling expert, said, however, that there will be no definite announcement about the Calgary situation for a week or two.

There was no confirmation of persistent reports that the chief factor in Lebaron's decision was his unwillingness to play in the National Football League under Curly Lambeau, the Redskins' coach. The feud between Lebaron and Lambeau has long been generally known.

Marshall said that he will take no action against Lebaron even though the California signal caller is tied to the Redskins under an option in his 1953 contract.

"I'm sorry to see him go," Marshall said, "but I won't stand in his way."

At Calgary, Lebaron would play under coach Larry Siemering, who was backfield coach of the Redskins last season and head coach at the College of Pacific, where Lebaron was three times named to little all-America teams.

LANDY STAYS AT HOME

SYDNEY (AP) — Australian miler John Landy apparently will not accept the numerous invitations to race in other countries this year.

The secretary of the Australian Amateur Athletic Union, A. Hodson said Tuesday night Landy has re-

States, Finland, Sweden, France and Britain.

Neither he (Landy) nor the Victorian Athletic Association has seen fit to notify the Australian AAU whether he is going to accept the offers," Hodson said.

"Within the next few days I will write all overseas organizations which invited him, telling them that in view of Landy's silence, it can be taken that he does not intend to visit their countries and the invitations are declined."

Landy has been flirting with the four-minute mile for the last two years and did 4:02 in December.

EAST YORKS ARRIVE HOME

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto East Yorks arrived home Tuesday from the world hockey championships and received a rousing welcome from 1,000 fans. The team, which lost to Russia in the final, was mobbed by relatives and friends they haven't seen in two months.

"We played our best for Canada" said manager Don Preston. "We lost the big game. But if we had it to do all over again, we'd all go back—and this time we'd beat Russia."

TEST ENDS IN DRAW

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (Reuters)—The fourth game in the best-of-five test cricket series between England and the West Indies ended in a draw Tuesday.

England was still batting as time ran out. The team was then 258 runs behind with seven wickets standing.

At the end of play last night, the scoreboard read: West Indies 681 for eight declared and 212 for four declared. England 537 and 98 for three.

England needs to win the final test in Jamaica to tie the series. The West Indies won two of the three previous matches and England one.

U.K. Boxing Board Won't Recognize Fight

SAINT JOHN, N. B. (CP)—George K. Garnett, president of the Canadian Boxing and Wrestling Federation, said Tuesday night the would probably not recognize a British [illegible] championship fight between Don Cockell the present titleholder, and Earl Walls, Canadian champion.

Referring to a suggestion by Frank Tunney, Toronto promoter, that such a fight be held at Toronto, Mr. Garnett said that since Walls has been put on the unavailable list by both the CBWF and the National Boxing Association, it is "ridiculous" to imagine the British body recognizing the Canadian fighter.

Metro Chairman Gets A New Cadillac

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto's metropolitan executive approved the purchase of a new Cadillac for metro chairman Fred Gardiner but the best that could be recommended for commissioners were bicycles.

Reeve C. O. Bick of Forest Hill recommended bicycles for the metropolitan roads and housing and welfare commissioners.

Last Steam-Powered Train Makes Trip

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—The last steam-powered passenger train chugged into Central terminal Tuesday, the New York Central Railroad announced.

Train 372 of the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway arrived from Hamilton shortly before noon. Four hours later, the next train was diesel powered.

It was the final transition from steam to diesel operations for the NYC in Buffalo. The T. H. and B. is a subsidiary of New York Central and the Canadian Pacific Railway.

New York Central passenger and freight operations here had already been switched to diesel.

Most of the steam locomotives retired in recent years have been scrapped, but a few still are idle in the yards.

New Industries Indication Of Faith In Canada's Future

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

Industrialists do not share the views of the "prophets of doom," says Industrial Canada, published by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, in its March issue.

The comment is made in connection with a nine-page listing of expansion of plants and establishment of new plants in Canada in 1953, and in the first two months of 1954.

In all in 1953, the magazine's records show 363 plant expansions and 106 new industries; second only to [illegible] pansions and 98 new industries.

Industries using natural resources and primary products lead the way, with pulp and paper, smelting and refining, gasoline and oil, hydro-electric power and wheat in the forefront.

Greenshields and Company, Montreal investment house, also takes an optimistic view in its current letter. It says, in part:

"Some months ago, when most economic indicators were advancing, stock averages dipped to the year's low, an indication that the market was anticipating some readjustment in business conditions.

IMPROVEMENT SUGGESTED

"Present firmness, undoubtedly, is traceable to current easier money conditions, but it could also very well be a sign that the market is again guessing correctly, and an improvement in business conditions is in the offing.

"Apart from the market's action, there are considerations which pre-[illegible] view of the present economic situation.

"For instance, it should be remembered that current figures are being compared with the all-time-high levels of 1953 and that by any other standard, most of the figures are satisfactory.

"There is no indication of any significant decline in consumer spending, and government expenditures will remain at about last year's level."

Guard Orders Review Of Cohn Record

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — The New York National Guard has ordered "a complete investigation and review" of the reserve service record of Roy Cohn, chief counsel to the McCarthy Senate investigations sub-committee, a guard spokesman said Tuesday.

Maj. John E. Kenny, public information officer of the state division of military and naval affairs, said a national guard inspector-general this week began a "routine" examination of Cohn's service as a result of inquiries.

Kenny said some questions had been raised, mostly by the press, about Cohn, centre of the controversy between Senator Joseph McCarthy and Army Secretary Robert Stevens.

Kenny would not say what questions had been raised or who ordered the inquiry.

Mrs. Wesley Pacey

ROSENEATH (ENS)—Roseneath United church was filled Tuesday afternoon for the funeral of the late Mrs. Wesley Pacey, conducted by her pastor, the Rev. J. R. Wheeler, with Mrs. Edgar Carew at the organ.

Relatives and friends were present from New Liskeard, London, Toronto, Peterborough, Port Hope, Oshawa, Campbellford, Cobourg, Hastings, Warkworth, Coldsprings, Gores Landing, Bewdley and the surrounding communities.

Floral tributes were carried by friends and relatives. Pallbearers were relatives, Charlton Grigg, Earl Braithwaiter, William Halstead, Bernard McCracken, Edgar Braithwaite and James Timlin.

Burial was in the family plot in Centenary cemetery, west of Roseneath.

Mrs. Pacey's death occurred in Cobourg General hospital on Saturday following a lengthy illness.

Her husband predeceased her four years ago. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Earl Thackeray (Inez) Roseneath, and Mrs. Marcus Radley (Olive) Campbellford; four sons, Clarke of New Liskeard, Allan and Gordon of Toronto, and John of Cobourg; a sister, Mrs. J. A. Dorian, Toronto; 16 grandchildren and one great grandchild.

James W. Ketchen

HAVELOCK (ENS). — The largely attended funeral of James W. Ketchen took place Monday afternoon from the Curtis funeral parlors to Knox Presbyterian church, where the service was conducted by the minister, the Rev. R. D. Duncanson, assisted by the Rev. L. V. Bigelow of Fellowship Baptist Church.

Mr. Bigelow gave the scripture reading and the message.

Pallbearers were E. W. Seeney, R. Sanderson, George Hubble, Fred McKenzie, W Hitchins and E. J. Leeson. Burial was in Maple Grove cemetery.

Among those from a distance who attended the funeral were Mrs. Edith Johnson of Brighton, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Butters of Toronto, Wallie Reynolds of Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dance of Colborne, Mrs. John Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Reynolds and Mr. and Mrs. R. Woodbeck of Lasswade, Frank and Clinton Ketchen of South Bend, Ind., and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Little of Campbellford.

FLORENCE, S.C. (AP) — Escaped convict Raymond Carney, 38, was convicted Tuesday night of murdering a young farmer whose 'teen-age girl friend was beheaded the same night. He had confessed both killings. Judge Steve C. Griffith sentenced Carney to electrocution at the state penitentiary May 7. There apparently will be no appeal.

Intact Buffalo Line Goes To Canadiens

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens said Tuesday that an intact line now with Buffalo will have a chance to start with the National Hockey League club next season.

A statement said that "the work of Gaye Stewart, Eddie Slowinski and Don Marshall has definitely earned this line the right to start with Canadiens next season, always assuming that the players escape injury and report at training camp in good physical condition."

The three have proved a high-scoring line for Buffalo's American Hockey League entry this season.

They were placed on Montreal's eligibility list for Stanley Cup play.

Curtailing Of Queen's Tour Causes Uproar

PERTH, Australia (Reuters) — A political controversy warmed up today over a federal government decision to curtail Queen Elizabeth's tour of Western Australia because of a poliomyelitis epidemic raging in this state.

A new protest was raised by F. E. Chamberlain, secretary of the Western Australian Labor party, who said the safety precautions announced Monday by Federal Premier Robert G. Menzies to protect the Queen when she comes here Friday are an insult to the state.

State Premier Albert Hawke said Tuesday Menzies' plans amount to "unnecessary and high-handed interference."

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh will live aboard the royal liner Gothic during their stay and will eat only food prepared aboard ship. Hand-shaking will be barred and at least five functions have been cancelled.

Chamberlain said these measures wrongly imply that Western Australia is a disease-riden state.

He said the royal party has already visited some countries where epidemics of tropical disease are frequent.

Chamberlain added that during the war the royal family shared risks with the common people. He was convinced that the Queen and the duke would prefer to carry out the originally scheduled tour despite the negligible risk of polio.

The Melboune Argus Tuesday quoted a source close to the Queen as saying she does oppose cancellation of certain phases of her visit, and is not worried about her own health. She has had two injections of anti-polio serum.

Today in Adelaide, two little sisters—Anne Schwartz, 6, and Lorraine, 5—evaded the Queen's bodyguard and handed her two small coins. The youngsters said the money was for Prince Charles and Princess Ane.

Their mother, Mrs. Lorna Schwartz, said that when she and her sister were the same ages as Anne and Lorraine they made a similar presentation to Queen Elizabeth's mother in Adelaide in 1927.

Fourth Liners Need One More To Clinch Title

MILLBROOK—Fourth Liners have moved into a two-one lead in games in their final series with Mt. Pleasant by taking an overtime 5-4 verdict from the Mountaineers. The win puts the Liners within one game of the championship.

Mild weather, the spring bugaboo of natural ice arenas, combined with seventy minutes of scorching hockey put the finishing touches on the ice surface and future games will probably have to be played in Peterborough's Civic Arena. Dates will depend on Senior "B" playdown schedule.

The game started out at a merry clip and Bob Walling and Allan Hutchison had their team out in front before the minute hand had completed its first trip around the dial. At the five minute mark Gary Carr picked up Ken Bryans pass and sifted through the defence to tie the count.

In another raid by the same pair, a minute later, Agnew took Carr out with considerable gusto but the trailing Bryan gathered in the loose puck and parked it in Hubbeards cupboard. Walling went to the dressing room for repairs but returned after a stitching job above the eye. Fourth Line, with a cut down player roster, is forced to keep the casualties on the firing line.

The margin remained unchanged, until Ted McDowell, who thrives on pressure, bagged a brace with help from the Hutchison brothers on the first and Agnew on the second. For the Mountaineers Parker picked up [illegible] and the [illegible] smooth passing Armstrong stanched Alex Ruth away on a 'runaway locomotive' trip down the right boards for the second and lead protecting goal.

The lead evaporated in the thir dwhen Wally Agnew converted Allan Hutchison's pass into the equalizer. But the credit for putting the game into overtime must go to Hubbeard who handled Gary Carr's close in shot in the last few seconds of regulaion time in fine style.

Early in the overtime period Allan Hutchison, who had played the secondary assisting role in three previous goals, drove in the payoff counter with McDowell picking up the assist. Only eight minor penalties were handed out by referees McIntosh and Wakelin, with four going to each team.

Fourth Line: Hubbeard, Fallis; Thompson, Agnew, E. Hutchison, A. Hutchison, Walling, Friar, Olan, McDowell.

Mt. Pleasant: B. Evans, J. Evans, Fisher, Armstrong, Carr, A. Ruth, B. Ruth, Fox, Parker, Jamieson J. Bryan, K. Bryan, Crawford.

Charge Reds Trying Sow Seaway Disorder

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia was accused today by Representative Frances P. Bolton (Rep. Ohio) of attempting to "sow distrust" between the United States and Canada over the St. Lawrence seaway.

The Reds are doing this, she said, by trying to make the project appear as "part of an over-all plot by Wall street to control the Canadian economy."

In a statement for the congressional record, Mrs. Bolton quoted from an article on the seaway in Izvestia, official Communist organ in Moscow.

Couple Honored On 25th Anniversary

FENELLA (ENS) — Approximately 100 relatives and friends gathered at the Newtonville Hall, Saturday evening, March 20, to honor the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin R. Jones, Port Hope.

Mrs. Jones, was formerly Olive Stapleton, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Stapleton, Newtonville and Mr. Jones the second son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jones, Bethesda South, Hamilton township.

A program with Mr. Gordon Martin, chairman introduced the following numbers — Accordion solos by Miss Doris Martin; piano solos by Miss Joyce Martin and Miss Margaret Jones; vocal solo by Peter Henderson, of Toronto accompanied by Miss Martin.

Miss Genevieve Stapleton read an address and presentations of a mirror and a hostess chair were made by Cecil Stapleton and Hector Jones. Both bride and groom suitably replied.

Lunch was served. Mrs. Percy Macklin, Fenella, is a sister of the groom.

LONDON SUBWAY—London's "tube," the 91-year-old grand-daddy of the world's subway systems, still is growing. Since the Second World War, 35 miles have been added to the world's largest subway system and plans call for adding another 60 miles. Shown here is the brightly-lighted lower concourse at Gants Hill station which leads to train platforms from escalators capable of handling up to 10,000 persons an hour. —(CP Photo).

Anxious To Improve Not Extend Subway Service

By RON EVANS

LONDON (CP) — London's "tube," the 91-year-old "granddaddy" of the world's subway systems, is still growing.

The bright red trains now roar along 286 miles of track, largely underground, to service a city and suburban area of 2,000 square miles—only a little smaller than Prince Edward Island.

Since the Second World War, 35 miles have been added to the world's largest subway system and plans call for another 60 miles at an estimated cost of £114,000,000.

IMPROVEMENT SLOGAN

But directors of the government-owned London Transport executive are more concerned with improving rather than extending a service used by almost 600,000,000 passengers annually. Canadian visitors wonder how it can be done when the present system, which served as a model for those in Glasgow, Moscow, Stockholm, Copenhagen and Istanbul, whisks them to any part of the city in a matter of minutes—and in comfort too.

Here's how it works:

The tube traveller enters one of 277 stations scattered throughout the metropolitan area and purchases his ticket from a vending machine, which automatically provides change, or from one of several wickets. Line-ups at the ticket windows rarely run to more than four or five persons except at teeming centres such as Piccadilly.

High-speed escalators and elevators take passengers to platforms at many stations. The escalators run at about 150 feet a minute and can handle 10,000 persons an hour. The longest escalator, at Leicester square, drops 80 feet while the Hampstead station elevator falls 192 feet below street level.

On the platform, the passenger probably waits three or four minutes. If he's travelling at a busy hour and from a main down-town station, the chances are he'll catch a train in less than 90 seconds.

SIX-COACH TRAINS

Most trains comprise six coaches, each seating 40 to 48 passengers. The latest have fluorescent lighting, wide windows and scarlet upholstery, patterned with the familiar LT bar-and-circle symbol. Smoking is permitted in some coaches.

All doors are air-operated and automatic. In wet weather they can be switched over to manual, push-button control so that only a few need be opened at suburban surface stations.

Trains on all six main lines and the numerous branches run at an average speed of 20 miles an hour and reach that rate in 17 seconds from a standing start.

Most passengers make one or more changes during a single trip—statistics show the average journey is 5¾ miles long and takes 16 minutes—but the single ticket takes them all the way and is not surrendered until the last station. Switches from one line to another can be made at 18 interchange stations in central London.

Part of the continuing improvement program is taken up with repairing and renovating old stations. Some opened in 1863, when the world's first subway was burrowed four miles from Paddington to Farringdon street, are still in use.

All stations are of the same functional design, although no two are exactly alike. In outer London they are either of multi-colored or tan brick and within the central area the walls are of polished granite to shoulder height and portland stone above.

Temperatures are kept at an average of 73 degrees year round and the air is changed every 15 minutes. Some 2,600,000 gallons of water are pumped out daily.

Transport officials say they are unable to supply separate figures on [illegible] of the underground. The entire transport system, including buses and trolley-coaches, costs £60,000,000 a year.

The biggest chunk, about 55 per cent, is spent on staff which totals 98,474, including 10,590 women. About one-quarter are employed on the underground.

Revenue figures also are unavailable but it is known that some 40 tons of coins are collected each day.

London Transport's proudest claim is its underground safety record. Only one in every 240,000 passengers ever suffers injury, although the system runs up an annual mileage of 215,000,000.

Ship Without Crew Docks In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — A ship without a crew, the Dutch freighter Amstelstad docked here Tuesday from Japan after 10 officers and six stewards turned sailors to make the voyage.

Capt. A. van Knapen said the 19 crew members deserted in Japan in a protest against a hard-driving chief mate and what they called bad food, unclean bedding and too much work. They were flown to Holland from Japan by the owners, the Steamship Co., of Amsterdam.

With no time to sign a new crew, the ship sailed on the 19-day voyage. A new crew has been flown here from Holland. The ship returns to Japan this week with a grain cargo.

Culture Delegates Shown Interesting Soviet Things

By BILL BOSS

MOSCOW (CP)—If you want to visit the Soviet Union, and to see whatever the Russians are prepared to show you, make sure you come as a "cultural delegate."

That's what Professor A. I. Denisov, president of the Soviet Society for Cultural Relations Abroad said in an interview with The Canadian Press.

He also said "delegations" sponsored by the Canada-Soviet Friendship Society would get fast visas and other arrangements.

ACTIVE GUESTS

Denisov wrote in Soviet Culture earlier this year a report on 1953 activities:

"Foreign guests freely mixed with all the Soviet people they wanted to, wrote articles for Soviet newspapers, spoke over the radio, took part in discussions. . . The aim is to reject the idea of an Iron Curtain."

Denison's statement was not an accurate description of conditions I have encountered in four months here.

Asked to amplify it, he said:

"There is a difference, of course, between foreign guests and foreigners. The first are guests, and we regard ourselves as their hosts.

"It is quite another thing for members of the diplomatic corps (and reporters are so regarded here). For them there are regulations which are quite well known."

RESTRICTIONS EASED

He said relaxations have made the work of diplomats easier.

(Some restrictions on travel have been eased, a sprinkling of visas has been issued to foreign reporters, and Russians now may marry foreigners.)

"As the Soviet Union is a state and not a tourist camp we have certain limitations, as there are in other countries," Denisov said. "Some have more, some have less. Here the state is still the state, with its regulations and its laws."

He contended that the U.S.S.R issues visas to "delegations" within 48 hours of the receipt of applications in Moscow.

STATE SECRETS

"Of course, here as in Canada there are technical items, such as state secrets, but no guest has asked to break through them, to see research connected with atomic energy or the hydrogen bomb," he added. "Times are such that these things must still remain state secrets. All states have them.

"Now, if cultural delegations were to come from Canada we would be happy to make you a member too, and you could go along with them, see what they see, meet the people they meet and be our guest.

"But as long as you have only the status of reporter we would not like to invade the functions of the press department of the ministry of foreign affairs (with which this reporter lodged his requests on his second day in Moscow). They have people who do this.

"We do not regard cultural relations as all-embracing."

Denisov would not accept that [illegible] should be informed through the press, or that an informed people themselves might generate the interest which would lead to cultural exchanges.

The idea that a Canadian reporter, for Denisov's purposes, might be considered as a "resident, all-time cultural delegate" and helped to see the U.S.S.R. was smiled away. That was somebody else's job.

I WANT 2,000 PEOPLE TO TRY SYNTONA FOR ONLY 25 CENTS

SUFFERERS FROM STOMACH TROUBLE, WEAK KIDNEYS, LAZY LIVER, NERVOUSNESS AND GENERAL RUNDOWN CONDITION

WHAT IT IS !

SYNTONA is an advanced medical compound of 12 of the finest medicinal herbs, and not one a habit-forming drug. It is taken before meals and mixed with the food in one's stomach, thus throwing off the poisons that foster stomach troubles. It acts within ten minutes to stop gas and pains, sourness, bloating and belching. At the same time SYNTONA drives the poisons from the kidneys and relieves backaches, bladder irritation and weakness.

WHAT IT DOES !

It acts on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It DRIVES OUT rheumatic and neuritic pains, puts a stop to boils, pimples, and other common blood disorders by ELIMINATING THE CAUSE! It builds strong, healthy nerves. It will free your system of its over-supply of acidity. Those ravaging acids that accumulate and irritate your stomach — fill you with gas — sour your food and cause constipation.

Now, whether SYNTONA will help you as it has thousands of others—whether it will end your sufferings in a day or week—remains to be seen, but in the light of what it has done for others, it is surely a mistake not to try it for 25c, only a fraction of its worth. This introductory offer is good this week ONLY. Act at once. Do this in fairness to yourself and your family.

London Papers Demand U.S. Stop H-Bomb Tests

TRADITIONAL SOD-TURNING CEREMONY was waved aside this wet morning as a power shovel started digging the first basement on the 98-lot Hatton property development. Taking shelter from the rain in the operator's cab is (left to right) Mayor Norman Graham, district manager John Wocker of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, developers of the housing project, and Paul Seifried, contractor. To date 53 lots have been sold, 40 of them going in the first two hours of offering on March 1. Homes and lots in this development when complete with landscaping will cost in the $15,000 bracket, up. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Will Replace Junta In Egypt

Naguib Pledge Brings New Party Split; To Elect President

CAIRO —(Reuters)— President Mohammed Naguib today announced that the military movement which carried him to power in 1952 and swept Farouk off the throne will be withdrawn shortly from Egyptian [illegible] the announcement [illegible] two days of "crisis" cabinet meetings coming just one month after he was removed as president—only to return two days later.

Naguib announced that all political parties, now banned, will be restored and that the country will elect a new president through a constituent assembly due to meet constituent assembly due to meet

WILL REPLACE JUNTA

The constituent assembly, he said, will replace the 12-man military junta—the revolutionary council—which has ruled Egypt since Farouk's forced abdication July 26, 1952.

Naguib's announcement followed a fresh split between himself and his deputy, Lt.-Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser.

After Naguib returned to full power early this month, the junta agreed on the formation of a constituent assembly but was reluctant to remove itself as a political force.

RESULT OF PLEDGE

The latest clash resulted from Naguib's pledge last week to return the nation to full parliamentary life. Egypt has been under a state of emergency and martial law since the "black Saturday" riots in Cairo, Jan. 26, 1952.

Nasser and National Guidance Minister Maj. Salah Salem did not attend Wednesday night's emergency cabinet session. They appeared today, however, for the junta meeting.

Nasser, 36, handsome, six-foot "behind the scenes" power of Egyptian politics, and Salem played leading roles in deposing Naguib—for a brief period. Nasser boasted at the time: "We could have killed Naguib but we decided to let him live."

One newspaper today quoted Naguib as saying the two officers,

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (AP)) —The Atomic Energy Commission plans to step up U. S. production of hydrogen and other atomic weapons at the behest of the joint chiefs of staff.

This was disclosed today with publication of testimony given March 8 by the AEC chairman, Lewis L. Strauss, in telling a House of Representatives appropriations sub-committee why the agency wants $1,342,000,000 for the next fiscal year.

K. D. Nichols, general manager of AEC, also told the group there will be further weapons tests, in addition to the recent one in the Pacific.

Gunmen Aid Pen Escape, Three Captured

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP)—Two armed ex-convicts bluffed their way into Monroe county penitentiary early today, tied up two guards and swiftly engineered the escape of two prisoners. Several hours later police claimed the capture of both gunmen and one of the escaped prisoners.

The gunmen robbed one of the guards of his wallet and stole his car to make their getaway.

Police said James Compton, 30, of Duboise, Pa., one of the prisoners, and Paul R. Freeman, 24, of Rochester, accused of being one of the gunmen, were captured after officers surrounded a house in southwest Rochester.

An hour or two earlier, police had picked up George (The Duke) Bonner, 21, of Washington, Pa., in a hotel room, and accused him of being one of the gunmen.

Still at large was Anthony Mendolla, 45, who had been serving time on a theft charge.

WERE RECENT "GUESTS"

Freeman and Bonner recently were released from the penitentiary, Freeman after serving a term for non-support and Bonner after a term for passing a bad cheque.

Police quoted Compton as saying he and the other three had discussed an escape while they had been prisoners. But he said today's break was completely unplanned.

The hoodlums used a ruse to gain entrance to the penitentiary.

FACED REVOLVER

Clyde Jefferds, 63, chief night guard, said the men appeared at the gate after midnight, saying they had cigarettes and a newspaper for Compton. Jefferds said he admitted the men while he checked his ledger.

When he turned to face them, one had drawn a revolver.

Fear Pacific To Become Area Of Peril

Serious Consequences Of Further Blasts British Writers Warn

LONDON (AP)—Reports of the unexpected fury of the U.S. hydrogen bomb test explosion in the Pacific March 1 prompted fresh demands in Parliament and the press today for diplomatic efforts to banish [illegible] of atomic [illegible]

The London Daily Herald, Labor, in a rare front-page editorial, demands that the United States call off any more hydrogen bomb tests before it turns the Pacific into "a source of peril." It calls on the British government to take the initiative in seeking international consultation "on all the problems involved for mankind in possession of the bomb."

The influential Manchester Guardian, Liberal, also warns of the possible "most serious" consequences of further hydrogen bomb tests. Newspapers gave prominent coverage to President Eisenhower's press conference statement Wednesday that something must have happened at the March 1 explosion that surprised and astonished scientists.

ASK NEW APPROACH

In Parliament, Labor members renewed their demands for some sort of fresh approach to Russia. A few Conservatives also have asked questions along these lines.

In the House of Lords Wednesday Lord Henderson, Labor, proposed an "all-in" Europe security treaty which would recognize the continued existence of both the East's defence arrangements and the West's NATO alliance. Lord Salisbury, Britain's atomic chief, said the government would be ready to study the idea.

FEAR, DESPAIR DANGER

London's Liberal News Chronicle says editorially that fear and despair over the hydrogen bomb may develop into a helpless apathy which might make atomic warfare "not only possible but inevitable."

The Daily Herald quotes an unnamed British atom scientist as saying it is theoretically possible

Labor Federation Urges Building Of 50,000 Houses

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario Federation of Labor (AFL-TLC) today suggested that construction of 50,000 low-rental housing units within the next two years would do much to overcome unemployment and at the same time would provide needed housing.

A delegation from the federation, which claims to represent 200,000 Ontario workers, made the proposal in a brief it presented to Premier Frost and members of the cabinet as part of its annual submission to the government for legislative [illegible] president, headed the delegation. The brief called unemployment "the most serious problem in Canada today." It said nearly 500,000 are idle, about 100,000 more than at this time a year ago.

"In some parts of the country the unemployment total has reached 15 per cent of the labor force, which is well over the danger point."

The federation urged the provincial government to co-operate with federal and municipal governments to plan for a solution to the problem.

RAP LOAN COMPANIES

Another recommendation was that the province pass legislation to clamp down on loan companies' promotional techniques. The brief said some companies' "advertise and encourage the practice of consolidation of debts with vague promises of assistance, financial backing and friendly, helpful service."

Reading from the brief, Mr. MacArthur said the "only service afforded by such companies is that of agent without obligation or responsibility, and with service charges running up to 20 per cent."

The brief called for a speeding up of conciliation proceedings. It suggested a requirement that the

Bell Carried $10,600 Life Insurance

BELLEVILLE (CP) — Percy Bell, 52, in whose body medico-legal experts said they found strychnine, carried life insurance amounting to $10,600, witnesses said today at the preliminary hearing of Bell's 48-year-old wife on a charge of murder.

After the morning sitting, magistrate T. Y. Wills adjourned the hearing until Monday at 10 a. m.

Testimony was that, in addition to the insurance, there was a rebate of pension from Bell's employer of $1,000. In all cases, the beneficiary was Mrs. Bell.

Insurance agent Don Williams said Bell took out a $1,500 policy with Mutual Life Assurance Company to cover a debt owing a finance company. He said the company would not pay a claim on this policy if Bell committed suicide within two years after the policy was issued.

Inspector Frank Kelly of the provincial police said he received the attorney-general's department order Jan. 9 for the exhumation of the body of Bell, who died Jan. 2. He said he took it to Stuart Mowers, caretaker of Riverview Cemetery at Napanee.

Alex Hall of Oshawa, special crown prosecutor, said he put Inspector Kelly in the witness box to establish the validity of the exhumation order.

BELL GOOD-LIVING MAN

Thomas P. McWilliams, chief engineer of the Mead Johnson Company which employed Bell as a stationary engineer, described Bell as a good-living man, quiet and steady and a good worker.

"Bell never told off-color stories, but I have heard Mrs. Bell tell off-color stories."

Druggist Archie Boyd testified Wednesday that on Nov. 24 Mrs. Boyd bought 120 grains of strychnine—"enough to kill all the rats in Belleville."

Israel Asks UN Action On Bus Killings

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —Israel appealed today to the Western Big Three for immediate United Nations action on the Arab killing of 11 Israeli bus passengers in Negev desert last week, but diplomats here at the international headquarters anticipated that the Security Council would delay action.

The council was to meet today for debate on Israel's charges that Egypt is blockading cargoes destined for her via the Suez canal. UN sources believed the council would want to dispose of this matter before turning to the bus incident, for which Israel blames Jordan.

Jordan, which has denied responsibility for the ambush 12 miles from her border last week, informed Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold officially Wednesday that she would not meet with Israel to discuss their border troubles.

Invoking a clause of the Palestine armistice, Israel had demanded the meeting during Security Council discussion last November of the killing in October of some 53 Arabs in an Israeli raid on the Jordan village of Kibya.

Spearheading the drive for immediate council action on the new Israeli charge, the Jewish state's ambassador to the UN and the United States, Abba Eban, was to meet in Washington today with State Secretary Dulles.

Eban was expected to press the U.S. minister also for arms for Israel and a ban on such shipments to the Arab states. Israeli premier Moshe Sharett called for these Wednesday in a speech to Parliament in Jerusalem.

Sharett also instructed his ambassadors in London and Paris to press their case there.

4 Jr. Farmers Go To Britain

TORONTO (CP) — Four young Ontario farmers, members of the Junior Farmers Association, will sail from Canada May 18 for a tour of the farms of England and Scotland.

Selected from 29 nominees of counties and districts, they will make the trip under the auspices of the Ontario department of agriculture.

Making the trip are Miss Marie Ecker, Glanford Station, representing Wentworth county, Miss Barbara Jean Redner, Carrying Place, Prince Edward; Robert P. Allan, Brucefield, Huron; and Charles W. Corry, Atwood, Perth.

Dr. Norman H. High, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, will act as leader.

7 Tornadoes Sweep Texas To Arkansas

HONEY GROVE, Tex. (AP)—At least seven tornadoes Wednesday night and early today boiled from a line of thunderstorms extending across north Texas, Oklahoma and into Arkansas.

None was of major violence, but areas from 100 miles south of Abilene, Tex., to Fort Smith, Ark., were buffeted. At Tulsa, Okla., damage was estimated at $100,000.

No one was reported killed in the twisters, but George D. Franklin, a drive-in theatre owner, was crushed to death at Argyle, in North Texas, when a wall he was trying to brace toppled on him during a windstorm.

Five tornadoes were reported in Oklahoma. Three of them brought heavy damage to as many farm communities.

H-Bomb Blast Rivalled Sun Itself, Fisherman Says

NEW YORK (AP)—A Japanese fisherman—71 miles away from the March 1 hydrogen explosion—says the H-bomb rivalled the sun itself in brightness.

Life magazine's March 29 edition carries an interview by its Tokyo bureau chief, Dwight Martin, with the 23 fishermen burned by H-bomb ashes aboard the Daigo No. 5 Fukuryu.

The fishing ship, whose name means "lucky dragon," was 71 miles from the Bikini island blast at about 6:12 a.m. March 1.

"Then we saw flashes of fire as bright as the sun itself rise to the sky," Life quoted Sanjiro Masuda. "They rose about 10 degrees from the horizon and the sky around them glowed fiery red and yellow.

STRANGE SUNRISE

"Someone yelled to the men below, 'The sun is rising in a strange fashion. Hurry up and see it.' Then I realized that what we were watching could not be the sun, for the light was coming from the west. It was at this moment that I first felt fear and first thought of pikadon (atomic bomb)."

Masuda said the glow continued for several minutes, then faded away, leaving a dull red color like a piece of cooling iron.

He described a pyramid-shaped cloud of towering height that followed the explosion.

About two hours later, a fine white dust began to fall.

Policeman Shot At Cowboy Film

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—Gunfire crackled across a theatre screen Wednesday night during a cowboy movie—and provincial constable Cliff Foerter collapsed to the floor with a bullet wound in his stomach.

Constable Foerter and provincial constable Jack Allen, in uniform and wearing their service revolvers, had been standing at the rear of the theatre, watching the film.

Most persons in the theatre, unaware of the shooting, continued to watch the movie.

Hospital officials said today Constable Foerter is in serious condition.

One report is that Constable Foerter had drawn his revolver and that the weapon discharged as he twirled it on a finger.

Police said they did not know why Constable Foerter had drawn his gun, a .38 calibre revolver.

Need No Action On Jobless

WINNIPEG (CP) — Justice Minister Garson said Wednesday night Canadian unemployment figures are too small to justify "premature" federal action now.

Mr. Garson spoke in an address recorded at Ottawa and broadcast over radio station CKRC here.

While some trends in world trade raise difficult problems that bear on Canadian employment, the former Manitoba premier said, he does not accept the view of "some pessimists" that a recession or depression is inevitable.

There was "a very good chance that the world economy will improve and, indeed, move on to higher levels of prosperity than ever before."

"If it does not," Mr. Garson said, "then of course we must take appropriate action. But from the evidence that we have before us now, I submit that the figure of 20,000 above normal unemployment is too small to warrant premature action upon our part at the present time."

The government issued figures at Ottawa Wednesday showing 558,969 persons looking for work through National Employment Service at Feb. 18. This was about 157,000 up from a year earlier. In his broadcast recorded earlier, Mr. Garson used January figures, the latest then available.

Unload Secret Cargo Thought Bomber Parts

BREMERHAVEN, Germany (Reuters)—A "special" cargo was unloaded here today under conditions of great secrecy from the American ship Empire States Mariner.

It is believed to include parts for Martin B-61 Matadors—United States pilotless bombers for which the servicing squadron arrived last Saturday.

Workers said the carton consisted of huge crates, with rockets resembling the German wartime V-1 weapon and special vehicles which were apparently used as launching bases for the bombers.

Warns Canada's Exports To U.S. Must Be Greater

LONDON (CP)—The suggestion was made today that Canada's export rate to the United States "must gradually become even greater" because the U. S. is the only traditional Canadian market which is constantly increasing in wealth.

"There is seemingly no such rate of growth in the capacity of countries overseas to produce wealth or their capacity to purchase needed imports." President James B. Thom told the annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Great Britain.

"This is a situation which must necessarily affect the future pattern of Canada's export trade," he said at the 32nd annual meeting of the overseas group.

NOT MEETING PRICES

He also made these observations:

There have been "great changes" in Britain's economy due to increased freedom of trade, but Canadian exporters "did not reap the full benefits" arising from these steps because in many cases they could not meet competitive prices.

"There are definite indications that the rate of (Canadian) expansion, which has continued practically without interruption since 1946, may be somewhat less, and that there will be a levelling-off following the extremely rapid expansion of the post-war years."

Thom also suggested that Canada's position as the third biggest trader in the world is "being challenged through the revival of European industrial potential."

He also noted that Canada's total trade picture for 1953 showed a deficit of $214,000,000 compared with a surplus the previous year, that her 1953 Commonwealth trade surplus was down; and that she brought more in 1953 from Britain but sold less. Her deficit trading total with the U. S. was larger.

However, capital investment reached record proportions—$5,600,000,000—and Britain's contribution, while only $100,000,000, was a marked improvement.

Radio Active Ash Falls On Japan

TOKYO (Reuters)—A Japanese atom expert said today that whenever Russia explodes an atomic bomb in Siberia, radio-active ash falls on Japan three days later.

Shigeyoshi Matsumaye added that the ash then circles the world and there is a second fall on Japan a week later. Then the ash circles the globe a second time and there is a final fall on Japan of radio-active ash the following week, he said.

The expert said radio-active dust from Siberia has periodically fallen on Japan and has been used by American experts to prove the Russians had exploded atomic bombs.

An official at the scientific research institute here said the Russian dust was blown on the "jet stream" via Alaska and the Aleutians.

"Judging from the way the Americans knew of atomic explosions in the Soviet union before the official Soviet announcements it can be safely presumed they have been gathering atomic dust in Japan, Alaska and the Aleutians," he said.

Falls Out Of Car Driver Not Hurt

BROCKVILLE (CP)—Mrs. Greta Campbell, 38, of Cardinal, who fell out of a fast-moving car Wednesday and bounced and rolled 30 feet along Highway 2, walked out of hospital today none the worse for her experience.

Mrs. Campbell, whose home is in Cardinal, 24 miles east of here, was driving alone to Brockville when her door flew open as she came upon a curve six miles east of here. As she reached for the open door she lost her balance and fell out of the car. The driverless car continued along the highway 125 feet and smashed into a tree.

Kenora Whips Japan 11-2

TOKYO (CP)—Kenora Thistles tonight defeated a Japan all-star team 11-2 for the Canadians' third straight win of their Japanese tour.

The western Canada intermediate champions scored two goals in the first period, three in the second and six in the third.

Ray Westland and Sam Robertson each accounted for three of the Kenora goals while Murray Robertson scored two and Ken Robertson, Lorne Johnson and Phil Creed each scored one.

About 5,000 persons, including the Canadian ambassador to Japan, Robert Mayhew, saw the game, the third in the Canadians' 10-game tour.

The same two teams play again Wednesday night.

See Possibility Now Of Starving Cancer

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The possibility of starving out cancer through the combined attack of dietary control and chemicals harmful to the growth was reported today before the American Chemical Society.

The procedure was described as having a "promising possibility" by Dr. James B. Allison who said studies now under way at the Rutgers University bureau of biological research show that the life of a tumor-bearing animal may be prolonged through died control.

This, he said in a paper prepared for the biological chemistry division of the society's annual convention, may make it possible to use chemotherapeutic agents—chemicals such as the "triethylenimines"—that are detrimental to cancer, to slow up, stop or even cause regression of the cancer.

Child 2, Dies In Flames

GUYSBORO, N.S. (CP) — Two-year-old Joan Duggan died early today and her sister, Nancy, 1, is in hospital with burns after flames destroyed their two-storey house here.

Her mother, Mrs. William Duggan and three other sisters escaped without injury.

The fire was discovered by Victor Shea and Morris MacDonald of Gusboro, two power commission linesmen, who rescued Mrs. Duggan and her other four children from the house.

Mr. Duggan is in the navy and was on the destroyer Micmac in Halifax.

RCMP officers blamed an overheated stove pipe for the fire. An inquest will be held March 31.

4 Passengers Hurt In Street Car Crash

TORONTO (CP) — Four passengers were injured today when two street cars collided at Bay and Louisa streets in downtown Toronto at the height of the morning rush hour.

Taken to hospital were Antoinette Oliva, 19, Fred Smith, 45, Mrs. Mabel Ringland, 28 and Thelma Dunning, 18. Only Miss Oliva was detained at hospital and her condition is not believed serious.

The crash in a driving rain storm created a major traffic jam at the intersection.

One Car Of Freight Derailed Near Chatham

CHATHAM (CP) — A broken journal derailed one car of an eastbound Canadian Pacific freight train a mile east of Jeanett's Creek early today and caused disruption of schedules of other trains over the single track system of this division.

No one was injured and there was no damage.

The trouble was rectified and the line cleared for traffic to resume within a few hours.

Prince Charles Proclaimed World's Best Dressed Man

By ALVIN STEINKOPF

LONDON (AP)—Prince Charles was proclaimed today by Tailor and Cutter to be the world's best-dressed gentleman.

The five-year-old prince squeezed out his father, the Duke of Edinburgh, who is not placed among the 10 men named the best dressers. There is an impression in Saville row, where tailors dictate men's fashion, that Tailor and Cutter is provoked with the duke because he sometimes goes bare-headed.

Tailor and Cutter is the magazine which in Britain is a mighty and caustic authority on fashion. It has scolded presidents and prime ministers for slovenly dress, and has praised miners for the snappy cut of their overalls.

Once a year the magazine selects the 10 men it regards as leaders of male fashion, and this year Charles leads all the rest. Last year he was just in the list.

The prince was commended for his baby bow tie, the fawn stalker cap (a variation of the deer stalker) and his partiality to double-breasted top coats. He is praised for wearing an ordinary cloth cap with distinction.

"The cloth cap should always be moulded to a curved-peak effect," Tailor and Cutter said. "His velvet-colored top coat, too, follows a popular current trend."

After the prince the top-flight dressers, in order, are: Harold Macmillan, British health minister; Rene Massigli, French ambassador to London; Stewart Granger; Fred Astaire; Harry Hopkinson, British minister of state for colonies; Porfirio Rubirosa, Barbara Hutton's most recent husband; Captain Cecil Boyd-Rochfort, trainer of Queen Elizabeth's horses; Alan Wheatley, British television actor and Sir Hartley Shawcross, Socialist member of Parliament.

Such a distinguished team of dressers, the magazine believed, should have a substitute to step in, should one of the first 10 be caught some day with baggy knees. For this reserve spot Tailor and Cutter named heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano.

Rolls 2,600 Ft. Down Mountain

MONTREAL (CP)—James Rex, an employee of the Hudson's Bay Company, was reported in serious condition in hospital here today after being flown in from Pangnirtung, Baffin Island, following a 2,600-foot fall down the side of a mountain.

The man was brought out of the northerly outpost Tuesday by an RCAF rescue mission from Goose Bay, Labrador.

The rescue Dakota had made an earlier attempt Monday to land at the fiord in which Pangnirtung is centred but was prevented by a thick fog, an air force spokesman said today.

The spokesman said the man apparently stumbled off a cliff and fell 180 feet. He rolled the remainder of the distance down the 2,600-foot incline.

Sympathy Strike May Tie Up Coast

NEW YORK (AP)—Possibility of a sympathy waterfront tie-up along the United States Atlantic coast loomed today as leaders of the International Longshoremen's Association (Ind.) gave official sanction to a three-week-old outlaw strike in the port of New York.

Union endorsement of the walkout here did not bring an immediate shut-down in any harbor in the ILA district from Portland, Me., to Hampton Roads, Va.

"No sympathy strike" was the word from Baltimore, whose dockers have handled the bulk of the ships diverted from New York, but reaction in most other ports still was to be seen.

ILA president William V. Bradley said he had been told that his union's men in the other ports "want to go out." He added that "we'll have a job keeping the other ports working."

Smith Township Has Largest Share Of Taxes To Raise

Smith township must raise $50,524.30 or 17.2 per cent of the total tax bill for Peterborough county in 1954. Altogether county council are budgeting to collect $292,671.79 from the 12 townships and three villages.

They remain the biggest taxpaying municipality in the county but their bill is down from 1953. This is largely a reflection of the fact that because of a current surplus of $21,122 on 1953's operations the county is raising $17,870 less from the taxpayers in 1954.

In 1953 the county's total levy was $310,541.43 on an equalized assessment of $14,203,018. (The $435,120 loss in Smith through annexation of 1,200 acres is deducted.) The county rate as 18.914 mills.

Smith's share of the $310,541.43 total was $53,224.61.

In 1954 the county's total levy has been set at $292,671.79 on an equalized assessment of $14,722,270. The county rate has been reduced to 16.337 mills.

Smith's share of the $292,671 levy this year is $50,524.30, or $2,700 less than last year.

OTONABEE SECOND

Otonabee township pays the next biggest share, $45,471.43. They are considerably under their 1953 total of $49,532.22.

Following are the levies for the last two years (Hastings village and S.S. 9 of Percy township are assessed because they are in the Norwood High School Area, though they are not in Peterborough county):

Municipality	1953	1954
Asphodel	$ 29,247	$ 27,124
Bel-Methuen	18,918	19,042

Hastings	2,487	2,306
SS 9, Percy ...	960	943
Total	$310,541	$292,672

A breakdown shows that the county taxbill is as follows: current municipal purposes $71,376, county roads (the townships of Burleigh - Anstruther, Chandos, Galway-Cavendish and Harvey are not in the system) $97,057, county bridges $4,417, Civic Hospital debentures $10,052, Civic and St. Joseph's Hospitals' deficits $20,517, Chemong causeway $7,593, secondary school education accounts for Douro, Ennismore and Galway-Cavendish which were not in high school areas up until Jan. 1, 1953, $10,115, Norwood High School Area debentures $29,982, Lakefield High School Area debentures $25,369, and Gannon's Narrows causeway debentures $16,194.

Following is a list of taxes to be levied against the 15 municipalities in Peterborough county, plus the two joined for high school purposes:

Municipality	General	County Roads	Bridges	Hospital Debentures	Chemong Causeway	Education	Norwood D. High School	Lakefield D. High School	Hospital Deficits	Gannon's Narrow's C.	Total

Makes Deadline To See Queen

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP)—Rains, floods and bogs failed to stop the man with Australia's loneliest job from reaching here today to see the Queen.

He is L. G. Burton, whose job is to patrol a fence extending nearly 1,400 miles from the great Australian bight, in the south, along the western Australian border to prevent wild dogs getting through to south Australia. It keeps him in the "out back" for three months at a time.

He set out in his land rover (jeep) early in January, intending to complete a tour and get back to Adelaide for the royal visit.

But the rains came. They flooded roads, fields and creeks all along his route. When the land rover wasn't axle-deep in water it was axle-deep in boggy mud.

This didn't deter Burton. Day after day he drove, pushed and pulled his way through. Finally he drove his mud-spattered land rover into Adelaide at dawn today, in time to wave to the Queen as she drove from Government House to the airfield for a plane trip along the West coast.

Vatican sources said the Pope is now able to spend about two hours each morning and another two hours each afternoon in his study, working on church matters.

Say Tax Men Use GestapoMethods On Farmers

OTTAWA (CP)—Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary North) says income tax collectors are using Gestapo methods on small groups of farmers in Alberta, Manitoba and Ontario.

He said in the Commons Wednesday that about 500 farmers were singled out from among thousands in southern Alberta and put through an inquisition from which the tax collectors made an arbitrary assessment going back in some cases to 1946.

The government had told him that 500 farmers in the Calgary area were asked to reply to a series of questions. Similar steps were taken in the Edmonton area and in Manitoba and Ontario.

He suggested that Agriculture Minister Gardiner exerted enough influence to keep Saskatchewan farmers from undergoing similar treatment.

Revenue Minister McCann whose officers collect income taxes, interjected that this was "poppycock."

Mr. Harkness said the questions asked the farmers were such that 99 of 100 farmers would be unable to reply correctly. Others, such as how much liquor the farmer bought or what a veteran used his gratuity for, were none of the government's business.

He read a letter from W. H. Evans describing the questions asked farmers and the events at a subsequent meeting with tax officers.

The letter mentioned that other questions included what clothes the farmer had bought and what he paid during a year for his groceries.

Mr. Harkness said farmers object to a procedure designed to establish their net worth. This did [illegible] and said that when fire broke out in the mine, "several score" of the miners were buried and could not be pulled out in time to save them.

Dr. McCann said he will reply to Mr. Harkness during consideration of estimates for his department.

PAPERS EXCITED

Egyptian newspapers blazoned forth stories of the latest crisis in their biggest headlines. Al Akhbar said that all efforts to achieve unity in the government had failed "and those who have been acting as mediators feel that the situation is becoming more and more complicated."

Al Misri quoted Naguib as saying his only interest was national unity and "we must forget personalities."

The WAFD party, which when in office was responsible for abrogating the Anglo-Egyptian Suez treaty, announced its support of a republican regime, but called for immediate restoration of parliamentary life.

The outlawed Moslem Brotherhood issued a statement appealing that the ban against it be lifted.

Good Whaling Season

OSLO (RP)—Reports from the Antarctic show that Norway's nine whaling expeditions had produced 672,000 barrels of whale oil by the end of February. This compares with 608,000 barrels at the same time last year.

Sixth Sense Needed In Whale Hunt

VANCOUVER (CP) — Although good aim is essential, a "sixth sense" born of experience is what really counts in hunting whales, says Capt. Harry Sampson, expert whaling skipper.

His ship, the motor vessel Lavallee, a former mine sweeper and herring packer, is fitted up with banks of new whaling winches "king-size fishing reels."

"The whales the boys like best," he said, "are the blue whales, the big fellows of the family—so big that government regulations prohibit harpooning any shorter than 65 feet."

GO LONG WAY

The whalers sometimes go as far as 150 miles offshore in search of a catch. The skipper tries to get within 200 or 300 feet of the quarry before the harpoon is fired.

"Big as they are, sometimes there is only a couple of feet showing out of the water," Sampson said. "Rolling seas add to the complication of a pitching ship."

Once hit, the whale takes off like a Kamloops trout, but it now has 3,000 feet of wire rope attached to it. From there on the winch takes over and "plays the fish in."

Market Prices Lower In Dull Trading

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were lower in dull early afternoon stock market trading today.

Industrials and western oils led the lower trend as volume was the [illegible]. Mining issues were slightly lower.

Liquors and steels showed the only slightly slightly brighter spots in industrials trading as utilities, foods, refining oils, motors, textiles and financial institutions slipped.

Western oils were lower with losses outnumbering gains by a two-to-one margin.

Base metal seniors were slightly ahead in listless trading but juniors and Manitouwadge-area were down slightly and the group was lower in featureless trading.

Golds were weaker except for Inspiration, up 22 cents with a 30,000-share volume. Uraniums added fractions but attracted little interest and Bathurst-area base metals were still weak.

Arnold Edinborough Assistant Professor

KINGSTON (CP) — Appointment of Arnold Edinborough, assistant professor of English at Queen's University, as editor of the Kingston Whig-Standard effective July 1, was announced today by Arthur L. Davies, publisher.

Mr. Edinborough has been a member of the department of English at Queen's since 1947. After his graduation from Cambridge University he joined the British Army during the Second World War and did some army teaching before going to the University of Lausanne, Switzerland, where he was on the staff of the summer school in 1946. In 1952-53, he was a director of English at St. Catharines College, Cambridge, while on leave from Queen's.

Say Doucett Must Take Any Blame

Lack of Any Proper Engineering Work Charge Made by Wren

TORONTO (CP)— A member of the Ontario legislature says his "old friend George Doucett," the highways minister, should not be held responsible for any irregularities in the highways department.

J. S. Dempsey (PC—Renfrew South) said he thought the deputy minister, J. D. Millard, "should be held responsible, not George."

"When something crops up it's not the little man that causes it but the men who run things. . . And don't blame the contractors. Who wouldn't take all they can get?"

That statement was followed by a charge by Albert Wren (Lib.-Lab.—Kenora) that engineers and other staff members of the department were being "brainwashed" by the provincial auditor's department and the department of highways.

Mr. Wren said he would produce evidence of alleged irregularities before the select committee to be appointed to investigate the question.

Premier Frost has not named the members of the committee or said when they will meet.

MUST TAKE RESPONSIBILITY

Mr. Wren said he did not intend to condone or protect any person who may have committed an offence while in the employ of the department. They must accept full responsibility for failure to resign their posts if the policies which were followed were not agreeable to them.

"On the other hand, the government, and particularly the minister of highways must accept responsibility for policy which may have made any alleged irregularities possible, policy which developed a wide area in which irregularities could take place."

The opposition member said it was no secret that the aggregate total of tender bids accepted, subtracted from the aggregate total of final costs on contracts represents "a very impressive sum of money" and that the wide variations were not confined to a particular division.

"They may be a few thousand or many millions of dollars—we have not been told about that yet."

There is "the clear indication" that there has been in many instances a "very definite absence" of proper pre-engineering of jobs and that estimated quantities have borne "strange relation to actual quantities submited for payment."

"I submit. . . that the lowest bids accepted, in many cases, bore no relation to reality and that examination by any responsible professional engineer would have produced in many cases, and in many jobs, the immediate statement that a job could not be completed for the amount bid and evidence before the proposed select committee will show how true that statement is."

The division engineer and the field engineers do not award contracts. The award is the final responsibility of the minister "and before that responsibility is discharged, he should assure himself that the estimates of his own department are within reasonable engineering bounds."

STAFF TROUBLE?

"I submit. . . that the minister was either misinformed by his staff or without advice of competent staff proceeded with awards of contracts at impossible figures. It was there that the area was created to make possible certain improper practices. Contractors reached a point where their funds were exhausted and in order to complete the project had to seek adjustments to compensate them toward completion of the work. It was then that professional engineering staffs had to make adjustments or reclassify contracts as to quantities of one kind of material as against quantities of a higher priced material and we do not know whether these reclassifications were carried out under instructions of the minister of highways or his authorized representative, or were carried out by negotiation between engineers and the contractors affected.

"It does not seem possible that this activity could have taken place in so many contracts without the minister being aware that it was being done. . . ."

Mr. Wren proposed the formation of an Ontario highways commission, headed by a professional engineer of at least 20 years' good standing in his profession. The vice-chairman would be the minister of highways and the third member appointed from the opposition.

An advisory committee, composed of leaders in highway users, municipal groups, labor and industry, would be appointed to recommend, review and advise the commission, the cabinet and the legislature.

The gunman then tied him with a necktie, put adhesive tape over his mouth and took his wallet and keys. One of the men took the jail keys and opened a cell-block door. Inside was James Marshall, another guard.

"OK, I'll take over now," the gunman said.

He ordered Marshall to release Compton and Mendolla. Then the four returned to the turnkey's office, bound Marshall with his necktie and taped his mouth.

The four then left in Jefferd's auto.

FLASHED ALARM

The guards freed themselves in a few minutes and flashed the alarm.

Inspection of visitor's records showed that a Paul Brothers of Rochester had visited Compton Saturday. Detectives, sent to check on Brothers, found Jefferd's car outside his home. Brothers was gone.

Meanwhile, a cab company reported a driver had been called to the neighborhood of Brother's home about 2 a.m. The company told police nothing had been heard from the driver or the cab since then.

Two Millbrook Citizens Have Passed 90-Year Mark

MILLBROOK (ENS)—Two of Millbrook's citizens who have passed the 90-year mark, celebrated birthdays on Thursday. William Hilton is 93 and Robert Stone 92. Both were natives of England and both moved to Canada many years ago.

In 1870 as a boy of nine Mr. Hilton settled in Ontario with his family. When 21 he went to Saskatchewan where he farmed until 1908. On returning to Ontario he farmed in Cavan township until 1920 when he married Gertrude Saggers, also a native of Hertfordshire, England, whom he had known all his life. On their marriage they moved to Millbrook where they have lived ever since. Mr. Hilton has crossed the Atlantic 15 times. For a number of years he spent the winters in England returning to Canada in the spring.

For some time after moving to Millbrook Mr. Hilton was engaged in gardening but he has been retired now for a number of years. His health is fairly good. He enjoys listening to radio, and watching television when he has an opportunity, although he does not see well enough to read. He also enjoys visiting with friends.

SINGS IN CHOIR

Robert Stone, is in excellent health. He walks from the home of William McCamus on Tupper St., where he lives with Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Graham, to the main street every day the weather is fine. There he visits in stores and chats with friends. He sings regularly in the bass section of St. Thomas' Anglican church choir.

Mr. Stone is a widower. His daughter, grandson, a brother and two sisters still live in England. Mr. Stone was born in St. John's, Worcestshire, Eng. On coming to Canada he worked on farms on the Fallis line of Cavan township. Later he clerked first in Adam's grocery store, and later, until the business was sold, in S. E. Eakins' hardware store.

On Tuesday the two men celebrating ninety plus anniversaries had a get-together, when Mr. Stone visited at the home of Mr. Hilton.

Bell Carried

Another crown witness, Roscoe (Rusty) Jenners, a 42-year-old barber who boarded at the Bell home, was asked by special crown prosecutor Alex Hall if he had administered strychnine to Percy Bell, replied:

"No, I certainly did not."

"To your knowledge, did anyone else?" Mr. Hall asked.

"No."

ASKED PROTECTION

Jenners, who was in the house when Bell died, was one of seven witnesses called by the crown in the third day of the hearing. As soon as he went into the witness box, Jenners asked protection of the court under the Canada Evidence Act that nothing he said would be used against him later.

Mr. Hall said he would not give a blanket approval, that Jenners and his counsel, R. D. Arnott, would have to take exception to each specific question that Jenners "honestly believed" would tend to incriminate him.

Dr. Austin Walters said he examined Bell, whose body was exhumed on orders by the attorney-general's department a few days after he died, twice within a year for issuance of life insurance policies. One was an endowment policy; the other a shorter-term policy.

STAYED WITH VICTIM

Jenners told the court he was called about 2 a.m. on the night of Jan. 2 by Mrs. Bell who told him her husband was sick. He stayed with Bell while she went downstairs to telephone a doctor.

Jenners said Bell did not indicate what was wrong with him. Bell's arms were bent, there were scratches on his chest and he vomited violently.

Jenners said he had never known Bell to drink cocoa, a drink which a doctor previously suggested to the court would be an ideal drink in which to conceal strychnine because of its bitterness.

40-HOUR WEEK FOR ALL

The federation asked for a standard 40-hour week for all employees with time and a half for all work over 40 hours except in the case of firemen whose work week, it said, should be cut from the present 56 hours to 48.

It urged that payments under the Workmen's Compensation Act should be raised to 100 per cent of wages and that the five-day waiting period be eliminated.

It urged lifting of the ban on liquor advertising in Ontario to provide more work in the printing trades. It also suggested that for minor offences beverage room employees should be fined instead of hotel and bar licences being suspended.

May Resume Yacht Racing

COBOURG (ENS)—Yacht racing for many years absent from the local scene may be revived this summer. Pollution of the harbour is no longer present now that the sewage disposal plant is in operation and yacht club officials in Toronto are turning an eye towards Cobourg for the resumption of races here. A considerable number of years ago races under the L.Y.R.A. were held off Cobourg with the harbour as a home Berth. A National Yacht Club representative will be in Cobourg next week to discuss with the mayor and the chamber of commerce proposed races.

No Licence, Driver Under Age Charged

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — A charge of driving without a licence was laid Wednesday against 15-year-old John M. Thomson, RR 1, Havelock, as a result of an accident Sunday on the Cordova road.

OPP constable Archie Eady said the accident happened when two half ton trucks met on a sharp curve on a hill about six miles north of Havelock. At that point the road surface is only nine feet wide.

Driver of the other truck, Graham R. Rowat, 22, RR 1, Havelock, had pulled onto the shoulder of the road and Thomson tried to stop, but plowed into the side of the Rowat truck.

NAVIGABLE WATERS PROTECTION ACT
R.S.C. 1927, Chapter 140

The Department of Highways of Ontario hereby gives notice that it has under Section 7 of the said Act deposited with the Minister of Public Works, at Ottawa, and in the Office of the District Registrar of the Land Registry District of Peterborough at Peterborough, a description of the site and the plans of the Young's Point Bridge proposed to be built over the Otonabee River at Young's Point on the diversion of the King's Highway No. 28, between Lot 26, Concession IV, Township of Douro, and Lots 36 and 37, Concession XII, Township of Smith, in the County of Peterborough.

And Take Notice that after the expiration of one month from the date of the first publication of this Notice the Department of Highways will under Section 7 of the said Act apply to the Minister of Public Works at his Office in the City of Ottawa for approval of the said site and plans.

DATED this 19th Day of February, 1954.

JOHN D. MILLAR,
Deputy Minister of Highways.

Youth Admits Forging Cheque

A 17-year-old electrical apprentice, Douglas Tripp of 100 Kent St., admitted before Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, today to having forged a $10 baby bonus cheque.

Before entering a conviction, the magistrate asked Tripp what led him to break the law.

Tripp replied that he had lost a finger in an accident and had been laid off from the CGE without receiving any compensation. He was very short of money after six weeks without work.

Magistrate Philp: "What you say might be right, but do you think that because you're short of money that is any reason to commit forgery?"

Tripp: "No, sir."

Detective Doug Farthing, who investigated the case, testified that the baby bonus cheque arrived at 100 Kent St. during February for a Mrs. Veronica Leal, who had since moved to another address. On being questioned, Tripp had openly admitted taking the cheque and cashing it in a George St. coffee shop.

Acknowledging that forgery was a serious breach, Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw hoped that the magistrate might treat the case with leniency. He said Tripp appeared to be a good type of boy and was serving an apprenticeship at the CGE. He did not want the boy's job to be endangered.

Magistrate Philp remanded Tripp to appear for sentence on April 1.

Demand Investigation Into Squirrel Shooting

WATERLOO (CP) — The police commission has been asked for a report on an incident in which a Waterloo police constable is said to have shot squirrels in Waterloo Park.

Park superintendent William Brown said Wednesday night at a meeting of the park board that "a former associate of ours" asked the policeman to shoot the squirrels around his home in the park area. Mr. Brown said the policeman stood outside the park and fired with a .22-calibre rifle at squirrels in the park.

Board member Norman Parker said it is illegal to shoot squirrels except in season, two days in November.

Commission member Carl Hentschel said he would like a full investigation.

Plans Bearing Fruit For Uranium Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission says steps to increase and diversify the supply of raw materials for uranium, basic ingredient of the atomic bomb, "are now bearing fruit."

Lewis L. Strauss, AEC chairman, testified on atomic raw materials at a hearing before a House appropriations sub-committee. The testimony was published Wednesday.

Strauss said the most striking success had been in the United States, but that other uranium ore sources are developing, notably in Canada, South Africa and Australia.

He said domestic uranium sources are of special importance in an emergency, because shipping lanes might be cut.

Operation Improves Victim's Condition

TORONTO (CP)—Alex Pringle, 37, of Neustadt, seriously injured Tuesday in a two-car crash near Neustadt, was brought from Hanover hospital Wednesday to Sunnybrook hospital in Toronto.

He was operated on here and is reported to be in fair condition today. He is suffering from fractures to the right hip, left leg, breast bone and ribs, and concussion.

Pringle's wife Mrs. Margaret Pringle, 34, was killed in the accident and Mosslen Wilson of Mitchell, is in fair condition in Stratford General Hospital with undetermined injuries.

Neustadt is 37 miles south of Owen Sound.

Chicago Water Steal

Canada has properly sent Washington a diplomatic protest against Chicago's diverting more Lake Michigan water into its water system. The American Congress has before it now a bill authorizing (by American authority only) the city of Chicago to take more of the Lake water. Canada's Minister of External Affairs has objected to the legislation. So he should.

* * *

The "Chicago Water Steal" is notorious in Canadian-American relations and has been for two generations. What is it? Fast-growing Chicago needed more water for its sewage and potable water system. Chicago is by the side of Lake Michigan. No one can object to a city using the water on its borders. The real objection is this: Chicago is using Great Lakes water and diverting it into the Mississippi system, not returning Lake Michigan. That is the "steal"—taking from one waterway and giving it to another. For a city the size of Chicago this dipping is very large, millions of gallons a day. Now the city wants more.

* * *

Surely the Great Lakes system can afford to lose some of its water in this unnatural way? No. The reason is this, and few Canadians know it: The Great Lakes system has no great reservoir other than its own surface. The watershed, considering the size of Lake Superior and the other four lakes, is remarkably narrow. The height of land dividing waters that flow into Lake Superior and others that go north into the Arctic is very close to the north shore. Similarly, the height of land dividing streams that flow south into the Mississippi and those that flow north into Lake Superior and Lake Michigan, is very close to the south banks of these lakes. In fact, the upper and largest Great Lakes are almost entirely supplied with water by the precipitation on their own surface, not by tributaries. Thus their supply is limited. Therefore to divert very great amounts of water from them into another system could be disastrous.

* * *

The "Chicago Water Steal" becomes even more important with the development of the St. Lawrence seaway and power. Any appreciable lowering of the level of the lakes would reduce the power potential and might scupper the sea-lanes being created and the port and docking facilities. Chicago must not be allowed to divert any more water from Lake Michigan through its water system and thereafter down into the Mississippi watershed. The Great Lakes cannot afford the drain.

Need For A Hospital Commission

It was shocking to read of the death of a young woman in Port Colborne, after a blood transfusion which had been carelessly performed; a poor method of transfusion was used, which allowed air to be pumped into the patient's veins, and she died of an embolism. The more modern method of transfusion employs a device which automatically shuts off a pressure valve when the bottle of blood is empty and thus no air can enter the vein. The coroner's jury found that no one was to blame, but made recommendations which showed clearly that the hospital was blameworthy in not using the best method of procedure in the transfusion. But the fact remains that a woman has been killed by hospital carelessness, and that there exists no authority which can compel that hospital to mend its ways.

We agree with the Toronto Star that we need an effective system of provincial hospital inspection and supervision. Such a system was recommended four years ago by a commission which investigated matters relating to public health in Ontario, but no action has since been taken to make their recommendation a reality. It was suggested that a hospital commission, representing the medical profession, the hospitals themselves, and the general public, be set up to maintain the best possible hospital standards. Obviously the Government needs some impetus to push them into action on this matter.

Is the death of a young woman of 22, after childbirth, impetus enough? If not, we should be glad to hear the Government's reasons for delaying a necessary reform.

Food And Morale

What you eat is what you are. The old saying needs some interpretation but it is substantially true. For the past twenty years great advances have been made in the study of nutrition, and while some of the theories advanced have proved to be overstatements, or simply fads, we have learned much that is valuable about what we should eat in order to be healthy.

Health is not simply bodily well-being and strength. It is also mental and emotional well-being. We must be well-fed if we hope to be intelligent and well-balanced. Some recent research has been directed to the study of the effect of nutrition on the efficient use of the brain, and the achievement of a good emotional equilibrium. Children who are carelessly fed are less capable of doing their school work, and are more prone to emotional disturbance, than children who are fed the right foods.

Surely it is not necessary at this date to say what the right foods are. Briefly, the emphasis must be on meat, eggs, milk and the body-building foods, rather than on starches and sugar foods. A good meal for a child or an adult means a major portion of the first, and a lesser portion of the second. A child which is given bread and jam, washed down with a bottle of pop, for its lunch, cannot last as long, or work as well, as a child who has had some meat and salad, a piece of fruit and a glass of milk.

Surely there is good advice here for all of us. Nervous responsibility, and taxing mental work, exact great efforts from the brain and virtually no effort from the body. If meat, eggs, salads and dairy foods give us the sustenance we need for business or professional work, surely we may eat them with some confidence that we shall not be fagged at the end of the day, and that we shall not be angry so often, depressed or disturbed so often, or so often in need of those 'complete rest' holidays which are a common doctors' prescription for busy men and women.

We used to hear a great deal about 'nerves'. People who were exasperated, or discouraged or unable to concentrate, were popularly said to be victims of their nerves. Perhaps so, but could not their nerves have been the victims of what they ate? Proper diet is certainly not the answer to all nervous ailments, but might it not be a great assistance in avoiding many of these?

A Cathedral Growing

An item of British news came our way yesterday: A power driven stone planing machine is now being used in the building of Liverpool Cathedral to do work heretofore, in preceding centuries, carried out by skilled stonemasons with hammer and chisel. The machine is said to do the work of three men, more quickly and cheaply. So old skills are replaced by new machines, even in the building of a great cathedral.

The item reminds us that despite such innovations, at least this one grand work of building has the traditional massive extension over time. Skyscrapers in New York go up in a year; great temples for the arts and religion complete with marble and pillars, may be erected in California or Chicago overnight. But in this fast age, one cathedral is rising with time's maestoso. Liverpool Cathedral was begun exactly fifty years ago. It is still not finished.

In 1904 a young architect's design for Liverpool Cathedral was accepted and he immediately won the fame his magnificent conception of a free and modernized Gothic style merited. Work was begun that year, and in the half-century since Sir Giles Gilbert Scott has lived to see his Liverpool Cathedral rise on the hill above the city's commerce and docks. Like great cathedrals of old, this is a work not only of art but also of time; still growing to fulfilment. So it has been with all noble temples, from antiquity to the cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York, a quick-growing edifice compared with Liverpool monument to faith. Incidentally, the uncompleted cathedral was not badly damaged by bombs during the war, repairs have been effected, and the grand design continues to take form in stone slowly even with the power-driven stone planing machines now in use.

NOTES AND COMMENT

A hick town is now a place where nobody cares when or where you make a left-hand turn.

Burglars who robbed the station at Tillsonburg found nothing in the safe but a dime. We're selling all our huge holdings of railway stock immediately!

We read of a new rifle which weighs 9.48 pounds. We presume that this is at the beginning of the day's march. Toward nightfall the decimal point may have shifted toward the right.

People who are worried about cigarettes might popularize the hookah, which gives you a cool smoke, thoroughly washed before its reaches your mouth. What is more, several smokers can use the same pipe at once, with different mouthpieces! Just the thing for your poker party!

"COCA-COLONIZATION"

Latin-America Anti-"Yanqui"

By J. HALCRO FERGUSON

AS WAS to be expected, the "colonial issue" has generated more heat than any other subject so far discussed at the Inter-American Conference at Caracas, even though there is not the slightest possibility of any of the participants being able to do anything about it.

Argentina and Guatemala have of course been the most vociferous in demanding independence or the incorporation in Latin republics of European colonies in the Americas. Brazil put forward a vaguely-worded resolution calling on the colonial Powers to help these territories to self-government, but it was the stronger Argentine resolution which was eventually accepted for debate.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS distinguishes between colonies and "European-occupied territories." For the colonies—British, French and Dutch Guiana, and the West Indian islands belonging to these Powers—the resolution demands independence. For the "occupied territories," the Falkland Islands (alias Malvinas) and their dependencies, and British Honduras, it demands incorporation into Argentina and Guatemala respectively.

✧ ✧ ✧

HOWEVER, little Uruguay, by far the most politically-advanced Latin American republic, and one of the most enlightened countries in the world, has quietly slipped in a phrase which considerably reduces the force of the Argentine resolution. This phrase limits the condemnation of "colonialism" to cases where this is "against the will of the people." This is a sly dig at Argentina; for while nearly all the tropical colonies look forward to eventual independence, the Falklands, claimed by Argentina, have no desire for incorporation. The inhabitants of these islands are predominantly of Scottish and Scandinavian linguistic ties with Argentina. Economically they are as linked to the Argentine as they will ever be, through the fishing of their waters by the Argentine-incorporated Compania Argentina De Pesca.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE URUGUAYAN interpolation is thus a sensible one. But Uruguayans are also human, and they have probably got some quiet satisfaction as putting a spoke in Argentina's wheel. The Argentine Government, under President Peron, has no love for Uruguay, whose independent Press and radio (some of whose stations can be heard all over Argentina) give embarrassingly frank accounts of what is going on in Peron's country.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN an effort to bring pressure to bear on the Uruguayan Government to stop these damaging broadcasts (which, incidentally, it has no legal power to do) the Argentines have virtually sealed up the frontier between the two countries, gravely damaging Uruguay's trade, and particularly its tourist trade. As a result there is now only one boat a week between Buenos Aires, the Argentine capital, and Montevideo, the capital of Uruguay. Exit permits are regularly refused to people wishing to go to Uruguay, and a friend of mine, resident in Argentina and wishing to visit his parents in Montevideo, was recently forced to walk baggage-less (as if taking a stroll) across the International Bridge into Brazil, and to reach Montevideo by a long train journey from there. Even letters, which used to take a day to pass between the two capitals, now take a week or more, and are scrutinised by the Argentines.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE URUGUAYANS, who were not frightened during the Second World War when the German pocket battleship Graf Spee threatened to bombard Montevideo if she were made to leave port, are not frightened of their big neighbours. The reaction of the Uruguayan Government to Argentine sanctions was to send a consul to represent it at Port Stanley in "the British colony of the Falkland Islands" instead of in "the Argentine national territory of the Malvinas". The Argentine Press has been beside itself with fury ever since.

✧ ✧ ✧

A NOTABLE feature of the Caracas conference was the warmth accorded to the speech of the Guatemalan delegate attacking the United States. The applause was twice as long as that accorded to the speech of Mr. John Foster Dulles, the U.S. Secretary of State, of which a large part was devoted to attacking Guatemala for being too friendly with the Communists.

What made this vociferous approval all the more odd was that when it came to speech-making and voting, the delegates were all on the side of Mr. Dulles and, by implication, against Guatemala. Part of the reason for this was given by an incautious delegate who confided to a U.S. newspaperman: "He (the Guatemalan Foreign Minister) said what we would all have liked to say."

✧ ✧ ✧

ANTI-"YANQUI" FEELING is very strong below the surface, not only for material and historic reason but because of resentment at U.S. cultural infiltration, which the Latin-Americans, borrowing a French phrase, call "Coca-Colonizacion." "But because of their economic dependence on North America, few Latins will say in public what they feel in private." The Guatemalan speaker was applauded for daring to be a Daniel.

There was a further reason for this applause. Guatemala is putting into practice a genuine programme of agricultural and social reform, without bothering whether this treads on the toes of U.S. business interests or not. The fact that some of the engineers of this reform are Communists, and others nationalists who sometimes do more damage than good by attacking even beneficial U.S. interests, does not weigh too heavily with most Latin Americans. They are nearly all themselves nationalists at heart, and Russia is too distant to frighten them. (Copyright)

GOOD REASON

"Why did you divorce your wife?"

"She called me an idiot."

"But that's not sufficient cause for a divorce."

"Well, it was like this. I came home and found my wife in the arms of the man next door, and I said, 'What's the meaning of this?' and she said, 'Can't you see, you idiot?'".

An American Opinion: RETURN MATCH

The Case of Rouse's Point

(From a Speech in New York by the Hon. Paul Martin)

IT seems to me the real [illegible] United States-Canadian relations is that for a century and a third we have had peace in spite of differences—friendship in spite of difficulties.

It is a comparatively simple thing, you know, to keep the peace when there is nothing to quarrel about. Well, we have had our disputes; but we have settled them! Sometimes we have had to talk frankly to solve every problem that has threatened our friendship.

A case in point was Rouse's Point. That was the name given to an American fort constructed about 100 years ago which was [illegible] United States Government—to have been built on Canadian soil as the result of a surveyor's mistake.

In some parts of the world this discovery would have touched off an "incident" and might conceivably have led to war. But Canada simply moved its border back a bit so that your people wouldn't have to bother tearing down the fort.

I don't know whether the aggressive surveyor was fired as a "subversive" for this act of "territorial expansion" but, in return your country has seen to it that there hasn't been a loaded gun in the fort ever since.

Search For Sunken Gold

By HENRY SCHOUP (in Amsterdam)

A group of Dutch experts are preparing for a gold-diving expedition near the coast of Texel, one of the West Friesian islands which lie in a row off the north coast of Holland.

In 1917 British warships sunk the German steamer "Renate Leonhard" on her way from Rotterdam to Germanly. The cargo consisted of four hundred and fifty-four small cases containing gold worth seventy-five million guilders, or about nineteen million five hundred thousand dollars. For years a private individual, Mr. P. Visser, of Wijde Wormer, near Zaandam, has been planning the recovery of this sunken treasure. At first he advised a system of building an island of steel tubing, which would float above the wreck and be attached to the seabed. But this was found to be too expensive, and it was decided to make a concrete construction, which a Zaandam firm has now been commissioned to build. Bank loans have enabled Visser to embark on this ambitious venture.

The construction will consist of a square "work-room," eight metres by eight metres, with several compartments above that can be flooded and so as to allow the whole structure which has a displacement of one thousand one hundred and seventy tons, to sink to the seabed. The wreck is about ten fathoms below the surface.

The gold divers will be able to enter the "work-room" through a shaft. Fresh air will be provided by means of compressors. A second shaft will lead straight to the deck of the "Renate Leonhard."

The ship now lies under two yards of clay and loose silt. This will have to be removed before operations can begin— it can be done only by means of a small drag line.

It is planned to tow the concrete construction through the North Holland Canal to the naval port of Den Helder, which is in the immediate neighbourhood of the sunken ship. Lloyds of London have agreed to insure the undertaking.

Old Rifles

The current controversy over the ammunition and rifle to be adopted as standard by the NATO nations, (England is of the opinion that their new .280 calibre is better than the U.S. developed T-65) is not a new story. During the American Revolution (1775-81) the English militia was armed with the .75 calibre Brown Bess. The Americans nearly all had Kentucky rifles. An English soldier was lucky to be able to hit a man at thirty yards, or a hay stack at fifty yards, whereas the American, with his Kentucky rifle, could knock a man off a horse at one hundred to two hundred yards. The Kentucky rifle is represented in the collections of the Royal Ontario Museum of Archaeology by a gun nearly five feet long. The 42½" barrel is mounted in a curly maple stock, with a very ornate brass patch box in the butt. The British Brown Bess is also represented by a number of weapons in the Museum's study collection.

How Time Flies

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake. Rejoice, and be exceeding glad: for great is your reward in heaven: for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you. (Matt. 5:10-12.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Be ye therefore followers of God, as dear children . . . For ye were sometimes [illegible] light in the Lord: walk as children of light (for the fruit of the Spirit is in all goodness and righteousness and truth;) proving what is acceptable unto the Lord. (Eph. 5:1, 8-10.)

✧ ✧ ✧

They shall put you out of the synagogue: yea, the time cometh, that whosoever killeth you will think that he doeth God service . . . At that day ye shall ask in my name: and I say not unto you, that I will pray the Father for you: for the Father himself loveth you, because ye have loved me, and have believed that I came out from God . . .

These things I have spoken unto you, that in me ye might have peace. In the word ye shall have tribulation: but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world. (John 16:2, 26, 27, 33.)

✧ ✧ ✧

These words spake Jesus, and lifted up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee. (John 17:1.)

Letter To The Editor

A PLAIN QUESTION

Sir: I see a letter in the March 12 issue signed 'David's little brother' about everlasting blood transfusion. Will he please explain how any one can eat the flesh and drink the blood of one who was murdered hundreds of years ago.

A FREE THINKER.

Rising Generation

(Hamilton Spectator)

A north country Englishman who has spent 60 of his 80 years in Canada without losing his accent was walking along Main Street in Hamilton when he saw a small boy playing in the slush and mud. The little one would scarcely be more than four years of age and looked as though he was in need of some good advice.

The old gentleman decided to give him it. "Do-ant play i' that muck lad; you'll get it all over your coat and your mam'll give you a good hiding," he said. The four-year-old looked up from his play. "Mind your own - - - - business," he replied. The promptness and the fluency of the reply flabbergasted the old gentleman. Then he reflected that 76 years divided them and suddenly he began to laugh. After all, what else could he do?

Little Sea Warriors Disappear From Royal Navy

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Author Nicholas Monsarrat related recently that when his book "The Cruel Sea" was being made into a movie, the film makers couldn't find a corvette in Britain and had to borrow one from Greece.

In 10 short years, the dumpy little warriors of the battle of the Atlantic have been by-passed by sleek new anti-submarine vessels which slice through the seas at twice their speed.

The plain fact is—and it was becoming plain even as early as 1944—that the corvette is no longer of any use in a modern navy.

ONE IN HALIFAX

At its wartime peak, the Canadian Navy has 122 corvettes. It has only one today. This relic, the Sackville, is on loan in Halifax as a hydrographic survey ship and is manned by civilians.

The original corvettes were 200-foot ships running just over 950 tons. The earliest of this class were given names of flowers. After successive modifications there finally came the big castle class of 1,100 tons with better accommodation and deadlier anti-submarine equipment.

All of Canada's corvettes except the Sackville have been disposed of through War Assets Corporation which hasn't one left. They are turning up in odd corners of the world. For instance, the former Bowmanville, one of five Castle class corvettes sold to Nationalist China, now is flying the Red flag of Communist China. Two sister ships, the Tillsonburg and Orangeville, are still in Nationalist hands, but the fate of the Humberstone and Coppercliff is not known.

NOW TRAINING SHIP

Another former Canadian corvette, the Arnprior, is a training frigate in the Uruguayan navy. The Stellar, Strathroy and Thorlock have joined Chile's navy. Venezuela bought seven corvettes from Canada. Israel took the Norsyd and Beauharnois, the Dominican Republic the Lachute, Peterborough, Belleville and Riviere du Loup.

Canadian sailors didn't shed many tears over departure of the original corvettes. The ships rolled badly and though extremely seaworthy they also swung something like a pendulum because they were bottom-heavy. The originals had a short fo'c's'le and no shelter deck so that meals had to be carried astern over the open deck.

Despite the rolling and pitching there was one thing the sailors found about the corvette: It could throttle down and still keep forward way in the heavy seas. A destroyer, on the other hand, might lose way if it had to slow down and could be rolled in the trough of the seas.

The corvette was modelled after a 1910 whale-catcher built in Britain for a New Zealand firm. The whaling company wanted a vessel which could accelerate rapidly to overtake a whale and manoeuvre easily to follow the whale's erratic course.

HAD GOOD RECORD

The navy figured a warship planned along these lines was exactly what it needed to fight the submarines.

The corvettes cost about $560,000 each—or a total of nearly $70,000,000. They had a top speed of 16 knots and a range, in the late models, of 6,200 miles. The original corvettes carried depth charges, minesweeping equipment and anti-aircraft guns. Crews numbered from 50 to 100 men.

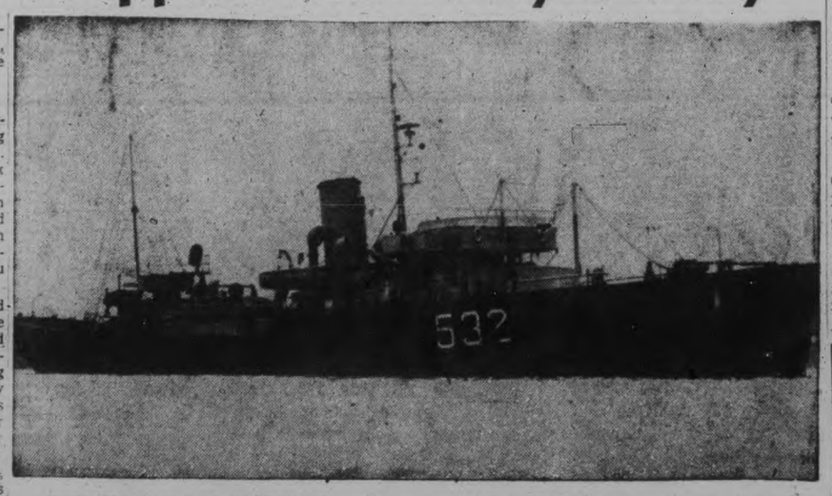
Canadian corvettes took a hand in the killing of 15 enemy submarines—13 German and two Italian—for the loss of 10 of their own number.

The Windflower, sunk in collision in 1941, was the first Canadian corvette commissioned—Oct. 20, 1940. The first 10 built served with the Royal Navy, though manned by Canadian crews. The first commissioned for service with the Canadian Navy was the Collingwood, launched Nov. 9, 1940. By the end of 1940, 14 corvettes were serving with the RCN.

Most of the Canadian corvettes were built at Montreal, Sorel and Lauzon, Que., Port Arthur, Saint John, Victoria and Vancouver. They were cheaper and faster to build than the corvettes of the British navy.

Levis, Spikenard, Charlottetown, Louisburg, Regina, Alberni, Trentonian, Shawinigan and Weyburn.

Twenty-two Canadian corvettes shared in sub kills. The first sub sunk by a Canadian corvette was the U-501, Sept. 9, 1941. Both the Chambly and Moose Jaw took part in the kill. The Chilliwack was the only Canadian corvette to participate in two U-boat sinkings—the U-356 Dec. 29, 1942, and the U-744 March 6, 1944.



Other corvettes credited with sub sinkings were the Wetaskiwin, Oakville, Battleford, Napanee, Ville de Quebec, Shediac, Drumheller, Calgary, Snowberry, Camrose, Fennel, Owen Sound, Hespeler, St. Thomas, Port Arthur and Regina.

CHRISTMAS KILL

The St. Thomas got the last—the U-887—two days after Christmas in 1944.

By late in the war, enemy submarines could outrun the corvettes underwater.

"But they served their purpose," one old corvette hand said recently. "Without them, we probably would have lost the battle of the Atlantic—and perhaps the war. We lost some but we knocked off more of the enemy. And there's no telling how many attacks we prevented on shipping, just by being there."

CANADA'S LAST CORVETTE—This is the Sackville, the last corvette of 122 the Canadian Navy once had to fight the Battle of the Atlantic. The relic is on loan in Halifax as a hydrographic survey ship and is manned by civilians. In 10 short years, the dumpy little warriors have been by-passed by sleek new anti-submarine vessels which slice through the water at twice the corvette's speed. It has become a plain fact that the corvette is no longer of any use in a modern navy. However, in the Second World War Canadian corvettes took a hand in the killing of 15 enemy submarines—13 German and two Italian—for the loss of 10 of their own number.—(CP Photo).

NEW DELHI (CP) — The fifth and last contingent of 1,272 officers and men of the Indian custodial force returned from Korea by ship to Madras. They had charge of war prisoners during long negotiations between the opposing commands over their disposition.

Calls For Legalization Of Sweeps In Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—J. S. Dempsey (PC—Renfrew South) Wednesday called for the legalization of bookmaking and sweepstakes in Ontario.

Speaking during the budget debate in the legislature, Mr. Dempsey said [illegible] were operating undercover in Toronto alone.

"Why shouldn't the bookie be under government supervision. You will never get rid of them. . . I don't think we have the right plan."

Mr. Dempsey suggested the province hold a sweepstake of its own, perhaps at Woodbine race track in Toronto, and turn the money over to Ontario hospitals instead of allowing thousands of dollars flowing to Ireland.

Cemeteries Bd. Proposed In Bill

TORONTO (CP)—Establishment of a cemeteries advisory board was proposed in a bill presented to the legislature Wednesday.

The bill, an act amending the Cemeteries' Act, introduced by Health Minister Phillips, also proposed the appointment of cemetery inspectors and the licensing of cemetery plot salesmen. It would also provide for the supervision and investment of perpetual care funds.

Asks Provinces Have Transport Jurisdiction

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Trucking Associations, chief spokesman for commercial highway operators, has called for a constitutional amendment to give the provinces exclusive jurisdiction over all motor transport.

The move follows a recent decision of the judicial committee of the Privy Council in London ruling that the federal government has control over interprovincial and international road traffic. The provinces now control highway operations within their borders.

Since the decision, the federal government has called a federal-provincial conference with the aim of reaching a "common understanding" for putting all highway traffic under provincial control.

The CTA represents about 7,000 "for-hire" truckers.

Ocean Link

CAPETOWN (CP)—Direct radiotelephone service between South Africa and Argentina was inaugurated with a call from J. F. T. Naude, minister of posts and telegraphs, to Argentina's external affairs minister, Dr. J. J. Gonsalez Arigos, at Buenos Aires. The service will cost £1 a minute, with a minimum charge of £3.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

A number of interested baseball men, including some of the Recreation Commission, will meet tonight at 7:30 at the Public Library to discuss ways and means of entering a senior club in the Central Ontario Baseball League for this coming season. Those willing to aid the cause are invited. It is felt that the senior diamond sport should be revived here with the promise of a good COBL being formed and the lights of Riverside put to use again. Also, quite a few ex-junior ballsters are available and ready to step up. Oshawa, Kingston, Belleville and even Watertown, N.Y., are prepared to form a good loop, and Peterborough would be most welcome.

* * * * * * *

Puck stories of other years crop up in Stanley Cup playoff time, rugged battles on the ice, etc. A staid Peterborough business man named Dit Clapper will recall many of them, perhaps this piece we noticed in the Brantford paper: "In 1944 when Montreal Canadiens had a powerhouse team, a major rhubarb developed in Boston with King Clancy as referee. Dit Clapper of the Bruins and Canadiens' Murph Chamberlain drew major penalties. Chamberlain bellowed at Clancy: 'Why did you give me a major—what did I do?' Clancy glowered: 'You were trying to knock Clapper's eye out with your stick, that's what!' Shrieked Chamberlain: 'I was not I was just trying to push it farther in!'." In days of gore . . .

Land Of Rice And Saki

Embassy of Japan sent us a letter yesterday and we were quite surprised till we saw it was from the Ottawa office and concerned hockey. Seems the Kenora Thistles have begun their Japanese hockey tour, playing 10 games in four or five cities over there in a 12-day period. Such centres as Tokyo, Kyoto, Osaka, Nagoya and Hokkaido. Afterward, they will be given a farewell party by the Mainichi newspapers, which have a daily circulation in excess of 6,000,000 copies. Golly, Thistles, who won the Canadian western intermediate title last year, are sponsored on the trip by the Japanese Skating Club. They won their opener in Japan by 17-1 and may make folks in the Far East forget about Lyndhursts losing to the Soviet in Sweden. Canadian hockey is certainly getting around, eh?

OHA senior "B" best-of-seven group finals resume here tonight at 8:30 in Civic Arena, Oshawa Truckmen vs. the TPT Petes. After an overtime tie game, Oshawa edged out two close victories and now hold a 2-0 lead on the series. Which means the Petes must pull out this one tonight here or they've just [illegible] up the set, so this fourth fray is the big one now. A little local luck and some stiff checking by the Petes might well upset the speedy Truckers, but it shapes up a streamlined struggle in any case from the first faceoff to the final gong. Season's biggest puck crowd is expected to view it.

Artificial Ice Pays Off

A good thing for Marmora puck fans that they have artificial ice down that way this year, or they'd be missing much fine playoff hockey with their team taking "home" games elsewhere. Marmora is well into northern TVL finals at present, leading Havelock 3-2 in a best-of-seven series, next one being in Marmora on Friday night, night. And the M's are in the second round of their OHA Intermediate "C" playdowns, as well, leading a best-of-seven set over Waterford by 2-0. They beat 'em 5-4 last gloaming down at Simcoe, and the third tilt will be on the same sheet Saturday, owing to the TVL playoffs up this way. Stubby Trumble potted a pair Wednesday, with singles going to Jones, Smith and Mantle. 'Twas 3-0 for Marmora in the first and, after a scoreless mid-heat, Waterford had a 4-2 bulge in the third of a tight tussle. A fast, clean game, we hear.

Hombre Montana probably can't stand on a pair of skates, and no doubt Tod Sloan of Toronto Leafs can't wrestle for sour apples, but they have one thing in common—they can pop referees. Hombre did it to Ref Joe Gollob last eve in the main mat bout at the Brock and it cost him and partner Tex McKenzie the tussle. A nasty pair of grapplers named Ike Eakins and Fred Atkins won on the disqualification of Montana. The fans didn't like it and police escorted the villains (three of 'em, counting the referee) through the milling crowd to safety at the end. It's okay to hate refs, but you mustn't hit 'em. Jack Bence and Mike Paidousis drew in the semi-final, while Alan Garfield took the prelim over Jan Gotch.

Down Sports' Rialto

YW intermediate hoop playoffs resume on the morrow . . . UEW soccer officers for this year are listed elsewhere . . . In bowling, Phil Pryde rolled high in the Major League, Joan Pope's single was best in the Girls' City Loop, Jack Martell hit high three in the Mercantile, and P. Doig had top triple in the Wednesday aft circuit for lasses . . . A CP item today from Victoria says Nip O'Hearn has signed to play lacrosse there and will report the middle of April . . . Mayor Graham informs us that Imperial Tobacco Co. has offered to install free a $2,500 sportstimer—like in Maple Leaf Gardens—in our Memorial Community Centre when it's built . . . Marlboros and Sarnia will complete their OMHA midget "A" semi-final series in Toronto on Saturday aft . . . Lindsay and Parry Sound are even at 2-all in intermediate "A" playdowns . . . Owen Sound ousted Stratford for the OHA senior "A" title . . . Kenora Thistles trimmed the All-Japanese Collegians 23-1 at Tokyo . . . Stanley Cup semi-finals go against tonight in Montreal and Detroit . . . Besides the Pocket Rocket in junior "A" Maurice Richard has a young puck-playing brother coming along fast in Quebec junior "B" play . . . It's just possible that fans will see the 1953-54 Petes in action for the last time tonight, but let's hope not . . . End of the line.

UEW Soccer Team Names '54 Officers

H. Steel was named manager and coach of the UEW soccer team at the reorganization meeting in the UE hall, W. Allan being chosen secretary, F. Roberts treasurer, A. Anstey in charge of publicity, and T. Craig the selection commissioner. The following were named to the entertainment and welfare committee:

R. Strong secretary, F. Roberts treasurer, T. Ryan, A. Anstey, R. Croll, T. Holt and W. Allan.

Another meeting will be held for old and new players and prospects at 2:30 next Sunday afternoon in the UEW hall at 203 Reid St. The opening game of the Eastern Ontario League will be staged on May 1.

ALMOST THERE—This camera eye view of the much disputed play in the first Stanley Cup semi-final clash between Boston and Canadiens at the Montreal Forum, shows the puck outside the scoring area. Bruins yelled loud and long over this one, but the goal judge said it didn't go in. Goaler Jacques Plante and Dollard St. Laurent are in front of the net, while Doug Mohns, of Boston, is being trailed by Ken Mosdell at right.

Howe Cadets Win Series Over Port Hope

Peterborough Sea Cadets won their basketball series with Port Hope Wednesday night with a convincing 70-55 victory at St. Peter's gym.

The cadets from the ship, Howe, lost the first game in Port Hope 58-49 but by virtue of the victory Wednesday night took the two-game points-to-count series by six points, 119-113.

In the first quarter Howe opened the scoring to take a 17-11 lead and their still held the lead, by seven points, at half-time. Howe jumped well ahead in the third 5032 and staved off a rally by the Port Hope Skeena quintet in the fourth.

Braniff and O'Keefe paced the Howe team with 19 points while Rowatt had 14. Russell Lake led the Port Hope team.

After the game both teams were served refreshments.

Joan Pope Tops

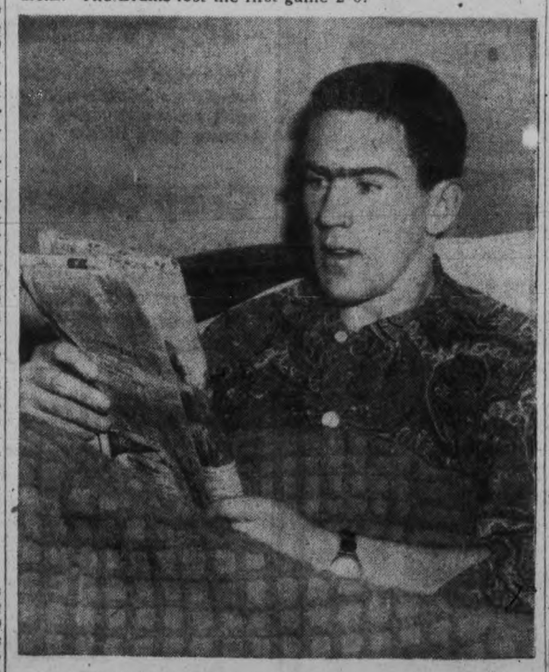
Joan Pope rolled a 312 single to head the Girls' City Bowling League, while Marie Thompson had a 508 double, including 230 and 278. J. Moore's 371 hit the blind score on the nose. The 3-0 shutouts went to Sunocos, Cardinals and Marines over Bassel's, Collis and Sevenaires; 2-1 victories were taken by Austin's over Aces and by Black's against Curtin's.

Good singles: M. Wannamaker 303, P. Richardson 286, M. Cunningham 274, M. Morton 265, R. Mahoney 256, L. Crocker 253, V. Scriver 250, J. Castle 246, M. Knights 245, R. Connolly 241, B. Castle and D. Beatty 236. M. Timm 230, B. ePterkin 228, J. Snape 225, E. Thompson 223, M. Hawthorne and B. Pogue 222, F. Kokesh and B. Morrow 220; better doubles: J. Pope 506, M. Cunningham 487, M. Morton 467, J. Castle and M. Wannamaker 459, P. Richardson 449, D. Beatty 448, V. Scriver 440, B. Peterkin and M. Knights 428, L. Crocker 436, J. Snape 432, R. Mahoney and F. Kokesh 423, B. Morow 421, E. Roberts 414, B. Pague 405, M. McGillis 403, M. Timm 404, and R. Pearse 402.

P. Pryde Rolls High

Phil Pryde led the way this week in the Major Bowling League with a 336 single and 840 triple. Paramounts topped teams with 3668 as Burtol had best single of 1307. The 7-0 wins went to Patterson, Clapper and Edwards over Lock, UE and Clements; the 5-2 victories were taken by Sea-Horses, Crowley, Hewitt, Burtol Revenoors, Paramounts, McLeod Godson and Plazas against Wonder, Selkirk, E & B, Curtis, D & W, Boucher, Sherbrooke, Bartle and Silents.

Good scores included: F. Furley (318) 800; G. Baird (303) 709 J. Storey 710; G. Walton (334) 783 M. Doris 768; W. Stanbury 763 R. Mongraw 709; M. Akers (323) 727; A. Menzies 717; J. Barne (321) 756; G. Rutledge (325) 755 T. Collins 703; F. Martin 766; A Stevens 748; J. Pasquino 722; A Mattucci 706; P. Walker 721 and singles of J. Goodson 305 and G Doherty 308.



Martell Hits 827

Jack Martell rolled a best triple of the season this week in the Mercantile Bowling League at Duffus' with a neat 827 total. His 326 single won the cokes, also. Vera Page led lasses with 681 and top single of 264. History was made again with Cal Nicholl's team getting high pinnage of 3,232.

The 4-0 triumphs were captured by Nicholl's over Empress, Baker's against Crowe's, and Neill's over East City. Austin's topped Prudential 3-1 as A & P No. 1 split with A & P No. 2. Good triples also included: Bob Lagana 770, Guido DeCarlo 708, Paul Kelly 706 and Harold Page 742.

OUT FOR A STROLL—Joe Klukay, left, and teammate Doug Mohns, of the Boston Bruins, shake their train legs on arrival in Montreal for the Stanley Cup series with Canadiens. The Bruins lost the first game 2-0.

TAKES IT EASY—Little Leo Labine doesn't believe in using up any more energy than necessary. He's quite happy to just relax in bed with a book or paper. "It helps take your mind off the series—for a while," says the Bruin pepperpot.

Rejects Winnie Leuszler Challenge

TORONTO (CP) — Florence Chadwick of San Diego, Calif., has turned thumbs down on a challenge by Mrs. Winnie Roach Leuszler of St. Thomas, Canada's top long-distance swimmer, for a race "any time, any place, any distance."

Miss Chadwick, here inspecting the proposed 31-mile Lake Ontario swim course between Toronto and Fort Niagara, N.Y., said she would have "nothing to gain by racing anyone."

She said she was "not being boastful, but I've got a lot at stake in this swim business."

"If I raced and won, they'd say I should have; if I lose, they'll say I'm slipping."

She said she would like to be the first person to do the 31-mile Lake Ontario swim proposed by the Canadian National Exhibition for $25,000 in prizes "and then let someone beat my time."

Whether 34-year-old American aquatic marathoner will take on the 31-mile course depends on the word of her managers and financial arrangements.

Remember When—

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Mrs. Marion Scott's steeplechaser Battleship, sired by Man O'War, won the 100th running of the Grand National at Aintree 16 years ago today. That was the race in which Rock Lad, first Canadian-owned horse to run in the great race, fell at a water jump and was killed. Rock Lad had been entered by H. Rupert Bain of Toronto.

Hombre Clouts Ref Ala Tod Sloan To Lose Main Bout

Hombre Montana made like he was Tod Sloan of Toronto Leafs—and like mat ref Joe Gollob was NHL ref Chadwick—at the Brock Arena last night, and thereby hangs a tale. Hombre smote the referee in the chops and was disqualified, along with his partner Tex McKenzie, giving the deciding fall of the main bout to the villainous Ike Eakins and rough Fred Atkins. The crowd didn't like it a smidgin, several police constables having to escort Gollob, Atkins and Eakins to safety at the finish.

The finale came in six minutes after Eakins and Atkins had been giving the weakening Texan a terrific going-over near their corner in quick relays, Referee Gollob being unable to break it up. Montana finally barged into the ring to smite them all about, including the ref who tried to stop him, and his nibs awarded the fall to Fred and Ike.

Eakins won the second fall in 11 minutes over Montana in similar fashion as he and Atkins worked fast relays with choke holds on huge Hombre near their corner. Gollob would warn them and start counting but they ignored his warnings and beat his counts by quick changes, going right back fast to their illegal tactics, Montanna finally succumbing. The fans gave Gollob a hard panning after the fall. Earlier Tex first and later Hombre gave a good account of themselves, but they were in against an experienced pair of villains who threw the book at them and got away with it because of indecisive refereeing.

[illegible] the first fall in the bout in 18 [illegible] 210-pound Eakins with a reverse body scissors, rolling with it, and a shoulder stand. Atkins, at 251, and Eakins teamed up better in their corner with illegal stuff, but Tex was speedy and the bulking 325-pound Montana was much stronger than either of his opponents. They mixed it hard at times, with plenty of odd stuff pulled, including hair, chokes, fists, stamping on Tex's bare feet, ropes, whiskers yanked out of Hombre, and so on, ad nauseam. Referee Joe Gollob was always about two camp-fires behind the hostilities.

UNDER THE RING

Jack Bence, going 226, and the 246-pound Mike Paidousis, tussled away in the semi-final to a draw in 30 minutes. At times, they served up lively action but often it was a dull as a Latin lesson. Bence proved popular and revived an oldie in going under the ring to come up from behind and pasting Paidousis about his whosis to the delight of the cash customers. Mike was a nasty character from Ohio, most unlike the good tourists who tie up traffic here in the summer with cars bearing Ohia markers. It was a so-so bout.

Alan Garfield, bumping the beam at 234 lbs., won the prelim in 16 minutes against Jan Gotch, a 232-er, bouncing him about the ring and polishing him off with a back-breaker and spread. Gotch started the fray like a whirlwind, tossing a barrel of illegal stuff Al's way as the ref looked helplessly on or waved an impotent finger under his schnozz. Alan finally forgot he was an English gentleman and replied in kind, adding some fists for authority. The tide ebbed and flowed, with Jam recovering to whack Garfield hither and yon, kicking, gouging, choking and whatnot, but Alan had the stamina to return for the final job of mopping up the floor with his rough antagonist as the fans cheered the windup.

Norkus Wins Savage Fight With Nardico

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Charley Norkus, a crude heavyweight slugger from Jersey City, hammered out a unanimous decision over tough Danny Nardico of Tampa Wednesday night in a brutal 10-rounder at Miami Beach Auditorium.

Neither fighter went down for a count but the battle was as savage and bloody as the eight-knockdown brawl the two men staged here last Jan. 20.

In the final round, Nardico's knees were rubbery and his eyes glazed but he kept charging into Norkus, swinging wild haymakers he couldn't land.

SEE RECORDS

The fight was televised nationally. Some 4,000 fans paid a gross gate of $17,710 to see it in person. Both the attendance and the gate set records for the auditorium.

Norkus, who flattened Nardico six times to win by a technical [illegible] January, weighed 197¼. Danny weighed 180¼.

Nardico, the seventh-ranking light heavyweight, declared through puffed lips in his dressing room that "Norkus "is just too tough. I had to give too much weight."

Brown Quartet Captures Ostrander Cup

Vic Brown's local rink took first honors and the Ostrander Trophy in the last open bonspiel for this season to be sponsored by the curling club. Each member received a gold wrist watch.

Another local rink, skipped by C. Selkirk, came second and Rev. Pereyma, Oshawa, was the third three-game winner.

Once again the local curlers dominated the play so much that four of the five prizes stayed at home.

All rinks played the usual three 10-end games, and it was just another real good bonspiel.

GOOD SUPPORT

The club appreciates the support given to these bonspiels, both from visiting clubs and local members.

The ladies have done their share and have been very prominent at every bonspiel all season.

Aided by secretary Ira Moore, the bonspiel committee handled all details.

The bonspiel concluded shortly before 11 o'clock, and so the open bonspiels are, as far as this club is concerned for this season, all past history.

WINNERS

First: Ostrander Trophy, and each a gold wrist watch, donated by Ostrander's—Peterborough: B. Mortlock, C. Hanbidge, K. Bissett, V. Brown, skip.

Second—Peterborough: E. McDougall, T. Saunders, W. Lewis, C. Selkirk, skip.

Third—Peterborough: R. Murison, P. Canning, F. Morse, Rev. Pereyma, skip.

Fourth—Peterborough: R. McCullough, C. Shaughnessy, R. Payne, F. Stenson, skip.

Fifth—Peterborough: C. McIntyre, H. Tudhope, T. Fowler, C. Lawrence, skip.

Below is the draw for the club championship:

Toronto Leafs And Bruins Out For Revenge In Cup Semi-Finals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins go after their first goals of the Stanley Cup semi-finals tonight. The Leafs, blanked 5-0 Tuesday night in Detroit, meet the Wings in Detroit for the second game of the series while Boston, whitewashed 2-0 by Montreal Canadiens Tuesday, play their second game in Montreal.

Going into tonight's game in the best-of-seven series against the National Hockey League champions, the Leafs have scored only four times in eight appearances on Detroit ice this season.

The Wings will be at home four times if the series goes the seven-game limit. No matter how many times the Leafs beat Terry Sawchuk in Toronto, it can't get them any more than three victories.

Besides battling the Detroit scoring famine, the Leafs have to cope with a slump by goalie Harry Lumley, who won the Vezina Trophy for the best netminding record for the regular schedule.

LOOKED BAD IN DETROIT

While the Owen Sound, Ont., native hung on to edge Sawchuk by a single goal for the trophy, he has been scored on 16 times in his last three appearances, looking particularly bad in fanning on a couple of long shots Tuesday night.

The seasoned Red Wings, almost all veterans of previous Stanley Cup campaigns, are in top form.

The Leafs, on the other hand, with six players in their line-up who have never tried for a Stanley Cup, showed signs of playoff jitters Tuesday.

In Montreal, coach Dick Irvin said his Canadiens will go after victory No. 2 with the same line-[illegible] played very well Tuesday night but we can play a little better. That goes for two or three of our fellows, anyway."

"If we take the second game we will be hard to beat."

MIGHT END IN MONTREAL

The third and fourth games are in Boston. The teams then alternate between cities game by game [illegible] in Montreal [illegible] if necessary.

Coach Lynn Patrick of the Bruins may have to make line changes. He was giving consideration Wednesday to using three, instead of four, lines, especially when defenceman Hal Layco has recovered from an injury and is ready for rear-guard duty.

Centre Gus Bodnar was expected to be ready for tonight's game. With Bodnar ready, Patrick planned to drop Guyle Fielder, up from Seattle of the Western Hockey League.

Patrick also hast o find some means of overcoming Canadiens' defensive strength. In the first game, won by Montreal 2-0, the Bruins were outshot 43-12.

Barons Trample Buffalo 7-2

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Fred Glover netted a pair of goals Wednesday night to lead Cleveland Barons to a 7-2 win over Buffalo Bisons in the first game of their American Hockey League semi-final series.

Glover's line-mates, Jack Gordon and Eddie Olson got one goal each and Glover passed to defenceman Fred Shero for a fifth tally. Steve Kraftcheck and Andy Bathgate got the others.

Gordie Pennell and Rollie Rousseau got the goals for the Bisons. The second game in the best-of-five series will be played here Saturday.

MONTREAL SHUT OUT BOSTON — Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, of Montreal Canadiens, swoops in on Boston Bruins goalie, Jim Henry during first-period play in one of the best-of-seven semi-final National Hockey League playoff matches. Montreal won 2-0 on home ice. This shot, with the score 0-0, was blocked by Henry, but Canadians went on to score two goals by Geoffrion and Lorne Davis. The Boston player in the background is not identified. —(CP Photo).

Irish Score 3-2 Victory Over Tee Pees

TORONTO (CP) — Before the 1953-54 season started, a few hockey men in the know called Toronto St. Michael's College Majors to take the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A title.

The Collegians, who finished third in the standings, made the forecasters look bad during the schedule but in the playoffs it's a different story.

Meeting St. Catharines TeePees, first-place finishers, in the best-of-seven semi-finals, the Irish have encountered most of their trouble [illegible] during the regular schedule.

They won one playoff game in St. Catharines and tied another one there while suffering their only loss of the series in Toronto.

COMPLETE CYCLE

Wednesday night they completed the cycle. Spotting the TeePees two goals, they tightened their defence and went on to score a 3-2 victory. Centre Jack Caffery spearheaded the Irish attack, scoring the tying and winning markers and assisting on the first Toronto goal. Ken Gribbons fired the first St. Michael's tally.

Cec Hoekstra and Barry Cullen had given the TeePees their lead in the second period.

NEED NO HELP

After the game St. Catharines coach Rudy Pilous said his TeePees put two pucks on St. Michael's sticks which resulted in goals. "They're too good a club for us to help out," he added.

As in most St. Michael's victories this season, netminder Gerry McNamara was the big defensive standout. He was enthusiastically applauded by the 5,283 fans while turning aside the more difficult of the 28 shots taken at him. Marve Edwards warded off 24 drives in the TeePee net.

Caffery's first marker of the [illegible] a pass from linemate Paul Knox inside the Majors blue line, he went through three TeePees to tie the score 2-2. Les sthan a minute later he banged home the winner on Knox's rebound.

The TeePees have a chance to square the series in the fourth game at St. Catharines Saturday.

Mercurys Take Title With 7-4 Win

STRATFORD (CP)—Owen Sound Mercurys set a record last night when they walloped Stratford Indians 7-4 to win the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A championship.

The Mercurys became the first team to win an OHA Senior A best-of-seven final in four games. They lost only two games in 10 playoff contests this year. They eliminated Chatham Maroons 4-2 in a best-of-seven semi-final.

The Indians, who finished fifth in the regular schedule, couldn't do much against the Mercurys this series. They showed the wear of their two previous playoff rounds. The Indians took the best-of-five quarter-finals 3-1 from Windsor Bulldogs and then eliminated the favored Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, last year's Allan Cup champions, 3-1 in the best-of-five semi-finals.

The Mercurys, first-place finishers in the standings, outplayed the Indians all the way in Wednesday night's game. Held to a 2-2 deadlock in the first period, they shot ahead 5-3 in the second and outscored Stratford 2-1 in the third.

HIGH SCORING LINE

Owen Sound got the best from its top combination, the Bill McComb-Buck Forslund - Jerry Reid line. The trio accounted for four goals and 10 assists. Reid counted twice with McComb and Forslund each tallying singles.

Roy Leckie, Herb Carnegie and Gardiner notched the other Owen Sound markers. Herve Dejordy, Don Peart, Bill Flick and George Aitken were the Stratford snipers.

The game produced only five minor penalties but two of these counted in the scoring. Stratford's first goal in the opening period by Dejordy was notched while Elmer Skov was off for Owen Sound.

Then Leckie fired Owen Sound's sixth goal while Ron Ingram was sitting it out for the Indians.

The Mercurys now advance into the all-Ontario final and the eastern Canada Allan Cup quarter-final against either Sudbury Wolves or Iroquois Falls Abitibi Eskimos. The Wolves and Eskimos are tied 1-1 in the best-of-five Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior final.

ODDS SHORTEN

LONDON (AP) — Britain's top bookmakers have shortened the betting price of the favored Coneyburrow as backers poured money on the big Irish eight-year-old jumper for the gruelling Grand Saturday.

Coneyburrow, established the clear 8-1 choice at Monday's call-over, emerged the 15-2 pick Wednesday night.

Irish Lizard's odds for the four-mile, 856-yard grind, also dropped from 19-2 to 9-1.

Another Irish horse, Royal Tan, also came in for some big betting and his price dropped from 10-1 to 9-1. Royal Tan, owned by Joe Griffin and trained by Vincent O'Brien, now is high weight for the race with 161 pounds. Coneyburrow, with 151, and Irish Lizard with 145, are ideally weighted for the big race on which an Irish hospital sweepstakes result is based.

The announcement that Mont Tremblant would be withdrawn because of a sprained ligament, affected the ods of other horses. Gentle Moya was made 20-1 after being quoted at 25-1. Dominick's Bar and Whispering Steel emerged 25-1 after being 33-1.

Other odds were Churchtown and Tudor Line, 100-8; Ordnance, 20-1; Sanperion, 25-1; Legal Joy, 28-1; Statesman and Southern Coup, 3-1. Others of the 29 still in the race were not quoted.

INVESTIGATE ATTACK

MONTREAL (CP) — President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League said Wednesday he is investigating a reported attack on referee Bill Chadwick by Tod Sloan of Toronto Maple Leafs but no action will be taken before tonight's Toronto-Detroit game.

Campbell has already been advised of the incident by referee-in-chief Carl Voss, who attended Tuesday night's game in Detroit.

Sloan was given both misconduct and game misconduct penalties. When the game misconduct was imposed Sloan was reported to have leaped from the penalty box, pushed Chadwick and almost knocked him to the ice.

LANDY TO RUN IN B.E.G.

MELBOURNE (AP)—Australian miler John Landy said Wednesday night he will accept an invitation to run in Finland and Sweden this summer and also will compete in the Empire Games at Vancouver.

The lean speedster, whose best time this season is 4:02, counted out invitations to race in the United States because "they don't fit into my itinerary."

Landy said he will stay in Finland about two months and later run in Sweden.

BOSTONS EIGHT DECISION

LONDON (AP)—Don Cockell's manager said Wednesday night the British heavyweight champion has received an offer of $20,000 to fight Canadian champion Earl Walls for the British empire heavyweight championship in Toronto.

Manager John Simpson said the offer came from Toronto promoter Frank Tunney. Simpson said Cockell was "extremely interested," but would make no decision until after his fight with Roland La Starza here next Tuesday.

✦ ✦ ✦

CHESS CHAMPION WINS

LONDON (AP) — World chess champion Mikhail Botvinnik defeated challenger Vasili Smyslov Wednesday in the fourth game of their world championship match in Moscow.

Moscow Radio said Smyslov had to resign in the 61st move. The game had been adjourned Tuesday night with Smyslov on the defensive.

The match score now is Botvinnik 3½ points, Smyslov ½ point. The next game starts today.

KEED BECOMES A PAPA

SUMMIT, N.J. (AP)—Kid Gavilan, world welterweight champion, in training here for his April 2 bout with Bobo Olson, world middleweight champion, became a father for the third time Wednesday. Gavilan received a telephone call from Havana advising him that Mrs. Gavilan gave birth to a seven pound, eight ounce daughter.

Gavilan said the newcomer would be named Victoria, in honor of his coming "victory" over Olson.

Taylor Named Playing Captain

MONTREAL (CP) — Gordon B. Taylor of Montreal Kanawaki Wednesday was named playing captain of the Canadian amateur golf team that will compete in Commonwealth matches at St. Andrews Scotland, June 1-4.

Others on the Canadian team, previously announced, are Don Doe Granby, Que., Phil Farley, Toronto, Nick Weslock, Windsor, Ont., Doug Silverberg, Red Deer, Alta., and Walter McElroy and Bob Fleming of Vancouver.

The Canadian team will also compete in the British amateur championship at Muirfield, Scotland, a week before the Commonwealth competitions.

Jack Jacobs Replies To Trafton Barbs

FLIN FLON, Man. (CP)—Jack Jacobs, quarterback of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, has opened fire here on his former coach, George Trafton.

In a brief adress to the annual Kinsmen Sportsman Show, aimed at raising funds for crippled children, Jacobs said:

"We would have brought George understand he's been fired.

"Of course this doesn't make me unhappy one little bit. I will start enjoying football again."

Jacobs apparently was replying to newspaper stories which quoted Trafton as saying "Bombers will never win the Grey Cup with Jacobs at quarterback."

President of League

TORONTO (CP) — Charles Holmes of Hamilton was named president of the Junior Big Four Football League at the annual meeting Wednesday night.

George Koster of Brantford was named secretary-treasurer. The league comprises teams from Brantford, Hamilton and Toronto.

Set Date For Beer Vote

GUELPH (CP) — Nearby Puslinch township, dry since 1913, will [illegible] Butler, one of the two women who headed the campaign for the vote, said "We believe it will be good for the township, which has long been standing still. It is an ideal tourist centre but doesn't bring many tourists because we have little to offer them."

2 Kitchener Players Turn Professional

KITCHENER (CP)—Two members of Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series turned professional just after their team was eliminated from the league playoffs Tuesday night.

Coach Ken Reardon, also a scout for Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, signed centre Grieg Hicks of Timmins and defenceman Beryl Klinck of El[illegible] new teams.

Hicks will join Buffalo Bisons, playing Cleveland Indians in a best-of-five American Hockey League semi-final. Klinck is heading for Montreal Royals, in the semi-finals of the Quebec Hockey League.

Cycling Always Fascinated Coach

MONTREAL (CP) — Cycling seems to have been the pre-determined career of George Graves.

Recently appointed coach of Canada's cycling team to the British Empire Games at Vancouver this summer, the 38-year-old Montreal police detective has seen bicycles play a major role in his [illegible] now, because he's a detective sergeant on the bicycle squad. But once, back during the depression, they cost him a job.

While a messenger for a grocery store in east-end Montreal, Graves watched racing cyclists practising on Sherbrooke street—a favorite spot for pre-race trials.

EAGER COMPETITOR

He was fascinated, and soon was pedalling with the cyclists when he should have been at work. He was fired.

Graves began racing competitively a few years later in 1934, about the same time he joined the police department, and in 1936 won the annual Quebec-Montreal marathon, a feat he repeated in 1946.

18 High Schools Plan Compete In Tourney

HAMILTON (CP)—Boys from 18 Ontario high schools will compete in the Ontario Federation of School Athletic Association's fourth annual volleyball tournament here Saturday.

Two trophies will be up for competition in the tournament, which will be held at McMaster University. One will be for A group schools with 250 students or more. The other will be for B group schools with less than 250 students.

Last year's A trophy winner, St. Thomas Collegiate, has already entered this year's tournament as has the B trophy winner, Ottawa High School of commerce.

Other entries in the A group are Hamilton Delta, Hamilton Central; Central Technical and Humberside, Toronto; Orillia, Saltfleet and Brampton. Other teams in the B group are the Ontario School for the Deaf, Belleville; East Elgin High School, Aylmer; and Ridgeway, Bracebridge and Collingwood.

P. Doig Leads Girls

P. Doig topped threes in the Wednesday afternoon bowling loop for girls with 739, including games of 236, 260 and 243. L. Harris had high single of 275, along with a 208, in her 669 total. Terrors led teams with 2705, having a high single of 1013. Three points were taken each by Terrors, Dinkies, Bombers, Happy Gang and Rockets over Whizz Bangs, Cisco Kids, Wild Cats, Playfairs and Tornadoes, as Eager Beavers won 2-1 from Ramblers.

Better scores: D. Pacey (256) 613, G. Cruikshanks (274) 589, F. Kokesh 585, D. Peconi (225) 573, A. Abraham (233 and 205) 562, M. Manley 560, H. Heckman 551, O. Watson 546, E. Tri-Bells Win Trophy For Third Time

OTTAWA (CP) — Toronto Tri-Bells won the Bunny Sabbath Trophy for the third time in four years Wednesday night, defeating an Ottawa basketball team for the third time in four years to do it.

The Tri-Bells took the trophy, given the winner of the eastern Canada senior basketball final, by defeating Ottawa Brookes 73-55 in the third game of the best-of-five series.

Moscow Paper Charges 4 Spied On Train Trip

MOSCOW (AP)—The newspaper Trud today charged [illegible] military staff with spying on Soviet airfields and other important installations while on a rail trip from Moscow to Vladivostok.

The embassy refused to comment.

Trud, the trade union newspaper, claimed the alleged espionage was revealed in military intelligence reports the Americans left behind in their compartment on the trans-Siberian express. It said the chief conductor found the papers at the end of the run.

The documents, it continued, "constitute an intelligence report on the main towns and stations between Moscow and Khabarovsk," an industrial and transportation centre of 300,000 persons north of Vladivostok on the Manchurian border."

CAN HAVE THEM BACK

Trud published what it said were photostat copies of their papers and commented:

"If the above-mentioned persons would like to get back their documents, which evidently were forgotten in the rush, they can do so by calling at the porter's office."

The embassy would confirm only that the four men made a train trip to Vladivostok last September.

Predict Drastic Rate Reductions

VICTORIA (CP)—The Victoria Colonist says in a newspage story today that drastic reductions in Canadian railway freight rates for movement of Canadian steel to west coast ports will be anounced within the next 24 hours.

The newspaper says it had been informed that present rates will be slashed almost in half.

The Colonist says word of the impending rate reductions were received in Victoria by an industrialist during a telephone conversation with the Hamilton offices of the Steel Corporation of Canada.

The reductions would put Canadian steel on a competitive basis on the west coast with that of Great Britain, the United States, Japan and European producers.

The Colonist says Canadian railways have asked the board of transport commissioners to cut freight on steel bound for Victoria and Vancouver from $2.10 to $1.10 a hundred pounds. The newspaper says the steel corporation planned a further freight allowance of approximately 28 cents a hundred pounds.

St. Laurent Explains Statement To Press

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent has given an indication what may be expected in today's Commons debate on foreign affairs.

At a testimonial diner given him by parliamentary supporters Wednesday night he referred to varying reports of what he has said about recognition of Communist China.

If what he has said lent itself to misconstruction, his own intention had been clear, he said.

It was that "We have to deal with human affairs according to facts as they exist—not as they would exist if we had the shaping of them."

While on the last stages of his world tour and on his return to Ottawa, Mr. St. Laurent said it was necessary to take what he called a "realistic" view of the existence of the Communist government of China.

Banks Increase Service Charge On Cheques

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada's 11 chartered banks have increased the service charge on savings accounts to 10 from eight cents a cheque, the Canadian Bankers' Association anounced today.

T. H. Atkinson, vice-president and general manager of the Royal Bank of Canada and association president, said in a statement the increase was implemented "because of the cost of servicing the ever-growing number of cheques drawn on these (savings) accounts."

He said the number of cheques drawn on savings accounts is more than 100,000,000 a year and the increase is an attempt to meet part of the mounting cost of the bookkeeping involved. The increase will bring the banks about $2,000,000 yearly.

The charge is the amount the banks deduct from a savings account for each cheque drawn. The charges, computed quarterly come into effect with the first quarter of the year, the January-March period.

The banks will allow one free cheque for a quarterly balance of $100; two free cheques for a $200 balance, and three free cheques for $300 or more.

Haymes, who entered the U.S. for permanent residence in 1937, has 10 days to appeal the decision. The above picture was taken shortly after they were wed last year.

Martin Criticizes Higher Pension

OTTAWA (CP)—CCF and Social Credit members of the Commons were criticized Wednesday by Health Minister Martin for proposing a 50-per-cent increase in the federal old age pension.

John Blackmore (SC — Lethbridge) urged that $60 a month be paid to all at the age of 60, instead of the present universal pensions of $40 at the age of 70.

Stanley Knowles (CCF — Winnipeg North Centre) proposed $60 payments to all starting at 65.

Mr. Martin replied that the suggestions "cannot be taken seriously." They only raised false hopes among Canadians.

He said Mr. Blackmore's plan would add $900,000,000 to the government's total proposed expenditures of $5,000,000,000 this year.

"There is no one in this House who is not anxious to do what they can to increase the welfare of that segment of our population."

But when members suggested such plans without considering their cost, they were putting forward the "greatest obstacle" to the realization of other social welfare measures.

Hold Man, 64 In Twin Slaying

WINNIPEG (CP) — Police are holding a 64-year-old man today in connection with the stabbing death [illegible] night.

Victims of the double stabbing were Mrs. Martha Woytyshyn, 56, and Orest Ostapowich, 26.

Held in custody is Anthony Woytyshyn, unemployed graveyard worker. Inspector of detectives George Blow said Woytyshyn "will definitely be charged with these offences."

Mrs. Woytyshyn was found dead [illegible] at the Ostapowich home Wednesday night.

Ostapowich, her son by a previous marriage, lay in a nearby bedroom. Still alive, he was taken to hospital but was dead on arrival. Hospital attendants said he suffered several stab wounds and his hands were slashed.

First Climbers Leave To Tackle Great Icefields

TORONTO (CP)—The advance guard of an eight-man mountain climbing team left for the West Wednesday night to tackle something no one has ever tried before—the great icefields of the Canadian Rockies.

Three members of the expedition left on the first leg of their journey with not a snowflake in sight. The other five, including one woman, Mrs. Peggy Austin of Ancaster, a former Canadian women's ski champion, leave Toronto Friday.

The party will scale and ski the zig-zag mountainous boundary between Alberta and British Columbia across eight icefields on a treacherous, 200-mile route.

Bad weather over the Rockies delayed dropping of food caches along the trek route and the party will start out 48 hours later than planned. Expedition leader Peter Bennett, department store advertising man from Oakville, who has planned the trip for two years, estimates the icefields trek will take three weeks.

The expedition will be guided by Tony Kettle, a Swiss veteran of the famous Alpine troops, now living at Jasper, Alta. He has spent weeks flying over the route by plane.

Three friends, Pat Boswell, 30, Ted Pope, 36, and Murray Snively, 30, all of Toronto, are the advance party. Boswell and Sniveley, a salesman, skied together while students. Mr. Pope and Boswell work together at the CBC.

The other two party members are a tobacco company director, Peter Austin, 40, of Ancaster, whose wife Peggy is accompanying him, and Dr. A. Bruce-Robertson, Toronto, expedition physician, through wild and rugged country, some of which has never been travelled before. In the party are Peter Austin and his wife, Peggy, of Hamilton; Pat Boswell, CBC supervisor; Dr. Alan Bruce-Robertson of the Banting Institute, Toronto; Murray Snively, Toronto insurance man; and an Austrian [illegible]

Newspaper May Take Action Against Toronto Police Officers

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto Telegram has instructed its lawyers to investigate the possibility of legal action against two police officers following an incident in a city hall corridor when a Telegram photographer was temporarily held and his negatives confiscated.

The action was anounced Wednesday by John Bassett, chairman and publisher of The Telegram, and he named inspector Ellsworth Walker and sergeant Sam Priestly of the morality division of the city police department.

Mr. Bassett said he was placing the matter "in the hands of our solicitors and carefully considering what legal steps can be taken." He added the action is indicated to make sure that the rights of working newspaper men are protected fully, not from the standpoint of special interests or privilege, but on the grounds that newspapers are the eyes and ears of the public and must be safeguarded.

"Therefore, the normal course of the law will be followed to ensure that the rights of all citizens are not interfered with," the publisher said.

The photographer involved was Albert Van. The Telegram said Mr. Van photographed Sgt. Priestly who was making a court appearance to face an assault charge brought by Mrs. Dianne Phillips, 29-year-old mother of two children. She charges that on March 1 the morality officer slapped her face and called her "filthy names" on a Toronto street corner.

RUINED PICTURE

The Telegram says in a newspage story that Mr. Van took a picture of Sgt. Priestly before the trial and "was grabbed by [illegible] who took him into the courtroom and demanded [illegible] be destroyed." The newspaper said Inspector Walker "had the photographer remove the slide from the negative case, which ruined the picture."

The newspaper says Inspector Walker told reporters on the scene that Sgt. Priestly was "being persecuted" because he was a police officer and asked: "Why don't you take pictures of all the other people in this court?"

Mayor Allan Lamport said he planned to "look into" the matter and police chief John Chisholm said he wanted to "get all the facts."

During the court hearing of Sgt. Priestly a doctor testified that Mrs. Phillips did not appear to have any injuries from the alleged assault. The hearing was adjourned until today.

In 1935-36 he won the 50-mile Canadian championships at Ottawa and rode off with national honors in the 100-mile race at Hamilton.

Lodi, N.J., was the site of the American 100-kilometre championship in 1938 and Graves captured the winner's trophy there. At the British Empire Games in Australia the same year, however, he failed to show among the top competitors.

WILL DO WELL

In an interview, Graves said he expects Canadian cyclists to do well at the games at Vancouver.

"We will probably have a full team since the lack of heavy travelling expenses will enable more cyclists to attend. And the more entrants the more chances of winning."

Graves said his role at the games will be more of a watchdog than a coach.

"I won't try to change the racer's style for the games. But I will see they get out and practice, get plenty of sleep and eat regular meals.

"I'm probably [illegible] track myself to shed a few of the 20 pounds I've put on since I stopped racing competitively a few years ago," the husky 250-pounder said.

New Community Keeping Calm Despite Hectic Oil Field Rush

EDMONTON (CP) — A few months ago the hamlet of Drayton Valley drowsed peacefully in a [illegible] hills 60 miles southwest of Edmonton. Then Alberta's ever-booming oil industry swallowed it up.

Drayton Valley, with a population of about 25, was sitting on top of what may be the biggest, richest oil field in western Canada—the Pembina.

Almost overnight the population shot up to more than 2,000 persons. Oil companies and their accompanying services rushed in to get on the ground floor. But the Alberta government stepped in to [illegible] haphazard development and set a group of [illegible] to work on a planned development scheme.

H. N. Lash, provincial director of town and rural planning, says applications have been received from commercial organizations representing a cross-section of the business required to service oil development and a town of 2,000, the number expected to remain after full development of the Pembina field.

Subdivision applications have been filed by most of the 20 landowners who hold 95 per cent of the property to be used in the development. They have been notified of the conditions under which [illegible] approved.

One of the conditions, designed to minimize land speculation, requires the applicants for subdivision to agree to sell land on the understanding that the purchaser will apply immediately for a development permit. German Birth Rate Declines Fear Race Is Dying Out

By GEORGE BOULTWOOD

BONN, Germany (AP) — West Germany's new families minister fighting to stimulate the flagging German birth rate by cleaning up morals and checking divorces, has stirred up a tempest.

The press is hotly critical of the minister—Dr. Franz-Josef Wuermeling—and charges he is interfering with peoples' private lives and civic rights. Politicians and judges have been upset by his outspoken blasts. And the film industry is mad at him because he complains that German films are corrupting the nation by not portraying married life in the right way.

Wuermeling's ministry was created last fall. Chancellor Konrad Adenauer gave the 54-year-old Roman Catholic lawyer the job because he was worried about the decline of traditional German family life.

German statisticians have calculated that by 1980 there will be 60 per cent more people over the age of 65, while the working population will remain stationary at 22,700,000.

Today there are five women to every four men in Germany. More boys than girls are being born but this will have no real effect for the next 30 years.

SEES FUTURE ENDANGERED

"We are in danger of becoming a dying people," Wuermeling says, explaining his aim of halting the decline which has brought down the surplus of births over deaths from 13.6 a thousand in 1900 to 5.2 today.

The divorce rate has risen to 106 for each 1,000 marriages as compared with 25 in 1914. In the last three years more than 200,000 children lost their normal home life because of divorce.

There are 3,000,000 widows, 1,300,000 orphans and 530,000 illegitimate children to be cared for.

An estimated 100,000 couples are living together without blessing of church or marriage certificate.

Himself a family man with six children, Wuermeling is gravely worried at these signs of moral degeneration following the disillusion of a lost war.

ACCUSED OF INDIFFERENCE

Stung by his castigation of the morals of film stars, the film industry has accused him of trying to censor public conduct. The Social Democrats say he is interfering with the rights of the individual.

He got into hot water when he suggested that judges who took a purely civil oath of office were granting more divorces than those who took a religious oath. This was taken as an attack on the integrity of the judiciary and the government had to disavow the allegation as his personal opinion.

Wuermeling is not opposed to divorce but wants a thorough reform of divorce law. He wants to introduce "marriage guidance offices" to help repair broken marriages.

Above all he wants to root out the conditions that make the seventh month of marriage the most usual one for the birth of the first child in West Germany today.

Pushing Expansion Of Trade Throughout World

By FRANK O'BRIEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Russia is attempting to expand its trade with the non-Communist world.

Here is a round-up, from a previously confidential United States government report, of how the Soviet trade offensive developed:

Mikhail A. Menshikov, a former U.S.S.R. minister of foreign trade, was sent as ambassador to India "to negotiate a formal arrangement of trade." Another Soviet trade official was sent to Argentina to arrange a bilateral trade agreement.

Bilateral agreements were signed with France, Greece and Iceland. These are barter agreements, providing an exchange of certain Soviet goods for certain Western goods.

Russia placed shipbuilding contracts with the United Kingdom, Italy, France, Finland, the Netherlands and Denmark and was negotiating at the end of 1953 with ship firms in Belgium and West Germany. Ships ordered included fishing trawlers, cargo ships, refrigerator ships, dredgers, floating cranes, tugboats, barges and tankers.

For the first time, the Soviet Union in 1953 committed itself to send industrial equipment outside the Communist world.

India and Argentina were chosen for the experiment. Agreements with the two countries call for Soviet exports of machine tools, all bearings, oil-drilling equipment, mining equipment, excavators, bulldozers, electric power equipment, testing and measuring instruments and farm machinery. The Argentine agreement was reported to be for Russian exports of $30,000,000.

Soviet negotiators offered road-building equipment to Sweden toward the end of 1953.

For the first time since the Second World War, Russia last year made important oil shipments to western Europe. It made agreements for crude and fuel oil estimated at 2,500,000 tons, and started deliveries. Countries signing up included France, Italy, Argentina, Greece, Iceland, Norway, Sweden, India, Denmark, Israel and Finland.

Russia also made small shipments of automobiles to Europe.

1953 IMPORTS

Among 1953 imports, Russia received items for mass consumption. These included herring, fish oils, butter, citrus fruit, coffee, tea, synthetic fibres, rayon cloth, wool cloth, tobacco and cocoa beans.

Russia's 1953 foreign trade with the non-Communist world amounted to about 10 per cent of its total $6,000,000,000 foreign trade, it is estimated in Washington. The rest was trade with Communist allies and satellites.

Thus, it would appear that Russia's ability to trade with the West is still fairly small and specialized. But its big proposals suggest an effort to turn more of its production outward.

SALVAGE JOB

OSLO (CP) — Salvage workers have taken 25,000 tons of steel from the German battleship Tirpitz, sunk by British bombers near Tromso during the Second World War. Another 10,000 tons is expected to be salvaged from the 45,000-ton wreck.

Edmonton Orchestra Busy, Leader, 9

EDMONTON (CP)—One of Edmonton's most popular three-piece orchestras has to be careful not to play sleep[illegible]me music on late [illegible] The musicians themselves are only a dozen off; the oldest is nine years of age.

The Barabash boys—Richard, 9, Ronnie, 7, and Donnie, 6—have appeared on several radio broadcasts, won first prizes at talent shows and are in popular demand for dances and banquets. They are billed as "The Harmony Kids."

Scattered around the Barabash home are more than $1,000 worth of musical instruments, including three accordians, two saxaphones, drums, a violin, a guitar, a banjo, a ukelele and a piano. Soon trumpet and a clarinet will be added to the equipment.

Nine-year-old Richard leads the orchestra. He plays the accordian, the alto sax and the drums. Ronnie has a small soprano sax and also plays piano and drums. Wee Donnie is official drummer, twangs a ukelele and is taking violin lessons.

Guiding hand behind "The Harmony Kids" is their father, Roy Barabash, himself an accordionist for 20 years. And referee in any family dispute over playing methods is Mrs. Barabash, who cannot read a note of music.

Roy Barabash himself played in quarantined. Unable to meet dance a family musical group in his younger days. With three brothers, one brother's wife and two nephews, he was a member of the "Rhythm Ramblers."

Nehru Believes China Won't Go Beyond Borders

FROM EDGAR DEANE

a tired, overworked man not yet fully recovered from a throat infection when I saw him in his office at the end of his long day.

"Come to my house," he had said, "we can have tea in comfort while we talk there."

It was the first interview the Indian Premier had granted since the American aid controversy began.

He lay back on a deep settee, his eyes half-closed, thinking over my first question: "Do your contacts with Peking lead you to belive that China is now eager to reduce tension in Asia? In particular, do you see a chance of agreement on Korean unity?"

"You know," he said, "it is difficult to enter into the motives of nations. One can only judge from statements. On that basis, I think that the Chinese — along with others — have reached the conclusion that continuing tension can lead nowhere. It is impossible to say anything on Korean unity for the time being. There are so many many suspicions and fears on both sides."

"Do you think," I asked, "that a withdrawal of foreign troops on both sides would increase or lessen the tension in Korea? Could the tension there be reduced while the two hostile States continue to face each other?"

"Well, the withdrawal of foreign troops might help to reduce Chinese suspicions. These suspicions are based on the belief that some Powers are aiming at the overthrow of the present regime in China. Every action reducing that fear would lessen tension."

The Prime Minister spoke slowly, searching for words to voice a hope that sounded slight.

INDO-CHINA WAR

"And do you think China is interested in ending the fighting in Vietnam on any terms which would not give the Communists effective control of the whole country?"

His answer to this was more hopeful. He pointed out that the Vietminh movement started while China was still under Chiang Kai-shek. It started as an anti-colonialist nationalist movement which has come to be more and more under Communist influence. The Chinese Government—Mr. Nehru thought—was presumably interested in not having hostile neighbours on its borders, but beyond that there was no reason why it should not accept a peaceable compromise solution.

"I do not think China has any appetite for adventures beyond her border," said Mr. Nehru. "If the Communists had any expansionist schemes, it could easily use the pretext provided by these Kuomintang troops and invade Burma. No, I think the Chinese want to consolidate, not expand, and I see no reason why they should not accept a peaceable compromise."

In that case, I asked, would the Chinese be willing to instruct Communists in Burma and Malaya to cease guerilla activities, as they apparently had done in the case of India? Mr. Nehru opened his eyes wide and shook a finger at me.

GUERILLAS FIGHTING

"You do not expect me to say the Chinese have control over the Malayan and Burmese guerillas? Why should those guerillas obey the Chinese? However, if the whole weight of the Russian and Chinese Governments is applied to the easing of tension, that will be felt wherever Communist influence is felt."

Recognition of China, Mr. Nehru said, would be a "friendly sign," and both sides must make such signs before tension could be eased.

"But do the Chinese show a willingness for compromise in your present talks over Tibet, for instance?"

"Both sides," he replied, "show willingness for compromise in a greater or lesser degree," and he would not expand his answer.

Mr. Nehru said that an independent non-Communist State should arise in Vietnam, an alliance between that State and its neighbours would not really ensure its security at the present stage of potential conflict between the very big Powers.

"But we must not forget the desire of the peoples for a sense of security, and if such an alliance gives this sense of security, then the alliance should be contracted."

As for using such alliances between Asian States as a substitute for alliances with the two great Power blocs, Mr. Nehru was opposed to any alliance directed against any Power.

SIGN NON-WAR DECLARATION

Specifically, he was not prepared to offer Pakistan a mutual defence pact with India as a substitute for American military aid. He was however, prepared to sign a "no-war" declaration with Pakistan.

"We do not like military agreements even for defence. We do not want any commitments likely to draw us into war. We should like to judge each case on its merits."

"It is said," Mr. Nehru went on, "that my campaign against American military aid to Pakistan, and they might have become dangerous by leading this campaign themselves."

"You mean they are not dangerous now?" I asked. "Are they not trying to infiltrate your provincial Governments?".

If they were trying, the Prime Minister said with a laugh, they were not succeeding very well. The Communists were, of course, making much propaganda and using the poverty of the people for that propaganda. Consequently more aid through the Colombo Plan and from America would stabilise conditions in the whole of South-East Asia. Economic improvement was the best defence against disruptive forces, and he was determined not to reduce expenditure on development.

"We are developing our defence industries but we shall not allow military expenditure to affect our economic development plans. We shall try to let nothing affect that."

"Will not even increasing military strength in Pakistan affect your economic development plans by forcing you to spend on defence?"

Mr. Nehru: "We shall try not to let it."

"And will not American military aid to Pakistan affect your relations with the United States, Russia and China?"

Mr. Nehru: "With Russia and China, certainly not. With the United States—we are slightly affected, of course, by the fact that they have acted in what we consider a non-neutral way."

And with that his daughter ended the interview so that he could rest.

2 Youths Appeal Hanging Convictions

SUDBURY (CP)—Two Montreal youths, sentenced to be hanged May 18 for the murder of Frank Asselin, have appealed their convictions.

G. R. Kinsman, counsel for 18-year-old Jean Guy Henaire, and Leo McMahon, counsel for Emile Bedard, 17, said the appeals are being made jointly and the necessary papers were sent to Toronto Wednesday.

The youths were convicted of murder in the bludgeon-death of Asselin, 53, near here last Oct. 3.

The translation of a statement by the accused and the charge of the judge to the jury are two grounds on which the appeals are based.

COURT SPECTATORS EAT LUNCH—Four women spectators eat their lunch outside the courtroom at Belleville during a recess in the preliminary hearing of Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Bell, charged with murder in the poison-death January 2 of her 52-year-old husband. The dingy county courtroom has been jammed to capacity during the hearing.—(CP Photo).

Has Degeneration Set In?

Taking Stock of Comic Strip

By DICK CAMPBELL

When even the super-genius of satire, Al Capp, can subvert his genius by having Fearless Fosdick blather on behalf of a cream-oil, surely it's a time for taking stock. Surely it's time to take a good long look at the degeneration of the comics.

This is an age of tension. In fact it's so tense that you are considered a rather dubious character if you have a sense of humor. Humor is individualistic, therefore humor is potentially dangerous to all professional viewers-with-alarm. Not a day passes but what some Voice of Doom tells us, in ringing organ tones, that the world is on a one-way route to destruction.

Now it would be fatheaded to deny that the world is truly in desperate straits, but are we not compounding the chaos when we propagandize on behalf of our Way of Life through the comics?

To be successful, the modern comic has to be in dead earnest, and the deader the better. Even the all-American boy, Joe Palooka is now off fighting subversive characters in Japan.

Best drawn of all the strips is Steve Canyon, done by Milton Caniff. Things are quite tolerable when Steve is surrounded by all his outsize girlfriends, but usually he is looking desperately intense, whilst trailing all sorts of sinister types in Red China.

Time was when Al Capp could give many a bellylaugh with his devastating satires of pomp, pretense and incipient fascism, plus a few well-rounded blasts at the Excited States. What has happened to all the nogoodniks of Lower Slobbovia, to Senator Phogbound (McCarran to the core) and all the others who hove within range of Capp's rapier-like wit.

But the rapier is dulled. Abner is married and mellowed. Life in Dogpatch is so circumspect that even an investigating committee couldn't complain too much . . . And Fearless Fosdick keeps selling his pesky cream-oil.

Or take Orphan Annie, the most hateful brat in the whole realm of comics.

Now I'm an animal-lover from way back, but if there is one dog that should be chopped up by The Asp and converted into pard for Tynosaurus Rex, surely it's Little Orphan Annie's Sandy. This big stupid beast has been saying nothing more profound than "Arf" to Annie's inanities for more years than we care to remember.

Incidentally, this gives rise to an idea for a perfect comic plot. Sandy having been eliminated, his poisonous remains become distributed through the comic world. First Tynosaurus Rex, of Mandrake fame pops off, taking Mandrake with him. Other victims could be Mary Worth, Steve Roper and Smiling Jack.

To the rescue charges Superman, but he trips over a piece of kryptonite and is, at last, unmasked as Clark Kent. Then he and Lois could marry up, and the strip could quietly fade away.

Recently Time magazine gave a big splash to the news that Rex Morgan, MD, is written by a doctor. "Time," which usually keeps its head, waxes eloquent about the strip's "realism" as if this were something to be sought after in the comics. A pox on Rex Morgan, and may he fall on his scalpel.

But while realism is to be avoided, surely we don't have to live in the daffy dreamworld of Archie either. Did any of you ever attend a school remotely like this pinbrained clown's alma mater? Imagine how many unsuspecting souls must think that Archie is the protoype of Glorious Youth. Ugh and more ugh.

You see, Archie is as pure as the driven slush. To suggest otherwise would be to slander Youth. But Youth is slandered far worse by being depicted at the idiot level.

Blondie is sometimes good for laughs, but I'm everlastingly against it for two reasons. First, the author never misses an opportunity to portray all door-to-door salesmen as fiends, and having been one I resent it. But more important, every day Dagwood personifies the notion—and it's a notion that is mighty, mighty profitable—that husbands are the curse of humanity—dull oafs to be pitied and [illegible] self-sufficient women.

On the [illegible] Rip Kirby, leering at us superciliously and announcing in sepulchral tones that he is visiting the local fingerprint bureau. Like most detectives, crusaders and do-gooders in the comics he is Einstein, Gregory Peck and Sherlock Holmes all rolled into one.

Probably, if you have read this far, you will have predicted a passionate defense of Pogo as the only worth-while comic strip. But I'm going to fool you all. When Al Capp was at his best, he left Pogo very decidedly among the also-rans and Pogo is still a poor substitute. But he's the best we have at the moment.

But all this, you say is hopelessly negative. True enough. Most everybody, me included, reads the comics, hoping that sometime, somewhere we will come across one that is funny. One that is "pure" enough to be read by anyone from six to 60 and yet does not parade its virture. One that can guarantee a laugh a day. One that brings satire back to the comics.

Humor, the dictionary tells us, is created by a juxtaposition of incongruous ideas. You see a crippled lady trip on a banana peel and you rush to help her. But if you see some pompous ass trip on the same banana peel, you laugh.

Modern comics are dangerous because they lure the reader into believing that the make-believe world of the comics is real. Should not the aim be to create a little make-believe in a real world which is too serious for its own good, without moralizing, without propagandizing and without slushy and insincere portrayals of non-existent people?

But, you say, you want us to put our heads in the sand. On the contrary what could be a more real and useful function than lampooning the bigots, stuffed shirts, mental pygmies and would-be gods who would have us believe that the world needs closed minds?

Censorship is an idea from which most of us recoil, and yet when we see the comics dwelling sadistically on crime (always ensuring that Justice Triumphs through some unbelievably good hero) we are tempted. When we see comic strip "artists" cynically purveying sex to impressionable teenagers, or else innocently pretending it does not exist, we are tempted. And when we see "comics" earnestly propagandizing for Democracy, can we be too critical of the Russian's humor magazine "Krokodil," which distorts and disfigures the western way of life?

To return to Al Capp again, he was popular because he took real situations and subtly exaggerated them to show human foibles at their funniest. Occasionally Jimmy Hatlo of "They'll Do It Every Time" manages to achieve the same effect.

Perhaps it's not too far-fetched to suggest that the comics are symptomatic of a sick, frightened, intimidated world. The man who develops a genuinely funny comic strip, after years of drought, will be performing a real service to this benzedrine and bicarb age of hysteria.

PRINCESS ASHRAF, sister of the Shah of Iran, gets a big hand from women members of the Red Lion and Lamb (the Iranian equivalent of the Red Cross), on her arrival at Mehrabad Airport recently, after being exiled in Europe on charges by the Mossadegh government that she meddled in politics.

Vietminh Hopes Offensive Oust Laniel And End War

By JOHN RODERICK

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP) — Ho Chi Minh, Moscow-tutored chief of Indo-China's Vietminh nationalists, is gambling everything on one big costly battle to discredit the government of France's Premier Joseph Laniel.

More and more this is the view here of Viet Namese and foreign observers familiar with the foxy old revolutionary's tactics.

Ho, these observers say, hopes to precipitate a crisis in the French cabinet by mauling French Union forces at Dien Bien Phu in northwest Indo-China.

This giant politico-military stroke has a two-fold purpose:

To overthrow the Laniel government, which is lukewarm toward peace negotiations with the Vietminh;

To open the field to a peace cabinet, one which could be headed by Pierre Mendes-France, for example, whose views on a swift negotiated end to the war are known.

PLACES GENEVA SECOND

This theory, supported by many sources here, places the Geneva peace conference opening April 26 in second position as a cause of the Dien Bien Phu offensive.

Laniel made it plain last week he has no real desire to meet Ho around the conference table.

The conditions he posed for such a meeting, withdrawal of Ho's troops from the delta areas around Saigon and Hanoi and disbanding of the Vietminh politically and militarily, obviously [illegible] ored to be accepted by a foe as [illegible]

Ho, in an effort to soften up French public opinion, reiterates that his eight-year-long quarrel is not with the French people and that a basis for settling Franco-Vietminh differences exists. The war is continuing, his propagandists say, because the United States will not let France pull out her troops.

It can be taken for granted also that Ho, in going the limit at Dien Bien Phu, has his eyes on the present talks in Paris between the Viet Nam government of Prince Buu Loc and France. Buu Loc is insisting that Viet Nam obtain full independence, then be allowed to decide whether to join the French Union, a federation of France's overseas possessions.

FRENCH STAND STIFFENS

There seems almost no question that Viet Nam would join the union in a watered-down form. The effect, however, of the Dien Bien Phu crisis has been to stiffen France's attitude on this question.

"What?" Frenchmen are asking, "give up Viet Nam while we are losing French blood at Dien Bien Phu?"

France's stand on this point suits Ho and his followers fine. If there is one thing they fear more than anything else it is that former emperor Bao Dai, now Viet Nam [illegible] credit for gaining independence from France.

That would steal the thunder from Ho who has been acknowledged, rightly or wongly, for years [illegible] movement in the eyes of so many Indo-Chinese.

WA Preparing Bale For Shipping

MARMORA (ENS)—St. Paul's WA met in the rectory Wednesday afternoon with a good attendance and the president, Mrs. R. G. Winters in the chair.

Two new members were welcomed by the president.

Members took home dresses to be finished for the bale. Members were asked to bring further articles for the bale to the next meeting. Mrs. T. E. Nickle took the study book "Africa Steps Out." It was decided to accept Mrs. Winter's invitation to hold the next meeting at her home.

'Queen' Sets Record

CHERBOURG, France (Reuters) The liner Queen Elizabeth docked here Wednesday after crossing the Atlantic at an average speed of 29.47 knots—a record for her—despite icebergs on the route. Cmdr. Ivan Thompson, the captain, said she covered the 3,197 miles from New York in four days, 12 hours, 30 minutes. The transatlantic record, over a shorter 2,942-mile route from New York to the English coast, is held by the American liner United States, which averaged 35.50 in July, 1952.

German Parson Held

BERLIN (Reuters) — Roman Catholic Church officials here today announced the first arrest of an East German parson since a church-state truce was concluded last June. He is the Rev. Johannes Tschop of Sonneberg, Thuringia, whose arrest Feb. 27 has just become known here. No official reason was given, but church officials said they believed that he had circulated "undesirable" Christian pamphlets.

Boy Missing From Home

FINGAL (CP)—Provincial police said Wednesday they are searching for David Woodward, 13, who has been missing from his home here since Tuesday afternoon. He was last seen about five miles northeast of here.

Ask Company To Close Plant

BRANTFORD (CP)—Representatives of 11 southwestern Ontario municipalities have decided to ask the Dominion Natural Gas Company to close down its oil-gas plant at Port Stanley because "substantial new quantities of gas" were reported available now in Ontario.

The meeting said the cost of making gas from oil is prohibitive and the cost of maintaining the oil-gas plant should no longer be included in the gas rate.

Another resolution asked the Ontario minister of mines to order a basic rate of $1.05 a thousand cubic feet for gas instead of the present $1.09.

A 25-cent supplementary rate now is charged, bringing the total rate to $1.34 a thousand cubic feet. The company has offered to cut the supplementary rate to 21 cents but Brantford and other municipalities have asked that it be abolished.

Mayor Reginald Cooper of Brantford was chairman of the meeting and representatives attended from Paris, Waterford, Simcoe, Delhi, South Cayuga, Dunnville, Rodney, St. Thomas, Ingersoll and Galt.

Boy Causes Fire

WOODSTOCK (CP)—A boy playing with his chemistry set was blamed for a fire which damaged a home here and drove out four persons Wednesday night. Fire chief Gordon Tripp said the fire started in the basement where Leroy Barney, 14, was playing with his chemistry set.

VC Winner Refuses To Meet Queen

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — Australian war veterans and newspapers today rallied behind a First World War hero who has refused to meet the Queen unless he can bring his wife.

Unqualified support was reported from Jack Axford's Australian army comrades who saw him win the Victoria Cross, Britain's highest military award.

Axford Wednesday turned down an invitation to be presented to the Queen at Perth this Saturday because his wife would not be permitted to sit beside him on a dais at the presentation. He pointed out that Australian parliament members are taking their wives to the dais; he refused arrangements for his wife to sit by herself in the gallery.

Officials ran into more cause for worry today when a huge cross and the inscriptions "Bring out your dead" and "God have mercy on us" were found whitewashed on the door and walls of a ballroom set aside for a royal banquet Saturday. The inscriptions—common sights on disease-stricken homes during epidemics in the middle ages—were thought to be a crank's reference to Western Australia's polio outbreak.

First Nation To Establish Space Station, Rules World

By LEIF ERICKSON

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—Dr. Lincoln La Paz, director of the University of New Mexico's institute of meteoritics, says "the nation first establishing a station in space will win absolute control of the earth.

La Paz is an expert of meteors and meteorites. He has spent his scientific life searching for and studying the cosmic masses which survive flight through the atmosphere and crash into the earth.

La Paz brought Clyde Tombaugh, who in 1930 discovered Pluto, the ninth major planet, to the University of New Mexico in 1946 but soon lost him to the White Sands atomic proving ground.

At White Sands Tombaugh has since organized a search for small nearby moons which may be wheeling undetected about the earth.

If Tombaugh's search for a small nearby satellite—say 1,000 miles up—is successful, La Paz believes it can be manned as a "station in space."

WOULD SAVE DOLLARS

"Using such natural stations would save many billions of dollars of taxpayers money which would otherwise have to be spent building an artificial satellite vehicle," he says.

Why would a space station mean military domination?

"First," La Paz answers, "by providing n ideal site from which to keep hostile areas under telescopic and radar scrutiny. Such a station would speed around the earth every two hours.

"Second, if retalitation becomes necessary, by employing the station in space as a site from which to launch and guide missiles armed with atomic or hydrogen warheads."

Dr. Ervin Bramhall, army ordnance research chief, in comment on Tombaugh's satellite search, said, "It's a little premature to be talking about space stations . . . although maybe we'll be thinking of such things in about five years."

La Paz says: "As long ago as the 1920s Hermann Oberth in Germany clearly pointed out the military potential of stations in space. Other nations have been thinking of occupying such stations for 25 years."

RUSSIA HAS EXPERTS

The United States, he said, got Wernher von Braun, under whom the V-2 rocket was developed at the Nazis' Peenemunde Centre. The Russians captured the great majority of the Peenemunde rocket experts and have long had control of the German rocket bases along the Baltic.

[illegible] cannot say [illegible] count the progress that German rocket and space scientists may have made," says La Paz.

"Also Russian study of meteoritics is much better systematized and far better financed than here.

At White Sands, which missile research makes the spot on earth closest to space, the acknowledged rocket altitude record is only 250 miles. This was achieved by a two-stage rocket—a V-2 from which a smaller one was launched near the peak of the V-2's straight-up flight.

MANY PROBLEMS SEEN

La Paz concedes there are many separate problems to solve before real space flight is possible.

Such hazards as space dust, meteorite impact, and cosmic ray bombardment must be overcome. The problems of mere existence in zero gravity must be solved.

Fuels producing necessary power [illegible] incredible temperatures must be produced.

La Paz contends that organized direction, as in the Manhattan project which produced the atom bomb, would achieve the step-by-step progress required.

Catch 2 Men In Wild Chase

HAMILTON (CP) — Two men apprehended following a wild, 90-mile-an-hour chase on Highway 2, early this morning, pleaded guilty before magistrate Beamer W. Hopkins today to charges of car theft and the possession of burglar tools.

Edward Joseph Smith, 21, and Allan Aikerton, 20, were sentenced to 18 months on each count, to run concurrently.

Detectives James Lawrence and George Larson chased the stolen car, Detective Larson firing 11 shots before the vehicle came to a halt near Cainsville.

A third man, who police say was riding in the back of the car, leaped out seconds before it came to a stop, and made his escape through nearby fields.

Police Help Quell Riot In Hospital

CROWNSVILLE, Md. (AP) — A short-lived riot at Crownsville state hospital for insane Negro prisoners was put down Wednesday night by attendants aided by county and state police.

Dr. Arnold Eichert, superintendent of the hospital, said 28 patients on the top floor of C building caused about $700 interior damage. Reason for the outbreak was not immediately indicated.

Four patients described as the ringleaders were taken to the county jail in Annapolis.

Lindsay Crew Ties Series With 3-1 Win

LINDSAY (ENS)—The Lindsay Muskies tied their OHA quarter final intermediate "A" series with the Parry Sound Shamrocks at two games each here last night. The Muskies gained a 3-1 verdict in a gruelling game witnessed by a capacity crowd of 1,500 at the Lindsay Kiwanis arena. Parry Sound took a first period lead then lost it in the second and the Muskies wrapped up the win with two third period goals. Goal tenders O'Connell for the Muskies and Dagenais for the Shamrocks were great throughout as both teams went into a free-wheeling style of play.

Ferneyhough gave the Shamrocks a lead late in the first period as he stopped on the ice after a penalty to combine with George Ryder slapping Ryder's rebound over O'Connell after the Lindsay goal-tender had made the first save. The Muskies had a slight edge in the second but could only score once, Kelly tallying while his team was short-handed. The big red-head broke out during a Parry Sound ganging play and whipped his own rebound back at Dagenais for the goal.

HAD AN EDGE

The Muskies finally began to gain a big edge in the final period as the Shamrocks fired rapidly. The break came at the halfway mark when Denny Labine, the losers' big gun, was sent off for boarding. Bill Burns cut Packer loose at the Shamrock blue line and the fleet Fenelonite cut behind the defence to beat Gagenais cleanly from point-blank range. Tommy Hutton sewed up the game with less than three [illegible] remaining when, after [illegible] Shamrock net for some minutes, he took Stu Hicks' pass right in front and slid the puck under Dagenais. The Shamrocks were too exhausted to try and tie the score in the remaining minutes. The game was rough throughout though most of the offences penalized were of the unintentional variety.

Referees Payne and Cromble handed out 15 penalties, eight to the visitors, including three to Ferniehough and a misconduct to Percival in the third period. Neil Ryder, captain of the Shamrocks, received a bad bruise on each shin late in the second period and though injury was at first thought serious, he reported in shape by the end of the game. O'Connell, Hicks, Parker, Crawford, Sinclair, Hennessey and Davis were great for the Muskies who needed the win desperately while Dagenais, Abbott, Empie, O'Shell, Labine and George Ryder led the losers.

Doesn't Know All Law Says City Solicitor

Not in the nature of a confession, not even in a shameful whisper, but rather in clear, ringing tones did city solicitor W. F. Huycke declare to a partly-filled magistrate's court today, that he did "not know all about law." He was quite adamant on this point of his lacking, and was evidently quite happy to have his statement recorded in the press.

It all started Wednesday during the hearing of a store-closing by-law case when the reporter considered he heard Mr. Huycke say "I know all the law."

Mr. Huycke, supported today by Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw and lawyer W. B. Gordon, declared that the reporter heard wrong, or didn't hear or something . . .

Mr. Huycke said that the report of the case, a summary of bylaw validity arguments, was inaccurate.

"I didn't say 'I know all the law'," he commented. "I said Mr. Gordon and I were familiar with the points of law regarding this particular case . . . . It is impossible for any lawyer to know all the law . . . It makes me sound just like Goliath of Gath when he came up against the Israelites."

Mr. Gordon mentioned that he had been "somewhat surprised" on reading the report in the press and was quite satisfied that Mr. Huycke had been misreported.

NOT SUPERMAN

Magistrate Philp: "I am not in a position of directing what will go in the local paper or in any other paper. I'm sure that anyone who knows you, Mr. Huycke, will not think that you hold yourself as being a superman."

The magistrate added that it was regrettable that some of the statements which appeared in the press seemed often to misconstrue the real text.

In the printed story of the case Mr. Huycke was promising the magistrate that he would submit [illegible] arguments and said "I will have it all there: I know all [illegible] law."

Mr. Gordon, opposing counsel, is reported to have said: "I wouldn't be quite so boastful; it seems to me there could be a text book written on the subject."

However, today, Mr. Gordon was supporting Mr. Huycke's allegations.

Buses, Streetcars Not Very Popular

DETROIT (AP) — American public transit officials agreed today that buses and streetcars are fine—for the other fellow.

An inquiring reporter at the American Transit association's convention sounded them out on whether they rode their own public transportation regularly. Privately, they said no.

"Frankly," said one, "I just have to get around too fast."

The 300 delegates decided that an intensive selling campaign on the virtues of public transportation is needed.

Euchre Party Nets $13

HAVELOCK (ENS) — The weekly euchre party sponsored by the Ladies' Auxiliary to the local branch of the Canadian Legion was well attended, Monday evening.

Ten tables were played with the following prize winners: first, Mrs. Alex Simpson; second, Mrs. M. Parcells; third, Mrs. E. Alley, Trent River; consolation, T. Cummins.

The proceeds amounted to $13.50.

Varying Reports About Schine

WASHINGTON (AP) — There were varying reports today whether Pte. G. David Schine, centre of the McCarthy-army row, will be a student in the United States army's criminal investigators school at Camp Gordon, Ga.

The Washington Post-Times Herald reported Schine won assignment to the school with some of the normal entrance requirements waived.

On the other hand, the Augusta (Ga.) Chronicle said Schine has been refused admittance to the school. Quoting an unnamed source, The Chronicle said Schine's application apparently was rejected in Washington earlier this week and was returned to Camp Gordon with orders for reassignment.

The Augusta papers quoted the source as saying Schine has a new assignmen which is "a pretty good deal."

The Post-Times Herald quoted an unnamed defence official as saying Schine will become a student in the advanced course of the criminal investigators school next week. The army has said Senator McCarthy, for whom Schine used to work, had tried to get special treatment for him after he was drafted.

Brake Workers Get 5-Cent Raise

Employees of the Dominion Brake Shoe Co., Lindsay, have received a five-cent-an-hour wage increase, negotiated by Local 4927, United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL).

Announcement of the settlement was made today by M. J. Fenwick, Oshawa and district representative. The increase went into effect Monday.

Another contract change provides that legal holidays falling on Saturday will be celebrated on Friday and those falling on Sunday will be observed on Monday. The employees are paid for seven legal holidays.

The increase brings the basic labor rate in the plant to $1.19½. Although the agreement expires March 31 the pay boost was put into effect on March 22.

Local 4927 was certified as the bargaining agent of the employees last April. Its first agreement was signed last November and was dated back to April 1. The new contract will run from April 1 this year until March 31, 1955.

Taking part in negotiations for the company were D. K. Rennie, L. H. Evans and G. D. Conolly. Union negotiators were J. D Angiers, A F. Burke, Donald Cracknell and M. J. Fenwick.

Mr. Fenwick said the agreement will be signed as soon as new drafts are prepared.

Belgium's Catholic Party Faces Severe Test In Forthcoming Election

By SERGE NABOKOFF

BRUSSELS (Reuters)—Some 5,500,000 Belgians will vote in Belgium's fourth post - war general election April 11, to elect a new Parliament charged with the task of bringing the country's 123-year-old constitution in line with the need for European unity.

The Catholic party whose one-party government under Jean van Houtte last fall decided that the new Parliament also would serve as a constituent assembly faces a severe test in the coming election.

[illegible] ing under two slogans which, they feel, should appeal to many Roman Catholic voters: first, they call for 18 months military training instead of the present 21. Second, they accuse the one-party government of alleged leniency toward convicted wartime collaborators.

Other Opposition criticisms include the rising cost of living, persisting unemployment, heavy taxes and alleged favoring of the Catholic Church in the educational and colonial domains.

The Catholics (Social Christians) retort that they are forced, at least for the time being, to maintain the present conscription period to meet the country's military obligations, and that their policy toward wartime collaborators is aimed at "redressing some excessive punishments and readapting minor offenders to civic life."

COSTS HIGHER EVERYWHERE

They also argue that the rising cost of living affects all neighboring countries, that unemployment is, if anything, dropping, that taxes are kept high by defence programs and that reproaches of "clericalism" are "an old Socialist and Liberal hobby-horse."

During the last election, in 1950, just over 47.5 per cent of the Belgian electorate voted Catholic. Socialists obtained 34.5 per cent and Liberals 11 per cent. Only 4.7 per cent voted Communist.

These results gave the Catholics a majority of four seats in the [illegible] Lower House, and of seven in the Senate.

WANT SENATE MAJORITY

Some Catholic politicians consider the loss of their majority in the lower House a foregone conclusion. All they hope is to retain a slender majority in the Senate.

There are two main reasons for this:

In 1950, when the elections were largely fought over the "royal problem," for or against King Leopold's return to the throne, royalist Liberals (some three per cent of the traditional Liberal following) voted with the Catholics, who supported the exiled king. This time, there will be no split in the Liberal party.

The second reason for a probable Catholic setback in the elections is the appearance of two splinter parties. One is the "Flemish Christian People's Union," successors to the "Flemish Concentration," which caused election losses to the Catholic party in the 1949 elections.

Another "rebel party" called "Freedom's Social Christian rally," hopes to win some 70,000 votes, mostly from the Catholic party.

Drew Pearson, McCarthy Trade Espionage Accusations

WASHINGTON (CP) — Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.) and [illegible] Pearson have accused each other of responsibility for violating the Espionage Act.

McCarthy started the exchange at a meeting of the Senate's appropriations sub-committee Monday by asking Attorney-General Brownell about an espionage case involving one of the columnist's aides.

He was ruled out of order by other committee members but Brownell said he would check into the matter.

[illegible] committee Brownell had advised him the case is still "under active investigation" and the secretary could not disclose any details.

Pearson commented that McCarthy was repeating "an old charge he made last summer but was never able to substantiate."

Pearson added that he has asked Brownell to investigate McCarthy's release for publication of documents which Pearson contended should have been kept secret.

Find Faults In Arena Architect Cuts Fee

SUDBURY (CP) — Architect J. B. Sutton has reduced his fee by $4,166 after George Panter, manager of the $1,250,000 Sudbury arena, and members of board of control complained of faults in the structure.

Mr. Sutton, in a letter to the board Wednesday termed his reduction a "donation". He now will receive $45,000.

There were complaints at a board meeting of faulty wiring, a vent pipe omitted in the plans, faulty installation of seats which broke loose in groups of up to 14, and leaking walls.

Controller Ray Jessup said there were "a thousand things wrong" but some might be the fault of the contractor or of the committee in charge of the arena project.

The building was opened in 1951 but not completed until 1952.

Escapes Bay Drowning But Dies In Bathtub

SEATTLE (AP) — Stanley J. Dec escaped with his life Tuesday when his car plunged from the end of a pier into the deep waters of Salmon bay.

Wednesday he died by drowning in a bathtub.

A coroner said Dec, 33, was admitted to a sanitarium Tuesday for treatment of "general depressiveness." Wednesday morning another patient found him in the bathtub.

Dec and his five-year-old son, Thomas, were in a car which rolled off the pier Tuesday. Dec managed to open a window and escape through it, pulling the boy with him.

Accident Victim's Condition Critical

OWEN SOUND (CP) — The condition of Keith Allan, 22, of Toronto, severely injured Wednesday in a head-on automobile collision which killed two other men, was described today as "very critical."

The crash occurred two miles east of Shallow Lake and about 10 miles west of here. Two cars met at the top of a sharp rise.

Killed were Harvey Cragg, Jr., of Shallow Lake, and G. P. Gregson of Toronto.

To Spend $562,000 For 6 Artificial Rinks

TORONTO (CP)—Board of control has approved in principle a $562,000 capital program for six new outdoor artificial ice rinks. They will replace about 40 natural ice rinks.

The six rinks would bring to 10 the number in Toronto. Two of them will be permanent; the others portable.

Truck Driver Injured

TORONTO (CP)—Truck driver Jack Nuttal of Brantford was severely injured Wednesday when a truck tire blew up while he was examining it. Nuttal suffered a fractured skull and underwent brain surgery in hospital here. Police said Nuttal was using a small sledge hammer to tap the tire into the rim when the tire blew up.

Double Murder Case Closed In London

LONDON (AP) — The bizarre case of the double murder in the old folks' home was closed today, with Ronald Chesney, suicide husband of one of the dead women, named officially as the slayer. Police believe he killed his wife last February to get her £10,000 legacy and marry a pretty German sweetheart.

A coroner's jury decided Wednesday that Chesney drowned his wife, Isobel, 42, in her bathtub then strangled her 73-year-old mother, "Lady" Menzies, when she happened upon the scene.

Five days later Chesney shot himself dead in Cologne, Germany, leaving a note claiming his innocence. Police said he had a long record as a smuggler and adventurer.

Rubber Industry Progress Predicted

TORONTO (CP)—A rubber company executive said today the industry has made outstanding achievements and is destined for greater progress in the future.

P. W. Litchfield, board chairman of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Canada, said no "basic industry can boast of a more consistent record of technological progress, or a better record of passing on the rewards of this progress than the rubber industry."

He said in a speech prepared for delivery before the Empire Club that as far as the rubber industry was concerned 1953 was a record-breaker. There likely would be some tapering off in 1954 but the long range outlook was good good.

Put On Probation For Joyride

Robert Stenner of 398 George St., the 17-year-old schoolboy who went joy-riding to Toronto in a brand new car on March 11, appeared before Magistrate W. R. Philp, QC, today for sentence.

The youth received a two-year suspended sentence, the first year of which will be served on probation.

"We're all willing to give you a chance," said the magistrate. "But you will have to illustrate by your conduct that probation is of some value to you. If you adopt the attitude that this is an easy way out and do not comply with the rules of probation, then you will be brought back here and sentenced on the original charge."

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw: "The sentence for which runs up to one year."

Trying To Provide Dormitory Space

TORONTO (CP)—C. S. McKee, general manager of the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair, says the fair executive is trying to provide adequate dormitory space for herdsmen at the show in November.

Speaking to the fair's annual meeting Wednesday, he said the city has been asked to provide a dormitory building.

He said no dog show will be held this year because the event lost money last year.

President S. G. Benett said the fair ended 1953 with a surplus of $16,164.

The Ontario government and the city of Toronto had each offered $1,000,000 to the fair's building program, provided the federal government matched the figure.

Suggests No Pay Hikes

TORONTO (CP)—A note suggesting curtailment of wage increases to retail lumber employees is being distributed to members of the Ontario Retail Lumber Dealers' Association, the association said Wednesday. The note said 1954 "is expected to be a year of reduction of the cost factors, including wages."

POCKETFUL OF SAFETY—Worn like a hearing aid, this experimental radio developed by J. J. Suren, left, and W. F. Chou, is designed primarily for civil defence usage. It is tuned to a single broadcast frequency and will be used by radio stations in broadcasting civil defence messages to the public. Use of germanium devices, instead of conventional radio utbes, enables the radio to operate on two small dry cells for more than a month before battery replacement. According to the Syracuse, N.Y., manufacturer, the radio needs more study before it can be mass-produced.

Don't Want To Harm People With Publicity On Security Dismissals

OTTAWA (CP)—The government says it takes no security risks with its employees, but does not want to harm individuals by publicity concerning civil service dismissals and transfers for security reasons.

Prime Minister St. Laurent informed the Commons Wednesday that the number of security dismissals and transfers is "not very numerous."

However, he made no direct reply to a question by Davie Fulton (PC—Kamloops) as to the number of civil servants affected by security precautions since Jan. 1, 1947.

Mr. St. Laurent said that in answering questions the government must consider the possibility of identification "that will cause unnecessary prejudice to an individual who has not had any trial, against whom no charge has been brought, but who, we feel, it would be undesirable to take risks for."

It would be difficult, if not impossible, to provide a breakdown of dismissals or transfers and the reason for each, and even if that could be done it might be "not in the best interests of the public to make that kind of list public."

NOT COURT

"We merely attempt to discharge our responsibility to be careful. We are not in the position of a court trying an individual and having to direct evidence, but we have rather to have the benefit of the doubt, if any, go the other way.

"If there is any doubt about the likelihood of there being disloyalty, we just cannot take any risks; but we do not feel we are making any kind of a conviction that would justify branding an individual in [illegible] the community generally."

He said Communist or Fascist activities or associations are not the only reasons for dismissals or transfers. Others were "indications of weakness of personality or character habits and circumstances that render a person susceptible to pressure or blackmail, or unintentional discretions."

NO APPEAL SYSTEM

He added: "On the whole, Canada is entitled to be proud of both the loyalty and devotion of most of its public servants."

In reply to Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton), Mr. St. Laurent said the government has not yet found any workable appeal system.

The government had considered providing appeals for civil servants dismissed or transferred as security risks, but was not convinced there would be any greater assurance of fairness by going beyond the present procedure.

THE DRIVER WALKED AWAY — This Gary, Ind., police accident investigation car—of all things to be in a smashup—is pretty well demolished. But Patrolman John Feuerstein, the driver, crawled out and walked away with only minor bruises and scratches. He was chasing a speeder at 80 m.p.h. when another car cut in front of him. Feuerstein swerved. His car smashed into two traffic signals and rolled over several times. Looking over the "miracle" wreck are John Panchak, left, and Toney Franke, garage mechanics.

35-Man Delegation Asks Moratorium On Mortgages

TORONTO (CP)—A 35-man delegation representing 4,000-odd unemployed in the Welland area, has asked Premier Frost for a moratorium on mortgages for fellow-residents who occupy privately-financed houses.

The delegation made its appearance Wednesday following oral assurance by Trade Minister Howe that unemployed owners of Central Mortgage and Housing properties in the area will not be evicted for mortgage arrears.

Nick Farkas, president of the Welland-Crowland Union of Unemployed, said the situation has reached "full depression conditions."

Officials of the provincial-treasurer's department, although expressing sympathy for the delegates, said any such provincial action would result in serious effects on building throughout the province, causing a freezing of funds now available for construction.

Mr. Frost said the province will give serious study to the situation although the major responsibility rested with federal authorities.

Aerial Newcomers

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—European black-headed gulls from such areas as Siberia have been seen in increasing numbers in Newfoundland. A federal wild life official said the killing of whales on Newfoundland coasts may have enticed the gulls to switch their winter range from warmer climates.

Two Germans On Tribunal

OTTAWA (CP)—Two members of the five-man tribunal which recommended commutation of the life sentence of German SS Maj.-Gen. Kurt Meyer to 14 years were Germans, the government disclosed Wednesday.

The information was given in a parliamentary return tabled in the Commons for Colin Cameron (CCF—Nanaimo).

Meyer, 43, was convicted Dec. 28, 1945, by a Canadian court-martial of inciting his troops to deny quarter to Allied soldiers and of responsibility in the mass shootings of 18 Canadian prisoners.

He was originally sentenced to death but this was reduced to life imprisonment. Defence Minister Claxton announced Jan. 15 that this life term was being reduced to 14 years. With time off for good behavior, Meyer can be released from prison in the British zone of Germany as early as Sept. 7 this year.

Revision Court Cuts Quaker Oats, CGE Assessment

Decisions affecting the assessments of two of Peterborough's largest industries were handed down by the court of revision Wednesday afternoon.

The court confirmed a revision in the assessment of the Quaker Oats Co. as agreed upon by the company and Assessment Commissioner J. E. Davis prior to the hearing. The agreement was for a reduction of $102,350 in the $1,209,250 assessment of the company's property, entailing an automatic reduction of $61,410 in the business assessment.

The court also confirmed the assessor's recommendation that the business assessment on the company's retail store on Simcoe St. be reduced by $5,020, from 60 per cent to 30 per cent.

CGE JUDGMENT

Shortly after the hearing, the court issued a written judgment, confirming the assessment of the Canadian General Electric Company, subject to the correction of errors, acknowledged by the assessment department, amounting to a total net reduction of $124,579.

In regard to questions raised by CGE in the matter of the court's jurisdiction and the validity of the 1953 assessment roll, the court decided to leave them "to the determination of a higher authority."

OPINION EVIDENCE

As to evidence that the methods used in last year's re-assessment of CGE were invalid, the court found that "the appellant's evidence—is largely opinion evidence of fact."

In the course of the 2½-day hearing of the CGE appeal against an assessment of $4,753,868, the company's legal counsel, Fred Parkinson, QC, disputed the court's jurisdiction, arguing that they had no statutory authority to hear appeals after the end of January.

He argued further that the assessment was invalid, inasmuch as it was made, not by the assessment commissioner, as required by the Assessment Act, but by the Charles Warnock Co. of Hamilton, according to a formula which did not comply with the requirements of the act.

Mr. Parkinson submitted that the CGE assessment should be reduced to approximately $2½ million, the amount shown on the 1952 assessment roll and almost exactly the same as the estimate of the normal rental value of the buildings made by Stanley Adamson, the company's local manager of accounting.

SURPRISE MOVE

At the conclusion of the case for CGE last Thursday, the city's counsel, T. J. Carley, QC, in a surprise move, announced he would submit no evidence on behalf of the assessment department, arguing it was the duty of the appellant to show that their assessment was too high. He said they had failed in this because their evidence was not factual with the exception of certain errors.

The written judgment of the court was handed down after Wednesday afternoon's brief hearing and was signed by Chairman John Harstone and the other two members, T. C. Ephgrave and Fred Finnie. It read, in part:

"The appeals in question (there were actually three appeals, involving the main plant, the old portion of the CGE porcelain plant and the new portion of the porcelain plant) are most substan-

Car Goes Solo 500 Ft. Bangs Into Hydro Pole

About $150 damage was sustained by a '47 model car which took a short solo run down Edinburgh St. at 8.30 p.m. Wednesday.

Owned by Gerald Fish, 286 Edinburgh St., the car had been left parked on the north side of the street, facing west. For some unaccountable reason, it moved away from the curb, ran downgrade across Rubidge St. and ended up against a hydro pole, some 500 feet from its starting point. The hydro pole lost a few splinters.

Constable W. A. Scott investigated.

At Monaghan Rd. and Charlotte St. two vehicles driven by William Miller, 636 Homewood Ave., and John Wolsterholme, 561 Walnut St., collided about noon Wednesday. Total damage to the vehicles was estimated at $200.

Constable Edward Stephen investigated.

Operation Costs Home For Aged $10.19 A Person

The average weekly cost of keeping a person at the County Old People's Home was $10.19 in 1953.

This figure fluctuates considerably from year to year. In 1951 the weekly cost of keeping a resident was $9.52 and in 1952 it was slashed to $6.52.

Robert McAdam, chairman, gave his 1953 report at the March session that ended today. Some much-needed improvements accounted for most of the increase in cost.

The barn was painted, and this with repairs cost $2,316. Two wells were also drilled on the property, costing another $613.

The report shows that 20 people were living in the home at the beginning of 1953. Five more were admitted during the year; six were discharged or left, and two died. So the number of inmates Jan. 1, 1954, was 17.

Expenditures were: drugs $54.47, light and power $648.21, insurance $131, fuel $168.18, shoes $41.91, bread and flour etc. $425.80, clothing $214.69, tobacco $117.55, meat $650.99, groceries and provisions $2,187.85, farm stock and feed, etc. $3,290.70, ordinary repairs and painting $2,315.55, house furnishings $1,016.58, inmates' pensions $648, welfare to residents (pensions returned) $408.34, telephone $130.45, drilling wells $613, miscellaneous $132.05, cleaning supplies $185.69, superintendent and matron $2,190, physician $250, and house staff $1,384. Total $17,205.01.

Receipts were: old age pensions $4,524.56, war veterans' allowances $135.23, private boarding patients $1,095, sale of produce $1,833.55, and miscellaneous $56.52. Total $7,644.86.

Difference between receipts and expenditures over the year was $9,560.15. There was a total of 6,566 inmate days or 938 weeks spent in the Old People's Home.

Contest For Children Building Bird Houses

The spring bird house building contest, co-sponsored by the Peterborough Nature Club and the recreation commission, has begun. Entry forms will be distributed to all the schools and those interested must have registered by April 10.

There are three age groups: children under 10, 10 to 12, and 13 to 15, and a first and second prize will be offered in each class. The type of bird house is limited to songbirds only.

Educators In Britain Try To Establish New Methods

The aim of the British educational system is to create a "parity of esteem" between the traditional grammar schools and the newly-developed "secondary-modern" schools, Dr. R. N. Arnfelt, professor of education at Leeds University in England, told 175 Peterborough teachers at the Empress on Wednesday night.

Some traditions of education are so firmly implanted in British society, said Dr. Arnfelt, that it has sometimes been difficult to put this theory into practice. Particularly at the secondary-modern level, education is in a state of flux.

Since the secondary modern school has never been a part of the educational tradition; it tends to borrow the techniques of other systems. This, said Dr. Arnfelt, creates confusion since the elementary schools have little to offer the secondary - modern schools, and grammar - school methods cannot apply in schools designed for different intellects.

EXPERIMENTING

The secondary-modern school, roughly parallel to the Canadian vocational school, "has not found itself yet, though there have been some interesting experiments." On the one side, Dr. Arnfelt pointed out, this system is attacked by the Labor Party for suggesting that intellects of grammar school students are superior in quality instead of different in kind. It has also been attacked by supporters of the traditional grammar school who see a "levelling-out" in education.

"All men are equal but some are more equal than others." Dr. Arnfelt said that this quote (from George Orwell's Animal Farm) expressed the view of some traditionalists who see British education on the decline.

The grammar schools, which date back to the sixth century, were among the first educational institutions in England. Originally these were designed to teach Latin for medicine, law, diplomacy, etc. "Other reasons were invented later" for the continued existence of grammar schools, said Dr. Arnfelt, and a grammar school education was "absolutely necessary to a gentleman."

Dr. Arnfelt quoted an English bishop of the last century describing the grammar schools of the day as providing scholars with the "opportunity to look down with contempt on the masses and positions of emolument both in this world and the world to come."

GROWING REFORM

But even as the grammar schools became less aristocratic, they were still swimming against an ever-growing current of reform in England. By the beginning of the 19th century people were beginning to realize that, valuable as the work of the grammar schools was, it was not enough for a society becoming more and more complex.

By 1816 certain clerics came to the conclusion that it might be useful to teach English to the masses, and thus the elementary school tradition was born. But the clerics were cautious. They felt that while a knowledge of reading would encourage reading of the scriptures, knowledge of writing might create a "disrelish for the laborious occupations of life."

A social motive for education developed about this time as one K. Shuttleworth found England's first training school. His view was that "schools are better than reformatories or prisons" and they

Lindsay Man Holds Ticket In Sweepstake

LINDSAY (ENS) — A Lindsay man, George Jordan, has drawn a horse in the Irish hospital sweepstake on the Grand National steeplechase to be raced this Saturday.

Official confirmation of the draw was received here Wednesday, though Mrs. Jordan was unable to state which horse her husband had drawn. Mr. Jordan, a worker with the CNR out of Belleville, is in Madoc and unavailable for comment from here.

He has been buying sweepstake tickets for some time, according to his wife, but this was the first time he had drawn a horse in the big race. The official list of tickets drawn by Canadians published earlier this week did not list a Lindsay number or name, but one ticket drawn for an Ontario holder did not list a town, and it is thought this may be Mr. Jordan's number. "We're quite pleased by it all, of course," said Mrs. Jordan.

Rambling Reporter

WHAT ANOTHER FIRE ! ! !

Firemen were slightly amazed when a call was received this morning about a fire at Loblaw's store. At first they though it was the Charlotte St. store but were told it was at the gutted store on George St. Sure enough when they arrived at the razed store, they found a small fire. It was burning in the remains of the Superior Propane store. With the help of pouring rain, they had the blaze out in minutes with a booster line.

Points of View

A Lone Crocus Blooms On A Cold Wet Day

By PHIL CALDER

It was a small thing, but it was significant, said the man in the public library.

His threadbare coat and trousers didn't match and they were still wet from the morning downpour he had just escaped. There was nothing in his appearance to suggest he was an habitue of the reading room except as a refugee from the elements.

"It's a sign of hope anyway," he went on, fixing his solemn gaze on the window, where a steady stream of water made a wavy pattern like the surface of a flooded delta.

The reporter ran his chilled fingers through his hair to keep the water from running down his face and blew a trumpet-blast on his handkerchief.

"What's so significant?" he asked morosely, punctuating his question with a violent sniffle.

The man placed one gnarled hand on the open page of Fortune magazine and eased himself around with a scrape of his chair to face his interrogator.

ON CITY HALL LAWN

"The first crocus came up on the city hall lawn today," was the reply.

"So what?" said the dispirited reporter. "The circulation manager reported some growing in his garden on Wednesday."

"That ain't the point," said the man. His shirt was open at the throat revealing a scrawny neck where the outline of a prominent Adam's apple bobbed up and down as he spoke.

The heavy morning rain had evidently chilled his bones and sometimes his sentences were interrupted by a rasping cough. The cough could have been chronic; he was obviously unemployed.

"The point about this here crocus at the city hall," he went on, dabbing his loose jowls with a red and white polka-dotted handkerchief, "is that it's ours. It belongs to all of us."

IN NO MOOD

"You must have been reading Edgar Guest," snorted the reporter, putting his soaking topcoat back on and making ready to go. He was in no mood for home-spun philosophy on a day like this.

The man's features assumed a look compounded of bewilderment and scorn.

"Smart young feller, ain't ya," he said. "Listen, sonny. Go tell your ma you met a bum that didn't have an overcoat to keep the snow off this winter nor a suit of underwear that wasn't full of holes. And this here bum is a mite thankful to see the spring comin' on."

The reporter walked out the door of the library and down George St. The water on the sidewalk made a squishy sound under his shoes and the rain was cold on his face.

At the south end of the city hall, he looked and there it was. It was green and fresh and tender looking, like the flowers in a fashion ad in a picture magazine.

Boy, this rain will sure clean up the dirt and soot from the streets, he thought.

Councillors Blast Business Tax On Some Farmers

A blast against business assessment was delivered today in the closing minutes of the Peterborough county council's March session.

It was touched off by Reeve Dave McIntyre of Otonabee township who said that farmers with trucks are being assessed business tax.

He cited the case of two Otonabee farmers who were assessed on their trucks by the township assessor on the advice of the county assessor, Stewart Sparling.

The tax is unfair, he said. The men—Harry McIntyre and Roy Faux— are not carrying on transportation but are drovers. Both bought and sold cattle in addition to keeping a herd themselves.

The court of revision refused to decide whether McIntyre and Faux were liable to business assessment on the grounds they didn't have jurisdiction to decide this point. The appeal was then taken to Judge John de N. Kennedy, county judge; but he decided that he, too, didn't have jurisdiction to settle this point and dismissed the appeal with costs.

TO SUPREME COURT

"I was told this morning that they will have to take the matter to the Supreme Court in Toronto," said Mr. McIntyre.

"I've always argued against business tax in rural municipalities," said Mr. McIntyre. "I know our township have had and will have a lot of trouble with it."

[illegible] said that a poultry farmer, Dave McNeil of Norwood, had a somewhat similar experience. He sold eggs to a wholesaler in Montreal; yet he was ruled a wholesaler not a producer.

NO EXPLANATION

"I can't understand why one man has to pay a 75 per cent business tax on real estate and others 25 per cent," said Reeve William C. Grant of Lakefield. "I don't think anybody can explain it."

"It puts the local municipal councils in an uneviable position," continued Reeve Grant. "They can't give reasons that make sense.

"It might be a good idea on the part of all municipalities to abandon the business assessment, by mutual consent, and let the department know about it."

Reeve Nixon said that those that do pay business tax, say in a village, don't get protection. A producer like Harold Doig can come in from the country, sell his potatoes to stores and then turn around and retail them door-to-door.

Because he is selling his own produce he is not forced to pay a pedlar's licence or any other licence. This is unfair competition for the shopkeepers paying business tax, said Mr. Nixon.

"The whole business assessment idea is wrong," said Reeve E. J. Leeson of Havelock. "But that's the law."

Warden Willard Waterman of North Monaghan said that every assessor perjures himself when he takes his oath. He swears to assess property at its full value; yet none of the assessors do it.

The discussion ended with a resolution directing the assessment committee to study the subject and bring in a report.

Three Recruits Added To Police Force

"Your success, and the success of the police force as a whole, depends upon genial relationship with the public," said Judge John DeN. Kennedy addressing three recruits to the city police force at a commission meeting Wednesday. He added that it was not the duty of a police officer to punish, but rather serve and control the public.

The three officers, chosen from seven "high quality" applicants, are Frederick A. Grant, 23, native of Halifax, N.S., and presently employed in local industry; Morley K. Sugitt, 29, native of Fenelon Falls, presently a local salesman; and John V. Hayes, 27, of Peterborough, presently an insurance salesman.

All these men are married and [illegible] Their appointment, subject to successful medical examination, will be April 1. They will start as fourth class constables. Mr. Grant and Mr. Sugitt have served in the active army. Mr. Hayes has completed one year's study in chartered accountancy and one year of a BA course.

Oscar Awards To Be Televised For First Time

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Oscar will have his biggest audience tonight when the 26th annual Academy Awards are handed out before millions of lookers and listeners on TV and radio.

The biggest star splurge in television history will be seen during the hour - and - a - half show. The United States armed forces radio service will send the broadcast to 75 stations from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Pago Pago, Samoa.

The Oscar winners will even be heard behind the Iron Curtain via the AFRS station at Bremerhaven.

For the first time, the Oscar event will be staged visually for the benefit of TV viewers. Director-designer Mitchell Leisen, whose films are noted for eye appeal, is putting on the affair.

AMOUR TOP CONTENDER

The song nominations will be danced as well as sung. Among the performers are Ann Blyth, Mitzi Gaynor, Dean Martin, Vic Damone, Donald O'Connor and Connie Russell. The song race is considered a tight match between "That's Amore" and "Secret Love."

Among those scheduled to present the awards are Elizabeth Taylor, Michael Wilding, Esther Williams, Marge and Gower Champion, Gene Tierney, Kirk Douglas, Irene Dunne, Walter Brennan, Mercedes McCambridge and Cecil B. DeMille. Another presenter is a fellow who used to play bit parts in movies but has since made a name for himself on TV—Jack (Dragnet) Webb.

In keeping with tradition, the winners of last year will present the awards to the best actor and actress of 1953. But this will be [illegible]

COOPER FROM MEXICO

Gary Cooper, who won last year for "High Noon," will be featured on a film clip reading the nominees for the best-actress award. Cooper is in Mexico making a movie, just as he was when he won last year.

Shirley Booth, winner for "Come Back, Little Sheba" last year, will be seen on direct telecast from Philadelphia, where she is trying out a play.

Part of the telecast will also be made from New York, where a number of the nominees will be gathered.

Bishop Bringing Eskimos Tots Treat

MONTREAL (CP)—Eskimo children in the snow-swept lands of Canada's north are in for a treat.

The Rt. Rev. D. B. Marsh, Anglican bishop of the Arctic, is visiting them soon, and he's taking the first of some 2,500 toys to be distributed among the youngsters.

Bishop Marsh, who can handle a dog team and speak fluent Eskimo, is flying from Montreal on the first leg of a 16,000-mile tour of his vast diocese.

The toys came from the Montreal Boy Scouts Association. He is taking just a few; the rest will arrive later by plane.

He said his tiny parishioners will be delighted with the playthings. He believes the toys will be better looked after by Eskimo children in this "more civilized" part of the world.

Soviet Embassy Inquires Price Of Ships

OTTAWA (CP)—The Soviet embassy has opened inquiries with a view to ascertaining the price of constructing various types of ships in Canada.

A spokesman for the Canadian Shipbuilding Association said Wednesday that an embassy official made a personal visit to the office and suggested shipyards provide the embassy with construction cost of four types of vessels: Fishing trawlers, fish carriers, tugs and cargo ships.

The association immediately passed along the request to some 20 shipyard members across the country. Recently Soviet ambassador Dmitri Chuvahin told a press conference that Russia is interested in promoting trade with Canada and mentioned ships as an example of the type of item Russia would like to buy from Canada.

Canadian government officials doubted whether Russia would place orders for ships in Canada when she could buy them cheaper overseas.

A trade department official said that before Russia could get Canadian ships, consideration would have to be given as to whether such vessels can be converted to war uses.

Do You Serve Pancakes As Dessert Or Main Course?

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—Whether pancakes should be served as dessert or entree is about the only matter of disagreement in the Commonwealth Provost Company, made up of Britons, Australians, Canadians and New Zealanders.

"That's about the only thing I can think of that we really argue about," said Maj. A. R. Ritchie of Calgary, the company commander. "The 'Brits' and the 'Anzacs' think pancakes should be a dessert. All our Canadian lads like to use 'em with bacon and eggs or something [illegible]

He said the sharp difference in [illegible] among members of the company has caused no trouble.

"In the first place there's no place up here in the forward areas where you can spend any money and in the second place when the lads go on leave they usually go by countries and this avoids embarrassment."

As it directs traffic the Commonwealth Division's police force looks sharp with white pipe-clay gleaming on webbing and gaiters. They stand out among the drab and camouflaged troops.

Usually check points are guarded by mixed pairs. There'll be an Aussie in bushwhacker hat and a ski-capped Canadian, or a Briton with forage cap topped with the deep red cover of the provost. They all seem to be giants of more than six feet.

PAY A FACTOR

Maj. Ritchie said his administration problem is complicated by the difference in pay rates "but operationally we have no trouble at all."

In schooling his men in police, investigation and evidence procedure he and his Commonwealth officers long ago accepted a course which recognized that the principles of law in all countries involved are the same but there are differences in the finer points.

"We leave these finer points to be worked out and interpreted as we deal with cases involving the personnel of the different countries. If it's an Aussie case, the Aussie lieutenant handles it, and so on."

Is the division much of a problem to police?

"As a matter of fact it's very well behaved and the co-operation we receive is very good."

The Canadian commander of the police force solved one problem in diplomacy. A Republic of Korea division was using some Commonwealth highways as a short cut to a rear supply point, and RoK drivers are notably the hell-bent type. Maj. Ritchie solved the problem of international relations by asking the RoK commander to second a few RoK military police to the Commonwealth company. They police the RoK convoys and everybody's happy.

Wherever... Whenever Canada Needs Him

The Canadian Soldier stands trained and ready to aid in the defence of our freedom wherever and whenever it may be necessary.

He may be in Korea, in Europe, or in any one of the scattered military establishments across Canada and into our Arctic regions. But wherever and whenever he is called upon to go, the Canadian Soldier's training and spirit is all directed to one basic aim — the defence of Canada. It is hard to imagine what this country would be like without such devotion. Throughout our history, he has surely earned the pride — the gratitude of this nation.

In these last few years, the Canadian Soldier has played his part in discouraging potential aggressors and in helping to ease the threats of war through service in Korea and duty in Germany. But, there is still a lot to do. We must not relax our defences.

Public Spirit Helps Give Sutton Best Fire Dept.

SUTTON, Que. (CP)—Ask any of the 2,000 inhabitants of this town on the Vermont border, southeast of Montreal, what it takes to have the best fire department of its size in Quebec.

The answer is likely to be: "A little diplomatic savvy, and a lot of public spirit."

Sutton's 22-man volunteer fire brigade this month placed first in the provincial section of the annual efficiency contest organized by the Dominion Fire Prevention Association. It tied with Tadanac, B.C., for second place in country-wide competition. Capeville, N.S., was placed first in the association's F-class contest, for towns of less than 2,500 population.

BORDER CO-OPERATION

Fire chief Jack Shepard says the town owes its fire-fighting record to a mutual agreement signed with the fire departments in nearby United States towns of Enosburg Falls, Richford and East Berkshire all within 17 miles.

Jack, who also operates the town's general store, claims when "a bad one" breaks out "we can get 120 men and five pumpers to work in 20 minutes.

"According to the agreement with the Vermont towns and Sutton, the other three come to the help of the one in trouble, and it doesn't cost anyone a cent."

But Sutton's fire chief says it took more than international co-operation to win the Quebec contest. It needed hard work and energetic fellows.

"The boys work all over town and when the alarm goes we drop everything and come running."

Jack himself is the closest to fire headquarters. His store is right across the street from the red-brick fire hall.

This year Sutton fire department "did things a little different," according to Mr. Shepard.

"We sent an inspection team to every public place, schools and churches especially, to test them for fire prevention. We took photographs of what we saw, showing the team right on the premises, and sent these off to the judges."

The town fire brigade is equipped with two trucks and all the latest fire fighting equipment, right down to ultra-modern respirators, the fire chief reported proudly.

Mayor Robert S. Miltimore, manager of the town's telephone office, says Sutton is "feeling pretty good" about winning the provincial contest.

"We've taken an interest in it and the chief and the boys have worked pretty hard at it. People take a great deal of pride in things here, I guess."

Ontario Not Taking Stand Yet On Fluoridation Issue

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government is not prepared at the present time to approve or condemn the fluoridation of water as a tooth decay preventive Health Minister Phillips said in the legislature Wednesday.

He said the health department had full files on both sides of the much-debated question. He was replying to G. T. Gordon (L—Brantford) who asked what the government's position was on the matter.

Mr. Gordon also renewed his attack on a series of articles carried recently in The Globe and Mail which, he said, were prejudiced against fluoridation.

Earlier he had said the articles referred to a Dr. Charles Dillon who, Mr. Gordon said, was not known in South Shields, an area in which he had been reported as having done research. He also had compiled a report for British and United States authorities.

Mr. Gordon Wednesday read reports by other authorities attacking the Dillon findings. "They have found that only nine per cent of the women in South Shields, an area of fluoridation condemned by Dillon, wore dentures as compared with 37 per cent in North Shields, a non-fluoride water area" Mr. Gordon said.

Dr. Phillips said his department had been in contact with the Canadian Medical Association and the World Health Organization on the subject.

He quoted a letter from the CMA which said:

"This association has not endorsed any research project on fluoridation and it seems regrettable that many people are reading into our reports certain recommendations which may or may not be here."

From the W.H.O. letter, Dr. Phillips read:

"This organization has not expressed any official view on water fluoridation."

No Cruel Punishments Given In Canadian Prisons

OTTAWA (CP) — An Ontario prison official says too many persons believe Canadian penal institutions use 19th-century methods to lash and strap prisoners.

Col. Headley G. Basher, deputy minister of reform institutions in Ontario, said Wednesday that corporal punishment now bears little resemblance to that depicted in the film, "Mutiny on the Bounty."

But, he told the Senate-Commons committee on corporal punishment many Canadians still regard corporal punishment "as the brutal beatings and lashings of the last century when no mercy was shown."

Even educated Canadians believed that the cruel methods of the 19th century, including the application of salt to open lash wounds, still existed. Some still thought men were beaten "within an inch of their lives."

"Those days have long since passed," he said. "The form of corporal punishment today is extremely modified."

NO DUNGEONS

The same ignorance was shown in Canadians who believe that Canadian jails and prisons maintained dungeons and kept confined prisoners on a bread and water diet. Conditions of that sort ceased years ago. There were no dungeons and men in close confinement were fed a special meat loaf which gave them a balanced diet.

Col. Basher said the lash does not inflict so painful punishment as the strap, both of which are administered only after a prisoner has been examined by a doctor and is judged to be in normal physical and mental health. He knew of no cases in Ontario institutions where men had been sent to hospital after being lashed or strapped.

There were still members of the judiciary who believed that the lash was more painful than the strap. In effect, it was the other way around.

RETAIN DEATH PENALTY

Col. Basher said the death penalty for murder should be retained in Canada and there should be no degrees of murder. However, he recommended that an alternate method of execution be investigated.

The penalty for murder in Canada is hanging, but Col. Basher did not propose a specific alternative. He said he was testifying before the committee as a private individual.

The death sentence should be retained because it was a definite deterrent to murder. Abolition of the penalty would increase murders and could result in killings by professionals from the United States.

Col. Basher's views on the death penalty were in direct contrast to those of the Canadian Welfare Council. It recommended in a brief that the penalty be abolished and said it doubts that it has much deterrent effect on potential murderers.

Newfoundland Legislature Discusses Fish

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The speech from the throne mentioned only two acts and a bill as the Newfoundland legislature opened Wednesday.

The bill would authorize creation of a fisheries development authority to supervise the spending of "a great many millions of dollars in fishery development."

The speech read by Lieutenant-Governor Sir Leonard Outerbridge said members also would consider new election and redistribution acts.

Malcolm Hollett, leader of the Progressive Conservative opposition, said the speech was somewhat "fishy."

Liberal Premier Joseph Smallwood said: "He's going to hear so much about fish in this session he's going to feel like a fish."

In the New Brunswick legislature, Labor Minister A. E. Skaling, a Progressive Conservative, introduced a Weekly Rest Period Act. It provides for workers, with some exceptions, to be given a weekly rest period of at least 24 consecutive hours.

The Manitoba legislature cleared the way for prorogation by approving Treasurer R. D. Turner's 1954-55 budget for $56,833,019.

In Regina, Premier E. C. Douglas suggested a conference of Prairie governments and farm organizations to discuss the wheat-surplus problem and to make representations to the federal government.

The resolution expressed support of the Canadian wheat board as the "best available method of implementing ... policy of orderly marketing and long term commodity agreements."

Education Minister R. W. Bonner said British Columbia's Social Credit government will supply a United Nations educational bulletin to any school district that considers it of assistance to its teachers.

Earlier, M. J. Coldwell, national CCF leader, charged the B.C. government was anti-United Nations because it cancelled its subscription to the bulletin. The subscription and several grants were dropped by the government last year.

TAKES PLENTY OF GRIT TO BE HEARD — The chicken has entered the recording field. Only it's not to sing. A New York research organization decided to record the chicken's gizzard sound to show how grit can help a chicken's digestion. There are two sounds on the record—first, the sound of an ordinary gizzard grinding, then the sound of a gizzard that has been fed granite grit. Shown making the record are: Frank Ruzza, left, and Donald Wildrick.

Says Graham Follows Steps Of Prophets

LONDON (Reuters) — Billy Graham, whose greater London evangelist crusade now in its fourth week has stirred a storm of controversy, was described by an Anglican bishop Wednesday as "in the direct tradition of the prophets and religious leaders."

The Rt. Rev. H. R. Gough, Bishop of Barking, said in a speech: "Billy Graham has been able to break through our British reserve. Every night, after hearing him, hundreds of people come forward to give themselves to God."

(A record number of 533 persons made their "decision for Christ" at Graham's meeting here Wednesday night, making a total of 7,458 since the "crusade" began March 1.)

"Why does this man get results?" the bishop asked. "Because he preaches the Bible, while we clergy are too apt to apologize for our faith. This man bursts in on us and causes an astonishing stream of people to come to God. Surely we can learn from Billy Graham. We have to believe the Bible as thoroughly as Communists believe in their books."

The British Free Church Federal Council, in annual congress at Worthing, Sussex, also supported Graham.

The moderator, Rev. E. Benson Perkins, told the congress that whether they liked the methods adopted for the crusade or not, they ought to thank God for its results.

Historic Church

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Chalmers United church here celebrated its 107th anniversary in a church that was built in 1890. The first congregation from 1847 to 1851 held its services in the city hall.

RECIPES FOR MEATLESS MENUS

By Elsie the Borden Cow

CHATEAU-AND-EGG-GRILL

Just centre a poached egg on hot toast, top the egg with slices of Borden's Chateau. Then pop under the grill until the Chateau melts. If this doesn't cause a sensation at mealtime, nothing will! The mellow-mild flavor of Borden's Chateau Cheese makes a terrific hit with children and men alike. Chateau is so versatile for meatless dishes. See what a difference it makes with macaroni, with rice-and-tomato. Keep a good supply on hand all the time.

BAUMERT CHEESE PARTY

Here's how to prepare an oh-so-tasty party snack your guests will really go for. Leave 4 pkgs. Borden's fresh-tasting, creamy Baumert Cheese at room temperature for an hour to soften. Then add ½ cup milk, ¼ tsp. salt, 1 tbsp. salad dressing, ½ tsp. onion juice, ½ tsp. mustard and beat until smooth. Serve on tray surrounded by potato chips or crackers. Ask your guests to "dip in"—and watch it disappear!

LUNCHES ON THE DOUBLE

With double-length Borden Cheese Slices. If your man carries his lunch to work, he'll love you if you use Borden's Cheese Slices in his sandwiches. They have that mellow-mild zip that men go for. And those double-length slices mean fresher flavor in every slice. You see, you usually don't use the whole package for one lunch, so you just cut the package in half, across. Use half, and the remainder stays wrapped and fresh till you need it. And always remember—it's easier to separate King-size Borden Cheese Slices from the cut edges.

IF GUESTS DROP IN:

It's like waving a magic wand the way you can come up with a snack for surprise visitors . . . if you keep Borden's Elsie Roll on hand. It slices into circles just the size for those dandy round crackers. Try Elsie Roll with salads too, and with apple pie.

SOUPED-UP SOUP

You can add extra zest to soup by sprinkling on a little Borden's Grated Cheese. A natural for spaghetti! Keeps for weeks in its handy canister.

Three B's Of Music Are Backbone Of Classical Programs In Russia

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW (CP)—If the big three of politics don't get along too well with Russia the three B's of music certainly do.

Bach, Beethoven and Brahms, not to forget Berlioz, are the backbones of classical programs here as in the West. They get magnificent treatment and draw the same crowded houses that Russian composers do.

Wagner is reappearing, and of course the Russian composers bulk large in the fare. You get frequent doses of Borodin, Balakirev, Gliere, Rimsky-Korsakov and Glazunov.

EARLY TSCHAIKOVSKY

A lot of some composers' early music has been virtually ditched in the West. Tschaikovsky's first three symphonies are seldom played, for instance. Here they're played—apparently only because they're Russian and help to show "the glory of the Russian people."

Besides straight-forward concert or recital-type evenings, there are special occasions devoted to grandiose compositions for orchestra, organ, choir and soloists.

There were three magnificent performances of Berlioz' Requiem Mass, for instance, a composition done about once every 50 years elsewhere. It calls for an augmented symphony orchestra, two additional orchestras which are place in galleries on opposite sides of the stage and a 200-voice choir.

The program carried a synopsis of the meaning of each part of the requiem, while librettos were available carrying full text. The performances were reverent, sung with feeling and discipline.

PEER GYNT IN FULL

Another performance long to be remembered was the whole of Grieg's "Peer Gynt," with orchestra, choir, organ and two sets of soloists.

The singers, soloists and chorus who sat in front of the orchestra in the usual fashion, as required they came to the front of the stage to act their parts.

The second group were singers who appeared in balconies on either side of the stage when Grieg transferred the action from words to music.

Usually only excerpts from the two-hour work are performed in the West.

Not much original Soviet music is interesting apart from the works of Prokofiev and Khatchachurian. Shostakovich is so much noise, and works such as his "Oratorio to Peace" are obviously written to order and banal.

MOSTLY SOLD OUT

Concerts invariably are sell-outs. There are several a week, given either in the Great Hall of the Moscow Conservatory which has a fine organ, Tschaikovsky Hall on Gorki street or in the Palace of the Trade Unions.

It's no trouble to dispose of a ticket at the main entrance should one's intended companion not appear. There are always people who turn up in the hope that someone will have a spare to sell.

As at the opera, there are buffets at all three halls where in the intervals you may buy sandwiches, pastries, tea or coffee, beer or champagne; book-stalls and booths where tickets for coming performances are available.

"Come dressed as you are" is the rule and, if cultured, audiences certainly are not elegant.

The orchestras, however, wear evening dress, and the concert-master of the Moscow State Philharmonic wears a pastel-orange-colored stiff shirt. Artists are about the only people wearing white shirts here.

GIANT CONDUCTOR

Probably Russia's best conductor is a man called Samosud.

He's a giant with iron-grey hair, a Clark Gable moustache, looks like a well-dressed family doctor and doesn't bow to applause. He just stands in front of the audience and smiles happily at them.

There are other good ones, but not of Samosud's stature—Gauk, Raklin and a relative youngster named, Sanderling who has done some good Bach transcriptions.

While the range of concert works is virtually universal, the same cannot be said for music available in the shops.

It is easy, for instance, to get Bach's "Well-Tempered Clavichord," or editions of collected preludes and fugues. But the Chorales are altogether unavailable, and seem to be played publicly only by visiting musicians—mainly Germans.

2 MPPS Clash Over Treatment Of Chickens

TORONTO (CP)—Two government members of the legislature clashed Wednesday over the treatment of ailing chickens.

Harold Fishleigh (PC—Toronto Woodbine) charged that feed-store proprietors who dispense "drugs" for ailing chickens were "quacks."

Ray Connell (PC — Hamilton-Wentworth) disagreed. He said that when his chickens become sick he'd much prefer to deal with a feed man than a druggist or a veterinary surgeon.

The members argued during a meeting of the legislature's health committee which heard objections from representatives of the pharmacy profession over the Pharmacy Act passed last year but not yet proclaimed.

V.S.L. Hutton and C. P. Taylor, members of the council of the Ontario College of Pharmacy, and A. Goldblatt, president of the Toronto Retail Pharmacists' Association, all claimed that the sale of antibiotics by "unqualified persons," even for veterinary purposes, "has not proven satisfactory."

Mr. Fishleigh said feed men who sell antibiotic preparations were "quacks" because they prescribe treatment. Mr. Connell countered they were capable men who gave better service than druggists or veterinary surgeons.

New Grading Rules To Select Lumber

TORONTO (CP)—It may soon be as simple to choose grades of eastern Canada spruce and jackpine as it is to select the grade of butter and eggs.

The Ontario Retail Lumber Dealers' Association said at its 37th annual convention Wednesday that a standard set of grading rules, by which consumers can select the lumber, will go into effect in a few months.

Association officials said the move was spearheaded by retiring president C. J. Griffin of Barrie and Lorne Power of the Quebec association.

The association said it is working for standard grading rules across the country through its representation on a special Canadian standards association committee.

TRAFFIC STOPPER — Traffic symbols, used as decorations for lady's wear, are the latest fashion craze in Rome, Italy. This Italian girl draws backward glances with a series of "stop" signals, including a traffic cop with hand upraised and the letter 'P', meaning 'Piano', or slowly.

LIFE BEGINS AT 101—Enjoying robust health at 101, Herschel Bergman, of New York City, radiates his pleasure of becoming a U.S. citizen. A native of Minsk, Russia, he came to this country in 1930. He teaches wrestling at a boys' camp during the summer.

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE'S CARRIAGE used by the great nurse for her work in the Crimean battlefields was taken from the Nightingale home for nurses in London and will be used in the great British Army searchlight tatoo to be held in June. Two nurses of the British Army nurse corps chat with Army service corps officer about the famous carriage. This year marks the 100th anniversary of famed "Lady of the Lamp" as Florence Nightingale was called.—(Federal Newsphoto).

Fear Seaway Area To Be Saddled With Unemployment

OTTAWA (CP) — The Eastern Ontario Associated Boards of Trade Wednesday heard a suggestion that its members take steps to see that the area is not [illegible] workers after the building of the St. Lawrence Seaway power project.

The warning was given by H. D. Callan of Ottawa, the body's industrial commissioner, as the boards held a meeting preliminary to an area development conference under sponsorship of the Ontario government.

"We are building high hopes around the 'seaway,'" Mr. Callan said. "It makes great talk for politicians. But some areas along the seaway route are better organized than we are. It is for us to make sure that, when the construction job is done, we are not left with thousands of construction workers on our hands."

One of the board's four zone groups—representing the Stormont-Dundas-Glengarry area on the river—reported that delay on getting the seaway started is keeping new industries out of the area.

Members of the [illegible] that Boards of Trade along the St. Lawrence river set up a "seaway committee" that would be concerned with industrial development resulting from the seaway and with the relocation of a half-dozen communities on the Canadian side of the river that will be flooded out by the project.

A similar suggestion came from a zone further upriver, in the Brockville area, which will not be touched directly by the development but which would get more hydro power from it.

Dealing generally with the development of industry in the eastern Ontario area, Omar Armstrong of Ottawa, president of the associated boards, said there is need of more diversification of industry in Ontario to keep up employment.

This was particularly necessary in the boards' area largely in the [illegible] valley of the Ottawa and St. Lawrence rivers—where several communities had been hit by depressed conditions in the textile industry.

Mr. Callan said his department had been in touch with more than 100 industries on the possibility of their establishing plants in eastern Ontario.

Three were expected shortly to make a "definite decision" to locate in the region. He was hopeful about some others.

Mayor R. M. Simpson of Arnprior, chairman of the boards' industrial committee, said Premier Frost had largely accepted the line of argument put up by a recent delegation from the boards calling for decentralization of industry away from the Toronto area.

He said eastern Ontario needs industrial development now, for the maintenance of [illegible] employment levels rather than for increasing employment.

Police Seize Narcotics

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Detectives, acting on a tip from New York City police, arrested a New York bellhop as he stepped from an airliner Wednesday night and seized $1,500 worth of marijuana and heroin. Walker M. Barrington, 32, was charged with possession of narcotics with intent to sell. Police said he was carrying the narcotics in a paper bag.

Ainu People Being Absorbed Fast In Japan

TOKYO (Reuters)—The Japanese version of the American Indian, the Ainu, are slowly being assimilated by the Japanese and losing their identity.

A century ago, scores of Ainu villages were scattered about Japan's northernmost island of Hokkaido. Today, only two villages remain as tourist showplaces.

The Ainu have given up hunting for a living and have become farmers or found employment in towns. Traditional Ainu costumes have been replaced by Japanese dress.

Little is known about Ainu history, since the Ainu have no written language. A widely accepted theory among Japanese anthropologists is that the Ainu are of Caucasian or Mongolian descent. They were settled in many parts of Honshu, Japan's main island, Hokkaido, Sakhalin and the Kurils islands. Incoming Japanese settlers drove them to northern Honshu and finally into Hokkaido.

Dr. Kindaichi said the Ainu try to conceal their identity because of centuries of harsh treatment by the Japanese. Since 1900, when the Japanese government passed laws giving the Ainu Japanese citizenship, they have been eager to assimilate into Japanese society.

Commonwealth Meet

QUEEN'S CHAPLAIN TO WED — Canon Charles Earle Raven, 68-year-old senior chaplain to Queen Elizabeth, is to marry 58-year-old American widow, Mrs. Ethel Paine Moors. Asked whether the Queen was aware of his wedding plans, he chuckled and replied, "I don't know; yes, I guess so."

Don't Worry About Problems Tito's Recipe For Keeping Fit

By JOHN EARLE

BELGRADE (Reuters) — Keep physically fit and do not worry about life's daily problems—that is Marshal Tito's recipe.

Marshal Josip Broz Tito, Yugoslavia's 61 - year - old president, keeps fit by hunting.

He usually manages to disappear quietly for at least two days each month to indulge his taste for this sport at some hunting lodge.

This winter, while in the mountains of slovenia, he shot two ibex, which are rare in Yugoslavia.

LITTLE ALCOHOL

Other ingredients of his keep fit policy are: Eat little, drink little, except for Turkish coffee, and do setting up exercises in the morning.

During the last two years, he has cut down his smoking from 60 to 25 cigarets a day.

One of the rare occasions on which Marshal Tito enjoys a drop of alcohol is when he goes out early on a winter morning with a flask of "rakija" (plum brandy) in his pocket, to shoot wild boar.

The marshal's trophies are stored in a shed in the grounds of his villa in one of the residential suburbs of Belgrade.

Palatial Fittings

LONDON (CP) — The city of Durban, 13,000-ton passenger and cargo ship destined for the South Africa run, has a smoking room with 18th century panelling and a carved fireplace from two old English houses. They came from Culverly Hall in Cheshire and Monkshatch in Surrey.

Sales, Profits Down In U.S.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Sales, jobs, production and profits are off today in the southeastern United States—but, so far at least, the slide has been less than for the country as a whole.

And most folk hereabouts have been living so high in recent years as the region's swift industrial expansion continued that they are almost cocky in their confidence that the present slight lull is a temporary one.

A few business men, however, are concerned because the usual spring pick - up, although now slightly in evidence, isn't very perky as yet.

There are about six per cent fewer textile jobs in the area today than a year ago. Work weeks in many of the mills are considerably shorter. But a slight seasonal pick-up in orders encourages the mills to hope that the industry's slide, starting last summer, may be ending. So far it's mostly a hope.

A leading Charlotte banker estimates that industrial production of all sorts in the Carolinas is off by about five per cent from the peak—contrasted to the federal reserve board's estimate of a 10 per cent drop for the entire United States.

Retail trade here may be off by as much as four per cent, the banker says. In areas hit by last summer's severe drought the retail drop is more than for the region as a whole, with tobacco growing sections particularly hard hit.

Building is holding up well, construction executives say. Commercial building and schools are giving the construction industry its chief jobs, as communities expand services to catch up with the big population growth that industrial expansion and rising standards of living have brought to the region.

The end of overtime pay and a shrinking work week at many factories and mills have brought some collection problems, particularly in appliances sold on time. Used car dealers report an especially rough time moving their stocks.

Mills and factories here report their customers are giving smaller orders this year, but more frequent ones. That trend indicates both the merchant's desire to hold his own inventories low and the unquestioned return of the buyer's market.

Quebec Tax Stand Announced April 6

OTTAWA (CP)—The government will announce its stand on Quebec province's new income tax in Finance Minister Abbott's budget statement April 6.

Prime Minister St. Laurent informed the Commons Wednesday it can expect to learn the government's position then on the question of whether deduction of the provincial tax will be allowed from federal income tax payments.

The Quebec tax will amount to about 15 per cent of federal income tax collections in the province. Present federal tax laws permit deductions of only five per cent of the federal payments.

Ancient Chinese Art Of Self Defence Studied By Modern Chinese

VANCOUVER (CP)—Akuo Kee, ancient Chinese art of self defence and national sport, is being taken up by modern Vancouver Chinese.

Educated in it from earliest childhood, it is said that men's bodies became so strong and muscles so hardened that they could not be pierced by a sword.

These experts guarded their secrets jealously through the centuries and much of [illegible] ledge died with them. But it is believed enough is known to revive the art.

In the old days men gave 15 years or more of their lives to becoming kuo kee experts. These experts took one or two—at most, five—students, but each teacher held back at least one secret of his technique from his pupil.

"As secret after secret went to the graves of experts," said Robert Gunn, assistant manager of the Chinese Times, "certain techniques that made them invincible were lost to future generations."

But boys still have a pool of thousands of techniques to learn. Training makes them dangerous adversaries in close combat or guerrilla warfare.

Athletic societes in Vancouver have boys as young as eight and [illegible] in kuo kee classes. Girls do not last long in the course because they find it too strenuous, said Mr. Gunn.

Long training and body building are required before the student can continue the sport for as long as 15 minutes at one time.

The exercises consist of a pantomime of fighting which looks more like interpretative dancing. Usually the student fights an imaginary opponent.

In training the student learns first the dance-like foot movement, then co-ordination of eyes for alertness and finally use of hands, head and the rest of the body.

ENOUGH TO SCARE ONE—This isn't a recent innovation for Hallowe'en. It is an African ceremonial mask, an example of African art now on exhibit at the Yale art gallery in New Haven, Conn. This mask is from the eastern Bayaka Basuku section of the Belgian Congo.

Upheaval In Police Dept. Rocks Booming Oil City

EDMONTON (CP)—An upheaval in the Edmonton police department has rocked this booming oil city.

It originated in police ranks, among men on the beat. It culminated this week in the resignations of chief constable Reg Jennings, 61, and detective-sergeant William Smith, 64, head of the morality squad, and elimination of the morality squad itself.

These major changes were decided upon by the city's three commissioners, headed by Mayor William Harelak, who have direct control of police in the absence of a police commission.

Edmonton now will advertise for a new police chief who will continue re-organization where the commissioners left off.

A survey of the force by Frank B. Baxter, retired RCMP expert, was under way when seven uniformed constables and a sergeant raided a suspected gambling house Feb. 11. This was customarily the work of the morality squad, but neither it nor Chief Jennings knew about the raid.

In the resulting inquiry, the commissioners were told by the raiding constables that they risked dismissal to bring conditions in the department to public attention.

CRITICISMS LISTED

The commissioners and Baxter then issued reports saying police organization and administration were unsatisfactory, morale and department strength were low and that the chief had "lost control." There were rumors of police protection for gamblers and bootleggers, but this was denied by the chief and morality detectives.

There has been a rising tide of break-ins, bringing almost daily reports of safecrackings. Alderman Abe Miller gave figures to council in January showing that from Sept. 1 to Dec. 31 last year there were 410 shopbreakings and 70 arrests, 150 housebreakings and 24 arrests.

The Baxter survey found, among other things, that the police officers' manual of 1941 had not been brought up to date and copies were not available for distribution; that the file of known criminals was locked at night; that there was little organization for much aggressive action by the morality squad and that training of recruits was inadequate.

BEAT ROUTINE

Constables complained they were required to adhere to a strict beat routine. Criminals knew exactly where a policeman would be at a given time.

Much of the trouble can be traced to oil, which has led to phenomenal population growth in Edmonton.

In 1947, when the oil boom started, the city had a police strength of 122 for a population of 118,500. That year 4,867 crimes were reported. In 1953, the city's population was 183,500 and the police force had been increased to 221 members, including 24 civilian clerical staff. Total crimes jumped to 15,869, including 3,400 morality cases.

BELOW STRENGTH

City officials report present police strength is 234, including clerical staff. This is 26 men below authorized strength. Baxter said that even the addition of 50 men would leave the force below the recognized level for Canadian cities.

Some 350 store owners in west Edmonton are gathering data on break-ins during the last three years.

One store manager said he and some others were forced out of business of their own when multiple break-ins resulted in cancellation of their insurance against this crime.

French Report Small Skirmish

HANOI, Indo-China (AP) — The French army today claimed its tanks and mobile units killed 28 Vietminh rebels in a fresh clash in the southern sector of besieged Dien Bien Phu.

It was the second time in three days that the French had reported a battle with the Communist-led enemy inside the southern perimeter of the northwest Indo-China fortress.

Intensive fire-bombings by American-supplied planes continued to take a heavy toll of the rebels digging in around Dien Bien Phu for new mass assaults. Even Flying Boxcars and Dakota transports were used to jettison jellied-gasoline bombs on the enemy.

In the 13 days of this major battle the French estimate that more than 15,000 Vietminh troops have been killed and wounded. More than 3,000 killed and 9,000 wounded were believed lost in the first wild frontal assaults by the rebels.

Seek Homes for PoWs

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) The United Nations has approached three Latin American countries to ask them whether they will take 58 prisoners-of-war from Korea, Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold disclosed Wednesday. The 58 were on a list provided by V. K. Krishna Menon, Indian delegate, from among prisoners taken back by Indian guards to India early this year. The men refused repatriation to either side in the Korean war and have been in Mexico, Brazil and Argentina.

TTC Expects Some Chiselers

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Transit Commission expects some "chiselers" to turn up when the new subway opens next Tuesday.

A commission spokesman admitted as much Wednesday night when alderman Allan Grossman said he didn't like the commission's plan which does not require transfers for subway riders transferring to Bloor cars.

Mr. Grossman said he could also forsee "one of the greatest schemozzles in the history of public transportation," at Bloor and Yonge streets, one of the city's main intersections.

Passengers transferring from the subway to street-cars will board the cars from a loading zone at the subway station exit and will not use transfers. Mr. Grossman said he expected some non-subway passengers would enter the loading zone and board the street-cars free.

The TTC spokesman said the speedup because of the no-transfer policy would "more than offset the loss there may be on chiselers."

Blast Wrecks Home

DUNKIRK, N. Y. (AP) —A farm house was wrecked Wednesday in a gas explosion that rattled windows a mile away. Peter Modica, 76, was in fair condition today with second-degree burns of the arms, hands and face. He was knocked down a flight of stairs by the blast, which set his clothes aflame. His wife, Mary, 73, collapsed of shock and was taken to a neighbor's home.

4,000,000 Roman Catholics Became Protestant In U.S. In Last 10 Years

NEW YORK (AP)—The Christian Herald reports more than 4,000,000 Roman Catholics have become Protestants in the United States in the last 10 years—nearly four times the number of conversions to Catholicism. The interdenominational Protestant magazine said a country-wide survey produced "the startling nation-wide figure of 4,144,366 Roman Catholic-to Protestant converts" during the decade.

During the same period the Roman Catholic church has reported 1,071,897 adult baptisms, or converts to the church.

Dr. Daniel A. Poling, editor of the magazine, said publicity about Catholic conversions had led many persons to believe that inter-faith conversion was a one-way process.

He said it was "felt that getting the true facts would serve the cause of freedom for all religions." Dr. Polling also is head of the World Christian Endeavor, interdenominational Protestant youth organization.

NOT NEWS

In Washington, Msgr. Paul F. Tanner, assistant-general secretary of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, said "It is not news to us that there are Catholics who have lapsed from their faith."

The magazine, which has no official church ties, said the survey findings were based on questionnaires sent to 25,000 of the 181,000 Protestant ministers in the country.

The magazine said that "with allowance for error" the national total of Catholic-to-Protestant shifts during the 10 years "could not be less than 3,000,000 . . . and in all probability runs closer to 5,000,000."

Official statistics show there are 54,000,000 Protestants in the United States, and 30,000,000 Caholics.

Love Cultists Jailed Up To 4 Years

MUNICH (Reuters)—Ten men and women members of a "free love" sect were jailed Wednesday on charges of procuring and immorality.

Two other members were acquitted.

The sect, called by its members "Die Warheit" (truth), operated in a few poor villages around the town of Dennegdorf.

The 10 convicted members said they would continue to preach and practise "free love" after they had served their sentences — ranging from eight months to four years at hard labor.

Among those sentenced were Franz Zavier Angerer, 57-year-old stonemason and leader of the sect, and Josef Kochl, the sect's 52-year-old "bishop."

In evidence at the trial Angerer said he founded the sect in 1927. He disbanded it on the Nazis' orders but revived it after the war.

Angerer urged his followers to disregard marital relations and establish sexual relations freely. He claimed this was based on the Bible's precepts of love thy neighbor.

Testimony at the trial disclosed the cultists were regularly practising adultery with each other's

Gas Companies Delay Bill Approval

TORONTO (CP)—Opposition by two gas companies over a particular clause in a new act to establish the Ontario fuel board has delayed approval of the bill by the legislature's sub-committee on natural gas.

Col. Tom Wier, general manager of the Union Gas Co., and T. H. Simpson, solicitor for the Dominion Natural Gas Co. Ltd., Brantford, Wednesday opposed a proposed change in the act as printed which would give the fuel board power to arbitrate disputes between a company operating a storage area and transmission line and another company seeking to [illegible] on the first. It gives the board power to settle the dispute by fixing the price.

RECONSIDER CHARGE

Col. Wier and Mr. Simpson both said the gas companies had been able to negotiate contracts to their mutual benefit. Both suggested the government "need not be pre-occupied" with thoughts of protecting trans-Canada pipeline—the proposed gas line from Alberta—from eastern companies.

Attorney-General Porter said the government does not want negotiations for storage space to "jeopardize the progress of major transactions."

The committee decided to once again consider the proposed change and bring it before the sub-committee today.

RCMP Hasn't Warned Police Of A-Weapons

[illegible] throughout Canada against possible smuggling of small atomic weapons into the country by enemy agents.

The force was commenting on Washington publication of a circular sent to all U. S. law enforcement officials by the Federal Bureau of Investigation requesting such an alert.

Canadian Regiment In Korea Nucleus Of Canadian Guards

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

IN KOREA (CP)—The 3rd Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, now part of the Commonwealth Division's watchdog force in Korea is carrying out its last job.

The battalion, soon to rotate home, will be disbanded, some members going to other RCR battalions, some to other infantry regiments, and the rest becoming the nucleus of a new unit—1st Battalion, Canadian Guards.

When the RCR's leave Korea they will take with them an honor roll of 35 dead and 90 wounded and a list of 16 decorations won in the fighting last spring and summer.

NEW SENIOR UNIT

The soldiers have accepted the army reorganization plan with mixed feelings. The RCR, first raised in Fredericton in 1883, has tradition and lustre.

The 3rd Battalion's commanding officer, Lt.-Col. Ken L. Campbell of Toronto, and most of his officers have volunteered to go into the new battalion. It will be rated as the senior infantry unit in the Canadian Army.

"There's a tremendous pride in our battalion as a unit," the colonel said. "We've been through some tough times together and most of us want to stay together."

The colonel himself started with the 48th Highlanders and has also served with the Princess Louise Dragoons, the Lanark and Renfrew Scottish and Lord Strathcona's Horse.

The battalion drill instructor is S. Sgt. Mark Helesic, 27, of Goderich, Ont. He won his post after placing first in an NCO's drill course at the world's toughest drill school, the Brigade of Guards in England. His last big job was pre-guard and retreat ceremony for the visit of Prime Minister St. Laurent.

KEEN SHOOTING DRILL

The RCR's activities include firing on their own 100-yard range. They've adopted a unique program of having snipers instead of NCO's as coaches. The NCO's aren't necessarily good shots.

"In this way we can keep close tabs on their shooting," said sniper Arnold Jardine of Tatamagouche, N.S. "If a guy complains his rifle is off, we just try it. If we get a bull's eye, we know it's the man who's off."

Other snipers at the range the [illegible] of North Bay, Ont., Mike Paddock, London, Ont., and Don Elford, Streetsville, Ont.

The regiment has also produced some dead-eyes for game shooting, including Lieuts. Joe Mombourquette, L'Ardoise, N.S. The colonel has been lucky, too, and he uses the battalion mascot Buster, a ger man shepherd dog, to flush out the game.

The premium on tidiness in the battalion is a "cock of the walk" trophy that's won as the result of the effort of lads like Sgt. Cliff Scott of Ingersoll, Ont., whose quartermaster's stores are a model of orderly efficiency.

[illegible] clean house when I get home," the sergeant said.

Junior company commander is Lieut. Bill Boulton who is kidded about the name of his home town in Nova Scotia. They say that when Bill tells anyone here he's from Kedgemakooge they invariably say "Yes, that's your Korean address, but where do you live in Canada."

REGIMENTAL MASCOT—Buster, regimental mascot of the 3rd Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, is a German shepherd dog but he can also be a hunting dog. Here Buster is shown with the battalion's commanding officer, Lt.-Col. Ken L. Campbell, of Toronto, who often uses the dog to flush out game while the battalion is on duty in Korea. —(CP from National Defence).

Guarantee Met For Senator McCarthy's Speech

TORONTO (CP)—Henry F. Bolton, manager of Maple Leaf Gardens, said Wednesday that the $1,750 the Gardens asked as a guarantee for the proposed speaking engagement of Senator Joseph McCarthy April 20 has been provided.

Leo de Gagne, Toronto business man and financial agent for the 100-member committee sponsoring the senator's visit, confirmed he had met Mr. Bolton today and completed arrangements for the use of the 15,000-capacity Gardens.

Police said they were taking elaborate precautions to protect the Communist-hunting Wisconsin senator. They said Communist groups are preparing pamphlets to hand out and labor groups are discussing counter moves. They expect a large crowd of spectators.

The senator said earlier he wants no money to speak here but that his expenses must be guaranteed.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Swedish Tea Ring Takes Trouble, But Worth It

Pete, my chief consumer, is in Montreal this weekend, so I'm baking for Herbie.

His grandmother in B.C. is a Swedish Tea Ring expert (among other things) and he would dearly love to dunk a piece of her ring in a cup of coffee.

In the oven right now is what I hope will be a reasonable facsimile of Nana's tea ring.

Marianne is on the graveyard shift at the hospital (2:30 to 11) for two weeks so lunches are the only meals she eats at home. Naturally Herbie will be here too.

SWEDISH TEA RING

In the measuring cup measure ½ cup lukewarm water. Add 1 teaspoon sugar, sprinkle on 1 package granular yeast. Do not stir. Let stand 10 minutes, then stir. Into warm mixing bowl measure ½ cup warm milk and add ¼ cup sugar and 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ cup soft shortening. Beat these together until shortening is almost melted, then beat in 1 egg. Stir in yeast. Add 3½ cups sifted bread or all-purpose flour—adding only 2 cups first, then beating with a spoon until smooth, before adding remainder. Turn out on lightly floured board, and knead, punching and turning 20 times. Place in bowl, cover with damp towel, set to rise in warm place until doubled in bulk—about 2 hours at 75 degrees Fahr. Press finger tip into dough. It will leave an indentation when dough is doubled. Punch dough down in bowl, pull edges into centre and turn over in bowl. Now let it rise again until almost doubled in bulk—this time it takes only about 45 minutes. Be sure it is carefully covered. After second rising roll dough into an oblong 9x18 inches. Spread with 2 tablespoons softened butter and sprinkle with ½ cup sugar, 2 teaspoons cinnamon and ½ cup washed and dried raisins. Roll dough up tightly, starting at wide side. Seal well by pinching edges on roll togethehr. Place sealed-edge-down in a circle on lightly greased baking sheet. Carefully join the ends to seal them. With wet scissors make cuts 2-3 of the way through the ring at 1 or 2-inch intervals. Twist each cut section so that it lays on its cut side. Cover and let rise until doubled, covered—about ¾ to 1 hour. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 25 to 30 minutes.

If desired frost while warm: Mix together 1 cup sifted icing sugar, 1 tablespoon (or a little more if you like the frosting thin) of water, or milk or cream, and ½ teaspoon vanilla. You may prefer to use lemon juice instead of vanilla. If so, add a little grated lemon rind too. Drizzle this over the tea ring while it is slightly warm.

Note: Up to the stage where above dough is sprinkled with sugar and cinnamon, you are also making cinnamon rolls. For cinnamon rolls do not include raisins. But roll up, then cut roll into 1-inch slices with very sharp knife. Place a little apart in greased 13x9 pan. Cover and let rise and bake same as Swedish Tea Ring.

For Butterscotch Rolls make same as Cinnamon Rolls, but coat baking pan with mixture of ½ cup each melted butter and brown sugar. Strew ½ to 1 cup whole pecans over butter-sugar mixture. Place cut rolls barely touching on this. Let rise, and bake as for Cinnamon Rolls but immediately turn upside down on a large tray, allowing pan to remain over rolls until all of the butterscotch runs down over them.

A WHITE FORMAL GOWN covered completely with mother-of-pearl beading and tiny jewels is shown at the, LEFT. An orange stole illustrates the dramatic use which may be made of color. At the, RIGHT, is a grey tweed suit which features the new rage, the stand-away collar and the back dip in the jacket.

Suits Fit Easter Climate Short Jacket Established

The changing character of that long, mild season bridging winter into fall is responsible for some brand new suit types this Easter.

The many silk suits and silk-and-wool mixtures owe their existence directly to our changing climate. These new silk-and-worsted mixtures tailor beautifully and look handsome.

Jacket styles and lengths vary, some stopping at the waistline. The short jacket is established for spring but there are plenty of easy-fitting jackets in 23- and 24-inch lengths.

Box jackets and semi-box jackets are with us again this Easter, many of them in coating weight fabric to be worn over lighter-weight skirts.

The crescent- shaped sleeve and the low-necked collar label this spring's suits as 1954. But the Empire influence is present, too, in under-bust detail or seaming.

Important suit colors are navy, gray and black in both silk and wool. These colors are excellent foils for spring's pretty, frivolous flower hats.

Skirts are short and narrow—and by short is meant mid-calf this season. Generally, the look of suits this spring is simple, youthful and modest with colors quiet and fabrics soft.

THIS SLIM CARDIGAN SUIT of blue-and-white tweed is the kind of suit that many women like to wear in the Easter parade. It takes nicely to furs or a small flower hat or dramatic accessories. It has tab pocket trim with the pocket edging repeated at the neckline.

CGIT Doings

HAVELOCK (ENS) — The CGIT met in the Sunday school room of the Havelock United church with the leader, Mrs. R. G. Newman in charge.

Evelyn Stevenson, read the scripture lesson, a story from "The Upper Room," and led in prayer.

The roll call showed 10 members present and a new member, Carol Green was received into the society.

A schedule was drawn up giving each girl a meeting at which she would take a worship service.

It was decided to help the Evening Auxiliary by selling tickets for the play they will present April. 2. Also plans were made for the sale of greeting cards.

The meeting closed with taps.

Fleecy Orlon Jackets New

By GAILE DUGAS
NEA Woman's Editor

NEW YORK (ENS)—Fashions in creamy white and pastel fleece are prominent in the fashion picture for spring—and, when the fleece is orlon, practical.

When these deep-piled fleeces are made into coats with completely washable linings and trim, they almost pay for themselves in economy of upkeep. And while they possess a fshionable bulk, they actually combine light weight warmth.

There are far more versions in orlon this year than there were last. Designs range from brief jackets to full-length coats, but emphasis is placed on the short coats, in lengths from 24 to 30 inches. And for the hard-to-fit there are tall sizes, half sizes and petite sizes.

One short coat is cut with tapered push-up sleeves and a great cape collar. Others feature unusual yoke treatments and pinch pleating. The full-length coat is shown in straight versions, sometimes with buttons extending from collar nearly to hem.

For ensembles, the short coat is shown over long-sleeved blouses and straight or gently flared skirts. Or, a brief jacket of fleece is worn with a skirt that has a high-rising waistline. The blouse is a crisp washable taffeta, the same fabric that's used to line the jacket.

Hair Style Show Presented By CWL

Skyline of new beauty horizons for spring was viewed at a hair style show presented Wednesday evening as a project of the St. John the Baptist CWL. About 50 members and guests enjoyed this timely feature held in the school auditorium.

Mrs. Joan Lawless, hair stylist, was introduced by president Mrs. John Duignan, explained the various conditions and types of hair and recommended [illegible] each, also [illegible] answering many questions regarding hair problems.

To illustrate the cutting technique she uses, Mrs. Lawless chose Mrs. Everett Sullivan as a model. Afterward she presented her own models to demonstrate the various hair styles.

Mrs. Robert McCabe was wearing a French cut, Miss Enid Philp the frappe cut, Miss Melba Richardson the Italian Viennese, Miss Charleen Hartnett the Italian Marcellotte as done by Marie Healey, Miss Warreen Aitkin, the casual sweep, styled by Arlene Lunn. Children's hair styles were shown by Brenda Cooper with a "little fis" cut and Carol Clifford with the Peter Pan bob.

Miss Mary Curtin played soft piano music during the style parade.

Mrs. Lawless was thanked by Mrs. Vince Anglesey.

ARMOUR HEIGHTS SCHOOL

The charter of the Armour Heights Home and School Association was presented at the meeting Wednesday evening to president Mrs. Fred Shaw by the district chairman for the Home and School Federation, Mrs. C. Coons.

This new association, which is going ahead rapidly, will hold its first social event next Wednesday afternoon, March 31st, calling it the Spring Bouquet Tea, and the ladies are working hard to make it a big success, with final arrangements now being made. A school picnic is planned for June 18th.

Principal Mr. W. L. McNeil brought the members up to date on school news with a short report. The president conducted business and the devotions were led by Mr. M. Andrus.

Mrs. G. H. Cutmore was guest soloist and presented a pleasing number with Mrs. Cecil Searles accompanying her at the piano.

Girls' Aux. Tour Telephone Bldg.

Completing their educational training for the year, the Girls' Auxiliary of St. John's Anglican Church Tuesday evening went through the Bell Telephone Company Building, after their regular meeting. On this occasion they were accompanied by St. Luke's girls and their leader Miss Anita Mason.

The girls were fascinated by the functions of each department as Bell supervisors explained the various cities and towns to the point of contact and how the lines are cleared afterward. She also showed how each call is timed and stamped accurately.

St. John's leader Mrs. W. C. Boats expressed thanks to office supervisor Mr. H. McClelland for making the tour possible. Her girls have previously visited the City Hall and County Court House.

THE DRESS-LENGTH NIGHTGOWN, now a year-round favorite, is shown for spring in a snow rose print by Carter. Pink blossoms bloom on pink background in gown with nylon-net apron-front panel. Gown has matching full-length robe.

Largest Crowd Yet At Tea

Thought to be the largest crowd yet to attend the annual Daffodil Tea of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association held on Wednesday afternoon, was probably out to enjoy the spring sunshine and near-balmy breeze as well as this very pleasant social event where tall yellow daffodils and yellow candles highlighted the tea room.

Home baking and candy tables did a marvelous business, being placed in the hallway where the ladies had to line up and wait for seating accommodation. Proceeds from these tables is to be used as a donation to the "Quarters for headquarters" fund of the Federation, instead of making a collection from each member.

Lady teachers of the school acted as tea room assistants and wives of the men teachers were tea pourers. The latter were Mrs. R. K. McKee, Mrs. W. Dawson and Mrs. Wilbur Patterson, and the teachers serving were Mrs. Kane, Mrs. Milburn, Miss Connolly, Miss Hart and Miss Haddow.

Mrs. Vert Reynolds, president of the Home and School Council, was also a tea pourer. Association members serving were Mrs. D. Epston, Mrs. Gerald McKinnon, Mrs. P. Turner, Mrs. W. B. Gordon, Mrs. M. G Forsythe, Mrs. V. Montgomery, Mrs R. Sager, Mrs. D. Whitaker, Mrs. J. Miller, Mrs. G. Howden, Mrs. Dion Snelgrove and Mrs. Lorne Bateman. Those filling the plates and tea pots were Mrs. O. Axford, Mrs. H. Hamilton, Mrs. Ivan Morgan and Mrs. Paul Evans.

Decorations were the work of Mrs. Cecil Potts and she laid the table with an oyster linen embroided cloth. Kindergarten children's art work provided an interesting wall background in the tea room and music looked after by Mrs. Wm. Turner was very pleasant.

The guests were received by president Mrs. Arthur Black and vice president Mrs. George Coleman and Mrs. E. Kingdon. Mrs. Gerald Norris looked after seating them and Mrs. G. Gatefield was also a hostess in the tea room.

A nursery was provided for the small children and this was supervised by Mrs. Arthur Bacon and Mrs. R. Ward.

The home baking table was in charge of Mrs. A. W. Clark and Mrs. A. E. Sayers and the candy table was attended by Mrs. George Cheatle and Mrs. F. E. Dunfield.

Ticket conveners Mrs. C. Wray and Mrs. R. G. Delahaye were on duty at the treasurer's table. Mrs. G. H. Perry was the advertising convener.

Mrs. Geo. Barns New Regent Municipal Chapter, IODE

Mrs. George Barns was installed regent of the Muncipal Chapter, IODE, of Peterborough in an impressive ceremony at the annual dinner meeting held Wednesday evening. The installation was conducted by the second regent of the chapter, Mrs. W. G. Hall. First regent, Mrs. A. W. Turner, now of Stouffville, was installed as honorary regent.

Mrs Barns succeeds Miss Mary Medd, who presidde for the business of regular and annual meetings held successively and heard monthly and yearly reports from all conveners.

The slate of officers for 1954 was presented by Miss June Fraser and reads as follows:

Regent, Mrs. G. Barns; past regent, Miss M. Medd; honorary regent, Mrs. A. W. Turner; vice-regents, Mrs. M. E. Clarke, Mrs. D. Murray.

Secretary, Mrs. G. A. Stewart; assistant, Miss Louise Spriggs;

MRS. GEORGE BARNS

treasurer, Miss Jean Hamley; assistant, Mrs. Bryan Roberts; organization secretary, Mrs. P. Sanders; education, Mrs. T. D. Miller; Echoes' secretary, Miss June Fraser; standard bearer, Mrs. Wm. Naish.

The secretary's annual report, prepared by Miss Eleanor Taylor, and read in her absence by Miss Louise Spriggs, showed that the work of this chapter had been well and fully done in the past year, and treasurer Mrs. B. Roberts' report showed financial success as well. Miss Spriggs also read her report as recording secretary.

The educational work report, read by Mrs. T. D. Miller, advised that nine schools were adopted by the eight chapters last year. Pictures and calendars were provided for the schools and chapter scholarships and bursaries were donated. Donations were also made to the School for Retarded Children and to aid a nurse from India now training at the University of Toronto.

Other reports were given as follows: standard bearer, Mrs. Naish; services at home and abroad, prepared by Mrs. G. Groombridge and read in her absence by Mrs. N. Geale; films, Mrs. G. Langhorne; publicity, Miss Beverley Martyn; hospitality, Mrs. W. A. Burrell; Empire and World Affairs, Mrs. Geale; Canadianization and immigration, Mrs. J. L. Evans; Commonwealth and Empire, Mrs. D. W. Clarke; Echoes secretary, Miss J. Fraser; organizing secretary, Mrs. C. L. Upper, who reported 442 members of the Order in this city.

A vote of appreciation for the services of all these officers and conveners was voiced by Mrs. M. E. Clarke.

Pianist Entertains At IODE Meeting

Musical entertainment by Miss Elizabeth Evans, talented young pianist of Peterborough was enjoyed by the ladies attending the annual dinner meeting of Municipal Chapter, IODE, which was held at the YWCA last evening. Miss Evans played several selections during an intermission in the business sessions.

There were also two films shown, one on social service work in British Columbia, and the other a color picture of Barbara Ann Scott on the ice.

Head table, at which executive members of the past year were guests, was decorated with a bouquet of daffodils, flanked by yellow candles, and the guests' tables had clusters of daffodils in small holders as centrepieces. Convener of the decorating was Mrs. P. A. Martyn, assisted by Mrs. G. Groombridge.

Mrs. Hudson Hall played military music as the guests took their places. The procession of standard bearers, who placed flags of each local chapter behind the head table, was led by Municipal bearer Mrs. Wm. Naish.

WELSH VOLUME

William Salesbury's collection of Welsh proverbs published in 1547 is believed the first book printed in Welsh.

COL. AGNES NEILL CHAPTER

Colonel Agnes Neill Chapter, IODE met Tuesday evening in the YWCA with the new regent, Mrs. G. Ardern presiding.

A further appeal by the Local Council of Women for volunteer drivers for the school for Retarded Children was made.

Mrs. W. Cuppy, social convener, reported on progress of plans for the Spring Tea to be held in the YWCA on Saturday, May 1st.

Mrs. Dean Cutmore's group offered to have the work meeting this month.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting by Mrs. Cutmore and assistants.

Easter Decor At Knox Tea

Decor attractiveness and hospitality unlimited mark the annual spring teas held by the Woman's Association of the Knox United church, but this year's event, held Wednesday afternoon, stands out as being the first one for which weather conditions were absolutely favorable.

"Usually we have rain or snow for our tea," said assistant Mrs. Pearse, who was at the door throughout the afternoon, greeting more than 350 guests. With her was the WA president, Mrs. Gordon James, and for a time Mrs. H. G. Douglas was also receiving.

The decorating this time was done by Mrs. C. Grainger and Mrs. R. Genge. They used the Easter colors, mauve and yellow predominantly in streamers and wall cut-outs of rabbits and chickens.

Wheelbarrows filled with Easter eggs and handled by small rabbits were quartette table decorations and the tea table was centred with a huge green tinsel wheelbarrow filled with lovely fresh spring flowers. Behind this was an appropriately dressed Easter bunny doll, and the novel arrangement was highlighted by yellow candles in crystal candalabrae.

Guests were assisted in finding seats by the table hostesses who were Mrs. R. Gillies, Mrs. A. Poolman, Mrs. G. Newmaster, Mrs. J. Kempt, Mrs. C. Gertley, Mrs. A. Kemp, Mrs. J. Johnson, Mrs. C. Hancock, Mrs. O. James, Mrs. E. Tape, Mrs. G. Myles, Mrs. D. Richardson, Mrs. C. Weldon, Mrs. J. Richmond, Mrs. H. MacIntosh, Mrs. G. Bennett, Mrs. H. Bowen, Mrs. L. Maudsley and Mrs. Carl Hill.

Tea pourers were group leaders, Mrs. L. Foster, Mrs. W. McCracken, Mrs. W. Logan, Mrs. C. Garside, Mrs. E. Pearse and Mrs. J. Throop, and the tea room hostesses were Mrs. Howard Clegg and Mrs. Ada Huffman.

Keeping refreshments supplied to the table were Mrs. W. Logan, Mrs. H. Murduff and Mrs. W. McCracken. The kitchen assistants were Mrs. N. Hughes, Mrs. Betty Clarke, Mrs. J. Throop, Mrs A. Pitchford, Mrs. R. Bowen, Mrs. R. Summers, Mrs. N. Thompson, Mrs. G. Morrison, Mrs. H. J. Knox and Mrs. D. Walker and Mrs. D. G. Rose made the tea.

Miss Phyllis Kindd, who was appointed general convener of the tea, was taken ill a few days ago and was unable to be present. Her sister-in-law Mrs. Ken Kidd, member of another congregation, came and played the piano throughout the tea hours.

Bazaar tables included home baking, candy, cards and miscellaneous sewn articles. The baking was sold by Mrs. Hazlitt, Mrs. S. Lancashire, Mrs. R. Laing, Mrs. J. Lancashire, Mrs. W. Windrem and Mrs. J. Marchen. Mrs. J. Donaldson had charge of the candy, with Mrs. R. Gillies and Mrs. W. Sharpe ,and they were long on customers but short on supplies.

Greeting cards of various kinds were sold by Mrs. C. Gertley and Mrs. A. Hewittt and Mrs. J. S. Londerville and Mrs. H. Trotter had charge of the sewing.

The nursery for small guests, where light refreshments were also served, was in charge of Mrs. H. G. Todd, Mrs. R. Genge, Mrs. J. LaBrash, Mrs. W. Preston, Miss Margaret Johnston, Mrs. A. Dugan and Mrs. C. Grainger in turns.

Ticket convenier Mrs. G. Hutchinson presided at the treasurer's table.

finished Dorcas work and donations handed in at the next meeting.

DOROTHY DIX

Mother Of Happy Brood Finds Neighbors Envious

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband is a wonderful man, good provider and fond father. We have four children, and I am expecting another. My problem is that my friends and in-laws seem so shocked at the fact that we are going to have another child. My husband and I love our children, and want a good-sized family. While we do have to manage carefully to take care of them, we are able to provide everything necessary. I am very tired of the ridiculous comments people make.

FRANCES K.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Wouldn't it be a fine world if people would only refrain from making thoughtless or unkind remarks? Most of the comments you've been getting can be put down to envy—sour grapes, in other words. Women who have no children envy—consciously or otherwise—mothers of large families. Certainly there is no better job, no finer career, than to mother a brood of fine youngsters. Each child is a blessing from God, and its upbringing is your acknowledgement to God.

RIGHT MEANS MIGHT

Perhaps at the moment you are unduly sensitive to the reactions of those around you. Just remember that you—not they—are in the right; that such criticism would come only from rude, inconsiderate people, and that your family compensates for everything. If you can squeeze a bit of reading into your busy day, borrow "Cheaper by the Dozen" from your library and see how well a really big brood was managed by two intelligent, understanding parents.

Knowing yourself to be a part of this mothers-of-large-families sisterhood should give you a decided lift.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm a junior in high school and like a boy the same age who attends another school. He seems to like me, since he walks me home from dances, basketball games, etc., but the trouble is he treats me more like a sister than a girl friend. He just won't take me seriously. We have lots of fun together but he's always teasing and kidding.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER You are very lucky to be accepted by the boy on this basis. A boy likes, above everything else, a girl who's fun; by cultivating this side of the friendship, you stand a very good chance of winning the boy as a steady. Don't try to change him [illegible] with several years ahead before he will get truly serious. Make the most of these happy times.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: For several months I have been going with a boy of different religion. He has never been active in his own church, while I am a regular attendant at mine. He is sympathetic to my faith and respects it. His parents like me, and say anything we do about the situation will be all right with them. My parents like him, too, but have said nothing about the religious difference. Could we make a satisfactory adjustment?

PUZZLED.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your parents should be told that you are considering marriage—if this difference is to be ironed out. You should be able to reach a solution after talking things over with both sets of parents, and with the clergymen of your respective churches. Most mixed marriages involve difficulties, but in your case the complete indifference to religion that pervades your friend's family will eliminate a good deal of friction.

Expect Two Children Born 6 Weeks Apart

CHELSEA, Mass. (AP) — The U.S. naval hospital here disclosed today that a navy wife who gave birth to a daughter 10 days ago is expecting a second delivery in six week as a result of separate conceptions, believed to have been at least a month apart.

The mother has dual organs of procreation, naval authorities disclosed, an extreme rarity in medical history.

The first child weighed three pounds, 14 ounces at birth March 15 and has been in an incubator at hospital where it is reported "doing well."

The mother, Mrs. Wilbur Chapman, 31, of Foxboro, Mass., is at the hospital but expects to be allowed to go home for a while before returning for the second birth.

Garbage Into Sugar

TORONTO (CP)—The city hopes to sell part of the 500,000 tons of garbage it collects annually. Now under study is a formula for converting household garbage into a commercial sugar which would be combined with yeast for sale as livestock feed. Some refuse may be made into a cereal-type food for plants.

NORWOOD

NORWOOD (ENS)—The Norwood Home and School Association met in the public school. The meeting was opened with the singing of "O Canada", followed by the recitation of the Home and School creed.

It was decided to hold the annual fair and hobby show April 9.

Mr. Sinclair's room won the attendance banner.

The president, Mrs. Stewart, gave a reading on "The Aim of Education".

Mr. Goodswan and Mrs. Fisher offered to make a new Home and School shield.

There was some discussion on purchasing playground equipment and it was decided to have further information brought to the next meeting.

Mrs. Harold Wright, program convener, introduced the guest speaker, K. S. Clarke of Kingston, who spoke on conservation. He is an ardent fisherman and hunter.

He stressed the value of county forests in helping to prevent floods and providing us with good water. He said it was the duty of each one of us to see that these forests were protected and not destroyed.

Mr. Clarke stressed the value of working with our agricultural representative to get the full benefit from our natural resources. He particularly hoped that all parents, and especially fathers, would teach their children the love of their country, how to find pleasure in hunting and fishing and taking part in 4-H clubs.

M. Freeman of the high school staff played two trumpet solos, accompanied by Mrs. H. Gyde.

Edgar Clark thanked the guest speaker and musicians. Lunch was served.

Feet Freeze In Shack Faces Amputation

BELLEVILLE (CP)—A 26-year-old Pembroke man faces amputation of both his feet which were frozen Tuesday night when he crawled into an abandoned shack to sleep.

Dr. C. C. McVicker said that Michael Fitzpatrick had both hands and feet frozen during the night in the open shack. The doctor said Fitzpatrick's hands can be saved.

Fitzpatrick attracted the attention of children passing the shack and he was taken to hospital.

U.S. Has Released 84 War Criminals

BONN (Reuters) — The United States High Commission announced today that it has paroled 84 German war criminals this month, reducing the number held by the Americans to 199.

It was not made known whether the group included any of the seven German general officers held in Landsberg war criminals' prison.

Recent releases have steadily trimmed the list of war-crimes prisoners held by the U. S., Britain and France. Britain now is believed to be holding 71 war criminals and the French 75.

Continue Strike 33 Men Fired

PLANTAGENET, Ont. (CP)—A group of 33 road workers of the United Counties of Prescott and Russell were fired Wednesday but continued today to picket the counties' big road headquarters.

The workers, on strike since Monday, seek recognition of the National Union of Public Service Employees (CCL) as their bargaining agent.

The men were fired verbally, in English and French, by acting engineer Alex Graham, who said the dismissal was because of their refusal to obey orders to return to work. A union spokesman said the strike would go on until UPSE is recognized.

Reeve Gerard Landry of Clarence Creek, chairman of the counties' roads committee, said the strike was illegal and the committee could not give union recognition. The Ontario labor relations board had rejected the union's application for recognition after the United Counties council passed a by-law excluding the employees from jurisdiction of the Ontario labor laws.

Three hundred miles of road in this area 40 miles east of Ottawa are without maintenance services.

Tighten Laws On Tablets

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal health department will tighten regulations to protect young children from harmful effects of headache remedies, it announced today.

The department's food and drug division has considered "the danger of headache [illegible] and young children," the announcement said. Also [illegible] with [illegible] and medical teachers of pharmacology or therapeutics, it had decided on steps to offset the danger.

In co-operation of manufacturers of the drugs concerned, a warning will be required on headache remedies recommended for children's use, cautioning against their administration to children under three without medical advice.

Manufacturers will be required to state on the label that the dose recommended is for adults, and to recommend much-reduced doses for children.

In addition, the practice of emphasizing the "safety" of headache remedies will be discouraged the announcement said.

Canada Favors Gold Increase

OTTAWA (CP)—The head of the Bank of Canada said today that all of Canada would benefit if the United States raised the price of gold without causing inflation.

Graham Towers, added, however, that he doubts the U. S. would boost the gold price unless it would benefit the U. S. internal economy.

Mr. Towers touched on the gold issue before the Commons banking committee studying banking legislation.

Gold-producing countries, particularly South Africa, have repeatedly urged the U. S.—the world's biggest gold buyer—to raise the official price from the current $35 (U. S.) an ounce. The U. S. has refused on the grounds that such action would cause inflation.

Mr. Towers said a price boost did not necessarily cause inflation. When the price was last boosted in the early 1930s—to $35 from $20 an ounce, there was no substantial inflation.

Ontario Gov't Plans Parley

OTTAWA (CP)—Members of the Ontario government will meet with delegates from eastern Ontario communities here May 11-13 to discuss development programs of the region.

This development, described as "an experiment in government," which would virtually mean moving Ontario's capital to Ottawa for three days, was decided on at a meeting Wednesday night of the Associated Boards of Trade of Eastern Ontario. More than 125 representatives of 40 communities from Pembroke and Hawkesbury on the north, Kingston to Cornwall on the south.

The eastern Ontario area conference will form the pattern for five other Ontario regions, Col. Lyle said.

Spencer Appointed CMHC Regional Head

TORONTO (CP) — Appointment of R. H. Spencer of Toronto as regional manager of mortgage lending for the Ontario region of Central Mortgage and Housing corporation was announced today by H. W. Hignett, regional supervisor.

Mr. Spencer, Ontario regional construction superintendent since 1951, is a native of Rochester, England. He has been with Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation since 1947, after serving with Wartime Housing Limited.

TEACHERS OF ALL SCHOOLS IN PETERBOROUGH attended a meeting on Wednesday night of the Teachers' Institute at the Empress Hotel to hear Dr. R. N. Arnfelt, professor of education at Leeds University in England, give an outline of the history and modern problems of educational development in England. Dr. Arnfelt (right) is shown here chatting with P. D. Windrim, inspector of public schools, and Miss Jean Leach, president of the Teachers' Institute.—(Parks Studio Photo).

Educators Of Britain Try To Establish

might curb the rise of juvenile delinquency.

A parallel development was one which Dr. Arnfelt called the "citizenship motive." Robert Lowe developed the idea that "we must educate our masters" while industrialists noted the economic fact that more literate workers were more useful to factory operations.

It was this same Robert Lowe who developed the unique educational technique of payment by results. His idea was that school grants should be distributed according to the academic standing of the various schools. Thus the salaries of teachers were directly dependent on results.

Lowe was not trying to compete with the grammar schools. His elementary schools were for the "classes who support themselves by manual labor, or those of the same means and social level."

The elementary schools and the grammar schools managed to achieve a relatively harmonious co-existence, since they were dealing with different classes and age groups. But with the work of Robert Owen and his socialized industrial communities, the progressive influence began to make itself felt.

NOT NEW IDEA

This influence, Dr. Arnfelt pointed out, is anything but new. It dates back at least to the time of Rousseau, who held that children should be taught what they are capable of learning and not what adults feel they ought to know.

Meanwhile the grammar schools were making some progress. As late as 1904 Latin had an automatic right to be taught in the grammar schools, while applications had to be made to teach other subjects. But after 1846 more and more subjects were taught, largely due to the modernizing work of poet Matthew Arnold, who was also an inspector of schools.

Towards the end of the century the psychological influence began to make itself felt and later the tenets of John Dewey came to England via Sir Fred Clarke. Clarke developed the theory, adapted from Rousseau, that the education system should be valued by its success in "fostering the individual excellence of which a child is capable."

These complex strands, said Dr. Arnfelt, have been woven into the complicated skein of English education. The merger is not yet complete nor ever will it be entirely so, "for it will be a sorry day for England when we cease to evolve."

Since infant schools date back only to Robert Owen, there is no conflict of tradition at this level, said Dr. Arnfelt. The emphasis is on "psychologically sound educative play." As the children blow bubbles, play house, or hammer walls, they may seem "like ants in a disturbed nest" but there movements are all co-ordinated.

Conflict began at the primary school level when children are faced with the problems of reading, writing and arithmetic and teachers are faced with the problem of how much progressivism they should abandon.

Teachers make "brave attempts," said the speaker, to teach in terms of activity and experience, but because the students must learn something for the future, the primary school is a battleground of ideas. The progressive idea of single-minded devotion to the present, on the grounds that providing for far-off happines which the child may never enjoy is soul-destroying, is at least partially unworkable.

Elementary school ideas "percolate up" to the secondary school level, thus adding more fuel to the educational controversy, said Dr. Arnfelt. The grammar schools take from 20 to 30 per cent of the especially gifted elementary school students, grooming these for the universities. The status of the rest of the youngsters is sometimes uncertain.

At the end of primary school a process of selection takes place by which all students between 10 and 12 are routed to the schools in which they are likely to do best. While grammar school candidates prepare themselves for universities in the sixth forms, secondary modern schools are providing whatever educational standards seem best for the individual schools.

The various secondary modern schools are independent units, said Dr. Arnfelt, qualified to choose their own textbooks, curricula and standards. The Board of Education, which controls British educational policy, encourages teachers to use their own initiative, and the result is "that no two schools think alike."

There is no significant trend towards composite schools in England, said the speaker. Dr. Arnfelt could see no good reason why buildings should be put under the same roof, "when students will have to be separated in any case." This, he felt, would be economically unsound.

Neither the grammar school nor the secondary modern school is more important than the other, said Dr. Arnfelt, "and the government neglects neither." It is true, however, that "social traditions die hard," and neither is quite reconciled to the aims and purposes of the other.

There is an education problem in England but "any sort of magic formula is to be shunned and treated with suspicion." Progress, said Dr. Arnfelt, does not lie in one particular direction but is the result of a merger of varying ideas.

In the question period which followed his address, Dr. Arnfelt, replying to a query from K. S. Wightman, pointed out that education at both levels is free. But to enter grammar schools children must pass competitive examinations. There is secondary education for all "but it was never intended that there should be grammar school education for all."

Children in the secondary-modern schools are not strictly comparable to those in Canadian vocational and composite schools, since Dr. Arnfelt felt that the secondary-modern students were "not the brighter ones." He amplified this by saying classifications cannot be "too rigid" for some of the top students in the secondary school are equal to the poorer students in the grammar school. University training is for grammar school graduates only.

Replying to other questions, Dr. Arnfelt said that the compulsory leaving age in England is 15, there is no standardized system of grading students, late-developing students can transfer from secondary - modern schools to grammar schools. The size of classes in England varies from eight in the senior forms of the grammar schools to 30 in the secondary-modern schools to more than 40 in the primary schools.

Dr. Arnfelt was introduced by inspector of public schools P. D. Windrim as "an outstanding British educationist." He began his career as a teacher, later became an inspector and during the war became educational advisor to the BBC. After the war he accepted the Chair of Education at the University of Leeds. Dr. Arnfelt was thanked by superintendent of schools K. S. Wightman.

Miss Jean Leach, president of the Teachers' Institute, which includes all teachers at all levels in Peterborough, presided at Wednesday's banquet. She introduced the following head table guests:

H. O. Anderson, secretary-treasurer of the Teachers' Institute, and Mrs. Anderson; vice-president W. M. Patterson and Mrs. Patterson; J. E. McCarney, chairman of the Separate School Board, and Mrs. McCarney; Charles Huffman, chairman of the Board of Education, and Mrs. Huffman; P. D. Windrim, inspector of public schools, and Mrs. Windrim; J. C. Doyle, inspector of separate schools; K. S. Wightman, superintendent of schools; Mrs. Ruth Clarke, vice-president of the Ontario Teachers' Federation.

County May Give Forest To Department To Manage

Peterborough county council are considering the merits of a plan whereby they would hand over the management of their 4,600-acre county forest to the department of lands and forests for 30 years.

The plan, which would require an agreement with the department, was outlined in detail Wednesday afternoon.

After a discussion of the pros and cons with four departmental officials they decided to defer their decision till the June session. Sometime before then they will make a one-day visit to the forest (north of Norwood in Dummer and Belmont townships) which many of them have never seen.

"Well, you'd better make it before fly time," said William B. Greenwood, regional forester. Along with Mr. Greenwood at the Wednesday afternoon session were G. H. Bayley, chief of the department's reforestation division, A. B. Wheatley, district forester, and John Bell, zone forester.

Before they sign any agreement however, the county councillors want to be sure they are making a practical move.

LOST $24,841

Since they made their first purchases of Crown land in 1938 and began tree planting, they have spent $40,655 80 and received $15,-813.86 in revenue. This is a net cost of $24,841.94.

"We have had a lot of criticism on our handling of the county forest," said Reeve Roland Tedford, chairman of reforestation, "so we decided to call in these gentlemen and try to find out how to operate on a profitable basis.

"We got the draft of an agreement with the department of lands and forests, and decided to present it to council at this session."

In brief, the agreement would be this:

The county would continue to hold the deed but the 4,600-acre forest would be leased to the department for 30 years. Reforestation, management and general upkeep would be provided by the department.

The county wouldn't pay for the department's supervisory staff but would pay for other help.

If they wanted to redeem it after 30 years the county would have to pay the department's out-of-pocket expenses. This would not include a charge for technical supervision; and revenue from wood-cutting operations (if any) would be credited to the county's account.

COSTS ACCUMULATE

Principal objection voiced by county councillors was the fear that the accumulated operating expenses after 30 years will have grown to such a large sum that the county won't be able to resume control and management of the forest.

"Well, I can't guarantee it," said Mr. Bayley, "but personally I see no reason why the forest shouldn't be run at a profit. The work will be done by people skilled in handling young forests and taking out forest products."

Reeve Stewart Clysdale of Dummer township asked if a full-time caretaker would be employed.

"I can't say at this time," replied Mr. Bayley. "It might be inefficient to employ a caretaker full-time."

The department expert said that the department couldn't afford to just give "a landlord" the benefit of their technical skill and advice. And in this case that's just what the county is in departmental eyes—a private landlord.

Mr. Wheatley, the district forester, has qualified foremen, trucks, tree-cutting machines and other equipment that he uses in the Lindsay district. These would be available from time to time for use in the forest.

"This isn't a selling proposition," Mr. Greenwood told the doubtful councillors. The department are already busy handling other municipal forests and doing related work.

"We are sure we could do a better job than the one you're doing now . . . For one thing, if you continue on your own, you're going to need technical advice."

Reeve James Gifford of Ennismore township recalled how the land was originally bought through an arrangement with the Hon. Peter Heenan, then the provincial minister in charge.

Since 1938 successive county councils have developed the project, planted 141,000 trees, and the project has cost $24,842.

THROWING IN SPONGE

"Have we come to the point now, after all these years, that we are beaten?" asked Reeve Gifford. . . . "Must we now turn it back to the department. . . . I hate to think we are going to throw in the sponge and hand it over.

"The county have quite an equity in this property," he said.

Mr. Tedford said he believed there is at present some 800,000 board feet of pine that could be cut. At one time a fire swept through the forest, he said, and the centre of the trees are not sound.

"Cut it and let the second growth come through," he advised.

Mr. Tedford said that apart from the initial outlay and money spent on improving the forest, there had been an operating revenue of as much as $1,500.

Twenty thousand trees have already been ordered for planting this year.

Mr. Wheatly said that the present problem of keeping a "caretaker" would remain. But under the lease plan it would be the worry of the department, not the county council.

It was finally decided to defer a decision to the June session.

Assessments

tial ones, involving an assessment of $4½ million and many technical matters of assessment and controversial methods of assessment.

"The court fully considered the appellant's preliminary objections as to its jurisdiction and the invalidity of the roll and counsel's arguments in respect thereto, and upon a review of the evidence before it, the court concludes that these are matters which should be left to the determination of a higher authority and finds accordingly."

CONFLICT OF OPINION

"In respect to the asssessment proper, the court has reviewed at length the appellant's evidence that the formula of the Charles Warnock Co. fails to comply with section 33 of the act and that the actual assessment shows that no proper consideration has been given to this section by the assessor, and finds that, although the evidence discloses a conflict of opinion as to appropriate formulae of appraisal and proper methods of assessment to be followed, the appellant's evidence is largely opinion evidence, which is not supported by evidence of fact.

"The court accordingly finds that sufficient grounds have not been shown by the appellant to cause an amendment to the roll.

"On the other hand, the respondent (the city) having submitted no evidence whatsoever to the court in respect to either the objections or the controversial matters raised by the appellant, the court is in the position that it is unable to determine this appeal upon its merits and has no recourse other than the errors in the roll shown in the appellant's evidence and confirms the roll accordingly."

The errors corrected by the court were in respect to the assessments of seven buildings of which four resulted in increases and three in reductions, for a total net reduction of $124,597.

Although the Quaker Oats Co. was unrepresented in the hearing of their appeal, a letter was read from the company declaring their agreement to the revision of their assessment and their appreciation of the work of the assessment commissioner and of Hector MacLean of the Charles Warnock Co.

"Well, that's good news," commented Mr. Finnie, when the letter was read.

"It speaks well for the time and effort you have devoted," Mr. Harstone told Mr. Davis.

"I think you've done exceptionally well," said Mr. Ephgrave. "Anyone who can come within eight or 10 per cent on a big place like that, with the job you've got, is doing very, very well."

"I didn't know it was going to be settled until 10 o'clock this morning," Mr. Davis said.

The assessment on the Quaker Oats main plant was reduced from $1,151,870 to $1,053,330, which, with the unchanged $45,-200 assessment of the land, made a total assessment of the main plant of $1,098,530. This automatically reduced the business assessment, which amounts to 60 per cent of the building assessment, from $718,240 to $659,120.

The assessment on the company's Donegal St. warehouse was reduced from $8,530 to $5,720, which, with the $2,650 assessment on land unchanged, made a total assessment of $8,370, automatically reducing the business assessment from $7,310 to $5,0[illegible].

By cutting the business assessment of the compa[illegible] St. retail store from 60 per cent to 30 per cent, [illegible]s reduced from $10,030 to $5,010.

A Bargain At 29 Cents

Would You Like A Gold Painted Slop Pail?

By DICK CAMPBELL

How would you like a gold-painted slop-pail for 29 cents? Or perhaps your fancy runs to diamond mop handles selling for a dime (slashed from 20 cents). If you were in Peterborough in the early months of 1894, you might have got such sensational bargains.

At the Chamber of Commerce 65th birthday banquet Tuesday, chamber president Sam Whitehouse was looking over old clippings in the Board of Trade's minutes for 1893-94. His conclusion was that prices may have been better, but times hadn't changed much.

Perhaps the best bargain of all was in suits. Men's tweed suits were selling at $7 to $10, while boys' three-piece suits were retailing for $2.75 with a lacrosse stick thrown in with each purchase.

Mr. Whitehouse's reminiscences were so fascinating that we spent a musty hour rummaging through old Examiner files. Some of the finds, both in advertising matter and news content, are truly startling.

A large advertisement in the Examiner in the spring of 1894 advises that one Alex Elliott was the sole agent in Peterborough for "O'Keefe's finest English and Bavarian hopped ales." Purchases could be made at the Palace Grocery.

HAD IMAGINATION

One of the Examiner's best customers seems to have been the Gough concern. Some of the Gough copy-writers were genuine word-poets, though their passion for purple prose occasionally got the better of them. One Gough ad provides the startling information that "clean, neat socks look well under a new Gough hat." It was the same Gough concern that had special sales daily from 4 to 6, selling pants at a dollar a pair.

Many of the ads were more than somewhat lurid. Our best customer seems to have been a chap who bought a quarter page a day to tell readers that "the future of our Canadian nation depends on strong and robust women. Paine's Celery Compound gives vitality, vigor and strength to the weak."

Another ad pictures a depressingly plain looking lass pictured under the caption: "Her parents were in despair but she was brought into Healthy Girlhood with Hood's Sarsaparilla."

But fascinating as these ads were, the news was much more so.

Our energetic Keene correspondent filed this despatch, which was printed in its entirety in the Examiner: "Several tramps passed through the village this week and reported times very dull for their trade."

Whoever was news editor missed a good story by burying a gory murder story on an inside page under the uninspiring head: "Ghastly Tragedy." The one-paragraph story related that a man in Dolgeville, N.Y. had murdered his wife and four children and then committed suicide. What made the case unique was his note explaining the blood-bath: "I want to leave a black mark on Dolgeville."

[illegible] with a tale out of England relating how a wife who suspected her husband of infidelity kept him chained to the bedpost for four months. She beat him every night, and the man inconsiderately died. The lady was hanged.

TRENT CANAL ISSUE

In Peterborough the hottest editorial issue was the Trent Canal. Work had been suspended on the canal and the Examiner reported Mayor Kendry as saying that "this shilly-shallying will no longer be tolerated."

The Examiner seemed to be taking a fatalistic, what-can-you-expect-from-the-Tories attitude. It was pessimistic about the Government doing any more work on the canal and declared that "hundreds of thousands has already been corruptly squandered on the Curran bridge."

Our erstwhile contemporary, the Review, expressed its views thus: "Let no small-minded and bigoted Reform newspapers belittle the efforts of our government."

The city council reporter cultivated a [illegible] style of reporting, slow-moving even for 1894. His lead paragraph [illegible] that the civic Solons" held their "monthly sederunt" last evening. Column or so later he imparted the information the city got through the first three months of 1894 with total expenditures of $12,000.

Other miscellaneous items culled at random showed that "children cry for Pitcher's Castoria," that Derby chewing tobacco was selling for five cents a plug, that Lillian Russell was advising girls how to be famous actresses, that those who cannot afford wallpaper "can treat their bedrooms with sanitary paper," that maple syrup was selling for a dollar a gallon, that there was agitation in the legislature for a "seaway" leading into Georgian Bay, and that "delighted is the universal verdict of all who wear featherbone corsets."

But to return to our original query, anybody want a slop pail?

Obituary

FRANCIS JOSEPH FLAHERTY

The death of Francis Joseph Flaherty, son of the late Thomas Flaherty and Mary Cain, occurred at St. Joseph's Hospital on Tuesday. He was in his 69th year.

Mr. Flaherty was born in Galway township.

Left to mourn his loss are two sisters, Mrs. Martha Doherty of Galway and Sister Thelca of Sharman, Texas, and one nephew, Ray, who resided with him.

The funeral will be held Friday morning with requiem mass at St. Patrick's church, Kinmount, at 9 o'clock. Interment in St. Patrick's cemetery, Kinmount.

Hugh Waddell Named Acting Airport Manager

Hugh Waddell has been appointed manager and supervisor of Skyboro airport for the spring and summer until September while permanent manager Charles Kingan is away on a trip in the United States.

Before he left Mr. Kingan mentioned that 1,000 circulars are being prepared to distribute to airports in the United States and Canada. The circulars contain a sketch of the Peterborough airport, lists its elevation, prevailing winds and other pertinent facts for airmen.

Mr. Waddell's duties will consist to a large extent of meeting visitors of importance and giving them a welcome to the city and help them conduct the business they are on.

Ross Dobbin Meets Natives Everywhere

"There is one thing about travel that has often surprised me, and that is the number of Peterborough people you meet," said Ross L. Dobbin, home the other day from the Pacific coast and the Yukon.

"Mayo is a little place up there about the size of Warsaw. The plane had put in there, and it was about time to take off for Dawson City. I was hustling along the one central street, and heard some one shouting behind me. He was wearing a white coat and was waving shears in his right hand.

"I slowed down and he caught up with me. He said: 'Saw you going by the window of my shop, and I says to myself that stranger looks like a fellow I knew in Peterborough. And when I ran out the name came to me, you're Dobbin or I miss my guess'."

Mr. Dobbin said he simply had to keep going, and regretted that he hadn't time to stop and exchange greetings.

"In the hurry I was too concerned about getting the waiting plane to ask his name, and I'm still regretting it. But imagine, away up there in the Yukon, a man looks out his window and says to himself, there's someone from Peterborough I ought to know!"

Says Federal Government "Not Playing Fair Now"

TORONTO (CP) — John Root (PC—Wellington North) charged Wednesday that the federal government "with a policy of decentralizing our people and centralizing the tax dollar in the federal treasury" isn't playing fair with the municipalities or the provinces.

Speaking during the budget debate in the legislature, Mr. Root said Ontario municipalities would be in an "impossible" situation if it wasn't for provincial government aid.

"Rural municipalities must provide roads, schools and services for people. They have no corporation stores or head offices to tax. They have no industry to tax. If they secure industry, the neighboring city will try to annex the industry. If the rural people try to protest they are told: 'You cannot stand in the way of progress.'

"This cannot go on indefinitely. If we are going to decentralize our population we must at the same time decentralize our tax dollar."

He suggested Ottawa might "follow the example of this province by giving the municipalities an unconditional per-capita grant that would help pay for schools, roads and services. "If not a grant, then some form of re-allocation of taxes."

Warn Queen Avoid Uganda

KAMPALA, Uganda (Reuters)—Newspapers here have received copies of an anonymous letter warning that the Queen should cancel her proposed visit to Uganda April 28.

The letter was addressed to Governor Sir Andrew Cohen, who brought about the banishment of King Mutesa II of Buganda last December on grounds that he was not co-operating with British colonial officials.

It said the Queen is not aware of the "state of hatred" in Uganda.

Manila Rats In For Trouble

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—A newspaper report that disease is decimating mice on the Springbok flats of northern Transvaal brought a Philippine scientist to see for himself and his government.

He is Dr. S. B. Montemayor of the public health research laboratories in Manila. He said rats last summer destroyed 22,000,000 bushel bags of rice in the Philippines.

So serious was the rat menace, he said, that he left Manila by air for South Africa at 24 hours' notice on the order of President Magsaysay. His aim was to take back, if possible, a culture of the disease organism responsible for the death of mice.

The local medical research institute said efforts to isolate the organism have been unsuccessful. It has, however, sent to Manila a culture of the bacteria found in sick mice last year. This will be tested on Manila rats.

Seek To Explain Canada To Americans

NEW YORK (CP)—"Canada: A Great Small Power" is the title of a booklet just published by the Foreign Policy Association of New York.

The authors are Mason Wade, formerly in the U.S. embassy in Ottawa, and Tom Twitty, New York newspaper man.

Written mainly with the aim of explaining Canada to Americans, the book says that "with the post-war decline of British influence . . . Canadian nationalism has increasingly found its focus in reaction against American influence." It adds:

"Politically Canada has faced the facts of the post-war world and . . . has accepted the leadership of the U.S. in the search for peace through collective action. But it has accepted that leadership with reservations . . .

AMERICAN PRESS REACTS

"A good many Americans have been very much surprised to find in the post-war years that some Canadians fear and distrust the U.S. and that they have said as much, with emphasis, on public occasions. The American press has long assumed that Canada was not news, but incidents which might have been captioned "Canadian Bites Americans" have shaken this tradition . . .

"Americans who find that today Canadians tend to wear a nationalist chip on their shoulder . . . should recall the not-so-distant days of our national youth, when the oratorical crimes committed in the name of the manifest destiny of the U.S. made older nations smile when they did not infuriate them. Today Canada has its own sense of manifest destiny . . .

"It is not surprising that there is a certain tendency to paint the maple leaf somewhat larger and more garish than it is in fact, particularly among a people of eagle-screaming, are not themselves immune from the North American weakness for stretching the facts of a case . . ."

Other findings:

"Canadians themselves have been supplying the major capital (for development) . . . American investments are estimated at 10 per cent of the Canadian total, with Europe supplying slightly less than five per cent."

"The Toronto stock exchange has become one of the world's major financial markets."

"Even Americans believe that despite their distaste for American . . . the American tourist is a big annual Canadian cash crop. The fact is that since 1951 Canadians travelling in the U.S. have spent more here than Americans in Canada."

Spend $33,000,000 For Hospital Beds

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government has been committed to spending almost $33,000,000 toward new hospital beds in the seven years the provincial hospital grant program has been operating, Health Minister Phillips said Wednesday.

About $26,000,000 has been paid out, he told the legislature, and 18,693 new beds have been added or are planned.

No Bread, Water Diet In Ontario Prisons

OTTAWA (CP) — There is no bread and water diet in Ontario penal institutions.

Col. Headley G. Basher, deputy minister of reform institutions, said Wednesday that prisoners in close confinement in provincial institutions are fed a special meat loaf.

He told the Senate - Commons committee on corporal punishment that the food is designed to give prisoners a balanced diet.

MORE CIGARS

Canadian companies released 235,000,000 cigars for consumption in 1953, a 13 per cent increase over 1952.

SWEETIE—Pretty Ann Daniels poses in New York City, to show why she was selected "1954 Citrus Queen." The 20-year-old coed leaves New York soon for Switzerland, a trip she won as part of prize.

I WANT 2,000 PEOPLE TO TRY SYNTONA FOR ONLY 25 CENTS

SUFFERERS FROM STOMACH TROUBLE, WEAK KIDNEYS, LAZY LIVER, NERVOUSNESS AND GENERAL RUNDOWN CONDITION

WHAT IT IS !

SYNTONA is an advanced medical compound of 12 of the finest medicinal herbs, and not one a habit-forming drug. It is taken before meals and mixed with the food in one's stomach, thus throwing off the poisons that foster stomach troubles. It acts within ten minutes to stop gas and pains, sourness, bloating and belching. At the same time SYNTONA drives the poisons from the kidneys and relieves backaches, bladder irritation and weakness.

WHAT IT DOES !

It acts on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It DRIVES OUT chronic and neuritic pains, helps stop to boils, pimples, and other common blood disorders by ELIMINATING THE CAUSE! It builds strong, healthy nerves. It will free your system of its over-supply of acidity. Those ravaging acids that accumulate and irritate your stomach — fill you with gas — sour your food and cause constipation.

Now, whether SYNTONA will help you as it has thousands of others—whether it will end your sufferings in a day or week—remains to be seen, but in the light of what it has done for others, it is surely a mistake not to try it for 25c, only a fraction of its worth. This introductory offer is good this week ONLY. Act at once. Do this in fairness to yourself and your family.
